MOTORIZED NAZIS FLANK FOE

UNION'S BOARD OUSTS SCALISE, INDICTED CZAR

McFetridge in Line for Presidency.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Chicago, scene of the enthronement three years ago of George Scalise as czar of 70,000 members of the Building Service Employés' International union, was the scene yesterday of his dethronement. Scalise is a former Brooklyn undertaker and an ex-convict panderer.

William McFetridge.

He was indicted Friday in New York on 52 counts of extortion for alleged shakedowns aggregating nearly $100,000 from hotels and cleaning contractors. Until yesterday he had sole control of 20,000 building service employés in New York City and supervisory control over 50,000 others in the rest of the country. He had custody of their union dues.

When Scalise was crowned in Chicago he was an unknown except to a few in labor circles which he had entered but two or three years previously.

Locals Told to Ignore Scalise.

The same union chieftains who gave Scalise power and who three months ago whitewashed him when District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York began to investigate him, announced yesterday that the executive board of the building service union had suspended Scalise from the union presidency and warned locals of the big union to take no more orders from him.

William McFetridge, the man who announced last night that he seeks to succeed Scalise, by election at the convention opening in Atlantic City, N. J., May 6, is one of six union leaders who made Scalise boss in 1937. McFetridge also made the motion last Jan. 27 [also in Chicago] which sought to restore dignity to Scalise, who had been exposed as a dictator and as an ex-convict.

As first vice president of the executive committee of the international union, McFetridge presided yesterday when Scalise was suspended. A few hours later Scalise, in New York, announced his resignation.

Pistol Rule Denied.

In a subsequent interview McFetridge made three denials, as follows:

1. That pistols, money, or mob rule gave Scalise control of the international in 1937.

2. That he had reason to fear for his life in 1939, when, it was reported, Scalise intended to grab McFetridge's two unions, the flat janitors' union and the school janitors' union.

3. That his participation in the "perfuming" of Scalise here Jan. 27 was by order of Frank [the Enforcer] Nitti, present head of the old Capone gang, which is said now to be national in its operations.

McFetridge, who is highly regarded by public officials, labor leaders, and the rank and file union members as a man of integrity, intelligence, and ability, offered as an excuse:

"We didn't know what he was doing in New York."

Suspension for "Best Interests."

Asked whether he now believed Scalise was a crook, McFetridge said he did not want to prejudge the man. The suspension of Scalise was in the best interests of the 70,000 members of the union, McFetridge said.

The 52 counts of extortion against Scalise were said to have prodded the union's executive board into the removal order. The information reaching here, the unionists said, was that the 52 counts contained dynamite. Scalise also was indicted on one charge of conspiracy.

Those voting yesterday with McFetridge to depose Scalise were: Gus Van Heck, second vice president; Thomas J. Burke, third vice president; Miss Elizabeth Grady, trustee, and Paul B. David, treasurer, all of Chicago. At the election in 1937 Charles Hardy of San Francisco, Cal., voted with them. In the "sweet William" resolutions of Jan. 27 Robert H. Emmett, fifth vice president, voted with McFetridge, Van Heck, Burke, and Miss Grady in asking Scalise not to resign

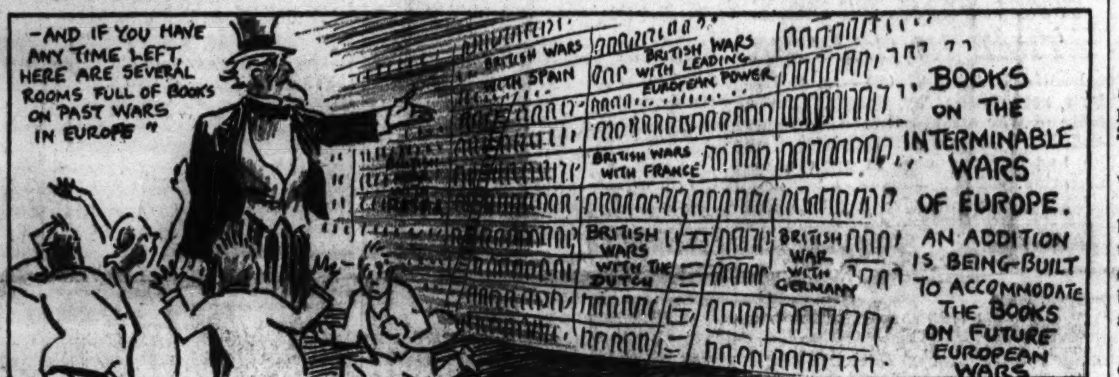
HOW TO SPEND YOUR EXTRA HOURS OF DAYLIGHT IN KEEPING OUT OF EUROPEAN WARS

Today Father Time distributes an extra hour of daylight to everybody.

Americans are advised to invest a few hours in reading the complete story of our last adventure in European wars.



—And if that doesn't clinch their determination to keep out of another such European war, let them read a few hundred of these disillusioning tomes.

ARMY'S LATEST TANK DESIGNS RELEASED TO FOREIGN POWERS

Washington, D. C., April 27 (AP).—The war department has relased designs of the army's latest tanks, guns, and other weapons for sale abroad, but officials reported today that thus far there have been few orders for such munitions.

Representatives of Great Britain, France, and other governments were said to be continuing negotiations looking to possible large scale orders for powder, shells, and weapons.

Officials said the release of army ordinance designs was in accord with a war department policy of doing all possible to build up the nation's capacity to produce munitions in an emergency. The designs may be used, it was stressed, only if substantial orders are given American plants. Some weapons and devices classed as secret have been withheld.

A HORSE PLAYER PUTS HIS MONEY ON ARK FAMILY

Seattle, Wash., April 27 (AP).—Paul Satko reckoned today he would change the gears on his home-made ark while waiting for a court ruling on whether he would be allowed to take his seven children to Alaska in the craft.

The Satkos, who want to carve a new home out of the northland because they "don't believe in relief," were more cheerful today. Two apartments were provided for them after five of the children had been held two days at juvenile quarters on complaint of a seamen's union officer that the ark was not seaworthy.

The apartment bill was footed by H. Paul Norman, a showman, who commented: "I've put that much on a horse more than once, without nearly as much satisfaction."

Satko said he hoped to increase his awkward 40 foot boat's speed from five knots to eight by changing the gears.

"There isn't a better boat afloat today," he declared. "I built her and I know how strong she is."

Mackenzie King Will Call on Hull "as an Old Friend"

Washington, D. C., April 27 (AP).—W. L. Mackenzie King, prime minister of Canada, arrived here today and will see Secretary of State Cordell Hull on Monday. The prime minister is on a vacation, and the Canadian legation said his visit with Hull would be merely a private call on an old friend. Mackenzie King's visit with President Roosevelt at Warm Springs, Ga., this week was described similarly.

HUMACAO, Puerto Rico, April 27 (AP).—The monkeys that are most like men live under an economic system much similar to modern business corporations run by human beings.

A Rhesus Monkey.

They are bossed by a president. In the president's absence his job is taken over by a first vice president.

When the first vice president is away, a second vice president takes over, and so on.

There is even a Simian counterpart for the boss' secretary.

Start for Business, Perhaps.

This evidence that our business system may have had its start back in the treetops ages ago was revealed on Monkey island, which lies a quarter mile out in the Atlantic ocean from this little town on Puerto Rico's eastern coast.

The source of the information was Dr. C. R. Carpenter, famous primatologist, who has been living among and studying the world's only eugenic monkey colony.

These monkeys are the Rhesus type. Because they are the most like men, they are preferred for scientific experiments. All pure specimens, they were brought to the island by the school of tropical medicine of San Juan in conjunction with Columbia university, and are maintained under controled conditions intended to keep them free of disease.

Meet the Boss.

The biggest herd in the colony is bossed, Dr. Carpenter discovered, by a husky male known as "No. 160." All the other monkeys toe the line when he is around. He gets first chance at whatever food is available.

A good looking [from the monkey viewpoint] female who takes dictation from him commands the respect of all the lesser lights. She goes out and grabs food when no other female dares. Other males may make a play for her, but they don't get serious when "160" is in sight.

Wherever "160" goes, another big male, known as "174," goes along. Now "174" always keeps an eye on "160." Whatever "160" indicates is the thing to do, "174" does. This, Dr. Carpenter points out, is typical "yes man" stuff.

Consequently, the doctor said, he was not surprised when he learned that "174" was the first vice president of "160's" firm.

This was proved by locking up "160" and seeing who would take his place at the head of the herd. And "174" did, and was accepted without a sign of dissatisfaction.

When "174" was locked up, his place was taken by a fellow named "159." And so on down the line.

A checkup showed that "160" commanded the biggest personal following; that is, he ran around with a bigger gang at his heels than any of the other males—58 in all.

CHICAGOLAND SETS ITS CLOCKS UP AN HOUR AS DAYLIGHT TIME STARTS

Chicagoans and residents of most suburbs will enjoy the first of 154 extra hours of daylight today. The annual change to daylight saving time went into effect at 2 a. m., when clocks were turned ahead one hour.

Daylight time will continue until Sept. 29, when clocks will be moved back again. The change affects all suburbs in Cook and Lake counties and most of the communities in Will and Kane counties. Security and commodity markets in Chicago will conform to the change, as will suburban trains.

More than 30 million persons in 15 states will join in the daylight saving change. The Merchants' association of New York estimated that daylight saving time will be observed during 1940 by 250,000,000 persons in various parts of the world.

Archduke Otto Kept Off Clipper by Big Mail Load

New York, April 27 [Special].—Uncle Sam's trans-Atlantic air mail commanded precedence over royalty today when Archduke Otto of Hapsburg was denied passage to Lisbon on the American Clipper. He was a victim of the postal contract, which specifies that on heavily loaded ships mail takes preference over passengers. When the Clipper took off from La Guardia field it carried 7,061 pounds of mail, an all-time record. One passenger did get aboard. He was John G. Winant, former governor of New Hampshire. The plane can carry 30 passengers.

BRITISH BRAND GERMANS' PLOT CHARGE A LIE

Insist They Planned No Norway Drive.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 27.—Authoritative quarters in London, altho calling the charges made by Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, too disingenuous to impress the world, took pains today to give a point for point denial.

Sir Samuel Hoare.

Von Ribbentrop's statement, in which he charged Britain and France began as early as April 6 to spread the war to the north, was denied by Sir Samuel Hoare, Britain's air minister, in a radio address.

"It is a despicable lie to say that we ever have plotted against any neutral country," Sir Samuel declared.

Another denial was issued by the war office:

"It is officially denied that any brigadier or his staff have been captured at any time in the course of operations in Norway in spite of Ribbentrop's statement in his speech this afternoon."

[Von Ribbentrop said some of the documents revealing a plan to invade Norway were taken when "the British brigade staff" in command in the Lillehammer sector was captured.]

Plan to Split Germany Denied.

Another authoritative statement issued here said:

"There is no truth in Ribbentrop's assertion that the allies plan to dismember the German nation."

As to the charges that Britain and France intended to invade Norway, the facts were said to be the following:

"1. It is true the British and French governments were determined to halt the German abuse of Norwegian territorial waters, hence their decision to lay mine fields.

"2. The allied governments sought permission to send help to Finland thru Norway and Sweden, and when this was refused they did not proceed with their plan.

"3. The Norwegian government, far from deciding to enter the war on the allies' side, had refused consistently to agree even to the passage of troops to Finland.

"4. If troops had been ready for a landing in Norway there would have been no delay in coming to her assistance.

"5. Had the laying of the mine fields been merely a preparation for a landing in Norway, the allies would not have announced it.

Nazis on Move Early.

6. "The German expedition sailed many days before the mine fields were laid.

"7. It is notorious that the German landing in Norway was made possible by the activities of the German secret agents, and it is impudent to suggest that British agents were preparing for a British landing."

A denial was also made that Britain and France desired an extension of the war. The view of neutrals was said to have been indicated "by the fact that none has mobilized in fear of allied aggression." The German occupation of Norway was described as a deliberate act and the Nazis were charged with attempting to justify their invasion with documents of which they had no cognizance when the invasion began.

War in "Vital Phase."

Air Minister Hoare said in his radio address that the war has entered an intense and vital phase. "We will not bomb open towns," he added. "We will not attempt to defeat the Germans by terrorizing their women and children."

Sir Samuel warned, however, that Britain will wage its fight "to the full."

The air minister said hard fighting would be needed to take Norway from the Germans, and added:

"Step by step the allied forces must destroy the German grip upon Norwegian sea ports and air bases."

It was announced that the British-French supreme war council has agreed on problems arising from the present phase of the war and taken note of measures to meet them.

NORSE FARMERS RALLYING AFTER 14 DAY RETREAT

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOMEWHERE NEAR ROROS, Norway, April 27.—[By courier to Fjallnas, Sweden.] — Norwegian farmer boys, after a 14 day retreat, tonight still are holding the road reaching from Roros to the Swedish frontier.

The retreat began in panic and continued that way until the youths, sickened at the retreat they say was ordered by their officers and encouraged by the arrival of Norwegian and Swedish veterans of the Finnish war, set up their own military régime and stood their ground.

With the expert advice of those fresh from the Finnish war, the baby army is building fortifications, and digging traps to catch German tanks, if any can fight their way thru the formidable snow and terrain.

Officers Are Blamed.

These soldiers blame their officers for the long and humiliating retreat. The officers in turn blame their staff officers whose headquarters is still a mystery. No one knows yet whether the orders to retreat which the Norwegians heeded were authentic.

On the frontier I found a great American roadscraper and from its gas tank I filled my own and put some more in tins to have a reserve. Driving thru walls of snow higher than the car, near Roros, I reached a Norwegian outpost. The cook had over night become the commander. His voice was hoarse from giving orders and his eyes were red from lack of sleep. His boys had a machine gun dismantled from a German plane they had brought down. They had transported it for days hoping to find some one who would show them how to work it. It had no stand and was an unreliable weapon.

Chicagoan on Guard.

The man on guard was Arthur Simonsen of 2414 North Kedzie boulevard, Chicago. He is a member of the Normaendenes Singing society there. He has lived in Chicago for 18 years. On a visit to Norway when the war broke out, he is determined to stick it out.

"At Skarnes we held up the Germans for 12 hours," he said. "I did not see any Norwegian casualties, but I saw plenty of German. We have been very lucky. During the last four days we have been bombed three times with small loss. Our boys wanted to fight, but every time we got into a fight we received an order to retreat. Our line had not broken at Skarnes, but we received orders to fall back.

"At Kongsvinger the commander ordered us to retreat further. Between Flisa and Elverum we built up a good defense position at Ryen school.

"We were again given an order to retreat after a short skirmish. The boys became demoralized. The thing we need most is a few good officers, then some automatic weapons to give the boys confidence against the Germans."

Complete Chaos Then.

When I arrived at this camp yesterday afternoon there was complete chaos among the Norwegians. Their officers were separated from the men. I met the major in the customs house. Some miles further on at what was supposed to be a headquarters a boy who had been the chief cook of his company had been placed in command by his comrades. He had placed the major under arrest. The chief cook, in charge, was half delirious from exhaustion and was trying frantically to find some ammunition for the reenforcing volunteers who arrived a few hours later.

The lad now is adjutant to the commander of the volunteers. The major was freed. However these original Norwegian officers are only nominally in command.

CROSS 50 MILES OF MOUNTAINS IN DARING DRIVE

Peril British Rail Link in Norway.

STOCKHOLM, April 27 (AP).—Adolf Hitler's war machine, advancing steadily along the rocky roads of central Norway, was reported tonight to have sped a mechanized column 50 miles over steep mountain trails in an amazing flanking movement which threatened allied soldiers in two sectors of the front below important Trondheim.

The fully equipped German motor units, covering the 50 miles in less than 24 hours, climbed the mountains from Tynset, well south of the advance German column at Roros, and thrust northwestward to Kvikne and thence to Inset. This put them about 25 miles south of allied concentrations at Storen. And from Storen it is only 30 miles to German occupied Trondheim. Thus the column is only about 55 miles out of Trondheim.

By its lightning like thrust the column now not only is in a position to cut the railroad from Storen south to Dombas, where there are other allied troops, but it appears also to have outflanked the fighting along the Glomma river to the east in the Roros area.

Small Tanks in Column.

Norwegian forces have been fighting against heavy odds to stop German columns from getting to Storen from Roros along the main valley route. The mountain flanking column, however, appears to be almost at Storen without fighting anybody.

The German column advancing over the rough Tynset-Kvikne trail had armored cars and small tanks. They were credited with negotiating a road which even in peacetime presents an unusual hazard. It bends and dips from 1,500 to 3,000 foot levels and sometimes curves around narrow mountain ledges where a mistake will plunge any vehicle down perpendicular cliffs.

As a result of all this, the British-Norwegian opposition appeared thus far ineffective in central Norway, south of Trondheim. One foreign neutral military observer of long experience expressed the conviction that the Nazis could not well be stopped.

Efficient Communications.

The German drive is in three main sections, along the railroad inland from Bergen and in the Roros and Dombas sectors farther north. The flanking column is an offshoot, sprouting northward between the two latter places.

The German aim apparently is to establish efficient communications among these three main sectors and at the same time push against the British troops now established in the Steinkjer area 50 miles north of Trondheim. The prize of victory will be the control of all but the narrow northern part of Norway.

The allies themselves acknowledged an early retreat in the Dombas sector and a Norwegian communique spoke of German advances along the Bergen railway.

Fighting Near Swedish Border.

Border dispatches told of minor German forces holding Roros and said the main fighting in that sector was to the east around Djuposolien, near the Swedish border.

German engineer troops advanced north of Roros to Nyplass to repair a bridge dynamited by the Norwegians.

The Roros district is a mountain plateau offering grave obstacles to troops. There is only one narrow road and in wintertime it is impassable for automobiles. The altitude averages 1,800 feet above sea level, which is critical just now because the sun melts the snow during the day, making the road bad for foot troops, much less guns and heavy armored cars.

In view of these odds, Norwegians are reported anxious to know just how it was possible for the Germans to make such lightning progress. In addition to their superior equipment, the Germans again have the element of surprise in their favor. The mountain roads they are climbing or have climbed with tanks and armored cars are natural fortresses, which could easily be blocked and just as easily defended.

Fighting in Southern Norway.

The only fighting now in progress in southern Norway is around Gjovik, 60 miles north of Oslo. Details were lacking, and the only thing known for certain is that the Germans have pushed their front from Toten, 12 miles south of Gjovik, to somewhere in the Valdres valley on the west.

Both armies are using their air forces, but the Swedish press gave much prominence to a warning attributed to English newspapers that too great optimism was not warranted—that the Germans control the air fields in Norway and all but the smallest ports, in which it is most difficult to land troops.

Foreign military observers similarly concluded that the British navy had not stopped the transport of German troops by sea [the continued landing of troops was reported at Oslo] and that the British without reënforcement could not retake the German held territory.

Neutral Sweden, meanwhile, took new steps to safeguard her neutrality. A recruiting office was opened for home defense guards of men over 45 and for youths between 17 and 20.

These guards would be used to fight parachute troops or minor troops which strayed from the main force of any enemy Sweden might encounter.

A bill with new definitions of espionage and treason was introduced in parliament. Here and there in midtown Stockholm a few merchants for the first time started boarding their display windows against air raid dangers. There also was some sandbagging of buildings.

NAZIS BOMB CRUISERS

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 27.—Germany, tonight claimed new successes on sea and land and in the air in the struggle against the allies for control of Norway.

DNB, official news agency, said that German bombers, in extensive forays over Norwegian waters today, had put one British cruiser out of commission, damaged another, set two transports afire, and sunk a third, which, it was reported, had 40 tanks aboard.

A third cruiser was damaged yesterday by bombs in Sogne fjord, the German high command communique announced. One British plane was downed over Aalborg airdrome in Norway yesterday, the communique claimed.

Attack Off Andalsnes.

The British cruiser put out of commission today was attacked off Andalsnes, where British and French troops have been landing.

On land, Germany offered this picture of developments:

Complete control of central and southern Norway is believed imminent, with allied troops continuing their retreat north and south of Trondheim and with resistance of the small Norwegian forces weakening daily.

Already the Germans are looking toward the Narvik area, citing the difficulties the British navy will have in maintaining sea communications with the northern expeditionary force of the allies once the German garrison in Trondheim is strengthened and sufficient German bombers are available to deal with the Narvik area.

Resistance Collapses.

Resistance in Oester valley seems to have collapsed completely. German mechanized forces have pushed beyond the small town of Roros, which was recaptured yesterday. Swedish reports said that the Norwegian commander in charge of this sector and his entire staff have crossed the Swedish border near Fjallnas, a Swedish border town east of Roros.

In Gudbrands valley the Germans now are fighting their way up to Dombas, which is connected by rail with the British strong points at Andalsnes. There is little left of this railroad after repeated attacks by German bombers.

Germans expect that allied troops will offer stiff resistance before abandoning Dombas. Fighting is reported at Kvam, southeast of Dombas.

For the first time the German war communique admitted that fighting between German and British troops has been proceeding in Norway since April 22. On this day, when the Germans broke thru at Lillehammer, it is claimed, a British brigadier, his staff, and 200 British troops were taken prisoner. Eighty more British prisoners were taken at Steinkjer April 25 the communique said.

As British naval units continued shelling Narvik yesterday, German mountain troops made a counterattack on a Norwegian battalion north of that city, routing the Norsemen and taking 144 prisoners. The Germans are confident that this isolated German force in the north will be able to keep the allies from reaching the Swedish frontier, which is only 25 miles from Narvik.

Germans Speed Mechanized Column to Menace Foe in Two Sectors

This map of central Norway shows the strategy by which the German forces appear to be attempting a lightning flanking movement to threaten British, French, and Norwegian troops in two sectors below Trondheim. If the mechanized column which last night was reported to have reached Inset after covering 50 miles in less than 24 hours (brokenline) succeeds in its apparent purpose it will cut the communications of the empire troops at Storen, imperil the allied concencrations at that city, and cut off the English-French-Norwegian forces to the southeast.

The heavy square on this map locates the area shown in detail in the large drawing. The black area shows Norwegian territory held by Germans and the black arrows indicate directions of German thrusts.

Filipinos to Vote Tomorrow on Bill Fought by Japan

MANILA, April 27 (AP).—The Philippine immigration quota bill, vigorously protested by Japan, is expected to come up for a final vote Monday night on the eve of adjournment of the national assembly. No effort has been made to change the quota limitation of 500 Japanese annually. Legislators indicated that figure would remain. Assembly Speaker Jose Yulo said a Filipino feeling of self-preservation, rather than an anti-Japanese attitude, motivated the measure.

HITLER DECLARES WAR FOR FIRST TIME IN CAREER

BERLIN, April 27 (AP).—Adolf Hitler's recognition, by decree, that a state of war exists between Germany and Norway, marked the first time he had led the way in such a declaration.

The decree, effective April 24 and published today, was similar to the declaration by Britain and France, on Sept. 3, that they were at war with Germany.

When he invaded Poland, Hitler said the reich was "meeting force with force."

GRANDI TELLS FASCISTS ITALY MAY JOIN WAR

ROME, April 27 (AP).—For the third time in as many days an important Fascist leader today hinted at Italy's involvement in the European war, but failed to indicate if or when she might abandon her nonbelligerent stand.

Dino Grandi.

Count Dino Grandi, president of the chamber of Fasces and Guilds, told the cheering members of the chamber that the "Fascist empire is not and knows it is not on the edge of this conflict of peoples."

Listening to Grandi was Premier Mussolini, who also heard addresses in a similar vein by two other Fascists, the veteran leader Francesco Giunta and the undersecretary of the interior, Guido Buffarini-Guidi, on Thursday and yesterday.

The Grandi address, closing the chamber session, was prominently displayed by the controled Italian press.

Spain Executes Republicans Accused of Slaying 20,000

MADRID, Spain, April 27 (AP).—Spanish authorities today announced the execution of an undisclosed number of members of the former Republican "Fine Arts society" who were charged with responsibility for more than 20,000 political slayings during the civil war.

British Registration Shows War Gets More Popular

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 27.—It was announced tonight that the 26 year old class which registered today for war service totaled 312,912. Less than one-fourth of 1 per cent registered as conscientious objectors, the lowest since the war began. This was interpreted to mean that war is becoming more popular.

HITLER BLAMES BRITAIN, FRANCE FOR NORSE WAR

Claims Documents Reveal Secret Plot.

BERLIN, April 27 (AP).—Adolf Hitler, in a characteristic stroke of lightning diplomacy executed in the resplendent setting of the seat of the Nazi state, sought today to justify his Scandinavian invasion to the world with alleged "secret war guilt" documents attributed to Britain and Norway. He also declared the reich at war with the Norse kingdom and absolved Sweden of unneutral connivance with Germany's enemies.

Joachim von Ribbentrop.

Within a few hours of publication of a sweeping proclamation from the Fuehrer, dated Wednesday, proclaiming a state of war between Germany and Norway, Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop told assembled diplomatic corps, German and foreign press, and high German army, navy and air officials that Great Britain and France began on April 6 and 7 to spread the war to the north. The German invasion to April 9, he said, merely beat them to the Norwegian scene of battle.

Produces Documents.

Producing documents which, he said, were taken by the German army from captured British officers, from the Oslo foreign office and from consular and other sources in Norway, Von Ribbentrop said it was clear that British troops were on their way to Norway even before the British announced the laying of a mine field off the Norwegian coast on April 8 to halt German ships in Norwegian territorial waters.

Chief among these alleged documents was what purported to be a British plan for an expeditionary force, outlined under the code name, "Stratforce."

According to this asserted documentation, an operation order of the 9th battalion of Sherwood Foresters showed that on April 7 the battalion was on its way to Norway in the British cruiser Glasgow, to be landed at Stavanger, and the 1st battalion of Leicestershires also was scheduled to take part.

Claims Norway Aided Plans.

Von Ribbentrop, speaking in the new chancellery, declared Norway's government "aided and abetted" these plans for a Scandinavian front from which Germany might be "destroyed."

He complimented Sweden for staying out, saying:

"Sweden interpreted its declaration of neutrality very seriously indeed, and at no time did anything or let anything happen which might not have been in accord with it."

The foreign minister, unsmiling and grim thruout his half hour speech, was particularly vehement when he accused Britain and France of misrepresenting their true aims in Scandinavia.

The knuckles of his clenched fist were white as he declared that "the assurances of those in power in Britain and France [that they did not plan to send troops to Norway] are only lies and falsehoods."

Berates Norse Government.

He was equally bitter in his denunciation of the Norwegian government of Premier Johan Nygaardsvold.

"In full consciousness," he said, "it disregarded the vital interests of the Norwegians in order to aid the western powers in their plans for extension of the war."

Those plans, Von Ribbentrop asserted, had been developing for months. "Since the beginning of this year England and France have tried with all their means to bring about a new scene for the war," he said, ascribing these efforts to their inability to win the war on the western front or in Poland.

Denmark Put on Spot.

The state of war now existing between Germany and Norway puts Denmark in a queer position, since she is serving as a basis of operations for a German army fighting against her traditional and natural friend. In the German view, however, Denmark still is an independent kingdom.

The occupied Norwegian territories, on the other hand, have taken on a status somewhat similar to that of Poland. Under Hitler's decree, Josef Terboven is civil governor and Gen. Nikolaus von Falkenhorst is the military chief of the occupied areas.

148 INFANTRY BRIGADE - OPERATION INSTRUCTION No.1.

1. General policy.

The intention of STRATFORCE is to effect a landing at 512, 547 and 548, and to occupy these ports with a view to denying them to Germany.

It is anticipated that our assistance will be welcomed by the inhabitants, but the decision as to whether or not to land will rest with the R.Navy.

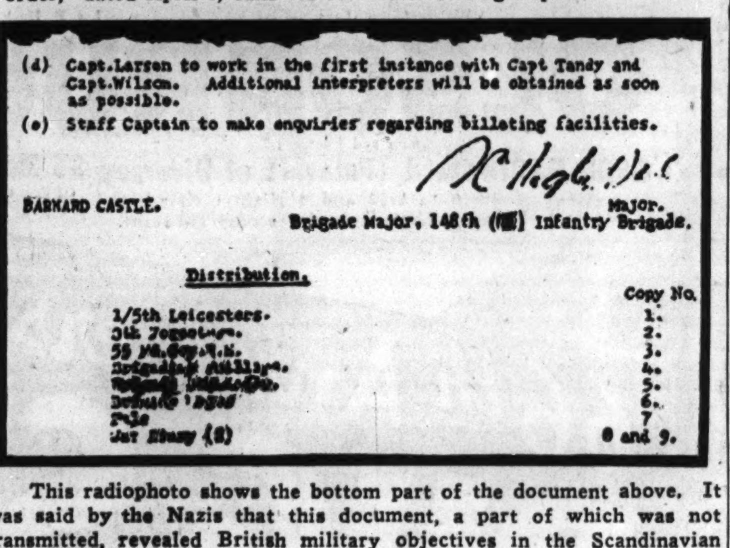
2. Intention.

It is the intention of 547 to effect a landing as directed by the R.Navy and to place the following in a state of defence :-

(a) The harbour and quayside.
(b) The aerodrome at SOLA.
(c) The seaplane station 1½ miles NORTH OF SOLA.

3. Possible enemy action.

This photostatic copy from Berlin shows the top portion of one of the documents offered yesterday by Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop as "proof" that Britain and France planned to occupy Norway in an effort to widen the war to "destroy Germany." This purported "order," dated April 6, calls for seizure of strategic spots.



(d) Capt.Larsen to work in the first instance with Capt Tandy and Capt.Wilson. Additional interpreters will be obtained as soon as possible.

NORSE MINISTER BRANDS GERMAN CHARGES FALSE

Wilhelm Morgenstierne, Norwegian minister to the United States, declared here yesterday that German charges of a prior plot by the British to seize Norway were propaganda and untrue. He similarly characterized assertions by the Germans that their invasion of Norway was abetted by traitors.

Wilhelm Morgenstierne

Morgenstierne was in Chicago for the day to confer with Sigurd Maseng, Norwegian consul here. He stopped at the Blackstone hotel. He planned to return to Washington, D. C., by airplane after the conference.

"My country has been attacked by a vicious enemy," Morgenstierne said, "but its government, headed by the king, will continue to function just like England and France, which also are at war with Germany. The Norwegian people will fight to the last ditch to rid their soil of the invaders."

2,000 NORWEGIAN SHIPS PLACED IN SERVICE OF BRITISH AND FRENCH

New York, April 27 (AP).—The British ministry of shipping in London announced thru its New York office today that the Norwegian merchant fleet had been placed at the disposal of the royal Norwegian government.

Shippers here said this meant that Norway's modern fleet of approximately 2,000 ships, totaling about 5,000,000 gross tons, had been added to the British and French fleets.

The announcement said the Norwegian government had taken over the ships by royal decree and had established headquarters in London.

Effects of the decree were shown when the British began this week to prohibit Norwegian ships from visiting Chile, Cuba, Mexico and Netherlands ports. Chile has protested that such action will seriously harm her nitrates industry.

Offer to Hire Danish Ships.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 27.—Altho Danish ships could be seized legally under international law, Britain has offered to pay reasonable rates of hire for such ships provided they fly British or French flags and the proceeds of the hire do not go to Germany, R. S. Hudson, minister of shipping, said today.

NAZIS HIT PEAK IN PROPAGANDA TO REVEAL 'PLOT'

Experts Play Up Art of Showmanship.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

BERLIN, April 27.—German propaganda reached new heights for the presentation today of Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop's newest charges against Britain and France.

Amid great pomp and ceremony, he sought to convince members of the diplomatic corps, foreign correspondents, and others summoned to the chancellery that Germany moved into Norway solely to forestall a similar attempt by the British. He also presented Germany's fourth white book on the subject of war guilt.

Experts Put to Work.

The Nazi are of showmanship and propaganda was put into play yesterday to start the ball rolling. Von Ribbentrop wanted the world to give its attention to his 23 page speech and the white book.

Knowing that one more collection of documents might not be given the desired attention while guns, bombs, depth charges, and torpedoes were talking their grim language, Germany's propaganda experts set to work.

Diplomats and foreign correspondents yesterday were told they could expect a "spectacular sensation" and were solemnly invited to be at the chancellery today. The diplomats were asked to appear in morning coats and top hats, befitting an occasion of international importance.

Diplomats Not Stirred.

When the meeting in the sumptuous hall of ambassadors was over, the diplomats did not act as if they had been stirred by what the Nazis said would be a world shaking sensation.

Some neutral diplomats, however, recalled that German official circles were busy on April 6 denying reports that Nazi troopships had passed thru the Kattegat and the Skagerrak. They were reminded of this by Von Ribbentrop's assertion that the British had troops bound for Norway on steamers outside British harbors on April 8 and that Germany "replied with a counteraction on April 9."

Neutral observers also remarked on the fact many of the documents included in the new white book are handwritten. This, they said, reveals that the English must have carried on their investigations in Norway with an amateurishness that is striking in comparison to the fanatical zeal and systematic efficiency of their Nazi opponents.

BRITISH, FRENCH TROOPS FIGHT FOR BASES IN NORWAY

Beat Off Nazi Attack South of Dombas.

LONDON, April 27 (AP).—The allies, doggedly clinging to a foothold in Norway's rocky midriff, tonight put British infantrymen and rugged French Alpine Blue Devils with light artillery and fighting planes to the tough task of securing bases and communication lines for coming reenforcements before trying to fan out in a southward offensive.

A week of tentative thrusts which saw British and Norwegian commands forced to pull back advance detachments under the pounding of German mechanized forces and bombing planes ended with the situation resolved into a fighting race for advantage in central Norway, in the sector around German-held Trondheim, west coast harbor.

Claims Prisoners Captured.

With no outward show of perturbation, the British admitted, "we lost the first trick." But the war office today offset continued reports of British inability to pierce the hard German lines around Trondheim with these announcements:

1. The position around Steinkjer, 50 miles north of Trondheim, where early in the week British advance detachments had to retreat, is unchanged, and British patrols now have captured some German prisoners.

2. Far down the Gudbrands valley, more than 100 miles below Trondheim and some 30 miles south of the allied concentration point of Dombas, the allies in the Kvam area have driven off a heavy German attack "with considerable enemy loss." German pressure at this point continued, however, linked with air assaults on the long allied communication lines.

Silent About Narvik.

There was silence from British forces above the arctic ore port of Narvik and a heavy snowstorm seemed still to be hampering operations.

Following the lead of the French in dispatching their crack chasseurs Alpines to the rugged Norwegian battlefields, the British were reported making the fullest use of the mountain experience of Indian officers.

The Norwegian army units in the field, meanwhile, are reported here to be organizing a delaying action on the railway 100 miles east of Bergen to give the allies a chance to bring heavier forces to bear in that section.

Offer Danube Plan

(Story in adjoining column.)

Arrows point to cities at limits of 75 mile stretch of the Danube river which Hungary proposed yesterday should be put under international control. The plan resulted from German charges that its foes planned to dynamite the Iron Gate.

DANUBE NATIONS REJECT POLICING PLAN FOR RIVER

Hungarian Offer Believed Backed by Nazis.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, April 27 (AP).—A Hungarian proposal for joint policing of the "iron gate" section of the Danube by all the Danubian countries received a cold reception in Bucharest and Belgrade today.

The scheme for international control of the vulnerable 75 mile stretch of the Danube, which Germany has accused Britain and France of attempting to block by dynamiting, was sent yesterday to Jugo-Slavia, Rumania, and Bulgaria.

Refused Police Offer.

Jugo-Slavia and Rumania previously refused German offers to police the section of the river where it forms their boundary between Moldavia and Turnu-Severin. Hungary expressed willingness to permit Nazi gunboats to patrol the Danube.

Today Rumania and Jugo-Slavia were reported to have turned down the Hungarian suggestion because they already have given assurances of their determination to prevent sabotage or shipping delays in their replies to the German proposal of April 15.

Both in Bucharest and Belgrade it was felt the Budapest scheme would infringe on Rumanian and Jugo-Slavian sovereignty as much as the Nazi policing plan, and since Germany is a Danubian country the proposal would mean participation of a belligerent in the international patrol.

A communique issued by Hungary said that Hungary feels after "recent happenings" along the Danube that "no one nation alone could take responsibility for the policing, therefore all must work together."

Seeks More Goods.

The communique was issued shortly after German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, in Berlin, alluded to "French and British sabotage" in southeastern Europe.

Presumably this referred to the seizure by the Rumanian government last month of a fleet of British barges loaded with dynamite. Germany at the time charged the British planned to blow up the Iron Gate, a narrow artificial channel thru the Carpathian mountains along the Jugo-Slav-Rumanian border, and to blockade the river with sunken barges.

Meanwhile, Dr. Karl Clodius, head of the German trade commission who is attempting to obtain more Hungarian goods, conferred with Premier Count Paul Teleky.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

FRENCH CIVILIAN TRAITORS TO DIE QUIETLY AT DAWN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 27.—France's ministry of war today issued special regulations governing execution of civilians doomed by permanent military courts for treason, espionage, and other crimes against national defense.

The guillotine executions will be carried out just before dawn and authorities must take precautions to avoid exciting public curiosity. Nobody will be admitted to the courtyard of a prison where an execution is to take place except officials, and they are forbidden to carry cameras.

After a prisoner makes a last statement and receives sacraments from the prison chaplain, he will don his death clothes—canvas trousers and wooden shoes—and be handed over to the executioner. Troops will stand at attention as the death sentence is carried out.

ECUADOR SEIZES 8 'REBELS' AT GENERAL'S HOME

QUITO, Ecuador, April 27 (AP).—The government announced tonight the arrest of eight persons who, it said, were holding a revolutionary meeting in a house belonging to Gen. Alberto Enriquez, provisional president and dictator of Ecuador in 1937 and 1938.

Gen. Enriquez himself is still at liberty, officials said, but his arrest has been ordered.

In January Ecuador was the scene of an abortive revolt led by former President José Maria Velasco Ibarra when he was defeated in the presidential election. Carlos Arroyo Del Rio, chosen president in that election, is scheduled to take office Sept. 1.

LOVE BEATS WAR BARS; PAIR WED AFTER LONG WAIT

ROME, April 27 (AP).—Wyndoline Van Dyke Jones of Columbus, O., and Bryan Wallace, son of the late Edgar Wallace, author, were married in a civil ceremony at the Municipal building on Capitol Hill today. The wedding ended a six months' effort by the pair to overcome wartime restrictions which had kept them on opposite sides of the Atlantic.

The couple originally intended to be married last year, but because of United States neutrality restrictions on travel it took Miss Jones three months to obtain a visa for Italy. Wallace had to obtain similar permission from Britain. One in Italy, they had to comply with Italian laws requiring a further delay of eight weeks before the ceremony could be performed.

NAZI WHITE BOOK REVEALS BASIS OF PLOT CHARGES

Bares 'Orders' of British for Norway Invasion.

BERLIN, April 27 (AP).—In a bulky collection asserted to be British orders for the occupation of Norway, Germany sought today to demonstrate that she entered Norway and Denmark only a brief jump ahead of the British.

These orders, issued as the latest white book to be published by the German government, contained translations of various orders purportedly from the British general staff to an expeditionary force. The dates on numbers of the orders were for early in April, several days ahead of Germany's surprise move into Denmark and Norway.

In addition, several documents purported to show attempts by the British navy command to get information from their consuls at Narvik, far northern Norwegian ore port, and other ports as to the depths of harbors, possible landing fields, and any air or docking facilities that would expedite the landing of troops.

Air Defense Ordered.

One alleged order anticipated bombing by the German air force by directing that "main opposition can only be expected in the first instance from enemy air action, which might be directed against the force while actually landing."

This order bore the date of April 7, two days before the German occupation.

The white book was divided into groups, each with a separate heading as follows:

[Group A] "Orders which were taken from English officers taken prisoners in Lillehammer [Norway].

[Group B] "Code telegrams in the original text from the control book of the British consul in Narvik."

[Group C] "Espionage orders of the director of the intelligence section of the British admiralty to the British consul in Narvik."

[Group D] "Excerpts from the papers of the French naval attaché in Oslo."

[Group E] "Documents of the Norwegian foreign office found in Oslo."

Some groups were in two parts. Photographic copies of several documents have been furnished the press.

Code Hides Secret Details.

One document, headed "the Stratforce plan," bore no date, but stated: "This plan is for the dispatch of small forces of infantry, engineers, and attached troops to 512, 548," which apparently were destinations kept secret by using numbers. Immediately under the numbers was a paragraph saying, "Most stringent precautions must be taken to insure the secrecy of the move required to put this plan into operation. In order to achieve this end, the plan must never be referred to except by code name, and until embarkation has been completed the destination of the force will not be disclosed to any one." The same order went into detail as to equipment to be carried.

[German officials said that Stratforce was the secret name applied to the general operations plan for the British expeditionary force in Norway.]

Under the head "Maintenance," the purported order said: "It is possible that a major British force will be operating from 512, in which case this force will be responsible for the maintenance of Stratforce. The force will thus have to rely largely on local purchase."

Detailed instructions were given in a separate order for the operation of radio and signal facilities in high, cold altitudes, such as "The voltage of dry batteries decreases as the temperature falls. Batteries can be restored by warming them gently."

What was said to be a page from the diary of an officer captured at Lillehammer carried the date "Saturday, April 6" and a three word notation almost undecipherable. It appeared to be "Cockfield Fell sta." Under the date "Sunday, April seventh," the diary said, "Rosyth, on to HMS Devonshire. To go to Stavanger [Norway]."

Subsequent entries in the diary indicated a delay in boarding the ship, but concluded "Saturday, April 13, on board about 1,700 Luxury."

"General Policy" Disclosed.

Another document alleged to have been taken from British officers at Lillehammer was labeled an order of operations for the Sherwood foresters. This order listed the "general policy" as:

"The intention of the Stratforce is to effect a landing at 12, 547, and 548, and occupy these ports with a view to denying them to Germany. It is anticipated that our assistance will be welcomed by the inhabitants, but the decision as to whether or not to land will rest with the royal navy." It was dated April 6.

The next paragraph of the order, titled "Intention," said:

"It is the intention of 547 to effect a landing as directed by the royal navy and to place the following in a state of defense:

"[a] Harbor and quayside; [b] airdrome at Sola; [c] seaplane station one and one-half miles north of Sola."

[The ports listed by numbers were not further identified.]

Navy to Cover Landing.

The order said opposition "can only be expected in the first instance from enemy air action which might be directed against the force while actually landing."

"In such eventuality, the landing will be covered by the royal navy. As soon as troops have disembarked, they will be responsible for their own protection and it is essential that whether there is enemy action or not the troops are moved from their assembly areas with the least possible delay.

"It also is possible that while the landing can be effected at the harbor, the enemy may forestall the occupation of the airdrome in which case immediate action must be taken to capture the airdrome."

Under the heading "airdrome and seaplane base, Eighth foresters," it was ordered that the "Eighth foresters be prepared to move at once to Sola without waiting for transport or stores. It is of vital importance that the airdrome should be secured on the same day as the landing takes place."

The order provided for the guarding of stores.

Under a paragraph contained in group B. and headed "code telegrams" was a document headed "From the Admiralty to the British Consul at Narvik" and "repeated" to the naval attaché at Oslo, saying, "Please report by telegraph harbor facilities of port of Narvik including following details: Length of quays, number of cranes or other facilities for unloading ships," and many other details.

The documents assembled under group D. [papers alleged to be those of the French naval attaché at Oslo] are intended to show, according to the Germans, that Britain and France had covered Norway with a tight espionage net.

One of these papers says that the Norwegian military, in answer to a query put "under pretext of military transport to Finland," advised against the use of the port of Bergen "in view of the long railway journey and difficulties arising therefrom. Only the ports of the fjord of Trondheim and the port of Narvik are suited according to their view for such operation."

Shipping facilities along Trondheim fjord are analyzed in a second document, giving the number of quays and the depth of the water.

Langsten, 50 miles from Trondheim, is described in the document alleged to have been found in the French legation as "an ideal place for secret landings."

Tromso Air Data Asked.

A document to the consul at Tromso, purportedly from the admiralty, asked data on the airdrome in the vicinity and bore at the bottom the figures 1724-31-12-39. A reply purported to be from the consul at Narvik gave the data on Tromso as requested.

Another document in the exhibit was dated Feb. 14, 1940, and was said to be from the British legation at Stockholm. It was alleged to have been sent to "Dear Consul Captain," who otherwise is unaddressed, and said: "Orders from the admiralty are that this [questionnaire] is to be put thru Jildi Jildi [apparently code] regardless of expense."

Narvik Defenses Covered.

In this purported questionnaire, which the Germans said had evidently been directed by the British naval intelligence to the naval attaché at Narvik, were queries covering the defenses of Narvik:

"Can you confirm that five guns are placed above Ramsund, near the entrance to Ofoten fjord? State exact positions? Can you give details regarding caliber, range and arcs of fire of guns? Can you confirm that the defense of Narvik is one mobile battery of four antiaircraft guns of Bofors type and give details?"

Cricket to the Front

British soldier bids girl good-by at London station. Arrow points to cricket bat he is taking to front.

LONDON, April 27 [Special].—War on the western front hasn't gotten too severe for a game of cricket now and then. Soldiers returning to the front from furloughs are often seen carrying cricket bats. Obviously they expect to find time to play the game in the security of the Maginot chain of fortifications which is more than their compatriots in Norway can say.

CHINESE OPEN DRIVE IN SHANSI PROVINCE; REPORT JAPS FLEE

HONGKONG, April 27 (AP).—Chinese military dispatches reported today that the Chinese troops had launched a major counter offensive in southeast Shansi province. The Chinese were said to have recaptured the towns of Lingchwan and Yangcheng as the Japanese retreated northward, leaving many dead.

In southest Anhwei province, dispatches said, Japanese columns were routed with heavy losses in an attack on Chinese positions near Nanling, 27 miles south of Wuhu.

The Chinese Central News agency reported the Japanese had lost more than 1,000 men in an unsuccessful attempt to capture Loshan, in south Honan province.

THREAT OF NAZI DRIVE ON SWEDEN SEEN BY FRENCH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 27.—French official circles tonight interpreted Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop's speech in Berlin as "a show put on for the benefit of the Swedes" in the hope of causing them to demobilize.

It is considered significant and ominous that Germany's foreign minister "overwhelmed Sweden with praise" while bitterly attacking Norway because it has resisted aggression. In the same way, French observers said, Nazi leaders on the eve of their action against Czecho-Slovakia voiced nothing but flattery for Poland while heaping insults on the Czech government. Germany's present attitude toward Sweden is regarded here as an indication that Adolf Hitler is preparing for the Swedes the fate of the Poles.

Sweden's moves to resist any aggressor are believed to be extremely irksome for Germany as they compel the Nazis to divert troops.

ONLY FEW TRACES OF WAR ARE SEEN IN RURAL FRANCE

Shortage of Labor Found Biggest Problem.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BLOIS, France, April 27.—In the Loire valley, and the fertile plains of the farm region which the French call Le Beaute [the beautiful], extending to the north toward Paris, few traces of the war are discoverable after eight months of hostilities.

Map locates France's rich farm country.

To one who has spent three days in the area to find out how the country is trying to secure its next year's food supply despite the mobilization of its man power, these three things stand out:

There are only a few old men seen about; women are running the farms, and an occasional German reconnaissance plane flies over at night.

Store Famous Relics.

No bombs have been dropped. But the precious tapestries of the Chateau de Blois—redolent of one of France's favorite kings, Francis I.—and the stained glass of the equally famous Gothic cathedral of Chartres have been taken down and stored in safety.

It cost more than a million francs [about $20,000] to dismount and store the tapestries at Blois and it probably cost more to dismount the Chartres cathedral's stained glass. It will be equally as expensive to restore these relics.

Spring planting has just been completed in the long, rolling Beaute agricultural region and the rich valley of the Loire. In normal times the Beaute region produces about 3,000,000 bushels of wheat annually and the farm bureau hopes this year's production will not fall too far short of that figure. The hard winter and the fact that autumn sowing of wheat was less than usual may make a difference.

Labor Biggest Problem.

The biggest problem that the farmers here had to meet was one of labor. They lacked experts in the care of animals and workers skilled in the use of tractors and machinery. Much of the work this spring and last fall was done by women and those under and over military age. Some Spanish refugees were brought up from camps in the south and soldiers back from the front for a short furlough were put to work.

Mayor Vavasseur of Vouvray, owner of one of the biggest vineyards of the Loire region, said his 2,000 acres just recently had been put into shape by soldiers on leave and women workers. Because of the lack of labor the vineyard had not been touched for some time prior to last month.

The Beaute and Loire regions offer a curious contrast between the famous chateaus and the rich farming estates and vineyards. The Loire country is closely associated with France's kings and the American expeditionary forces. Gen. John J. Pershing's S. O. S. headquarters were at Tours and many an American soldier has reason to remember another famous town called St. Aignan.

Two Types of Farms.

Farms are of two types. Some cover 2,000 acres on which wheat and sugar beets are largely grown, and there are many small 15 to 30 acre tracts worked by peasant owners.

Mrs. Paul Hay operates one of the larger farms in this area. She took over when her husband was called to war.

"I need 40 workers but have only been able to get 20," she said. "Of these 20, only 5 are former workers here. The Spanish refugees I have are not much good. It took three weeks for one man to learn not to be afraid of farm horses. Fortunately, I have several good Poles and Jugo-Slavs. However, we have been able to get the usual acreage under cultivation and, in spite of the late spring, prospects do not look too bad."

Other agriculturists in the region specializing in sugar, beans, and asparagus also said their difficulties were much the same, but did not complain of the outlook.

Roads in this district are in excellent shape and there still is plenty of Sunday tourist automobile traffic. Tours, Blois, Orleans, and other municipalities are well kept and managed despite the fact that all the men up to 46 years of age are at the front.

Spared by Warfare

(Story in adjoining column.)

Cathedral at Chartres, one of four greatest French Gothic cathedrals, which has escaped damage during eight months of war. Its famous stained glass has been stored, however.

FRENCH REPEL NAZI PATROLS ON WEST FRONT

PARIS, April 27 (AP).—Tonight's British-French communique said of action on the western front:

"Last night and during today we have repulsed several German patrols. A local enemy attack west of the Vosges [mountains] failed."

[The German high command's war summary yesterday said 32 prisoners were taken in lively skirmishes of reconnaissance units on the western front.]

Proposes France Recruit Women's Auxiliary Army

PARIS, April 27.—France may soon have an auxiliary territorial army of women if a proposal made by Pierre Taittinger, deputy of Paris and a member of the army committee of the chamber of deputies, is adopted. Inspired by Great Britain's example, Taittinger has proposed that women be allowed to enlist voluntarily in certain army services. They would replace older mobilized men who would thus be able to return to shops, offices and farms.

Gandhi Disclaims Desire to Embarrass England

BOMBAY, April 27 (AP).—India's Nationalist leader, Mohandas K. Gandhi, disclaimed today any "desire whatsoever to embarrass the British, especially at a time when it is a question of life and death for them." In his newspaper Harijan, Gandhi declared that mass civil disobedience, the potent weapon used to gain concessions from the British in the past, was "most unlikely" at present.

Bombing Planes from U. S. Begin Arriving in France

PARIS, April 27.—The demonstration in Norway of the increasing importance of the air arm is held to lend significance to the announcement here today that bomber planes ordered in the United States are beginning to arrive. They are Douglas and Martin planes together with some North American advanced trainers. Persons who have been privileged to see them "somewhere in France" praise their qualities.

BELGIUM READY TO KNOCK 'BLITZ' OUT OF INVASION

Able to Put Over Million Men in the Field.

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Belgium, April 27.—At this moment the Belgian army counts more than 800,000 men in uniform in the field ready for immediate action. In case of war, general mobilization will add about 250,000 more. Right now, however, its chiefs consider the army on a war basis.

General staff experts with whom I have talked are confident that Belgium's forces will prove adequate to their mission, which is purely defensive—protection of the national territory. They are sure their precautions exclude any possibility of Belgium's being the victim of sudden raids as in the cases of Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, and Denmark, or being the victim of a lightning war like Poland.

Air Force Is First Problem.

To checkmate a lightning war, the general staff has carefully studied its technique since September. Roughly, they divide the problem into two parts: First, the action of the air forces, and second, the action of ground motorized forces.

For the first, Belgian officers have noted carefully the primary rôle played by German aviation in the Polish campaign. There they learned a lightning attack by land is preceded and accompanied by a massive air attack.

To parry such an air attack, Belgium's chief reliance will be on the forces of Great Britain and France [they are the so-called "guaranteeing powers"], who immediately will be asked for aid. Admittedly, heavy bombing attacks could do far more damage to Belgium than to Poland because of the density of the population and the complexity of its industrial plants. Belgium is practically one huge workshop, where almost any bomb would have a good chance of destroying valuable equipment, not to mention human lives.

Air Defenses Held Weak.

Belgian military authorities are reasonably confident, however, that no such attacks will take place in an effort to paralyze the life of the country and the mobility of the army. They think Belgium will be as immune as, until the present, Germany, France, and Britain have been and for the same reason—fear of reprisals.

Active defense against air bombing, entrusted mainly to fast scout planes, is the weak point in Belgium's armor.

Authorities are unwilling to be precise about the number of military airplanes Belgium possesses but admit it is not more than "a few hundred," most of which are old fashioned. They point out, however, that they are remedying this weakness as rapidly as possible. Already they have acquired 100 British Hurricanes, each of which mounts eight fast firing machine guns.

Buy Planes from America.

They also are buying machines from the United States but will not say whether any have been delivered. Other purchases being made are of British Glosters, Italian Fiats, and some up to date French Feret and Breguet bombers.

It is planned to eventually manufacture the planes needed for the army in Belgium itself. Already the Belgians have bought the rights to one Hurricane model and are negotiating for the rights to American models.

If the war should break on Belgium in the next few weeks or months, most of the air fighting would have to be done by Belgium's allies. This prospect, however, does not worry the men responsible for national defense. They are, on the whole, satisfied that in ground defense against aviation Belgium has done as well as any other country.

ITALY FORBIDS FOREIGN PLANES OVER 18 ZONES

ROME, April 27 (AP).—Foreign airplanes were forbidden today to fly over 18 strategic zones in and around Italy, including the French and German frontiers. Narrow passages were marked over Alpine frontiers thru which planes would have to pass.

All of Italy's air and naval bases on the mainland and on Sicily, Sardinia and Pantelleria were included in the prohibited zones, published in a list today, altho the order was dated Dec. 1, 1939. It was a revision of previous lists.

The new list outlines with maps a total of 24 restricted zones, including those of Libya and theDodecanese islands, in the eastern Aegean off the coast of Turkey.

SENATORS COOL TO REVISION OF NEUTRALITY ACT

Idea Called Premature; May Involve U. S.

Washington, D. C., April 27 (AP).—Relaxation of the six months old neutrality act was proposed in congressional circles today, but immediate reaction was that the suggestion was premature.

Senator Adams [D., Colo.] told reporters he favored wiping out the restrictions which forbid Americans to extend credits to belligerent governments and prohibit American shipping from entering combat zones, which now include all but southern European waters.

The need for action now, however, failed to impress Adams' colleagues, altho they agreed that the revision question would be raised eventually if the war became protracted. Some expressed fear that modification might involve the United States in the conflict.

Face Complete Loss of Trade.

"The American shipper," Adams contended, "should be permitted to exercise his rights under international law so long as it is made clear that the risks he takes are his own. If the war keeps spreading, there will be no American ships in the trans-Atlantic service.

"An American should have the right to invest his money anywhere he wants. If an airplane manufacturer wants to sell on credit to Germany or Great Britain or France, he should be able to do it."

Chairman Key Pittman [D., Nev.] of the foreign relations committee denied that American shipping was suffering from the war. He said the allies had sufficient financial reserves to go two years without credit, and that he did not believe the conflict would last two years.

Involving of U. S. Feared.

Senator George [D., Ga.] said he expected neutrality act revision ultimately but added he saw no reason at present to relax the credit regulations because a change might tend to involve the country abroad.

Senators Schwellenbach [D., Wash.] and Mead [D., N. Y.] both said no immediate changes were needed, but Mead added that, if the war spread to the Mediterranean and the East Indies, it might necessitate some action.

Lily Pons Arrives for Concert Today

ARMY BOMBERS MAY MAKE MASS FLIGHT TO HAWAII

HONOLULU, T. H., April 27 (AP).—A mass flight of the army's newest bombers from California to demonstrate the feasibility of reinforcing Hawaii's defense from the mainland was believed today to be an early possibility. Three or four squadrons might participate.

Maj. Gen. Charles D. Herron, commanding general of the Hawaiian department, was reported authoritatively to have requested a demonstration flight. The Star-Bulletin said an army spokesman in Washington declared the venture had been considered, but that formal application had been delayed because of navy pressure. It was added that the "ticklish" situation in the orient was believed to be the only factor that could block the flight.

Air corps experts said the army's B-17 bombers could fly the 2,400 miles in 11 hours. The best time so far has been 16 hours 17 minutes.

ELECTRICITY KILLS WORKER.

East Moline, Ill., April 27 (AP).—Basil Strobbe, 40 years old, of Moline, was killed today when he touched a wire carrying 440 volts of electricity while working on an overhead crane track in the foundry of the Union Malleable Iron Works of Deere & Co.

Funds Go to Nursery

Lily Pons, coloratura soprano, arrived in Chicago on the City of Denver yesterday with her husband, Andre Kostelanetz. They will appear in concert at 3:30 p. m. today in the Civic Opera house. Miss Pons will sing, accompanied by a full symphony orchestra directed by Kostelanetz. The concert is sponsored by the Margaret Etter Creche day nursery, 2116 Chicago avenue. Mrs. Donald Bowey, 2355 Commonwealth avenue, is chairman of the arrangements committee.

Explosion Kills 37 Miners in Turkey, British Report

LONDON, April 27 (AP).—Reuters [British news agency] reported today in a dispatch from Istanbul that 37 miners had been killed in an explosion in an Italian-owned coal mine on Turkey's Black Sea coast.

1ST STREAMLINED TROOPS IN ARMY WIN HIGH PRAISE

Gen. W. C. Short Pleased with Maneuvers.

Fort Benning, Ga., April 27 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, who both directed and participated in the United States army's first streamlined corps maneuvers just concluded, praised troops and new equipment at a critique today.

"We can truthfully say," he reported, "that the equipment problem is on its way to being solved in another year if congress continues its liberal appropriations."

Only the value of the new 105 millimeter howitzer was questioned in the armament used for two weeks of mock combat between the Fourth Corps Blues and Provisional Corps Reds over the infantry school reservation and surrounding farm lands.

Will Minimize Difficulty.

"Whether this weapon will be used to replace the 75 millimeter gun still is a moot question," Gen. Short said. "The character of the terrain in these exercises tended to minimize the difficulty encountered with the flat trajectory of the 75 mm. gun."

The Garand rifle, semiautomatic, which was the subject of a recent congressional inquiry over charges that its mechanism sometimes "sanded up" in the field, drew this comment:

"This rifle, with its great rapidity of fire and absence of recoil, is ideal for combat and for battlefield firing."

Nothing But High Praise.

Gen. Short said he had "nothing but the highest praise" for conduct and morale of the troops, more than 40,000 men concentrated here from the north, west, and south. As commander of the Fourth Corps, he will lead them against the Ninth Corps [southwest], headed by Maj. Gen. Walter Krueger along the Texas-Louisiana border in May.

In the streamline division, motorized organizations of 8,000 to 12,000 men created to replace the hiking world war type division of 24,000, the general said the extent of motorization was justified "only if it results in greater celerity of action."

"Quick decisions, rapid issuance of orders, and speedy execution of orders," were listed as prime requisites.

Childhood Education Meet Opens Tomorrow

Milwaukee, Wis., April 27 [Special].—Nursery school, kindergarten and primary teachers from all over the country will attend the 47th annual convention of the Association for Childhood Education, opening Monday. Headquarters for the convention, which continues to Friday, will be the Schroeder hotel. General sessions and some study classes will be held in the Milwaukee auditorium. The annual dinner Friday will be addressed by William G. Carr, speaking on "Educational Opportunities Beyond the School."

AIR CONFERENCE OPPOSES CHANGE IN SETUP OF CAA

Tulsa, Okla., April 27 (AP).—Opposition to proposed reorganization of the Civil Aeronautics authority was sounded again today to wind up the annual southwest aviation conference the way it opened.

A resolution was adopted saying "any change at this time will disrupt the progress being made in civil aviation." Previously a directors' committee had expressed opposition to the reorganization proposals made by President Roosevelt.

Other resolutions included a request that senators and representatives from the eight states of the conference work toward authorization of an experimental "feeder" airline in this area.

40,000 SEE ZOO'S TWO NEW ORANGS —AND VICE VERSA

Record Throng Expected at Park Today.

The Lincoln park zoo's new orang-utans got their first look at a Saturday crowd. and vice versa, yesterday. Director Floyd Young estimated that between 40.000 and 50,000 visitors streamed thru the small animal house to see the youngsters from Sumatra. The animals, a male and female, were flown here in the Tribune plane Tuesday from Camden, N. J., the last lap of their journey.

Mr. Young predicted a tremendous turnout of zoo fans today if the weather is favorable. Special arrangements are being made to handle a record throng anxious to see the youngest pair of orang-utans in captivity in this country. The male is 4 years old, the female, 2.

Special Broadcast Today.

At 2 p. m. today, over W-G-N, Quin Ryan will present a broadcast from the animal house featuring the orangs and their visitors. Mr. Young and several spectators will be interviewed and asked for suggestions for names for the animals.

The orangs will be in good health to greet their guests. The female has had a slight cold, no more than a case of sniffles, but it is now recovering. They had two new experiences yesterday. They were introduced to indoor baseballs and to clocks.

A New Kind of Ball Game.

The male seized the baseball eagerly, but Mr. Young found he had no intention of playing catch. Instead he bit thru the leather cover as easily as if it had been orange peel, and attempted to eat the ball. The female touched one of the strange toys speculatively a couple of times and then ignored it.

With daylight saving time scheduled to start today, the orangs were given a clock by a photographer seeking pictures to mark the event. The female had it first, but soon surrendered it to her heavier companion. He put it in his mouth and scrambled up a rope to a shelflike perch. After a time the orang put the clock on the shelf and stretched out ready for a nap, neglecting, however, to set the alarm.

THE STREAMLINE CULT TO SHOW HOW IT IS DONE

In the last 10 years lawn mowers have become as easy to push as doll buggies, and tractors have become as stylish as motor cars. Clumsy, heavy light, new models that look as if they might glide by themselves.

Industrial designing, a new field of art, is responsible for these and many other changes that have made life more pleasant.

This new profession will have its first annual exhibit next month at the Art center, 410 South Michigan avenue. Twenty of the midwest's foremost industrial designers, many from Chicago, will enter sample models of their work.

Miss Anne Swainson, chairman of the show and head of the bureau of design for a large mail order house, has invited 2,000 manufacturers to coöperate with the exhibit. The show is planned to enable manufacturers to trace the actual steps in the redesign of a product and to study the result that such redesigning has had on the sale of the product.

SIX WOMEN RACE FOR LEGISLATURE SEATS IN ALASKA

JUNEAU, Alaska, April 27 (AP).—Alaskan voters will decide the political hopes of six women at territorial primaries on Tuesday. Alaska has had but one feminine office holder, a legislator who was elected for one term in 1937.

Crystal Snow Jenne, who crossed perilous Chilkoot pass as a youngster during the '98 gold rush, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination to the lower house of the legislature. She is a daughter of Anna E. Snow, 79 year old poet and song writer. Her opponents are Elizabeth M. Cross, wife of Pilot John Cross, operator of the Deering trading post on subarctic Good Hope bay; Edna Christofferson Fix of isolated Kougarok, widow of a miner, and Mrs. Dorothy Loftus, Fairbanks carpenter's wife.

Republican women candidates for lower house nominations are Mrs. Fay C. Hurley, whose husband is a former United States district attorney, and Mrs. Mildred Herman, wife of a Juneau attorney.

Orang-utans Take Time by Headlock

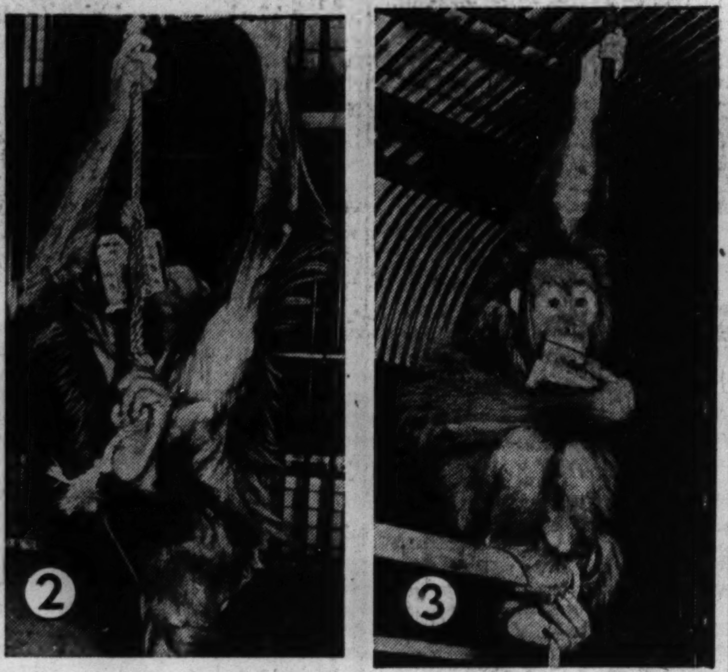
Tribune cameramen have wracked their brains for years to find different ways of pictorializing Chicago's annual change to daylight saving time. Yesterday they decided to leave it all up to the two new orang-utans which arrived at Lincoln park zoo last Tuesday from Sumatra. Picture story below shows what they did about it.

Little orang-utan, a female, gives alarm clock a careful once over.



Left: Big orang-utan, a male, after snatching clock from female, clamps it in his mouth and climbs up rope. Right: Clock snatcher pauses on perch to see if he's followed and, incidentally, to see what the ticking thing tastes like.

And then, as millions of humans have learned to do, he sets it down beside him and goes to rest.

RIVAL DEMOCRAT CAMPS GIRD FOR ASSEMBLY FIGHT

G. O. P. Awaits Chance to Probe Scandals.

The long awaited special session of the Illinois legislature will convene Tuesday with politics overshadowing the state business which the members were summoned to perform.

Two calls were issued for the extraordinary meeting—one by Gov. Henry Horner and the second by Lieut. Gov. John Stelle. Stelle contends Horner's long illness has incapacitated him for further service. Efforts to settle the question of the governor's physical condition are anticipated.

Subjects listed in the Horner call are not expected to bring much partisan discord, unless Democrats seek to prorate and tax the new oil fields for revenue with which to meet increased old age pensions.

Subjects In Call.

The governor stipulated action to increase the state's share of pensions from $15 to $20 monthly. Other matters he included are passage of financial enabling legislation for the sanitary and park districts and museums; appropriations to redeem highway bonds, and several minor matters.

Stelle listed all these and added two others—one of which is political dynamite. The lieutenant governor —who contends he is acting governor —included relief and an investigation of the collection and dispensing of campaign funds collected from Horner state employés. This is the subject which, if recognized and pursued, is likely to produce a long and acrimonious session.

Stelle, who sought the nomination for governor in the April 9 primary and was defeated, has given no indication of whether he will repeat his position as acting governor and deliver a message to the session on Tuesday. If he takes this stand, he might relinquish his constitutional post as presiding officer of the senate in favor of the next in line, Senator George M. Maypole, president pro tempore.

Has Commanding Position.

But if Stelle retains the chair in the upper chamber, he will be in a commanding position in dealing with any legislation sought to be passed there.

No word has come from the executive mansion as to what action, if any, the governor proposes to take on Tuesday. Among the rumors is one that he plans to be in his office in the statehouse as both chambers convene.

Such a move admittedly would render Stelle's position difficult, in the event that he plans to exert executive authority.

Administration scandals have been accumulating in the months since the regular session adjourned last July 1 —giving the Republicans campaign fodder for the fall election. The belief is that many of these will be aired on the floor of both houses during the special session.

MOTHER CALLS OFF HER SITDOWN STRIKE AND CRIES 'TRICKED'

Highlandville, Mo., April 27 (AP).—Charging trickery, Mrs. Gladys G. Lowe ended her sitdown strike of 47 hours today after she spent the second night of her lonely vigil in the school gymnasium.

By way of demanding justice for a broken nose which her son, Phillip, suffered in a schoolyard fight, Mrs. Lowe began her strike Thursday morning. She took over the office of Stanford Kight, superintendent of schools.

Last night, she claims, some one tricked her or she'd still be there. Just before the baccalaureate sermon was preached in the school auditorium, she said, a preacher asked her if she wouldn't care to come in and listen. She did.

When she returned the office was locked. She retired to the gymnasium where she slept over night on a bleacher seat. This morning the school was deserted. The telephones had been disconnected, the water shut off, and all rooms locked.

"I'm not thru yet," Mrs. Lowe declared.

EDMUND DUBOIS NAMED STUDENT R. O. T. C. COLONEL

Urbana, Ill., April 27 (AP).—Edmund L. DuBois of Champaign has been chosen student colonel of the university of Illinois reserve officers training corps for 1940-'41, it was announced today by Col. Robert G. Kirkwood, commandant.

Edmund DuBois.

The new Illini cadet colonel comes from a military family and has spent most of his life on army posts. His father is Lieut. Col. B. S. DuBois director of training of the R. D. T. C. unit at the university.

DuBois succeeds Walter T. Morey of Decatur, who will relinquish his post on the university's military day, May 23. The entire student brigade and its equipment will be reviewed at that time by the corps area commander and other dignitaries.

The new cadet colonel has received many student awards for proficiency in the last three years. He is a junior civil engineering student and has been a cadet second lieutenant. The brigade at Illinois is the second largest in the nation, composed of 4,000 men.

ROOSEVELT ENDS VACATION; HEADS FOR WASHINGTON

Aboard Presidential Special en route to Washington, D. C., April 27 [Special].—President Roosevelt waved farewell to old friends and neighbors of the infantile paralysis community today and left for Washington.

As he stood on the back platform of his special train at the tiny village of Warm Springs, Ga., he said: "I'll be back in November, I hope."

During his eight day vacation, the President's special train stood at Atlanta, ready to leave on short notice should a sudden turn in European affairs force the chief executive to cut short his stay and dash back to the capital.

The President will be back in the White House shortly after noon tomorrow. He has no engagements, aids said, and will rest in preparation for a busy schedule next week.

LASKER ASSAILS MOVES AGAINST GOP CANDIDATES

Give Green-Brooks Voice at Convention, He Urges.

Albert D. Lasker, a leading Republican and delegate elect to the forthcoming national convention at Philadelphia, deplored yesterday a movement to deny seats in the Illinois delegation to Dwight H. Green, nominee for governor, and Wayland Brooks, nominee for senator.

Albert D. Lasker.

Lasker referred to resolutions passed by several downstate county conventions, the burden of which was that the nominees had been honored sufficiently by their nomination on April 9, and that five of the eight delegates at large should come from downstate.

If this plan should be adopted by the state convention, which chooses the delegates at large, a long established custom of picking men of the type of former Gov. Frank O. Lowden and former Vice President Charles G. Dawes, and thereby bringing to the conclave a cross-section of past and present party leadership, would be discarded.

Charges Use of Influence.

Lasker said it was "unthinkable" that Brooks and Green not be placed on the delegation.

"For the two present party leaders not to be among the delegates," he said, "would be like saying that the heads of a corporation, in order that additional stockholders might be recognized, should not be elected to the board of directors.

"I don't believe that the people who passed these resolutions thought the situation out. This is not said in criticism of them, but someone must have swayed them with a quick suggestion. If they think it over I believe they will rescind their action."

Lasker then criticized Hill Blackett, national committeeman, who said last week he knew the downstate resolutions were being passed. Blackett said he had told several downstate chairmen that if the moves would make "for harmony and victory" he was for them.

Maneuvers Obvious, He Says.

"The political maneuvers behind the resolutions are obvious," Lasker said. "There has been an enormous cleavage on Hill Blackett for national committeeman. He has been a stormy petrel from the moment he came in.

"Everywhere in his wake there have been unbelievable and unnecessary repercussions of discord and dissention. He seems to have an exquisite talent for bringing trouble where there should be none.

"He came to work for me [in the advertising business] as a boy from school, and left me to go in business for himself. As an advertising man I found him able, diligent, dedicated to his work, and honest.

Blamed for Dissension.

"As a business competitor, I admire and approve of Blackett," Lasker continued, "but, speaking as one who has given a lifetime to the Republican party, he fills me with dread and terror that, singlehanded and unaided, he can bring about such dissension in the party as cannot be healed by election time.

"I can see nothing behind these resolutions but a desire to stack the delegates at large for Blackett, and to relieve our candidates for governor and senator from the embarrassment of voting for or against him.

"Why, with so much at stake, don't we take some one around whom there is not so much ill feeling, nor who may drive many, including myself, from activity in the campaign?

Mentions Several Possibilities.

"I have no one in mind for national committeeman. In fact, if our two leaders, Green and Brooks, agree on any man, I'd be for him. There are many good men, such as Edward L. Ryerson Jr., James S. Kemper [Lasker's co-delegate from the 10th district], Werner Schroeder, R. M. Adams, Ferre C. Watkins, George A. Barr, and many others.

"Some of these men have given no indication they were interested in taking the post; others have shown they were receptive.

"Green has named the manager of his county campaign [John T. Dempsey] as county chairman, and has indicated that he favors the choice of Ben L. Berve of Rochelle, one of his downstate leaders, as state chairman.

"All of this is perfectly proper, and what a leader should do. By the same token he should take part in the responsibility for the naming of a national committeeman. I only hope that he and Brooks can see their way clear to recommend a man to the delegation."

PUT JUDGESHIP UP TO BAR, ELDER DARES QUILICI

Edgar K. Elder, Republican nominee for a Municipal court vacancy in a special election June 3, challenged his Democratic opponent yesterday to permit the Chicago Bar association to decide which of them should retire from the race to save the taxpayers $320,000. George L. Quilici, the Democratic nominee, did not reply to Elder's telegram. Efforts to reach him have been unsuccessful during the last week.

If one of the two retires it will be necessary to open only 640 of the city's 3,648 polling places. The 640 would be opened to record the vote on seven places on the Superior and Circuit court benches, which are to be filled by coalition candidates. If there is a contest for the Municipal judgeship it will be necessary to open all polling places.

In his telegram Elder cited the savings to taxpayers, described the bar association election method as an equitable one, and said he believed that both the public and the heads of the political parties would approve the arrangement.

THAT EXTRA FIVE

By CALEB

"I HAVE been looking over some of my books of past years," a novelist once said to me. "They disappoint me. I should have done them better. I could have done them better, had I given them just a bit more 'final touching' . . . . the crisping-up of a phrase, the improving of its sequence, snugging the plot-structure tighter here and there, squeezing out superfluous words. The stuff was sound enough, you understand; a mere five per cent more careful finishing would have done the trick."

A foreman was once showing me over a motor department. "What I can't seem to get the boys to appreciate," he complained, "is that no job is done till it's all done. It isn't the big things that bother me: my crew are all seasoned mechanics and know their stuff. It's the little things—that last tightening of a nut, that smoothing to a satin-feel surface, that checking of the connection that looks O. K.—those are what make the difference between averagely good and absolutely right."

Everywhere in the human scene . . . thinking thoughts, making plans, giving instructions, carrying out orders, drawing a picture, building a model, scrubbing a sink, hanging a door, writing a poem: no matter what the motions of the moment, how many of us seem to "miss" the finished job, the getting a thing "all done," by that extra five my novelist friend so sensibly identified!

Hustle—with its attendant carelessness and incompletion—is our characteristic tempo. Time-units, as we grow older and busier, seem to shrink to fractions. "Step on it" is our vernacular for acceleration in every avenue of activity. Then we blow fuses, miss the turn, warp the fit, add to our difficulties—and discover it wasn't because we were too slow but too fast! "I can tie this carotid artery," said a New York surgeon to his students, "and save my patient's life, if I don't hurry."

Thoroughness that includes an extra five per cent—that seals every seam, dots each "i," puts the whole job one is doing into a package that he can label Perfect—doesn't entail pokiness at all. Poking fumbles and bungles. Combining pace with finish—that's the secret. Experts take less time because they use greater skill. And since there's an expert's way of doing anything under the sun so that it doesn't have to be done over, we can all afford to ask ourselves, just before we quit whatever task is in hand: "Have I included that extra five?"

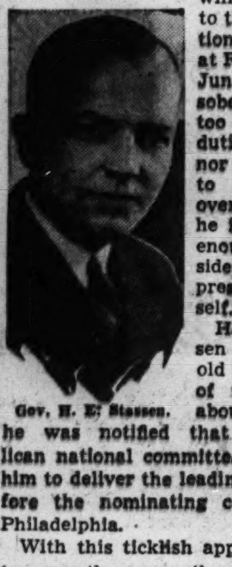
STASSEN PLANS SHARP KEYNOTE AT GOP SESSION

Will Blast New Dealers; List Republican Aims.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Paul, Minn., April 27.—New Deal failures and Republican aims will be keynoted to the G. O. P. national convention at Philadelphia in June by a tall, sober young man too busy with his duties as governor of Minnesota to worry much over the fact that he is not yet old enough to be considered for the presidency himself.



Gov. H. E. Stassen.

Harold E. Stassen was 33 years old on the 13th of this month—about the time he was notified that the Republican national committee had chosen him to deliver the leading address before the nominating convention in Philadelphia.

With this ticklish appearance only two months away, the governor has organized his plans for it methodically. He isn't frightened by the prospect. Perhaps this is because he made his first public address at the age of 13, and since he has been on and off the platform pretty regularly ever since he has learned a lot about gathering and presenting material.

Sees Leaders Tomorrow.

In the next four weeks Gov. Stassen said he plans to talk over the Republican picture with party leaders, union heads, farmers, and industrialists. His first conference will be held Monday in Washington with congressional leaders. Charles L. McNary [R., Ore.], senate minority leader, has arranged a luncheon meeting, to which Senator Warren R. Austin [R., Vt.], McNary's assistant, and house minority leader, Joseph W. Martin Jr. [R., Mass.], were invited.

The governor aims toward a short, concise keynote, devoid of flamboyant phrases. He expects to weigh the opinions of all elements of the party in drafting his speech.

"Stassen doesn't orate like a southern congressman," a reporter friend explained today. "He won't knock any stars out of the skies at Philadelphia, but he'll give the delegates something they can sink their teeth into, and he'll deliver it well."

Elected Governor in 1938.

Altho he has had a good deal of national attention since he was elected to the statehouse in 1938, at the age of 31, Gov. Stassen retains a rather shy exterior. His big frame—he is 6 feet 3 and weighs 190—fits comfortably into the chair behind the executive desk, but he does not radiate the "commanding presence" of the elder statesman.

Stassen gives the impression of trying to look older than he is, which he actually does, due, in part, to a tendency toward baldness. But when the governor talks there is nothing sophomoric about his excellent vocabulary, nor anything else to remind a visitor that he has been out of law school only 11 years.

Right now the governor is looking forward to a second term, and seems confident that he will be given one in November. He wants another two years in the statehouse, he says, in order to finish some of the things he started—budgetary control, for example, competitive bidding, improved labor relations, and civil service.

No Civil Service at All.

The Farmer-Labor administration which he succeeded didn't pay much attention to those things, he said.

"Competitive bidding was one of the major scandals," he explained, "and there was no civil service at all—just the spoils system."

The governor thinks some real progress has been made in labor relations thru the law requiring 10 day notice of intention to strike, pending which the state labor conciliator steps in to seek a peaceful solution. Thru its operations Minnesota has had only about one-fifteenth as many strikes as before, he declared.

Stassen wants to further simplify the governmental structure and develop a sound housing program. His friends think he will receive the Republican nomination at the Sept. 12 primaries without any serious trouble and they believe he can defeat any candidates the Farmer-Laborites and the Democrats run against him.

Most Beautiful Deb

[Acme Photo.]
BETTY PROVOST.

New York City, April 27 [Special].—Miss Betty Provost of Garden City, N. Y., has been crowned as the most beautiful debutante of 1940. She was selected for the honor by a committee consisting of an artist, an illustrator, a models' agent, and a photographer

CASSIDY ATTACKS MANDAMUS SUIT TO OUST HORNER

Insists Only He Can Represent Stelle.

Bloomington, Ill., April 27 [Special].—Attorney General John E. Cassidy today made his first formal attack on the mandamus suit filed here in an effort to compel Lieut. Gov. John Stelle to take over the duties of the long ill Gov. Henry Horner.

Cassidy filed a motion in the McLean county Circuit court asking that Stelle's answer to the suit be stricken, on the ground that the lieutenant governor's attorneys were not authorized to represent him in his official capacity. Stelle's answer was filed by Attorney E. J. Coyle of Springfield and the Bloomington law firm of Hoose & Depew.

In effect, Stelle's answer welcomed a court ruling on the question, but objected to being represented in the action by the attorney general's office.

Terms Answer Spurious.

The attorney general's motion related that he is authorized under state law to defend all actions and proceedings against any state officer in his official capacity, and consequently is the sole legal representative of Stelle in his capacity as lieutenant governor.

"Stelle was made a defendant in this action," Cassidy's motion stated, "solely in his official capacity as lieutenant governor and is not a party in his individual capacity. The purported answer by Coyle and Hoose & Depew is spurious and should be stricken from the files of this case."

Suit Filed by Taxpayer.

The basis of the legal controversy is a suit brought by James McComb, a Chicago taxpayer, who said he filed it in an attempt to have the courts clarify the muddle caused by the governor's long absence from his office.

It alleged that Horner's illness prevents him from performing his executive duties and that they are being conducted by a sickroom regency. McComb related that Stelle already had undertaken the duties of governor, but is not recognized as such by various state department heads. The court was asked to appoint a medical committee to determine the status of Horner's health.

COLUMBUS PARK, AUSTIN WIN IN DRAMA CONTEST

The Austin Town Hall juvenile and the Columbus Park junior groups won first place yesterday in the annual community theater contests of the drama division of the park district. Four one-act plays were presented in the Chicago Woman's Club theater. Other contesting organizations were the Portage Park and the Pulaski Park players. The skits were given under the management of W. J. Higgins, supervisor of the music-drama department of the parks. The intermediate and senior competitions will be held Tuesday evening at 8:15 o'clock in the Goodman theater.

County Realizes $8,479 on Franklin Park Tax Sale

County Treasurer John Toman said yesterday the sale of 444 tax delinquent vacant lots in Franklin Park which ended Friday brought in $8,479, or 3.9 per cent of the taxes and special assessments involved which totaled $213,828. The highest price bid for a parcel was $250 and the lowest was $4.

FOUR VOTE TESTS IN 14TH INDICATE UPSWING OF G.O.P.

Gain of 9% Recorded in Six County Area.

Rock Island, Ill., April 27 [Special].—Four tests of the official returns from the primary of April 9 show that the Republican trend in Illinois was demonstrated clearly in this, the 14th congressional district. It includes six counties, Hancock, Henderson, McDonough, Mercer, Rock Island, and Warren, all chiefly agricultural except Rock Island.

The evidence was found in increases in the total Republican vote cast in the district, in the votes cast in the presidential preference, in the total vote for delegates to the national convention, and in the total vote cast for the nomination for congressman.

The total party vote this year was 35,815. In 1936 it was 32,853. This increase was 2,962 or 9 per cent over the last presidential year. The total Republican vote in 1938, an off year, was 26,054. The increase over this figure this year was 9,761, or 33.6 per cent.

Thomas E. Dewey, unopposed in the presidential preference, received 31,331 votes. In 1936 the late Senator William E. Borah and Frank Knox together received 28,323. The expression of presidential choice in 1932, when no strong candidate was entered in Illinois, totaled only 13,378.

The total vote for national convention delegates rose from 44,808 in 1932 to 46,528 in 1936 and to 51,501 this year. The total vote for the district congressional nomination dropped from 28,011 in 1932 to 25,052 in 1936, fell again to 19,815 in 1938 [when Congressman Anton J. Johnson had no opposition], and this year it rose to 32,431, the highest in the series of biennial primaries.

District Totals Given.

The district totals for the April 9 winners were as follows:

Thomas E. Dewey, President	31,331
Anton J. Johnson, congressman	18,569
Clarence F. Buck, delegate	17,248
W. A. Rosenfield, delegate	13,810
Wayland Brooks, United States senator	17,834
Dwight H. Green, governor	21,585
Hugh W. Cross, lieutenant governor	11,574
Justus L. Johnson, secretary of state	13,480
Arthur C. Lueder, state auditor	3,779
Warren Wright, state treasurer	13,593
George F. Barrett, attorney general	3,632
William G. Stratton, congressman at large	14,880
Stephen A. Day, congressman at large	13,785

The totals for district offices have not yet been tabulated by the secretary of state. These computations were made by THE TRIBUNE from the results of the official county canvasses.

100 CITY LEADERS INVITED TO U. OF C. TRUSTEE DINNER

One hundred prominent Chicagoans have been invited by the University of Chicago board of trustees to attend a dinner tomorrow night in the Chicago club. The occasion is the first public announcement of plans for the university's 50th anniversary celebration next year. Harold H. Swift, chairman of the board, will introduce four fellow board members, who will speak. They are Marshall Field, whose grandfather donated the original site for the university; Edward L. Ryerson Jr., Albert D. Lasker, and Robert M. Hutchins, president of the university.

BEG YOUR PARDON

Frank L. Smith of Dwight and E. J. Pacey of Paxton were elected on April 9 as the delegates to the Republican national convention from the 17th congressional district. Smith's total vote was 26,475 and Pacey's was 21,738. Due to an error, each of the candidates was shown in some editions last Thursday as having received the same vote—26,475.

DEWEY TO PAY CHICAGO A VISIT ON WEDNESDAY

Colorado Springs, Colo., April 27 [Special].—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, will end his five day vacation here tomorrow night and head back east on the second part of his transcontinental campaign tour, encouraged by reports of growing strength in his quest to line up delegates to the Republican national convention.

Seasoned observers assert that if developments of the first half of his western tour, which took him from New York City to the Pacific coast and then here, are any indication, it would appear that Dewey's candidacy is growing stronger daily and may be nearing the "band wagon" stage.

From here Dewey will go to Wichita, Kas., where he will deliver an address at Friends' college on Monday night. On Tuesday he will address a Republican meeting at Marshalltown, Ia., and then head east for Chicago, where he will hold conferences with Republican leaders on Wednesday.

ORDER RECOUNT IN 44TH WARD COMMITTEE RACE

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki yesterday ordered a recount, to start tomorrow, of the ballots cast for Republican committeeman of the 44th ward in the April 9 primary. The recount was asked by Richard A. Donnellan, 2215 North Dayton street, who polled 2,865 votes to 2,870 cast for Robert W. Dunn, the incumbent.

Judge Jarecki also set for tomorrow a hearing on a motion to dismiss the contest filed by Joseph F. Gubbins, who was defeated by 50 votes for Republican committeeman of the 36th ward by Eden T. Brekke. Joseph R. Orrico, who was defeated by 38 votes by Louis J. Meyers for Republican committeeman of the 29th ward, also has filed a contest.

Collecting rare and ancient harps is the hobby of Miss Dilling. Her New York studio in fact, holds some of the most fascinating examples to be found. But in her teaching and concert work, this artist depends entirely upon her Lyon & Healy Harps, which are made here in Chicago.

"I always take my Lyon & Healy Harps with me to Europe," she stated, "because only these American made instruments will withstand the strain of travel and change of climate."

CRIME FIGHTERS JOIN IN WAR ON BOSS CARROZZO

End His Rule of Streets, Their Battle Cry.

BY LLOYD WENDT.

"End Mike Carrozzo's rule of Chicago's streets!" Two powerful civic organizations, the All-Chicago council of the Association of Commerce, and the Chicago Crime commission, both formed to war on racketeers and other criminals, joined in this demand yesterday.

Carrozzo, rich boss of the Street Workers' union, has been under fire from the city administration since he called an unexplained strike of city asphalt workers two weeks ago. After city officials had accused Carrozzo of trying to dictate asphalt prices to the city, he called off the strike. But accusations against the boss of 25 unions have been piling up. Leaders of the civic groups reviewed those charges yesterday and declared for decisive action to end Carrozzo's domination of Chicago paving and building.

Hecht Promises Action.

"I will take the matter of Carrozzo's activities before the next meeting of the All-Chicago council," said Frank A. Hecht, chairman of the council and vice president of the association of commerce. "I know that the members are already familiar with the charges of his autocratic rule of our streets. These charges will be taken up at our next meeting."

"We have had a suspicion of what has been going on in Carrozzo's unions for years," said Frank J. Loesch, president emeritus and member of the executive committee of the Chicago Crime commission and for years head of this famous crime fighting organization. "It is time that action is taken. Civic associations will rally to a drive to change the control of the Carrozzo organizations."

The opposition of the civic bodies and the city administration to Carrozzo's rule, was aroused by the mystery behind his asphalt strike. Carrozzo called it two hours after the city council threw out bids on 100,000 tons of asphalt. Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, then took new bids which saved taxpayers $10,000.

$600,000 Contract Lost.

The Illinois Asphalt company lost a $600,000 contract by this action. Samuel Kart, Carrozzo's personal attorney and sub-boss of his labor empire, was revealed as an organizer and first president of this company. Two other close friends of Carrozzo, who signed his citizenship papers, also helped form the concern.

Other pages in the "book on Carrozzo" reviewed by the civic leaders yesterday include:

1. The labor boss, who got his start as bodyguard for Big Jim Colosimo, one time vice monger, is accused of harassing the city for nine years with strikes, many of them unexplained.

2. It is charged that Carrozzo is able to dictate to contractors on purchases of materials thru his control of the workmen. Inept workmen may ruin a contractor. The contractor fears Carrozzo will send only inept workmen unless he obeys Carrozzo's orders on materials. Hence the contractor takes the hint and buys from the material concern which Carrozzo favors.

Cement Costs Held Up.

3. Carrozzo, who once threatened to call a strike when police seized him on a gun toting charge, is accused of banning premixed concrete from Chicago. Use of such material would cut concrete costs 25 per cent. Leo J. Tierney, assistant attorney general in charge of the building monopoly probe here, is investigating this charge. Other government agents are investigating Carrozzo's income and his alleged connection with the paving combine.

4. Workmen who have dug the Chicago subway have paid Carrozzo controled unions initiation fees for so-called permits to take the jobs. This levy amounts to $60,000 to $80,000. If a man's job ends before the full fee has been paid he must start paying all over again when he begins work on another project.

5. Disgruntled members of Carrozzo's unions assert that it issues thousands of "temporary" work cards to nounion men. The cards bring Carrozzo $5 a month each. Such temporary workmen fill jobs to which regular union men are entitled, but the regulars must go on paying their $2 a month union dues even tho they do not work.

G-Men Probe Books.

6. G-men have been investigating charges that Carrozzo forced contractors to build tennis courts, a swimming pool, and do other extensive work on his estates at Long Beach, Ind., and near Hobart, Ind., without pay. Several contractors have denied the charge, but government agents have persisted in going over their books.

Meanwhile, Carrozzo is expected to go before the finance committee of the city council this week with a series of demands for his workers. This is seen by aldermen as a face saving effort to cover up the real reason for the asphalt strike. They, with the support of Mayor Kelly, have said that they will back Commissioner Hewitt in his fight against Carrozzo.

A suicide note on the back of this unidentified photograph has created a San Francisco mystery.

San Francisco, Cal., April 27 [Special].—Police have made no progress in identifying a mystery photograph or finding the body of a beautiful woman who is supposed to have jumped to her death Thursday from the Golden Gate bridge after depositing her handbag on the bridge deck. Inside the bag was a farewell note written on the back of a photograph believed to be of her and addressed to "David." A man sobbing heavily, telephoned a San Francisco newspaper Friday identifying himself as "David" and declaring the woman a suicide. He said he would divulge the girl's name only if officials found her body. The note to David said in part: "You're British and without understanding, and I'm just French and without tears."

ADMITS BEATING PARAMOUR TO DEATH WITH SHOE

Joseph Sacramento, 28 years old, a cook, confessed yesterday to Lieut. George Kelly of the Englewood police that he had beaten to death a young woman with whom he had been living since he met her four months ago in a south side tavern.

The body of the woman, about 25 years old, was found yesterday in the couple's apartment at 535 West 62d street by police notified by Sacramento and a friend.

Sacramento said he beat the woman Wednesday night with a shoe after an argument over her association with other men. He said the victim, who had been using the name Patricia Sacramento, said she was from Battle Creek, Mich., and that her name was De Marte. He said she was a registered nurse and former dancer.

PHANTOM THIEF ADDS 3 CASES TO HIS CONFESSION

Charles Duggard, 19 years old, colored, admitted three more burglaries to Evanston police yesterday, running his total since March 1 to 44. Police said his arrest Friday ended the search for Evanston's phantom burglar. He lives at 2037 Ashland avenue in the suburb.

Duggard said he got three rings, a revolver, and less than $100 in cash from the homes he entered. He said he looked chiefly for cash, so that he could buy fancy clothes, and often his loot from a home amounted to only a dime or 50 cents.

LAW RIPS MASK OFF TERRORISTS POSING AS LABOR

Officials in 8 Unions Face Multitude of Charges.

New York, April 27 [Special].—Organized labor has been basking in unwanted publicity here recently as a steady stream of criminal actions against trade union groups, accused of offenses ranging from terrorism and extortion to operation of a "college for saboteurs," and including murder, has moved into courts.

Eight different unions have been exposed to the legal spotlight in recent current or impending prosecutions. Six of the unions or union individuals involved are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and two are affiliated with the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Two Sentenced to Prison.

Thus far there has been a conviction in one case. Ben Gold, communist president of the left wing Fur Workers International union [C. I. O.] and Irving Potash, manager of the furriers joint council, each was sentenced to a year in a federal prison for directing a reign of terror in the $85,000,000 fur industry. Testimony in the case indicated that hired thugs, known as "organization committees," committed assaults and even murder.

Ten other minor officials of the union were convicted, five of whom received suspended sentences. Seven others were exonerated.

52 Charges Against Scalise.

One of the most recent cases, and the most spectacular, is that of George Scalise, who served 4½ years in federal prison for violation of the Mann act, catapulted to the presidency of the Building Service Employés international [A. F. of L.] in the short space of six years. He and two union aids are accused of extorting $100,000 from hotels and exterminating agencies, in a 53 count indictment returned yesterday by the New York county grand jury.

District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's office charges that Scalise used the union, which has 70,000 members "as a burglar uses a jimmy," and "sold out" scrub women and porters whose dues pay his $20,000 a year salary and enabled him to buy a 27 room mansion in Connecticut—among other things.

"Schools for Saboteurs."

Eight members of the United Machinists of the Needle Industries, local 150 [C. I. O.], an affiliate of the Fur Workers union, are now on trial accused of conducting a "school for saboteurs." Two officials and five members are charged with smashing machinery, throwing acid, and otherwise sabotaging plants and intimidating employers.

Eight have pleaded guilty to the charges. The remaining defendants have made the defense claim that the charges are a frameup, instigated by ex-members who were expelled for strike breaking and labor spying. A 1938 strike, cited by the prosecution as the vehicle and inspiration of the alleged saboteurs, they argue was a peaceful labor dispute.

Racketeering Charged.

Two A. F. of L. teamsters unions are involved in federal charges of violating antiracketeering laws. They are:

Convicted Terrorists

[Associated Press Photos.]

Irving Potash (left) and Ben Gold, New York labor officials who have been sentenced to a year each in prison for terror reign in fur industry.

1. Local 807, three officers and 33 members are accused of using strong-arm tactics, including beatings and threats, to force out of town truckers to hire 807 members within the city limits or to pay them a day's wages while their own drivers did the work. In many instances, the government contends, the truckers' own drivers were members of other teamsters' locals.

The defense denies it participated in violence; contends its object was to prevent outside chiselers from taking away work from 807 members.

This looms as a test case in the attorney general's drive on union monopolies. An indication of its importance is seen in the fact that the defense counsel includes Senator Burton K. Wheeler, James D. C. Murray, and Louis B. Boudin, an authority on constitutional law who has represented communist unions.

Extortion Charged.

2. Nat Hoffman, president of local 138, and four other officers are under indictment on antitrust and federal racketeering charges in which they are accused of extorting $3,000 from plywood jobbers in December, 1939, for calling off a strike. The union is not a defendant in the case.

In General Sessions court six officers of teamsters' local 202 and clerks' local 1204, A. F. of L., are standing trial on a charge of extorting $9,000 from food dealers on threat of strike. The prosecution found only $1,000 in the clerks' union treasury, altho $175,000 was collected from 3,000 produce clerks in less than two years.

Two defendants pleaded guilty. The rest contend they were engaging in legitimate union activity.

Face Monopoly Accusation.

Two other A. F. of L. affiliates have been indicted on charges of violating the Sherman antitrust act. One of these is local 3 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers' union, which, with five associations of electrical and plumbing contractors and a dozen officials of the union, is accused of collusion and maintaining a virtual monopoly of the electrical industry in New York City.

Chicago Tribune SERVING CHICAGO FOR 92 YEARS

YOUNG SPELLING WIZARDS VIE FOR COUNTY TITLE

Three Lists Necessary to Pick a Winner.

Shades of the little red schoolhouse and the old fashioned spelling bee settled over the council chambers in the city hall yesterday.

The occasion was a Cook county spelling contest. Seventy-eight township champions—60 girls and 18 boys—sat at the aldermanic desks, poised pencils—there was no oral "spell-down" in this tournament—and merrily went to work as Noble J. Puffer, county superintendent of schools, dictated.

The old catch words, villain, embarrassment, rheumatism, nuisance, were correctly spelled by most of the contestants. The four that proved the chief stumbling blocks were dilatory, satellite [one boy wrote saddlelight], quorum, and ooze.

Four girls turned in perfect papers. Thirteen had 49 of the 50 words correct.

Leaders Tied on Second List.

After two more lists, Helen Macdush, a pupil at the Thornton Public school, emerged as county champion speller and gold medal winner. Second place and the silver medal were awarded to Rose Boula of the Lemont Public school. Audrey Nimtz of the Lageschulte Public school in Barrington took third place and received a bronze medal, and La Verne Moeller of the Wheeling Public school was fourth. All four are 8th graders, 13 years old.

Helen and Rose tied on the second list of 25 words, each misspelling 5.

In the final list of 15 words, Helen had 11 correct and Rose had 9.

Here Are the Words.

Some of the words on the second and third lists, taken from the newspapers, were:

elucidate	archaeological belligerent	blatant
stratosphere	audacious
portrait	mischievous
commentary	beleaguer
gyration	cudgel
philatelist	allege
penalize	recipient
permanent	phenomenal
apparatus	incumbent
synthetic	reconnaissance
muzzle	reluctant
temperament	secrecy
reservoir	aggressor
atrocity	strategy

Both Rose and Helen are the youngest in families of seven children. Both get A and B ratings for all subjects on their report cards.

WAR MAY CAUSE STUDENT INFLUX, PARLEY IS TOLD

The war in Europe may cause an influx of South American students to medical, dental, engineering, and other schools in the United States and may create an American "Paris" or "Vienna" to take the place of European cultural centers. This prediction was made yesterday by Dr. Ben M. Cherrington, chief of the state department's division of cultural relations.

Dr. Cherrington spoke at the final session of the American Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation convention in the Stevens hotel. The meeting was attended by 2,500 coaches, school administrators, and physical education instructors.

"The war affects no phase of our national life more violently than the cultural," Dr. Cherrington said. "In a very real sense, we in the western hemisphere are thrown back on our own resources."

BIOFF APPROVED IN UNION VOTE, SAYS AN OFFICIAL

Hollywood, Cal., April 27 (AP)—Steve B. Newman of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employés said today that balloting in 13 film studio local unions had resulted in election of 71 delegates to the Louisville, Ky., convention favorable to William Bioff and nine opposed.

Bioff, a representative of the union, is serving a six months' jail sentence in Chicago on a pandering charge.

Newman, international representative of the union, said balloting thruout the country indicated almost 100 per cent indorsement of the administration of George E. Browne, president of the alliance. He said Browne's reëlection appeared almost certain.

Bioff is Browne's personal representative here.

The convention opens June 3.

Antiaircraft Battalion Off for Texas Sham Battle

Nineteen officers and 419 enlisted men of the auxiliary weapons battalion of the 61st coast artillery antiaircraft will leave Fort Sheridan at 6 a. m. tomorrow for San Augustine, Tex., where they will participate in the army sham battle. They will travel by truck, arriving at San Augustine next Saturday.

Sergt. Bowker, Policeman Since 1907, Retired at 63

Sergt. Harry J. Bowker, who joined the Chicago police department in 1907, was retired yesterday on reaching the compulsory retirement age of 63. He was made a sergeant in 1914. He spent most of his career in south side districts, and for the last seven years was assigned to the Morgan Park station.

50 OF CITY'S LAST 290 MURDERS ARE STILL MYSTERIES

13 of 51 Killings in 1940 Remain Unsolved.

Chicago police have failed to solve 50, or more than 17 per cent of the 290 murders committed during the last 15½ months, department records showed yesterday. The cases range from apparently unpremediated killings committed by holdup men or in sudden quarrels to carefully planned executions by labor goons or gangland hirelings.

Thirty-seven of last year's 239 murders are unsolved, and 13 of the 51 murders committed between the first of this year and April 15 are in the same category.

Here Are Some of Mysteries.

Some of these unsolved murders, with dates of the crimes and pertinent facts about them, follow:

Charles Hayden, a walkathon promoter, April 9, 1939. Hayden was shot down near the Park Casino ballroom, 3825 Madison street. He is believed to have been the victim of bandits, altho he was not robbed.

James Lawrence, a truck helper, April 12, 1939. Lawrence, who lived at 1124 Wilson avenue, was shot and killed while riding as a helper on a Wieboldt store truck during a strike. A union agent was tried on a charge of murder, but was acquitted.

Dr. James McDonald Scott, 73 years old, a practicing physician, April 24, 1939. Dr. Scott was shot and killed near his office at 1151 South Western avenue. A gunman fired three shots at Dr. Scott without warning.

Joseph De Brucq, an orchestra business manager, May 10, 1939. De Brucq was shot to death in the Devonshire hotel, 19 East Ohio street, by a stranger who resented a remark he made.

Mrs. Helen Rach, 7835 Bennett avenue, May 20, 1939. Mrs. Rach, the wife of a broker, was shot as she sat at dinner with her husband in a tavern at 942 East 79th street. The shots came from a passing automobile.

Thomas Smyth, a nonunion barber, May 21, 1939. Smyth was beaten fatally in a mysterious attack.

Miss Rose Neary, well-to-do spinster, June 2, 1939. Miss Neary was strangled and beaten to death in her home at 3248 Franklin boulevard.

Felix A. Blucher, a factory foreman, Aug. 29, 1939. Blucher was shot to death in a tavern.

Thomas Cropley, a store manager, Sept. 19, 1939. Cropley died a few days after he was struck on the head by a hammer wielded by a colored bandit.

Jack Nevills, an ex-convict, Sept. 28, 1939. Nevills staggered into the Evangelical hospital and died the following day. It was believed he had been in a gun fight in a tavern.

Jacqueline Neville, 9, of 4201 Lowe avenue, Oct. 6, 1939. Jacqueline was struck by a bullet fired by a robber attempting to hold up two insurance collectors near her home.

Paul Peters, a printing press operator, Oct. 31, 1939. His killing was attributed to labor union troubles.

Edward O'Hare, president of Sportsman's Park race track and front man for the Capone gang, Nov. 8, 1939. O'Hare was killed by shotgun blast at Rockwell street in Ogden avenue. His slayers fled.

Mrs. Ricka Thompson, 1654 North Lawndale avenue, Dec. 12, 1939. Mrs. Thompson, 64, was run down and killed by a man who had snatched her purse when, in an effort to halt him, she jumped in front of his car.

Marinus Hvid, a garage owner, Dec. 27, 1939. Hvid was beaten by sluggers armed with baseball bats during a controversy involving a union and a garage owners' group.

Both John L. Sullivan, chief of detectives, and Lieut. Otto Erlanson, head of the homicide bureau, said all the cases listed still were being investigated.

Homicide Squad Assists.

"The homicide squad at the bureau is used to augment investigators in other districts," Chief Sullivan said. "This does not absolve the various district commanders from working on their unsolved murders. We keep these murder investigations alive. From time to time I confer with the district commanders to see whether there have been any new developments."

Lieut. Erlanson said:

"We have 20 men working on murders. We can't keep working steadily on one individual case as we have to follow new ones as they occur. Each man, however, has one or two of these unsolved crimes in his notebook. When any leads come up they run them down."

THIEVES SMASH 3 SHOW WINDOWS.

Four thieves smashed three show windows on West 63d street yesterday and stole merchandise valued at $400. They took three vacuum cleaners from an electrical shop at 2058 63d street and furs from shops at 3020 and 3040½.

HEARINGS ON 337 PAROLE APPEALS OPEN TOMORROW

Parole applications of 337 prisoners in Illinois penal institutions, including 165 sentenced from Cook county, will be heard beginning tomorrow by the state parole board. Five prisoners in the Women's reformatory at Dwight are on the list.

Among those seeking freedom is Seymour Pellar, who was sentenced in 1930 to 20 years in prison for kidnaping. He and two accomplices were found guilty of kidnaping Theodore Kopelman, a Chicago insurance broker, and holding him for 60 hours until $4,000 ransom was paid.

Another is Walter Przybyla, who was sent to prison for automobile theft and manslaughter in 1932. Przybyla and six other prisoners at Pontiac reformatory sawed their way out of a cell block in December, 1937, and stole four cars in escaping. Przybyla was recaptured within 24 hours, and later was transferred to the Joliet penitentiary.

State's Reserve Officers End 3 Day Session Today

The three day convention of the Illinois Reserve Officers' association at Fort Sheridan will conclude with a luncheon today. Four hundred members of the association have been quartered in barracks of the 61st coast artillery and have engaged in firing practice and study of new equipment.

SLAYER DECIDES HE DIDN'T LOVE GIRL AFTER ALL

Abington, Pa., April 27 (AP).—Sixteen year old Robert Heineman, charged with murder in the slaying of a pretty girl classmate, reversed today his statement that jealousy goaded him to shoot Edith Snyder as she studied at home Thursday night.

The boy's father, permitted to visit his son in the Montgomery county prison, quoted him:

"I did not love Edith. I knew she had dates with other boys, but I didn't care—and I told her I didn't."

The boy said yesterday, Assistant District Attorney David E. Groshens announced, that he drove to the girl's home and fired a pistol at the girl as she sat at a desk doing school homework.

"I was in love with her and she had dates with other boys," Groshens quoted young Heineman.

Crossed hockey sticks of Edith's teammates at Abington High school, where both she and young Heineman were described as brilliant students, will form an arch thru which her body will be carried to the grave on Monday. Six boys of her class will be pallbearers.

CROONER FOUND SLAIN; BELIEVED TAKEN FOR 'RIDE'

Zeigler, Ill., April 27 [Special].—The bullet pierced body of a man believed to have been a "one way ride" victim was found today lying along a highway two miles south of here. It was identified as that of Eddie Crompton, 30 years old, of Herrin, a singer and night club entertainer. Coroner Dave Clayton said the man had been shot three times and that his body showed signs of a struggle. An automobile had turned around near the spot where the body was found, the coroner said.

FARMHAND GETS LIFE TERM FOR SLAYING WOMAN

Lafayette, Ind., April 27 [Special].—A sentence of life imprisonment was imposed today on Clair Mitchell, 25 years old, a farmhand, on his plea of guilty to a charge of second degree murder in the slaying of his employer, Mrs. Georgia Miller, 62 years old.

The charred body of Mrs. Miller, a retired school teacher, was found March 8 in the ruins of her burned farmhouse 19 miles southwest of here.

Mitchell, arrested last Saturday night, confessed he beat her to death and then set fire to the house. He said they had quarreled over her objection to his contemplated marriage to a 19 year old divorcée and he also wanted to keep her from learning he had stolen grain from her.

JEALOUS HUSBAND AMBUSHES, KILLS STEELWORKER

Lee Hewett, 30 years old, was killed yesterday in an ambush set by a fellow employé at the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company who accused Hewett of winning the affections of his wife.

The slayer, who confessed to police, is Thomas Darrow, 29, of 4736 Olcott avenue, East Chicago. He waited in his automobile outside the company plant on U. S. route 12 between East Chicago and Whiting. As Hewett walked out, Darrow discharged a shotgun at him. The slugs killed Hewett instantly.

Darrow made no attempt to flee. Other employés surrounded his car until police arrived. At the Indiana Harbor jail he told Captain of Detectives Martin Zarkovich that Hewett had broken up his home. Darrow said his wife, La Verne, left him March 26 and went to live at 505 West Chicago avenue, East Chicago, about a block from Hewett's home at 430 West Chicago avenue. Hewett was reported to have a divorced wife living in the southwest.

Nicholas Appointed Army Engineer for Chicago Dist.

Lieut. Col. Richard U. Nicholas, at present attached to the war college in Washington, D. C., has been appointed army district engineer in Chicago, it was announced yesterday at the local army engineering office. He is to take over his new post on June 22. He will succeed Maj. S. N. Karrick. Maj. Karrick came to Chicago in 1935 as assistant district engineer. Col. Nicholas formerly was on duty in the canal zone.

UNION'S BOARD OUSTS SCALISE, INDICTED CZAR

McFetridge in Line for Post as President.

his high office despite the exposure of his criminal past.

Questioned on Selection.

"How did it happen that Scalise, who had no previous background as a labor leader, was chosen general president of the international union?" McFetridge was asked yesterday.

"We didn't know anything against him and he had been a friend of Jerry Horan, whose death left the international presidency open," McFetridge said.

Union leaders recall that McFetridge, at that time, sought the office himself. McFetridge expected to get it in as much as he was first vice president of the international union and Scalise was only fifth vice president. Scalise had been appointed by Horan, who had been a saloonkeeper before he was president of an international labor union.

"Didn't Scalise try to kick out Matt Taylor of the Chicago Elevator Operators' union, James J. Bambrick of the New York union, and Charles Hardy, of the San Francisco union?" McFetridge was asked.

Same Methods Used.

McFetridge admitted that there were at least charges to that effect. The facts are that Scalise's method was the same in each one of these cases. Scalise charged the officials of the local unions with misappropriating union dues, or withholding them from the international, and suspended the local officials. Scalise won his fight with Taylor and Bambrick, but Hardy still is fighting in the courts.

"When you offered the resolution lauding Scalise at the executive meeting Jan. 27 were you being coerced by Frank Nitti?" McFetridge was asked.

"No," he said. "The executive board members believed Scalise was being persecuted. We didn't know anything about his activities in New York. I have met Nitti, but I never was coerced by him."

McFetridge Sketches Career.

McFetridge sketched his own career. He was a flat janitor before he became head of the union. His first union activities were when he organized the school janitors in 1927 —after they became direct employés of the school board and not of school engineers. He first headed that union.

Horan, who died three years ago yesterday, succeeded Oscar Nelson, then an alderman, now a judge and Republican nominee for state's attorney, as president of the flat janitors' union. Soon thereafter Horan became president of the international union and McFetridge was chosen to head the flat janitors [who now have a membership of 8,000] and subsequently McFetridge became first vice president of the international.

Horan appointed Scalise his first organizer in New York City and then fifth vice president of the international. McFetridge insisted yesterday that if, as was reported, Capone influence was present in the Scalise appointments, he knew nothing of it.

Reports from New York last night indicated that McFetridge's election appeared certain, as labor unions are seeking to clean up. Scalise, who was freed on bail of $40,000, intimated he would not seek election.

"The indictment was political," Scalise was quoted as saying. "This is a presidential year and labor's vote is divided."

In his letter of resignation to the executive board which had suspended him Scalise denied the extortion charges, said he was confronted by a sinister combination, and expressed confidence he would be vindicated.

Scalise was convicted in 1913 for violating the white slave act and served 4½ years in the Atlanta penitentiary. If convicted on the present charges he could be sentenced to 15 to 30 years on each extortion charge and up to three years on the conspiracy charge.

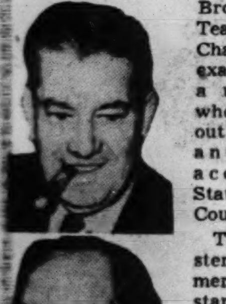
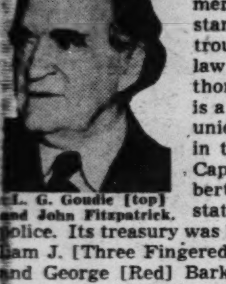
WHAT HAPPENS WHEN A UNION EXPELS CROOKS

Coal Teamsters' Dues Cut; Benefits Provided.

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

The Coal Teamsters and Hikers union, local 704 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Chauffeurs, is an example of what a union can do when it throws out the hoodlums and racketeers, according to State's Attorney Courtney.





L. G. Goudie [top] and John Fitzpatrick.

The coal teamsters' union formerly was a constant source of trouble to the law enforcing authorities. Now it is a model for all unions to follow, in the opinion of Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief of the state's attorney's police. Its treasury was looted by William J. [Three Fingered Jack] White and George [Red] Barker, who with the use of firearms invoked a policy of rule or ruin. Business men were shaken down for tribute and shootings frequently punctuated the gangsters' régime, the police records show.

Has $63,337 in Bank.

Records of the rejuvenated union show it now owns its own office building and has $63,337 in the bank. The union pays sick and death benefits. It is officered entirely by veteran members.

Leslie G. Goudie, president of the joint council No. 25 of the teamsters' brotherhood, is given credit for bringing the union to its present state of solvency, peace, and quiet. He opened his records of the union to Capt. Gilbert to show how times have changed. For three years Goudie rode in an armored automobile as the result of threats against his life, he says. His wife frequently was reminded by telephone and letter how she would look in widow's garb.

Goudie was literally dictator of the union for more than two years during the start of its reformation. He was appointed receiver by the American Federation of Labor because of the scandals in the local union. He was given authority over the elected officers and was allowed to say who could or could not be an officer. As president of the district council he still supervises all the council's unions in Chicagoland.

Falls Under Gang Rule.

The coal teamsters' union is one of the oldest in Chicago. After repeal of the prohibition law, gangsters started to seize unions, and the teamsters fell under the domination of White and Barker [later slain].

Then the Touhy gang sought control of the teamsters. The battle between the Caponeites and the Touhys brought on many gun battles. The state's attorney's office was flooded with complaints.

The resurrection of the union started in 1933 under the sponsorship of State's Attorney Courtney and Mayor Kelly. At a meeting in the mayor's office attended by Courtney, John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor; the late Edward Noeckels, secretary, and Victor Olander, secretary and treasurer of the Illinois federation, the plans for reorganizing the union were made.

Gangsters Driven Out.

It was decided that all the teamster unions should be placed under one parental roof. Daniel J. Tobin, international president of the teamsters' brotherhood, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, agreed to accept all the locals into his organization if they would apply for a charter and agree to have their officers investigated and sanctioned by the state's attorney. Fourteen locals, all but two in Chicago, applied. The gangsters were dispossessed.

The start at rehabilitation for the coal teamsters was inauspicious. James [Lefty] Lynch, an ex-convict, was made secretary and treasurer. Lynch's home at 2322 North Harlem avenue was shot up and an attempt was made to assassinate him near his summer home at Brown's Lake, Wis.

In 1934 the teamsters engaged in a strike. Violence flared intermittently. Into this turmoil stepped Goudie in Dec. 1934, as receiver of the union with supreme control. The strike was settled and Barker, Lynch, and others with a taint on their records were ousted.

Goudie appealed to Prosecutor Courtney and Chief Investigator Gilbert for aid. They seized Lynch's books, which he kept at his home, and found he only had $79.90 in the bank to cover debts of more than $25,000. Goudie later discounted these debts for $10,000, he said.

High Union Dues Required.

It was discovered that during the Lynch régime coal hikers paid 50 cents per day for the privilege of working and the teamsters $1 per day, according to Goudie. No sick or death benefits were paid from the treasury. When Goudie became receiver, dues of $2 per month were collected from the hikers and $3 from the drivers.

The union now pays sick benefits of $5 per week for 5 weeks for hikers and $10 for 10 weeks for drivers, Goudie reported to Capt. Gilbert. Death benefits of $100 are paid for hikers and $300 for drivers.

Goudie used the state's attorney's police to quell all disturbances. By April, 1937, he decided the union was able to operate under its own power and turned it over to the officers. At that time he had acquired for the union an old residence at 216 South Ashland avenue, which he remodeled into an office building at a cost of $32,000. It was free of debt. He also turned over $38,606 in the bank. Now the union's total resources, including the building, are estimated by Goudie at $122,137.

John Barrymore Colt and bride after announcing wedding in New York.

New York, April 27 [Special].—John Barrymore Colt, son of Ethel Barrymore, actress, and his bride, the former Marjorie Dow Bancroft of Boston, were receiving congratulations here today after announcing their recent elopement marriage in Elkton, Md. Colt is an actor. His bride, who is prominent in Boston society, was divorced in 1936 from Hugh Bancroft Jr., Massachusetts sportsman.

MASTER'S SUICIDE DOOMS DOG.

Auburn, Neb., April 27 [Special].—When Thomas Redding committed suicide today it meant a death warrant for his dog. After Redding shot himself, the dog wouldn't permit a physician near the body. It finally had to be shot.

MORMONS HONOR THEIR PROPHET IN HIS SHRINE: A JAIL

Scene of Joseph Smith's Death Being Restored.

Carthage, Ill., April 27 [Special].—Just a century since it was completed, Carthage's old stone and log jail is being restored as nearly as possible to the appearance it bore on June 27, 1844, when Joseph Smith, the founder and prophet of the Mormon church, was put to death there by a mob.

The restoration is being financed by the Mormon church and is under the supervision of Elder Joseph McRae and his wife, Eunice, who live in a new bungalow adjoining the somber old structure in the northwest part of the town. Elder McRae, who has done much of the work with his own hands, has had great difficulty in finding walnut boards with which to replace missing doors, sills, and parts of facings that have been chipped away by souvenir hunters during the years.

2½ Stories High.

The jail is two and a half stories high and is built of stone with ceiling and floor joists of hewn logs. On the ground floor is a large living room with a fireplace, a dining room—where Joseph Smith ate his last meal—and the "debtors' cell."

On the second floor are two rooms. One extends across the back of the building and was known as "the dungeon." It is divided into two cells. The 26 inch stone walls are pierced by two ventilating slits on the north and by a window on the west. At the front of the structure is a small hallway at the head of the stairs and another room with a fireplace. This room has two windows on the south and one on the east. It was here that Smith was mortally wounded.

The events of June 27, 1844, were the culmination of more than a dozen years of turmoil and wanderings by the prophet and his followers. They had fled first from New York state, where Smith founded the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Ohio, Then Missouri.

From New York the Mormons moved to Ohio, thence to Missouri. When the fiery Missouri pioneers conceived the notion that the Mormons intended seizing the territory for their own, there was fighting and bloodshed. Many were killed and Smith was imprisoned for several months.

When he eventually escaped, he rejoined his people in Hancock county, Illinois, whence they had fled under the leadership of Brigham Young. A city was laid out in a Mississippi river swamp and called Nauvoo. Work was started on a vast temple, an imposing riverfront hotel, and on a mansion for Smith and his wife, Emma.

Nauvoo had attained a population of 15,000 and was a prosperous little metropolis of wide streets and brick homes when the Illinois countryside was incensed by rumors that the Mormons were practicing polygamy and in other ways violating the state laws. Smith's arrest was ordered but, fearing mob violence, he started a flight to the west.

Returns and Surrenders.

At the entreaties of his people, however, he returned and surrendered himself to troops commanded by Gov. Ford of Illinois at Carthage. The town was swarming with angry citizens and militiamen from surrounding communities. After exhibiting Joseph Smith and his brother, Hyrum, in the public square, the governor had them locked up for safe keeping.

The Smiths and John Taylor, one of the church's 12 apostles, along with others, were placed in the debtors' room, where they spent the night of June 26. The next afternoon, after an early dinner, they were taken to the front living room on the second floor.

Shortly after 5 p. m. a mob was seen streaming down the street to the jail. While the howling crowd surrounded the building, the leaders smashed the lower doors and stormed up the stairs. Inside the room the two Smiths, Taylor, and Willard Richards, who was visiting them, tried to hold the door. Then the firing began.

Hyrum Wounded First.

The first shot passed thru the paneling and struck Hyrum Smith in the face. Other slugs struck him after he had fallen. The door was burst open. Taylor went down, shot thru the body. Joseph Smith ran to the window. As he reached it two bullets fired from outside hit him in the chest.

He plunged head first thru the window and fell to the ground, dying as he struck it. Hyrum died shortly afterward. Richards carried Taylor into the dungeon room and covered him with bedding. After many weeks, he recovered.

When news of the slayings reached Nauvoo the population was terrified and, again under the leadership of Brigham Young, fled almost en masse to the westward, eventually finding their promised land in Utah.

Restoration of the old Carthage jail is near completion. Iron doors and bars have been placed upon the debtors' room and the dungeon. Flooring put down during the years it was in private use, from 1866 to 1903, has been torn up to reveal the original oak boarding. On the floor of the upper front room are sinister stains where Hyrum Smith and Taylor lay after they fell.

The stains have penetrated the wood and cannot be effaced. They are covered by glass. A hole in the door was made by the bullet that killed Hyrum.

The body of Joseph Smith lies buried between those of Hyrum and his wife, Emma, on a knoll overlooking the Mississippi at Nauvoo. Behind the knoll the red brick houses of the old town crumble to ruin.

Bette Davis Sails

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Bette Davis (right) and sister, Mrs. Robert Pelgram, as actress sailed from San Pedro, Cal., for Honolulu.

Hollywood, Cal., April 27 [Special].—Soft Hawaiian moonlight and the gentle strumming of ukuleles will be in store for Bette Davis, motion picture actress, for the next four weeks as welcome relief from the hot rays and the din of filmland sound stages.

The academy award winner star embarked for the enchanted island last week. She has several Hollywood film colony members as fellow voyagers during the five day cruise.

During her absence workmen are rushing finishing touches on her new San Fernando valley estate, not far from her studio.

MISSOURI SUES AID OF BOSS PENDERGAST FOR TAX ON BIG BRIBE

Kansas City, Mo., April 27 [Special].—A suit to collect state income taxes amounting to $4,999 was filed today against R. E. O'Malley, former state insurance superintendent who served a prison sentence for evading federal income taxes.

The state charged the tax is due on $62,500 O'Malley received as a bribe to compromise a huge fire insurance rate case. After a rate increase was voided, he approved the distribution of $9,500,000 of impounded premiums on the basis of 80 per cent to the fire insurance companies and 20 per cent to protesting policyholders.

For failing to pay federal taxes on the bribe, he was sent to Leavenworth penitentiary, along with his political mentor, Democratic Boss Tom Pendergast, last May 27 to serve a sentence of a year and a day. Shortly before, Pendergast had been sentenced to 15 months for not paying taxes on the bribe of $315,000 he allegedly received for engineering the insurance deal.

FIRST OF TRIBUNE FLEET DOCK HERE; START UNLOADING

Unloading of 2,020 tons of newsprint from the Outarde, the first of THE TRIBUNE'S fleet of seven pulpwood and newsprint carrying vessels to arrive in Chicago this year from the Tribune paper mill at Thorold, Ont., began yesterday at 4 p. m. The Outarde docked in the Chicago river at 1:30 a. m. yesterday.

Capt. George Ferguson, of the New York News, which docked in the Chicago river at 3:45 a. m., immediately after the Outarde, said the voyage from Thorold was "one of the nicest we've ever had in the spring."

Unloading of the newsprint from the Outarde was expected to require 10 or 12 hours, according to Fred Von Der Horst, warehouse superintendent.

Unloading of the 2,388 tons of newsprint carried in the New York News will begin today. The motorship Chicago Tribune, carrying 3,181 tons, is scheduled to arrive at the dock about midnight, and the motorship Franquelin, with 2,085 tons, is due about tomorrow noon. During the week the three other vessels in The Tribune fleet will arrive. They are the Shelter Bay, the Thorold, and the Heron Bay.

ERECT SAFE HIGHWAYS.

Last year, automobiles killed 709 persons in Chicago and 927 in all of Cook county. After a few years in which some progress seemed to have been made in reducing the number of highway fatalities, the curve again turned upward in 1939. The increase in Chicago ['39 over '38] was almost exactly 2 per cent and in Cook county 2.4 per cent. Thus far this year there has been little improvement over the bad record of 1939. In the first quarter a year ago there were 173 deaths in Chicago; in the first quarter of 1940 there were 171.

In the nation as a whole, there was a very slight increase in the number of automobile deaths in 1939. So far as the states of the middle west are concerned, the record as compiled by the National Safety council, is somewhat mixed. Some improvement was noted in Indiana, Kansas, Minnesota, and Ohio, but it was more than balanced by the increase in fatalities in Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Nebraska, and Wisconsin. The figures for the nine states, subject to minor revision so far as 1939 is concerned, follow:

STATE—	1939.	1938.
Illinois	2,261	2,177
Indiana	1,029	1,099
Iowa	529	486
Kansas	409	455
Michigan	1,510	1,474
Minnesota	565	609
Nebraska	277	224
Ohio	1,903	1,914
Wisconsin	692	675
Total	9,175	9,113

This is an appalling record. Automobiles are taking far more lives in the middle west than are being lost on the western front in Europe. In the certainty that the great majority of the traffic deaths were preventable, this newspaper some years ago included in its Platform for the Middle West the plank, "Erect Safe Highways." Only by building highways which are as nearly accident-proof as engineering skill can make them, will the massacre be halted.

The formula for safe highways is known today as it has been for many years. When pedestrians are prevented from crossing motor roads, no pedestrians will be run over by automobiles. When there is no cross traffic on motor roads, there will be no collisions at intersections. When the opposing traffic lanes are separated, there will be no collisions between oncoming cars. When these three forms of accident have been eliminated, as they easily can be, the deaths in automobile accidents will be reduced to a small fraction of the present toll.

All of this was learned years ago when the railroads were obliged to elevate their tracks thru congested areas. The same plan, applied to the highways of the middle west, will produce equally beneficial results.

Obviously the start should be made where the congestion of population and traffic is greatest and accidents occur with the greatest frequency. That is in the cities. The amount of money available to the cities for road construction, tho large, is limited and it should be spent with a view to buying as much accident prevention as possible. That means, as a rule, the construction of elevated highways.

Theoretically the use of motor subways or depressed highways to eliminate crossings would produce the same result but, in the main, subways and depressions are more costly both to construct and to operate. The elevated highway is, therefore, preferable because more can be accomplished with a given amount of money.

So far as Chicago is concerned, the community is determined to have such a road system. Here we have learned the benefit of uninterrupted motor roads by experience with our outer drives. They are by all odds the safest highways in Chicago, bearing in mind the density of traffic upon them. They offer a striking contrast in this particular to such widened streets as South Park way or Western avenue—notorious man killers, both of them.

Legal difficulties and the selfishness of small-minded local politicians have prevented a start on a superhighway system for Chicago, but the community is aroused and is demanding action. More than 900 deaths last year in Cook county and more than 2,200 in the state call for remedial measures. With the money available from the state and local shares of the gasoline taxes and such federal aid as may be obtained a start can be made, and it should be made this year. If the massacre is to be checked we must erect safe highways.

THE RED CONGRESSMEN TURN NAZI.

Of the five little Red congressmen from Illinois who sought to kill the Dies investigation four also voted the other day against the Walter bill, which will protect citizens against the Nazi practice of government by decree as practiced by the New Deal bureaucracy.

The four were Raymond S. McKeough, Adolph J. Sabath, Frank W. Fries, and Kent E. Keller.

The fifth of our Red congressmen, Arthur W. Mitchell, who believes that WPA workers must be indorsed by their ward committeemen, did not vote. Rotten Borrough Congressman Sabath spoke against the Walter bill.

The little Red congressmen and other communist sympathizers make a loud to-do over civil liberties whenever the Dies committee or other authorities catch Mr. Browder or his lieutenants violating the laws or hospitality of the United States. In voting against the Walter bill they sought to deny all American citizens one of the greatest of civil liberties—the right to appeal to impartial courts for protection against tyrannical acts committed in the name of the government. Such men are the enemies of the free American people.

THE BLOCKADED TAKE THE RISKS.

Since Capt. Mahan began writing on sea power more than half a century ago the decisive influence of navies on history and empires has been well recognized. The naval influence has not been confined to the sea. It has frequently had a decisive effect on the character and outcome of martial endeavors on land.

Whenever naval power has been used for any of the purposes of blockade, either to cut communications of armies, to exert economic pressure by destroying enemy trade, or to place a whole nation in a state of siege, starving its people and denying them the materials of warfare, the power that is inferior at sea has sought to balance the scales by more daring efforts on land. Frequently the risks taken have been disastrous.

In the second Punic war Hannibal was barred by the Roman fleet from direct invasion of Italy. He took the overland route and destroyed Roman armies repeatedly, but his lack of communications denied him the reinforcements and supplies necessary to complete a victory. Lacking the means of complete victory, he finally met defeat at the hands of a Roman army that sea power enabled to attack Carthage directly.

The British blockade forced Napoleon to adopt the continental system as a countermeasure, and his difficulties in enforcing that boycott on Britain brought about his downfall. The fatal Spanish war arose from his invasion of the peninsula to force Portugal to join the boycott. The war with Russia to force the czar to continue adherence to the continental system ended in the disaster of Moscow.

In our civil war the real hopes of the confederates for independence lay either in European intervention or in a political change in the north produced by despair at failure to subdue the rebellion. Either of these hopes demanded a defensive strategy, in view of the north's superiority in men and resources.

Had the south been able to keep its ports free, selling its products to Europe in exchange for munitions, it could have afforded to await intervention or northern despair. But with the northern blockade strangling southern commerce public opinion forced the confederate army to attempt a series of strategically ridiculous invasions of the northern states.

Bragg and Kirby Smith swept up thru Kentucky, frightening the burghers of Cincinnati, but accomplishing no military result. Lee invaded Maryland and had to fight a bloody and useless battle at Antietam to make good his retreat to Virginia. He repeated the mistake in the Gettysburg campaign, which ended with the Army of Northern Virginia stripped of offensive power for the remainder of the war.

Hindenburg was not content to hold off the huge but impotent Russian army in the last world war. The blockade and Germany's want of food forced him to widespread conquests in the east, which failed to yield the food his nation needed and destroyed the reserves which might have made the 1918 offensive in France a success.

The British blockade undoubtedly forced Hitler to the risk of the Norwegian campaign. If he fails he loses a considerable body of troops and a tremendous amount of political prestige. Such a failure will be a new demonstration of the risks that sea power forces on the enemy who lacks the means of opposing it directly.

Editorial of the Day

A ROOSEVELT FOLLY "LIQUIDATED."

[New York Herald Tribune.]

The New Deal has leased the "Tugwelltown" at Hightstown, N. J., to a private corporation for a term of five years and has refused to make known the amount of the lease. The presumption is that if the deal had been a good one the administration would have boasted of it. The secrecy suggests that the amount of the lease is as disastrous, from the point of view of the people of the United States whose money was poured into this crazy project, as have been the other expenditures connected with it.

This project, it will be recalled, was to be a model coöperative factory community in which the workers would divide their time between the factory and the farm. Despite the government's persistent refusal to give out full and detailed information about Hightstown, the statement that it cost in the neighborhood of $4,000,000 has never been denied. On the basis of the number of families in the project the average cost was about $20,000—or as much as would go today into a substantial residence in a fashionable suburb. Its purpose, be it recalled, was to serve as a model housing project.

In order to enable the establishment to keep going and the factory to operate, the government, in addition to renting these model houses to the workers for an average price of $16.50 a month, advanced the sum of $200,000 to the coöperative. This advance was unsecured except by the machinery in the factory. This machinery was sold at auction last autumn, and brought the government a net amount of $1,811. This ended this particular New Deal extravaganza, and the colony ceased to function except as a suburban home for those families that were able and willing to stay on in their $20,000 houses for the magnificent rental of $4 a week. Presumably these people will have to leave, now that the property has been leased.

It is hard to suppress indignation against this social experimentation. It was foredoomed to failure, and when word was first published about it, the reasons why it must fail were fully set forth. But the New Deal was bent on spending millions, so all criticism was ignored. In the meantime, the kind of housing for which government aid was and is so desperately needed—the simplest type of unit which could be set up for the lowest possible cost—was persistently ignored by those who were empowered to use federal funds for housing experiments. At a time when people needed cheap but sure shelter, money was spent on extravagant and elaborate types of houses which were more in consonance with the theories of social uplifters than with the needs of the people.

The least the administration might do, now that the Hightstown experiment is being liquidated, is to make available the exact figures as to its cost, so that future administrations may not be tempted to try similar foolish experiments. Like the Florida ship canal and the Passamaquoddy tide harnessing project, this Hightstown model village stands out as a striking example of the futility of ignorance and idealism wedded to political expediency. The taxpayers' money that might as effectively have been thrown out of the window, if the results of these projects are to be measured in social values.

PEKING, A HAVEN FROM WAR

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEKING, China.—[By Mail].—There is no war, nor any sign of it, here in Peking. Not a shot in Japan's "China incident" invasion was fired within the city.

The lack of a war atmosphere within the city makes Peking the ideal spot for tourists seeking Chinese color, atmosphere, and attractions. Peking has retained virtually all its ancient Chinese architecture, customs, and landmarks. It is the site of China's former rulers. Its name, given to the city in 1421, means "northern capital," but how long before that year the city was in existence no one knows. History refers to the "city" as far back as 2,000 B. C.

Peking is surrounded by an exceptionally well built stone wall about 25 feet high. Its base is some 20 feet thick and the wall tapers up to a three foot parapet at the top. Weapon notches are cut in the outer crest every few feet. Except for the various gates, which have been removed, the wall is intact. It was a powerful defense in the days when invaders swept the northern plains.

Within the outer wall is another barricade which is 10 feet high and two miles in circumference. This surrounds the legation section. Following the Boxer incident in 1900 this section was turned over to foreign nationals.

Peking is composed of four parts, the Outer [Chinese] city, the Inner [Tartar] city, the Imperial city, and the Forbidden city. Probably the two most interesting places are the Temple of Heaven and the Forbidden city. The Temple of Heaven is near the south wall about two miles from the city's center. Carved marble and blue tile altars are inclosed within a circular wall 10 feet high and 200 yards in diameter. Outside the circular wall is a rectangular barrier. It was the belief in ancient days that the earth was round and heaven square. It was within this inclosure that all the sovereign heads of China who resided in Peking have paid homage to heaven, the only recognized superior.

In the opposite, or northern, section of the city one finds the Forbidden city. It is a marvel of architecture in its numerous buildings laid out in regular lines within a surrounding rectangular wall one-half by one mile in dimensions. The structures are finely proportioned with gracefully curving yellow tile roofs. The surrounding wall is broken in spots, but the huge gates are impressive. Main buildings range up to 200 feet in height. Every conceivable carving in marble and ornate wood decoration is there. The place was constructed some 300 years ago as the imperial dwelling of the monarch and the commoners were excluded, therefore it is called the Forbidden city.

Living conditions in Peking are very cheap here at present because of the money exchange rate, altho old time American residents say times are much harder since the war. It is not apparent to a transient visitor. The multitude of Chinese packing the place look well fed and contented.

Of the innumerable outlying sights of North China of interest to tourists the Great Wall holds the spotlight. From Peking the best views are obtained by taking a train west for four hours to Chinglungchiao up in the mountains. A 10 minute walk from this small station provides an excellent panorama of the construction in all its twists and turns going up and down hill and doubling back hither and yon as far as the eye can see. The tactical value of the big wall is obvious, but why the Chinese built so much wall and went around in circles so extensively is not understandable. The wall, however, is one of the engineering feats of history.

From its western extremity at Shanhaiguan inland to the eastern end is 600 miles in a straight line, yet the wall itself is 2,200 miles long. This gives an idea of how it winds around. It varies a great deal in height, from 12 to 25 feet in some places, but its width remains fairly constant. At the ground line it is about 25 feet thick and on top between guide walls is 15 feet wide.

The outer guide wall, the one toward the enemy, extends above the main wall about 3 feet. It is 18 inches thick and the outer surface is flush with the outer surface of the big wall. A small notch every few feet enabled defenders to fire their weapons or sling shots without exposing themselves. The inner guide wall is 2 feet high and 18 inches thick and has no weapon notches. It is said the main wall was made so wide to allow troops to hide while going from one rendezvous to another.

In the actual construction of the wall the outer surface is composed of perfect hand carved granite blocks about 3½ feet by 1½ by 1 foot with a layer of brick next to the inside. The main cover is dirt. The top between guide walls is level and covered with rock slabs. Bivouac towers are erected every 200 or 300 yards. These are simply large rooms built on the top of the wall to house defenders.

The architecture of the wall and towers is quite simple and attractive. Out in front several miles and a mile or so apart are small observation towers. As a whole, the wall is in excellent condition. However, a few sections are falling down. In the Chinglungchiao district fate plays a strange hand. The Japanese are using it in their defense against the Chinese guerrillas, or bandits, as the Japanese call them. Soldiers are everywhere and spotty fighting occurs almost daily. For this reason tourists have suffered. With the exception of one American senator, no visitor has been allowed to go to the wall since the Japanese invasion. The wall itself, of course, is a great sight, but the four hours' Chinese train ride, four hours' wait, and four hours back are not pleasant. On the train was observed some of the brutality frequently accredited to Japanese soldiers. A German woman took the seat reserved for the train guard. When the little soldier returned, he grabbed her coat lapel, yanked her into the aisle, and tossed her bag after her.

The countryside inland from Peking is uninteresting. It is barren and generally flat. The buildings are one story mud or rock huts, mostly grass covered. Towns and villages along the way appear modern. Japanese soldiers are running everything. One feels fortunate in being able to have two Japanese officials as guides, but even they had difficulty in getting thru the outer gates to the wall proper. Incidentally, this railroad running west from Peking is said to be the only road in China completely financed, built, and run by Chinese. That is, run until the war started.

Perhaps the second most interesting sight outside Peking is the summer palace, one hour north by automobile. It is an excellent example of the peak of the grandeur and lavishness reached by the ancient Chinese monarchs. Here the ruling queen spent her summers. It is closed now, but all the furnishings, including jewelry, still are there and may be seen by peeping thru the windows.

Among the buildings themselves is everything from a doll house to a three story theater. The queen's master lounge, located directly opposite the theater stage at a comfortable distance, is replete with all trimmings. The great master chaise longue flanked by big peacock fans seen in many movies is there in reality. An artificial lake several miles in diameter separates the grounds from the city. A covered promenade for exercise in inclement weather is a mile long and 10 feet wide and 10 feet high.

Beautiful paintings depicting most every phase of castle life decorate the entire runway. Immediately behind the main building is a five deck pleasure boat made of stone about 100 feet high and 30 feet in diameter. The buildings have the Chinese curve architecture. For ornateness and grandeur the scene is superb and the palace and grounds are well kept up.

HOARSENESS: LOOK TO THE VOICE BOX.

WHEN one attends a football game or a hockey match and shrieks wildly at every play and player, speech is almost sure to be interfered with—hoarseness coming on a few hours later.

In order to understand what has happened—as well as other causes of changes in the voice—we should recall that the vocal cords are two narrow, elastic, glistening white bands which extend horizontally across the larynx from front to rear. Anchored close together at their forward portions, they spread apart as they extend backward. During natural breathing they form two sides of a space—triangular in shape—which we call the glottis. When a sound is made they vibrate close together thru the force of the expelled air and muscular action.

Currents of air from the lungs—during talking or singing—are sent past these structures which may be likened to a double lipped reed of the oboe type. The tone, of course, is the produced by the rate at which they pulsate. The coloratura soprano, for example—who can reach and hold high C—has trained her machinery to function smoothly and with great rapidity.

But the whole apparatus is subject to disease or injury. Should paralysis ensue only a whisper can be heard because the area is open widely. In such a circumstance the victim is obliged to depend upon movements of the tongue, lips, and jaws for the formation of even partially intelligible rounds.

A well modulated voice is an important social and personal asset and the delicate machinery requires good care. For clear, resonant tones, much depends upon the cavities within the nose [sinuses], as well as the shape of the mouth and throat. There is also considerable variation in carrying power, but this attribute is largely a matter of clear articulation.

Now that our anatomy lesson is over, we may turn our attention to the trouble of the voice box. Hoarseness means some difficulty with the moving parts, and the symptom arises from overstrain [shouting], inflammation of the larynx [a cold], acute swelling [croup], and certain systemic diseases. Any violent or persistent strain may cause tiny hemorrhages to appear on one of the cords. Vocalists often complain that they "husk up" after a song or two and an examination may disclose tiny nodules on the edges of the cords which prevent even vibration and close approximation. Frequently observed in those who attempt to sing above their normal registers, these growths are more common in tenors and sopranos. They are also found among school teachers, public speakers, or those who are obliged to shout loudly to deaf persons all day long.

A more permanent alteration is sometimes present in the larynx of auctioneers, barkers at side shows, or those who are obliged to call out their wares. Here one structure or the other may thicken and many of these victims will be engaged constantly in clearing the throat. They possess, as a rule, a husky voice that lacks the normal bell-like quality.

The one who cannot utter a word—scarcely a whisper—is probably suffering from acute laryngitis. This may come on following a nasal or throat infection. When examined, the "reeds" will appear pinkish to red, covered usually with flecks of mucus. Others who are exposed to dust or irritating fumes or who inhale tobacco smoke incessantly, are likely to develop a type of chronic inflammation which will decrease the ability to maintain a pleasing delivery.

For relief of the acute symptoms an ice collar may be applied to the neck and the patient is cautioned not to try to talk. Inhalations of steam, with the water impregnated with compound tincture of benzoin, is helpful. Smoking is forbidden—at least, for a few days. This is the only safe rule if we expect the delicate parts to regain their normal resilience and the inflammation to subside. With such a program, the difficulty should abate within a week or 10 days. If crowlike "caws" persist and fail to yield to routine treatment we must look for the cause in some constitutional malady against which the plan of attack may need to be far more vigorous.

BLOOD PURIFIED WHILE YOU WAIT.

R. L. writes: I have heard that blood can be taken from a patient, heated just enough to destroy germs, and then reinjected at body temperature. Is this true?

REPLY.

Baron Munchausen is loose again. One could not possibly get ahead of bacteria in this fashion. Furthermore, cooking the blood would destroy it—as well as the bugs. If you try this fanciful procedure, request the orchestra to play the Dead March from Saul.

TOO MUCH PARTY.

W. F. writes: Whenever I go to a party my eyes become crossed after an hour or two. How can this be corrected?

REPLY.

When the symptom appears, make your adieux and hie to your downy couch. Correct glasses may help you. Consult an eye specialist.

TUBERCULOSIS.

Mrs. J. K. writes: We discovered last week that my husband—who has been sick a long time—has tuberculosis. Should our children be X-rayed?

REPLY.

Each should have a tuberculin test, preferably the Mantoux. All who react positively should then be X-rayed. Attempts should be made also to build up general resistance by regular eating and sleeping habits, well balanced diet, cod liver oil, etc.

TODAY IN HISTORY

April 28, 1789

William Bligh, commanding the British ship Bounty, set adrift in an open boat with 18 companions by a mutinous crew who had rebelled against Bligh's severe disciplinary measures. Bligh had accompanied Capt. Cook on his second expedition. In 1787 he was sent to the Pacific in the Bounty to collect breadfruit for introduction to the West Indies. After a spectacular voyage of 4,000 miles in the open boat Bligh and his followers landed at Timor in the East Indies. Bligh later became governor of New South Wales, and there his soldiers mutinied against him, and he was held in prison for two years.

THE CAPTORS OF MAJ. ANDRE.

River Forest, Ill., April 22.—Your correspondent, T. I. Galloway, bemoans the fact that the "nameless" colonial soldiers who captured Maj. André have been sadly neglected by historians, poets, and patriotic story writers. Be that as it may, the present writer thinks THE TRIBUNE story of the conspiracy of Arnold was a darb, but was a little disappointed because the writer neglected some interesting details. Maj. André's captors were Paulding, Van Wert, and Williams. They received the thanks of congress and were granted life pensions. It was with a heavy heart that Washington consented to the execution of André, who was a fine soldier and a sterling character.
H. H. TANNEY.

Mount Pleasant, Ia., April 22.—I desire to inform your correspondent, Mr. Galloway, that some states at least have honored the three patriots who captured Maj. André and turned him over to the military authorities. The great state of Ohio has honored these three persons by naming three counties, Williams, Paulding, and Van Wert, and also the cities of Paulding and Van Wert in their honor.
QUINN R. HUFFMAN.

THE FAMILY OVERHEAD.

Chicago, April 21.—Like Mrs. D., I, too, wonder about the people upstairs. The bed is moved three times each evening. Shoes are thrown to the floor, and as she says, you wonder what stops feet from coming thru the ceiling. No one ever "sneaks in," any more. They bang the street door, tear up the stairs, and slam their own door at all hours day or night.

Many of my friends complain of the same treatment and they are all afraid to say anything for fear the racket will be worse. I haven't figured it all out yet myself, but it is probably the present American spirit which "pays for the place and can do as we please. What do we care about the guys downstairs."

Perhaps you can induce an inhabitant of the third floor to tell why they go out of their way to make the noise they do. I would be interested to know.

MR. DEWEY'S TRIPS.

Aberdeen, S. D., April 22.—The map you printed April 21 showing how Dewey has spanned the nation does not include his trip from Chicago to Butte, Spokane, and Portland. He passed thru here on Feb. 8.

Mr. Dewey spoke briefly from the rear platform of the Milwaukee Road's Olympian while it was at Aberdeen. I overheard an elderly woman in the crowd express surprise because he wasn't wearing his admiral's uniform.

His trip on the Olympian took him thru Milwaukee to Minneapolis, then thru western Minnesota, northern South Dakota, then the entire distance across central Montana.

LINCOLN'S VOICE.

Chicago, April 23.—I listened last evening to a rendition of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" by Raymond Massey and I noticed he had a deep bass voice and that started me to thinking. what kind of a voice did Abe Lincoln have?

I saw his remains lie in state here in our courthouse, but I never heard him speak and I don't think I have ever heard any one tell, or I have seen it in print, and I am quite anxious to know.
LINCOLN ABRAHAM HAGERTY.

THE WAR IN THE MOVIES.

Chicago, April 20.—I've just come from another pro-British movie and would like to know why the picture moguls are so partial to Britain. During the late world war the movies so worked up the anti-Prussian feeling that one famous actor who played the Prussian officer couldn't walk on the streets of Hollywood. Will the same thing happen again?
W. J. L.

IMPREGNABLE.

Chicago, April 19.—Doughboy wants your editor to render a great service by proving how impregnable the United States is. It seems to me that recently a Swedish ex-navy officer wrote that the Scandinavian countries were impregnable and that no nation would be dumb enough to invade them. Well, what happened? Why do we continue to send war materials to belligerent countries if we don't want them to come back to us? The dictators surely have the green light and are going ahead. If we hadn't sent war materials to Russia, Finland would have had a good chance to win. I think if more of our people here, especially statesmen, had folks over there they would move heaven and earth to try to stop the advance of the aggressor. Perhaps if we here ever felt the impact of a bomb it would shake our mental attitude into a different line of thinking. If we want peace on earth we must stop the aggressor.

SCHOOL BOARD ELECTIONS.

Villa Park, Ill., April 23.—In your column this morning appears a piece under the caption, "School Board Elections," signed by Curious and dated this village, April 18.

I cannot lay claim to being a student of Illinois law, but I can and do offer myself as proof that 100 per cent democracy governs school board elections in Villa Park.

If Curious will spend a few minutes to satisfy his or her admitted curiosity, it will be found that at the last election, a member was elected without the benefit of a printed cross on the sample ballots of either faction.

FROM CHIEF FREEMAN.

Bangor, Me., April 21.—I have received my first delivery of THE TRIBUNE since taking over the Bangor, Me., police department. How good it seems to get the news from home. Altho everybody here is kind and considerate, I miss the friendly smiles and firm handclasp of the Chicago and Evanston friends that I have known so many years.

I sometimes wonder if the Chicagoan and suburbanite realize what a wonderful community they reside in. I miss all of it, and wish every person in Chicago, my home city, and in Evanston, my adopted city, all the good luck on earth.
WILLIAM O. FREEMAN,
Chief of Police.

RISING TAXES.

Chicago, April 21.—Already very high, my real estate taxes have been increased greatly over those of last year and the years preceding, to my immeasurable distress. Can some one tell me why this approximately 15 per cent increase in real estate taxes and how it was accomplished?
CASTINE A. DAVIS.

VOTE RIGHT IN NOVEMBER.

Kewanee, Ill., April 23.—The decision just handed down by the United States Supreme court upholds a Virginia statute to further control insurance. What can we do to protect our savings in the form of valuable insurance policies from New Deal crack-pots?

MAKING OF WILL.

Chicago, April 19 [Legal Friend of the People].—Today my answer appeared in THE TRIBUNE. I have taken it steady for 45 years, but my answer was not plain and I guess I did not make it plain to you or I know it would have been plain to me. I expect to employ a lawyer when I make a will and tie things up as tight as I can, but I am positive my son will try to get more than I want or expect him to have and I want you to make it plain to me.

1. How shall I word my will to keep him from coming back after I am dead to try to get all I have because he has lived with me in my home for the last six years and paid most all the house bills, including taxes, etc.? I am a widow of two years, but I spent most all I had to educate him and now he wants to marry and leave me alone. While he is single I will not make a will, but when he marries I intend to leave him only one-third as he is to marry a woman not his equal, one I would not want to have anything of mine either real estate or personal.

2. A widow of two years wants to know exactly how she can word a will so her only son will receive one-third of her estate and her two sisters the other two-thirds, or one-third each for each sister, as it is a positive fact this only son will try to beat his two aunts out of what I will leave them and I want to tie it up so tight he cannot start litigation after I am dead to try to break my will.
A. M.

1. This is beyond the scope of our law department service. We do not remember the facts as to your previous letters.

2. While the statute does not require the employment of an attorney, we consider such employment advisable. If you try to economize by dispensing with expert help, you are likely to make mistakes which will cost much more than an attorney would have charged to see that the job was done right in the first place. In addition, an attorney might make valuable suggestions as to the wisdom of your testamentary plan.

If, despite the above, you wish to try to handle the matter for yourself, you should obtain a printed form from a stationer and see that it is executed in strict accordance with the attestation clause which precedes the space for signature of witnesses. The services of a notary are not necessary, and it is not safe to assume that a notary will be a competent adviser.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SALE OF REAL ESTATE.

Chicago, April 19 [Legal Friend of the People].—About two years ago we sold a portion of our lot in Michigan to Mrs. E. S. We gave her a quitclaim deed to this parcel. She died about a year ago, and we got in touch with the heirs' lawyer and asked to buy this parcel back. The lawyer wrote and said he would just return the original quitclaim deed, which had never been recorded, to us. Is this satisfactory or must we get a new quitclaim deed signed by all the heirs?
W. B.

The failure to record the old quitclaim would mean that you would be in a position to convey to a new purchaser who could take a good title in reliance on the fact that the record title appears to be in you. It would, however, be possible for the heirs to set up a claim that the old deed validly conveyed the title, and hence it would seem desirable for you to have the heirs bound in some way.

It is nearly always advisable for a purchaser of real estate to employ an attorney thruout, and we advise you to employ one now. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

IF ONLY I COULD GET A DECENT AGENT TO SELL IT FOR ME!

NLRB AID GIVES SLANG THE FULL DIGNITY OF LAW

'Baloney' and 'Nuts' Are His Favorite Rulings.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 27.—A young review attorney for the National Labor Relations board, acting in a semi-judicial capacity in a labor dispute case, repeatedly employed the words "nuts" and "baloney" in his written comments upon testimony favoring the company involved in the controversy, the Smith committee investigating the labor board learned today.

Herbert Fuchs, the young attorney called as a witness, informed the committee that he meant the evidence was immaterial. The review section of the board, of which Fuchs is a member, has been attacked by the committee because its 105 employés, averaging less than 30 years in age, have displayed a complete lack of qualifications "for competent review of legal problems arising from labor relations under the Wagner act."

Defends Unusual Procedure.

Fuchs testified that he did not believe the interests of employers were prejudiced when the board went outside the official record to dig up evidence to reopen a case without giving the employer notice.

This statement caused Representative Charles A. Halleck [R., Ind.], a member of the committee, to declare that the testimony showed the necessity for some distinction between the judicial and prosecuting functions of the labor board. Such a separation of the board's powers is proposed in amendments to the act to be taken up shortly by the house.

Halleck noted that cases could be stretched out interminably by this reopening process, causing great injury to employers in cases where back pay orders were involved. The committee already has reported that back pay orders in some cases have been so huge as to contribute to the ruin of a company.

Write Actual Decisions.

Review attorneys are charged with analyzing the evidence given before trial examiners and making oral recommendations to the board. The board makes its decisions mainly upon the views expressed by the review lawyers and the latter actually write the final rulings.

Fuchs was shown the notes he had made in reviewing the transcript of a hearing in the Newport News [Va.] shipbuilding and drydock case in which the employer was charged with dominating an independent union.

The notation "baloney" appeared opposite the testimony of a witness who said he knew of no activity on the part of the management to influence the employés in the selection of their representatives. In other portions of the transcript the notation "nuts" or "baloney" appeared frequently whenever similar testimony, favorable to the employer, appeared.

Asked to Define "Baloney."

"Perhaps we should have a definition of baloney to know what is being alluded to," remarked Representative Harry N. Routzohn [R., O.].

"What I meant was that it had no materiality or bearing," said Fuchs, flushing. "You could get a lot of persons to testify that they hadn't seen one person kill another."

In the case referred to the board found the company guilty of violating the Wagner act by setting up and controling a company union.

Another case supervised by Fuchs involved the Dunbar Glass corporation of West Virginia. The files of the labor board revealed that the board was doubtful of the validity of the charge against this company, but went ahead with its prosecution because of the insistence of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, controled by John L. Lewis.

Memo Reveals C. I. O. Demands.

A memo to the board from Philip G. Phillips, regional director, was placed in the record. It read:

"I recommend that a complaint be issued in the above entitled matter [Dunbar Glass corporation]. While the case is a debatable one on its facts, it has become a cause célèbre and the C. I. O. is extremely anxious that it be tried."

The company eventually was found guilty of unfair labor practices. The findings, according to the board's files, was made solely upon the charge that the company had resisted an A. F. of L. union in the days of the NRA. Altho the NRA exonerated the company, the labor board used the charge to justify its findings.

Rep. Harry N. Routzohn [R., Ohio] brought out that Fuchs gets an annual salary of $4,200 from the board and that his wife is employed by the bureau of labor statistics at $3,400 a year.

Deanna's Aid to Wed

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Betty Harrison (above), stand-in for Deanna Durbin, film star, obtains license to wed in Los Angeles.

Hollywood, Cal., April 27 [Special].—Because pressure of her fiancé's business was too heavy to allow him to accompany her to the Los Angeles county marriage license bureau, Betty Harrison, 20 year old stand-in for screen juvenile Deanna Durbin, appeared alone at the hall of justice last week to obtain an application to wed Frederick Reinecke Jr., 22, aviation engineer.

License clerks allowed the actress to make application so that the license could be issued in time for the wedding set for May 4 at the St. Thomas Episcopal church in Hollywood. The application will become valid when Reinecke signs it. The couple met, Miss Harrison explained, on a "blind date" last June.

WOMAN TURNS UP NOSE AT RELIEF'S 'HUSSY' PERFUME

Demands Investigation of Social Workers.

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 27 [Special].—An investigation was in progress today to determine whether WPA social service workers in Oklahoma actually are "a bunch of cigaret smoking glamor girls reeking with hussy perfume."

A charge that many of the state's 172 social service employés are "ladies of leisure whose husbands are holding responsible positions in private industry" was made by Mrs. I. L. Huff, chairman of the Oklahoma Democratic Women's council.

Investigates in Disguise.

Mrs. Huff said she disguised as a "down and outer," used the name of Rosie Rovver, and applied for assistance here and at Tulsa. She said she was treated rudely "by these plush horses of charity who blew smoke in my face and refused to help me."

Mrs. Huff, former superintendent of the state orphanage at Helena, Okla., demanded that Oklahoma congressmen purge the WPA social service staff of "these blue-blooded sorority sisters who wear fur coats, drive fancy automobiles, and flaunt their authority before the needy."

Three members of Oklahoma's congressional delegation assured Mrs. Huff that an investigation of her charges is under way.

300 Needy Women.

"I know personally of 300 unemployed qualified women who need these jobs to support families," said Mrs. Huff. "But they don't have a chance now.

"I dressed in old clothes, told them I was jobless, and that my son-in-law couldn't support me because he was earning only $50 a month. Between gulping down soft drinks and puffing cigarets they told me to go live with him anyway.

"One of these glamor girls is the wife of a prominent physician. Their daughter is away at finishing school this year. Another is the wife of a banker."

Ron Stephens, state WPA administrator, said he considered Mrs. Huff's charges inspired by politics. He said he was not personally interested in whether social service workers were married.

"We hire them on their qualifications solely," he said. "They have to work 10 to 14 hours a day. I am not going to fire anybody. As for cigaret smoking, they can puff all they want to when they are not on the job."

Mrs. Huff said that Stephens' explanation was inadequate and that she was certain "our congressional delegation will find that I was right and chisel these leeches off the public pay roll."

Recalls Lost Town

Ira Hacker, who recalls "lost village" of Sharp's Town in Indiana and map showing where community was located.

Bloomington, Ind., April 27 [Special].—A "little town that isn't there" once flourished 65 years ago in the Monroe-Morgan state forest, midway between Bloomington and Martinsville on Indiana highway No. 37. Known as Sharp's Town, it has become legend as a "lost village."

Ira Hacker, 71 years old, a retired farmer of Jordan, a little Morgan county community northeast of the forest, recalls Sharp's Town as a thriving village with a hotel, a general store, a tannery, a grist mill, and a saw mill. No trace of it now remains, however.

"It got its name from a man named J. K. Sharp of Indianapolis who bought 1,200 acres and built the tannery and other industries," Mr. Hacker says. "My father sold him tanning bark. It was a real, live place, sort of like a big plantation and things hummed there for many years. But Sharp lost the property and it went into a decline."

Boys Open Switch Under Freight Train; Delay Flyer

Grand Junction, Colo., April 27 (AP).—Two boys, each 6 years old, threw a switch under a moving freight train last night, causing $1,000 damage and delaying for five hours the crack Denver and Rio Grande Western train, The Flying Ute. Four freight cars were derailed and a hundred yards of track torn up.

OVATION GREETS DIES AT PARLEY OF METHODISTS

Urges Old Time Religion as Curb to Reds.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Atlantic City, N. J., April 27.—An ovation of welcome drowned out mild opposition today in the greeting accorded Representative Martin Dies [D., Tex.], investigator of un-American activities, upon his appearance at the general conference of the Methodist church.

Herman Will Jr.

An enthusiastic audience cheered Dies' speech — a plea for a revival of good old-time religion, which he said is the only thing that can plug the flow of destructive foreign propaganda in this country.

A predicted demonstration against the Texan failed to materialize. It had been said opposition to his appearance would come from members of the National Council of Methodist Youth. The council's president, Herman Will Jr. of the Irving Park Methodist church in Chicago, was present, but no more than a mimeographed protest against Dies appeared.

Question Dies' Fitness.

This protest said Methodist youth does not desire to protect "fifth columns" and "Trojan horses" of those who set forth political propaganda of foreign origin within this country, but challenged Dies' fitness as a leader of investigations into such activities. In the morning session of the conference Dr. Paul Neff Garber of Duke university at Durham, N. C., said his committee on publication would not adjourn its session for the Dies meeting.

The throng that assembled for the Dies meeting frequently interrupted the speaker with loud applause.

"The greatest contribution we Americans can make toward the peace of the world is to stay on our own shores and strengthen our American democracy," Dies declared. "We have enough to do at home."

Recalls Work of Pioneers.

Dies scoffed at the view that social security, or any other bread and butter program dealing only with material things, is the best means of avoiding Nazi or communist dangers in this country. He pointed to the pioneers who founded the country and declared they faced the wilderness with no thought of either personal or social security, adding that the well-to-do have been mainstays of communism in America.

The Texas congressman made it clear that without Christianity the American system will fall before attacks of those who, following ancient theories, would raise the state to the level of a god. Neither government nor politicians, he said, can stem the tide of materialism flowing from Nazi bunds or the communist party. Dies outlined how insignificant Nazi minorities in Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, and Norway traitorously sold out their countries.

Blast of Leaking Gasoline Kills Mother; Baby Unhurt

Manchester, Ia., April 27 (AP).—Mrs. Bert Ammeter, 31 years old, mother of five children, was burned to death last night in an explosion of gasoline that tore out one side of the family's farmhouse near here. A baby asleep in the house was not injured. The blast occurred when Mrs. Ammeter entered the basement with a lighted lantern. Gasoline for the kitchen stove, stored in an outdoor tank and piped into the kitchen, is believed to have leaked into the basement.

U. OF I. CAMPUS GETS SET FOR 2 CONVENTIONS

Urbana, Ill., April 27 [Special].—Plans are being developed for mock political conventions to be held on the University of Illinois campus May 14 and 16. One convention will select candidates for the Republican party, the other for the Democratic party. Students will comprise the delegations from various states. About 1,000 delegates will attend each convention.

As in regular conventions, the delegates will sit in state groups. After each convention has been called to order, a permanent chairman elected, and a platform adopted, the delegates will get down to the business of nominating the candidates for president and vice president of the United States.

The delegates will be called to order by a temporary chairman appointed by the committee in charge of the convention, who will deliver the keynote address. Following the keynote and roll call, a permanent chairman will be selected. After the election of permanent officers, the platform committee will report and the adoption of the party platform will be the order of business. Then the nominations for president and vice president. Each convention will last three hours.

FARLEY INSPIRED SPECULATION HIT BY PHILATELISTS

Stamp Dealers Deplore Influence on Hobby.

(This is the third of a series of articles on United States stamp issues under the administration of Postmaster General Farley.)

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

More postage stamp dealers in Chicago and New York City yesterday added their complaints to those of other philatelists against the wholesale issuing of new commemorative stamp varieties by Postmaster General James A. Farley.

The dealers declared that the necessity of stocking these stamps is exhausting their funds and leaving them with little hope of future profit and has brought the psychology of speculation into what should be the pleasurable hobby of collecting.

122 New Stamps Issued.

In the eight years of the New Deal Farley has put out 122 varieties of commemoratives, including 15 scheduled for the next few months. This is 15 more than were printed in the preceding 40 year period. Collectors assert they are being victimized by Farley's commercialism and some, in disgust, either have abandoned their hobby entirely or stopped saving United States issues and turned to foreign stamps.

[The newest of the commemoratives is the 10 cent stamp honoring Jane Addams, the late founder of Hull house. This stamp was placed on sale Friday.]

The credo for the dealer in relation to the collector is given as follows in the current issue of the C. P. S. News, official organ of the Chicago Philatelic society:

"It is no good to make a new collector if he doesn't stick. Tell him the truth; that stamp collecting is fun, is relaxation, is good habit forming, is educational, and leads to enjoyable friendships and acquaintances. But tell him, too, that it is not financial wizardry; that it is no substitute for the savings bank and the endowment policy."

Hits Commercial Attitude.

Elmer Stuart, 58 West Wasnington street, a dealer who is a past president of the Chicago Philatelic society, said that Farley persists in a commercial attiture toward collectors.

"There is an average of 50,000,000 stamps to each printing of a commemorative," Stuart said, "which is enough to take care of all collectors fcr more than 50 years. Much of my cash is tied up because I have to keep supplies of the new issues on hand.

"Too many speculators came into the market in recent years—people who had the idea they could buy quantities of new issues and turn them over at a big profit in six months, in the manner that some people deal in the stock market. But the speculators have had their fingers burned; they not only had to sell their stamps, but had to discount the face value to get rid of them. That drove down the market."

Finds Buying Power Cut.

Norman Picht of the De Soto Stamp and Coin company, 82 West Washington street, said he finds collectors haven't the buying power to assimilate the new issues.

"Farley created a speculative fever in stamps," Picht charged. "The speculators learned their lesson. But the collectors are still suffering. They want to keep up with the commemoratives, but how can they when the New Deal has cut down their buying power?"

Eugene Costales, another dealer, at 99 Nassau street, New York City, deplored the bad effect speculation has had on the collecting pastime.

"The new issues have brought an unfortunate element into philately," he said. "They have brought accumulators instead of collectors."

Some Expect Later Benefits.

Some dealers asserted, however, that the commemoratives have brought forth a new crop of collectors who will ultimately benefit the market.

"I hope that the number of new issues will be reduced," said J. M. Bartels, of 17 John street, New York City, "but Farley's influence in bringing philately to the attention of the general public may have a good effect in the future."

The philatelic agency in Washington—a branch of the postoffice department which sells stamps directly to collectors and dealers—is blamed by other dealers, particularly small ones, for hurting their business.

And, they point out, stamp collecting in its entirety cannot prosper without dealers. For it is only thru dealers that the average collector can get older and foreign varieties. National and local stamp periodicals and the publications of philatelic clubs are kept going by the dealers' advertising.

INJURED IN FALL; DIES.

Joseph Fortier, 79 years old, 13700 Indiana avenue, Riverdale, died in the County hospital Friday night of pneumonia that developed after he was injured in a fall.

[ADVERTISMENT]

If Your Ankles Swell You Can't Feel Well

Do your ankles swell, or are you tired and worn out a lot of the time with dark circles under your eyes? If so, the cause may be functional rather than organic or systemic Kidney trouble. The Kidneys work night and day cleaning and filtering excess acids, poisons and wastes from your blood. Because they never get a real rest it's easy to see that as you grow older the Kidneys may get tired functionally and slow down. Then excess acids and wastes may accumulate and poison your system. So if your ankles swell or you have to get up nights or suffer burning, scanty or frequent passages, backache or nervousness, due to non-organic or non-systemic Kidney or Bladder troubles, you'll make no mistake in trying the prescription called Cystex. Because it has been so successful in so high a percentage of such cases, Cystex is sold under a positive guarantee of money back on return of empty package unless completely satisfactory to you. Cystex now costs only 35c at druggists and the guarantee protects you.

A Real Egg Layer

Jane, a cassowary in the collection of Frank Buck in the Greater Olympia circus, laid an egg yesterday. Jane is a native of New Guinea.

Honey Harre, an acrobat in the circus, compared the size of Jane's egg with a hen egg.

Jane, the New Guinea giant cassowary which is holding forth with the Greater Olympic circus in the Chicago Stadium, looked at the calendar yesterday and laid one of the six eggs she produces each year. Frank Buck, the animal man, whipped up an omelet with the egg—which is equal to a dozen hen's eggs. Several circus performers tasted the dish and refused to comment on it. Jane lays her six eggs during April and May. A cassowary is related to an emu and an emu is related to an ostrich, and that gives you some idea what Jane looks like.

MASTER SUBMITS FINAL REPORT IN MILK BOTTLE SUIT

Master in Chancery Jacob I. Grossman submitted his final report yesterday in the suit of the Fieldcrest Dairies, Inc., seeking to force the city to permit sale of milk in paper containers. The report was given to Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward. Attorneys will be permitted 10 days in which to file motions for hearings on any objections, after which time Judge Woodward will be asked to set a hearing date.

The report was little changed from the form in which Grossman presented it to the dairy and the city council recently. Grossman held that the matter is properly one for legislative rather than judicial action. He recommended denying the plea for an injunction to prevent enforcement of the ordinance prohibiting paper containers.

PURSE SNATCHER ROBS WOMAN.

A young man stepped up to Mrs. William E. Roberts, 54 West Chicago avenue, Oak Park, in front of 3638 South Wolcott avenue last night, grabbed her purse containing $5, some keys and papers, and fled.

MILKMEN CALL MASSMEETING IN WAGE CRISIS

Union Drivers and Dealers Remain Deadlocked.

The entire membership of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union has been notified to attend a special meeting Tuesday night to discuss and act on proposals for a new wage and commission schedule. This meeting will be held at 8 p. m. in Carmen's hall at Ashland boulevard and Van Buren street.

The present contract of the union with Chicago milk dealers expires Tuesday, and the dealers and union leaders are widely separated on what sort of agreement should succeed it.

Dealers Seek Wage Cut.

The dealers, who have chosen Attorney Ernest S. Ballard to represent them as sole negotiator, propose a drastic cut in wages, which they maintain is necessary if they are to hold their home delivery business and maintain employment for the present 4,000 or more drivers.

It is the union contention that wage scales should be held at about the present levels. Union leaders say the solution is to have the dealers favor home delivery and cut the present differential between home delivery and store prices [delivered milk is 13 cents a quart; the store price is 8½ cents].

Union Chief Tells Stand.

"We believe the average wage and commission earnings of a driver under the dealers' proposal would be only $30 to $35 a week," said Henry Weber, the union president. "The present base scale, without commissions, is $48. The threat of such a drastic reduction, made arbitrarily, makes it advisable to summon our whole membership together to decide on a course of action."

The union has refused to meet Ballard as sole negotiator for the employers, arguing that its members want to deal with the distributors personally. The employers have insisted they have the right to decide who shall represent them.

PAYSOFF TINKOFF SUES GOLF PRO; DEMANDS $75,000

Paysoff Tinkoff, disbarred attorney, filed suit yesterday in Superior court against Jock Hutchison, golf professional; Hutchison's wife, Marie, and 11 other persons asking $75,000, charging that they conspired to deprive him of personal property while Tinkoff served an 18 month term in Leavenworth penitentiary for helping a client evade nearly $1,000,000 in income taxes.

Tinkoff, in the suit, asserts that Hutchison sold his law library and office equipment at public auction and realized only $500, altho the property was worth $75,000. Hutchison held a mortgage on the property, the suit says, as security for a $5,000 loan made to Tinkoff in 1933.

Tinkoff, who was sentenced in 1934, asks that the sale be vacated, his books returned, and $75,000 damages awarded him.

SCIENCE URGED TO KEEP TORCH LIT IN AMERICA

Carnegie Report Takes Up War Problems.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

War and its shadows and reduced income from endowments have brought new problems to American research scientists.

From discoveries of the rotation of our galaxy to the variations in offspring of the fruit fly; from the synthesis of food in the great chain of plant life to the release of energy which might transform the industrial world; from earth's origin to man's development, science wings its way, pointing to ever widening horizons, the conquest of environment, disease, even social problems.

And now comes war and darkness over much of the European scientific world, a war in which science has produced the weapons. In this country there is financial restriction, curtailment of activities in many fields, instead of the grand advance that science might make.

The Quandary of Scientists.

What are scientific men to do about this situation? How should American scientists in particular regard the mass suicide of war, whole populations rushing to enslave themselves, the threatened destruction of the ideals of human dignity and freedom of thought under which science functions?

This broad quandary, which touches thoughtful men everywhere, is discussed with frankness in the recent annual report of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, a $30,000,000 research institution which reaches into nearly every field of science.

The conclusion is that it is the duty of this American institution to aid in keeping the torch of pure science alight, a duty made greater by the present stress.

Each Man Must Answer.

Dr. Vannevar Bush, president of the institution, in discussing this situation, says that each scientific man must answer for himself the question of how he should employ his knowledge in this emergency. Science has produced the air bombers, he says, and in time can produce a defense against the weapon. The laboratories of the institution are available for national defense and the institution is ready to aid in the protection of civilian populations from bomb attacks.

"Yet we should not become stampeded," he says. "All the long struggle of a harsh revolution, the pitting of species against environment, has produced a being whose primary distinction is conscious cerebration, and whose crowning attribute is his intellectual curiosity concerning his complex environment and a thirst for knowledge transcending the mere struggle for existence.

"If there is no abiding value in a Beethoven symphony, or a theory of the cosmos, or the tracing of an ancient culture, then the Carnegie Institution of Washington has scant reason for existence. If it is really good that man should look at the stars and should contemplate his great destiny, then it is imperative that in those regions which enjoy the blessings of peace the search for the eternal verities should continue."

Experts Wide Influence.

While the Carnegie institution has had to meet a reduction of $300,000 a year from its endowment income and has curtailed several activities, it still exerts a wide influence in scientific research. Its activities extend from California to the Atlantic. It builds science toward the point where a "man of stature" may think thru to new heights, and it helps to find that man.

Experts of the institution are working on the new 200 inch telescope at Mount Wilson observatory, thru which men will see farther into the universe than ever before and find new data on the construction and behavior of the stars.

At its Cold Springs Harbor laboratory and at other places the institution presses research into the complex phenomena of photosynthesis.

"It may be, after many years," says Dr. Bush, "that man will learn in detail the mechanism by which a plant thus builds food and structure from air and soil and water, by the aid of sunlight. We may even be able to duplicate that process; we may some day carry on the involved chemical transformations on raw materials exposed in trays to the sun of the desert; and this may in the next generation profoundly influence the dependence of the race upon its environment.

"Yet we are impelled in this research of ours by much more fundamental and deep incentives. The photochemical mechanism which produces plant life is one of the most basic of the processes that have made possible the complex evolution of life on this planet.

Tapping Atoms for Energy.

"We are a product of that evolution, and we have an underlying curiosity. It is not an idle curiosity, unless indeed the most stirring philosophies that have moved the mind of man are all idle. Far from being futile, it is the attribute which gives man such true dignity as he succeeds in preserving in the midst of the buffeting of his hazardous existence."

Mr. Bush gave the latest report on the prospect of tapping the energy in the nucleus of an atom, a matter which has given physicists and near physicists many headaches and columns of speculation. A thimbleful of such power, it is said, would run the Queen Mary across the ocean.

The institution's department of terrestrial magnetism held a conference on this subject last spring and has followed the question ever since.

"Out of the conference," Dr. Bush reports, "came, startlingly, an explanation of certain recent experiments Berlin, and the ideas evolved at conference were promptly checked experiment in several places.

Breaking Up of Atom.

"In the new experiments for the first time man had observed in detail the artificial breaking up of a massive atom into two pieces of comparable size; previous disintegrations had merely succeeded in knocking off small components. Moreover, energy was released in the process [200 million electron volts]. Discussion followed in the literature as to whether the energy thus released by the fissure of uranium might be made available for useful purposes, or misused for destructive purposes.

"Theoretically possible, such a result has now been shown by experiment to be exceedingly improbable in practice. A wholly desirable result is immediate, namely, an extension of our knowledge of the atom."

Genetics, cosmic ray advances, adding another supposed unit to the building blocks of the universe, research in nutrition and metobolism, and the recent discovery in Java of the jaw and other fragments of Pithecanthropus, the earliest man, form other parts of this report.

Gets Hero Medal

Mrs. Yolanda Fabbri, 24 year old Chicago housewife, who won Carnegie medal for saving two persons from drowning in lake.

Mrs. Yolanda Fabbri, 24 year old housewife and mother of two sons, is going to do plenty of swimming this year, she said yesterday, but she does not expect life at the beach to be as exciting as it was last July 2.

On that day Mrs. Fabbri plunged into the lake at Delaware place and saved the lives of Edward A. Dressden, 167 Hill street, and his daughter, Patricia, 2. For that act of heroism Mrs. Fabbri has just been awarded a bronze medal by the Carnegie hero fund commission of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Mrs. Fabbri lives at 2219 Harrison street. Yesterday as the news of the medal award spread she was visited by scores of neighbors eager to offer their congratulations.

Nez Perce 'Bear Woman,' Believed Aged 120, Dies

Lewiston, Idaho, April 26 (AP).—Himekeiah-Hatuai, the "Bear Woman" of the Nez Perce Indians, whom members of the tribe insisted was 120 years old, is dead. Even before her death, she was a legend. Indian mothers told their children Himekeiah-Hatuai came to Idaho thru the Lolo pass from Montana astride a bear. Tribesmen do not know her birthplace, but she often spoke of helping the Rev. Henry Harmon Spaulding, first missionary to the Nez Perces, build the first sawmill in the Idaho country. That was in the 1830's.

FORD VIEWS NEXT DECADE AS BEST IN WORLD HISTORY

Raps War Makers; Feels People Waking Up.

Detroit, Mich., April 27 (AP).—Henry Ford, one of the world's most ardent advocates of peace and plenty, today predicted that the next decade will bring more progress—socially, economically, and industrially—than many past generations. He said it will bring a wider understanding of the avarice and greed for power on the part of a few individuals that precipitates nations into war.

"We are coming upon a better civilization, based on a broader realization of the benefits of education, inventive genius and the development of a greater common fellowship," Ford said in an interview.

Six months ago the 76 year old industrialist asserted there was something "phony" about the war on Europe's western front. Today he renewed the charge.

Finds People Oppose War.

"It possesses an artificiality," he said, "because in none of the nations involved do any of the people who work—or who want to work for their livelihood—really want any part of it.

"It is a war of a few individuals, lustful for profit and power, who wander about the world seeking to control it and its wealth."

Ford referred to his famous peace ship of 1915, an undertaking which he said cost him about $400,000, but gave him a "million dollars' worth of experience."

"I have been asked," he went on, "why I left the expedition as early as I did. I left it because I found out what I wanted to know—that a small group of individuals was promoting the world war.

Blames Munitions Maker.

"It is the same story today; the same kind of a group is trying to engulf the world in another war. It is a group that knows and wants no use for its money excepting the manufacture and sale of munitions."

Ford added, however, that nothing that has happened in this generation will do as much good for the peoples of the world as what is going on in the eastern and western hemispheres.

"It will educate them to the futility of war, and to a better realization of how wars are made and how the world's peoples are duped into them," he went on. "Education, of course, is the answer to all problems. "Lying ahead is a better civilization, an easier and longer life, more time for education, more time to think and more time to enjoy life's luxuries."

A. M. Eggman, Republican Leader, Dies in E. St. Louis

East St. Louis, Ill., April 27 [Special].—August M. Eggman, 60 years old, East St. Louis real estate man and Republican party leader, died today in Barnes hospital, St. Louis, following an operation. Eggman was a Spanish-American war veteran having quit high school in 1898 to enlist in the cavalry. He returned after the war to graduate as valedictorian of his class. Eggman was a precinct committeeman for 24 years and treasurer of a school district for 20 years. He leaves his widow, two children, and five brothers. Funeral services will be held here Monday.

Boy, 5, Slips; Drowned in Three Feet of Water

Fairfield, Ill., April 27 (AP).—Playing with two companions beside a pool here today, 5 year old Robert Eugene Hodges fell in and was drowned. The water was only three feet deep.

OBITUARIES

Israel Ginzburg.

Services for Israel Ginzburg, an officer in the business department of the Daily Jewish Courier, will be held at 11 a. m. today in the chapel at 4225 Roosevelt road, with burial in Waldheim cemetery. John T. Bredow, Retired Davenport Banker, Dies

Davenport, Ia., April 27 [Special].—John T. Bredow, 86 years old, retired banker, died last night. He was born in Germany and came to Kiel, Wis., with his parents when a child. He moved to Davenport in 1870 and became connected with the German Savings bank here. Funeral services will be held Monday.

Von Ribbentrop's Cousin, U.S. Citizen, Dies in Detroit

Detroit, Mich., April 27 (AP).—Henry A. Ribbentrop, a second cousin of Germany's foreign minister, Joachim Von Ribbentrop, died today at his home here. A resident of the United States 31 years he was a naturalized citizen. His widow and two children survive.

BOSCH, GERMAN WINNER OF NOBEL 1931 AWARD, DIES

BERLIN, April 27 (AP).—Prof. Carl Bosch, chairman of the German Dye trust, died at his Heidelberg home last night. He was 65 years old. Bosch, whose name was associated with inventions of synthetic gasoline and other substitute products, was awarded the Nobel prize for chemistry in 1931.

Bosch's genius for producing substitutes was credited with keeping the kaiser's army supplied long after the allied blockade had cut Germany off from outside sources of vital materials in the world war. He was born in Cologne on Aug. 27, 1874.

His outstanding achievement during the world war was the production on a commercial scale of synthetic ammonia, necessary for the manufacture of explosives. After the fusion of the German Chemical industry into the I. G. Farbenindustrie [German Dye trust] in 1925, Bosch became chairman of the board, and in 1935 president and general director of the concern. The Nobel prize was awarded him for his synthetic production of ammonia.

DR. P. S. DOANE DIES AT AGE OF 77 ON WEST COAST

Dr. Philip Schuyler Doane, a prominent physician and surgeon in Chicago for many years, died yesterday in Pasadena, Cal., after a week's illness. He was 77 years old.

Dr. Doane, a native of Oak Park, was graduated from Rush Medical school and lived in Chicago until 1920 when he moved with his family to California. He was a lieutenant colonel in the medical corps during the world war and was in charge of health and sanitation for the United States Shipping board and Emergency Fleet corporation.

He organized the Pasadena Central Health service, was president for 11 years of the Pasadena Humane society, and for two years of the Pasadena Flower Show association.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Helen Stewart Doane; two daughters, Mrs. Miles Hubbard and Miss Phyllis Doane, and a son, Graeme Stewart Doane, all of Pasadena. The funeral and burial will be in Pasadena Tuesday.

BURIED SAVINGS IN CEMETERY, 2 WOMEN ASSERT

Two Indiana women were the principal witnesses yesterday in the trial of 13 persons in the federal District court on charges of using the mails to defraud in the sale of cemetery lots.

The principal defendants are Christian W. Beck and Mike D. Gordon of Cleveland, O., and Robert Stickney of Boston, Mass. The government contends the three men founded the First Commonwealth Trustees of Chicago, thru which lots in a cemetery at Twinsburg, O., were sold to investors. The indictment alleges that about 500 persons were swindled of $160,000 thru the company's operations.

The Indiana witnesses were Mrs. Rosa Reamer, a farm wife from near Walkerton, and Miss Clara Westhafer, a Newcastle school teacher. Both women testified that they exchanged bonds for lots on promises of substantial returns. The case is being tried before Judge John P. Barnes.

CROWDS CHEER KITE FLYERS IN FINAL CONTEST

Grant Park's Bright Sky Filled with Color.

Kites— huge and tiny, bizarre and ordinary, and in all colors—soared into the bright sky over Grant park yesterday. As a crowd of several thousands cheered they carried the hopes of 372 finalists in the second annual kite flying tournament sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and conducted by the park district.

And when the shouting was over and the last kite pulled to earth the 1940 kite flying champions in eight divisions were crowned. They won by their skill against more than 9,000 enthusiasts of this sport who took part in earlier trials at 80 parks. To each first place winner went a gold cup, and colored ribbons were presented to the others who placed.

The crowd spread over the vast field gasped in awe at the spectacular maneuvers of one kite, dubbed Sky Clown. It was built by Frank Shinn, 29 years old, 3124 North avenue, a Japanese, and represented, he said, the best of 400 experimental kites he has made in a year.

Controled by Reel.

Shinn's kite went up or down and to right or left merely by dexterous handling of the wood reel he carried. His little kite almost touched the windows of the Stevens hotel nearly half a mile away. At one time he let out 5,000 feet of line.

There was no contest division for this kind of a kite, but Shinn took second place in the mechanical winding-in contest.

Red, white, and blue maltese crosses and fluffy streamers won the artistic kite contest for Adolph Fuerabend, 9 years old, 1928 Oakdale avenue.

A devil kite of red cellophane, with a smoke bomb attached, won a gold cup for Kenneth Brown, 12 years old, 10042 Prospect avenue. The kite carried streamers 20 feet long.

Practices Every Day.

Al Loska, 15 years old, 1449 North Lorel avenue, placed first in the hand winding-in contest, then said:

"The gold cup will balance the cup I won last year, on the mantel at home. The one I win next year will stand in the center. Every day, winter and summer, I spend two hours in the basement practicing my winding."

He demonstrated, first slowly, then with blinding speed, the figure 8 movement necessary to get the cord on the spindle in a hurry without fouling the line or skinning his knuckles.

The mechanical winder with which Paul Mueller, 14 years old, won top honors in this contest was a smooth piece of craftsmanship. Paul made it with roller skate ball bearings at the hub, two plywood discs, and a leader to prevent tangling.

Spends a Few Cents; Wins.

Alphonso Jackson, 16 years old, colored, 11253 Racine avenue, flew a Cinderella kite to win the box kite honors. It cost him a couple of cents, he said, and he made it only a few hours before the final contest.

In the messenger sending contest first place was taken by Morton Cohn, 16 years old, 5045 North Springfield avenue. He used a triangle messenger kite with carefully designed hollows worked out by park district handicraft directors.

Two gold cups were carried away by William Voorhis, 22 years old, 5635 Blackstone avenue, an insurance clerk. His "bull" kite, 16 feet wide and 16 feet high, made of double thicknesses of paper, was the largest and strongest pulling kite.

In the pulling contest, Voorhis, assisted by three companions to hold the monster, showed 80 pounds pull, and Voorhis said it will do over 100 pounds.

Other Winners Listed.

The winners of second to sixth places in the kite contest follow:

MOST ARTISTIC—Richard Olson, 14, of 5151 West Concord place, second; Donald Budge, 15, of 5042 North Monticello avenue, third; Chester Wieronski, 10, of 5851 Giddings street, fourth; Paul Mueller, 14, 3028 North Hoyne avenue, fifth; Ferdinand Fortier, 48, of 6624 St. Lawrence avenue, sixth.

MOST NOVEL—Joe Metzl, 17, of 5435 South Wolcott avenue, second; Frances Winters, 8, of 1455 Lawrence avenue, third; Ted Frano, 15, of 4600 Lawrence avenue, fourth; Tony Cessi, Polk and Aberdeen streets, fifth; Dan Stephans, 14, of 541 North Lawndale avenue, sixth.

HAND WINDING—Paul Mueller, 14, of 3028 North Hoyne avenue, second place; Hans Kind, 53, of 6221 South Aberdeen street, third; Ted Frano, 15, of 4600 Lawrence avenue, fourth; Rudolph Ruzman, 17, of 2405 South Hamlin avenue, fifth; Edward Smolinski, 15, of 8828 Commercial avenue, sixth.

MECHANICAL WINDING—Frank Shinn, 29, of 3124 North avenue, second; Richard Olson, 14, of 5151 Concord place, third; Rudolph Ruzman, 17, of 2405 South Hamlin avenue, fourth; Charles Morath, 13, of 3239 Potomac avenue, fifth; Vito Sassolino, 625 West Scott street, sixth.

SOLO BOX FLIGHT—Ted Frano, 15, of 4600 Lawrence avenue, second; Ted Prasznowski, 16, of 2313 North Leavitt street, third; Anthony Krier, 2416 Dakin street, fourth; Wally Kowalszyk, 2252 North Laramie avenue, fifth; Richard Pazin, 13, of 5140 South Artesian avenue, sixth.

LARGEST KITE—Paul Mueller, 14, of 3028 North Hoyne avenue, second; Eugene Martin, 14, of 6317 Blackstone avenue, and Tom Gallagher, 15, 6349 Blackstone avenue [a team], third.

STRONGEST PULLING KITE—George Miller, 3530 North Kildare avenue, and Vincent Janislowski, 3531 North Lowell avenue [a team], second; Eugene Martin, 14, of 6317 Blackstone avenue, and Tom Gallagher, 15, of 6349 Blackstone avenue [a team], third.

MESSENGER SENDING—William Funke, 14, of 5601 South Hamilton avenue, second; Francis Kling, 10, of 6937 Ozark avenue, third; Gerald Scott, 11, of 4226 North Whipple street, fourth; Anthony Krier, 16, of 2416 Dakin street, fifth; Alphonso Jackson, 16, of 11353 South Racine avenue, sixth.

V. K. Brown, head of the recreation division of the park district, presented the prizes. Contest Director F. E. Kardes and his assistant, S. J. Meuris, agreed that this year's finals were much better than the 1939 event. The weather was perfect, and they said the kites entered were superior in every department.

Amphibian Plane Crashes Into Sound; Three Killed

Port Washington, N. Y., April 27 (AP).—Three men were killed today by the dive of a two motored amphibian plane into Long Island sound. The victims were Eric Radke, a Civil Aeronautics authority employé; George Daufkirch, 40, an airplane broker, and William A. Bowerman, 35, a CAA inspector.

Elkhart Driver Killed When Auto Hits Train

Elkhart, Ind., April 27 [Special].—Leonard Ernsberger, 30 years old, was killed today when his auto crashed into a New York Central train west of here.

TRUCK DRIVER'S FOOT SLIPS OFF BRAKE; 3 HURT

Three persons were injured yesterday in an unusual accident at Paulina street and Washington boulevard. One of those injured, Daniel Binetti, 57 years old, 742 North Lawndale avenue, a pedestrian, was taken to Washington Boulevard hospital in critical condition.

A truck, driven by Joseph Winski, 23, of 1732 18th place, was slowing in Paulina street when suddenly it sped forward past a red traffic light, struck Binetti, rammed and overturned a car driven by Elmer Brayton, 29, of 114 North Albany avenue, then hit a truck driven by James Chapralis, 44, of 1602 Union avenue. Chapralis and Brayton suffered minor injuries.

Winski told police his foot slipped from the brake onto the accelerator as he attempted to stop for Washington boulevard traffic.

A verdict of accident was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury in the death of Charles Stoltz, 46, of 726 Monroe street. Stoltz, who was unemployed, was injured fatally Friday in the Outer drive at the Montrose overpass when he was struck by a car driven by A. Frank Rothschild, 1540 Lake Shore drive. Rothschild is the son of Melville N. Rothschild, head of the National Bond and Investment company.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 276 persons had been killed in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 209 were killed in Chicago, where 6,519 were injured in traffic during the same period.

YOUNG THIEF LOOTS HOME.

A young thief, about 15 years old, stole two watches and a ring, valued at $60, yesterday from the home of Mrs. Marty Damko, 4234 Altgeld street.

Chicago's 1940 Traffic Toll

More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an urban superhighway.

Midwest Safety Meeting to Open Tuesday in City

The eighteenth annual Midwest Safety conference, sponsored by the Greater Chicago Safety council, will open Tuesday in the Hotel Sherman. More than 3,500 delegates from the United States, Canada, and Hawaii will attend the conference, which will continue three days. The Illinois Industrial commission, the Institute of Traffic engineers, and other groups are coöperating with the council.

DIES OF HEART ATTACK.

Mrs. Elisabeth Speare, 50 years old, died of a heart attack yesterday while visiting friends at the Sheffield hotel, 3504 Sheffield avenue. An inhalator squad worked over her in vain for 45 minutes. Her home was at 4447 Malden street.

DRIVE LAUNCHED AGAINST FAKE GASOLINE SIGNS

An ordinance proposed by Ald. A. G. Lindell [9th] which would prohibit unsightly and misleading signs at filling stations in Chicago, will be discussed by members of the area councils of the Chicago Motor club in the La Salle hotel tomorrow noon.

Charles M. Hayes, president of the club, said members of the councils will be urged to support elimination of signs which, he said, make driving hazardous and often deceive motorists as to the price of gasoline or oil. Hayes cited as an example dealers who might have a special on seven gallons of gasoline for $1.29 and put up signs bearing a huge "$1" and a tiny ".29." The proposed ordinance calls for signs of uniform size and lettering.

Speakers tomorrow will include Bradley M. Provis, president of the Gasoline Retailers' association; George Traver of the Greater Chicago Safety council, and Robert Nau of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Holy Name Society to Hear Archbishop Stritch Today

Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch will speak this afternoon in Our Lady of Sorrows auditorium, 330 South Albany avenue, before 2,000 representatives of the Archdiocesan union of the Holy Name society at the society's annual meeting. Committee reports for 1939 will be presented and plans for the year will be discussed. The Rev. Ralph Gallagher, S. J., of the Loyola university faculty, and the Rev. Barry Horne will speak.

SENTENCES OF THREE CONVICTS AT WAUPUN COMMUTED BY HEIL

Madison, Wis., April 27 [Special].—Following recommendations of the state pardon board, Gov. Julius P. Heil today commuted the sentences of three inmates of the Waupun state prison. Raymond Wojciechowski, 32 years old, of Milwaukee, who was serving eight years for rape, had his sentence reduced to two to five years. He entered prison in 1937. Louis E. Miller, 38, of Beloit, who was sentenced Oct. 30, 1939, to two and one-half to five years for assault, had his sentence reduced to one year. William Kahlfeld, 33, of Mineral Point, serving one to five years for burglary, had his maximum sentence reduced to four years. He was convicted in 1938.

UNCLE SAM HAS A NICE PLACE TO PLAY POSTOFFICE

Washington, D. C., April 27 (AP).—If you want to get away from it all, here's the job supreme—postmaster of Canton Island, down in the south Pacific 4,316 miles from San Francisco, Cal.

Postmaster General James A. Farley said today Harold K. Graves, an employé of Pan-American Airways, would be its acting postmaster.

One of the Phoenix group near the equator, Canton is just a dot on the biggest of maps. The island is 600 yards wide at its widest part and about 11 miles long. It is inhabited by 12 men and numerous rats and hermit crabs.

Life isn't very fast on Canton. A report from a government settler there to the interior department once listed as a big piece of news: "Our hen laid an egg today while standing up."

PUPPY DOG SAVES A LIFE.

A puppy dog named Pepper, in the home of John Creighton, 2852 East 79th street, was credited yesterday with saving the life of Mrs. Creighton, 40 years old. She was accidentally overcome by gas in the home. Pepper awakened his master who called aid.

*Prices suggested are for delivery in your kitchen with 5 Year Protection Plan. State and local taxes extra.

THE BIG 1940 Kelvinators are the finest we have ever built at any price.

They incorporate all the features which have made Kelvinator the most convenient refrigerator on the market —plus many new 1940 improvements.

Yet these beautiful new Kelvinators are lower in price than ever before—$30 to $60 less than last year.

How could we bring you these new low prices?

FIRST, we found a more efficient way to distribute Kelvinator products . . . and we cut the cost of selling. This made a big saving.

SECOND, by putting 96% of our production on six and eight cubic foot size models, we were able to build big electric refrigerators at lower cost.

THIRD, because of greatly increased sales, we have doubled our production schedules, and have passed on the manufacturing saving to you.

And look at what you get. Beautifully designed welded-steel cabinets, Porcelain-on-steel inside, gleaming, long-life Permalux outside.

Power furnished by the amazing, money-saving Polarsphere—a unit sealed in oil—that uses current less than 20% of the time, and has power enough to keep five refrigerators cold, under average household conditions. Convenience and economy that is engineered and built-in—beauty that is instantly apparent.

But go to your Kelvinator dealer's. See these 1940 Kelvinators for yourself. Make any comparisons you choose. We believe you'll agree—Kelvinator is the buy of 1940.

KELVINATOR DIVISION
Nash-Kelvinator Corp., Detroit, Mich.

The Money-Saving Polarsphere in every Kelvinator cuts operating costs many dollars yearly . . . gives you refrigeration equal to 1050 pounds of ice a week. Sealed-in system—never requires oiling.

TO HELP YOU PICK the best refrigerator for your money, your Kelvinator dealer will gladly give you a free copy of "The 1940 Refrigerator Guide". It contains complete, authoritative information regarding 1940 refrigerator values.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., April 27.—The Cubs had another effective combination in the front lines today and their fourth consecutive triumph was accomplished with neither undue strain nor excitement. Larry [Lefty] French pitched, his associates did some hitting, not to mention fielding at the proper moments, and the Cardinals, known as the Gas House gang but apparently low on their supply of gas, succumbed, 4 to 0, in the presence of 3,709 paid customers and a quantity of women guests. It was Larry's second whitewash job this season against the Cards.

To keep their winning streak growing the Cubs had to step on their old teammate, Lon Warneke, but the Arkansas Slat didn't give up easily. For four innings he held the Chicagoans hitless. In the next inning he surrendered his first hit and with it the first run. Apparently that much work exhausted his endurance. Anyway, the Cubs drove him off the landscape with a three run barrage in the sixth, the potent item of which was a double by Bill Nicholson with the bases loaded.

Heroics Avert Trouble.

French's defense gave him both chills and thrills. Bobby Mattick, recently returned to short, booted a couple in the early innings and each error was coupled with a hit before an out was registered. French pulled himself out of one of these jams, but the other was kept from being a hair-raising session only because of a brilliant stop on which Stan Hack engineered a double play. Later in the battle the Cards made a similar threat—two on with none out—and this also was stifled by a double play, this one by Phil Cavarretta's stab of a line drive.

Among those facing the French pitching was Ducky Wucky Joe Medwick, who delayed his season's debut until today because of a training trip injury. The Cards' prize slugger didn't annoy French to any extent. He got on in the second on Mattick's first error and in the third smacked the ball that Hack grabbed for the life-saving double play. In the sixth Ducky finally notched a hit, a scratch to Mattick, and his last appearance, in the eighth, resulted in a fly to Nicholson.

Millions for Defense.

Except for a line drive which Hack stabbed, French had no difficulty getting thru the first inning, but in the second he really had to go to work. After Mattick booted Medwick's grounder, Mize doubled off the right field wall, Medwick stopping at third. French served his pop up ball to Moore and Marion. Then Owen was purposely passed, loading the bases, but everything was cleared up on Warneke's grounder to Cavarretta.

Stu Martin opened the third with a single knocked down back of second by Mattick, who in the next moment fumbled Gutteridge's grounder. Slaughter attempted to sacrifice but French was on the ball like a cat and

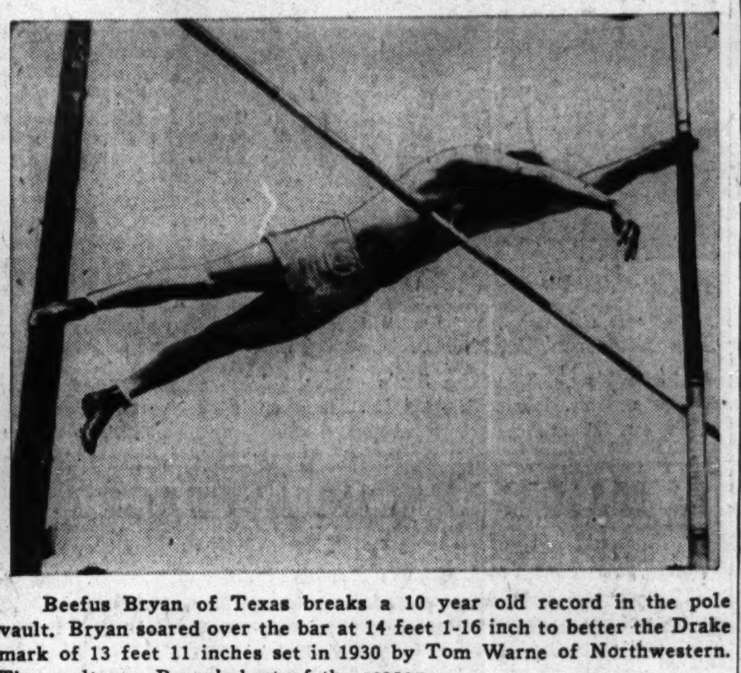
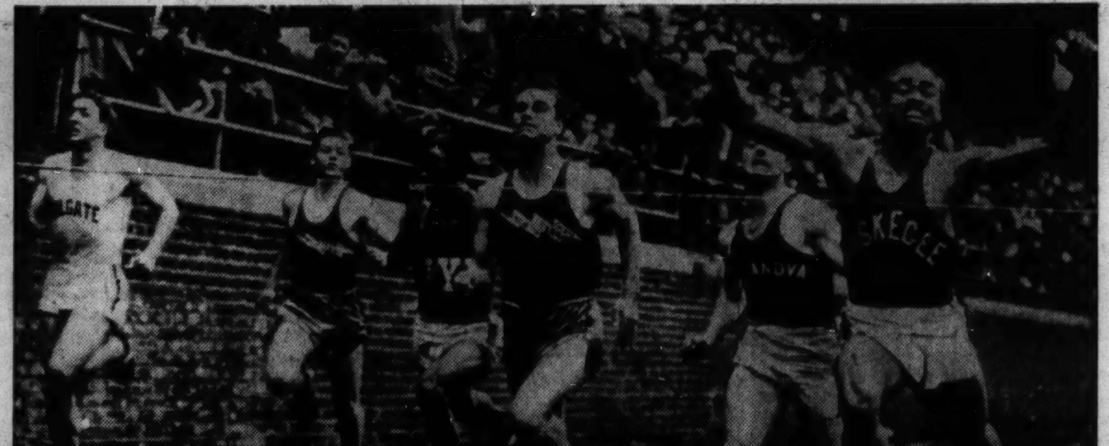
IT'S TRACK STARS' BIG DAY AT DRAKE AND PENN

Fred Wolcott of Rice institute makes it a grand slam as he wins the 120 yard high hurdles event yesterday for the third time in his three years of competition at the Drake relays. Wolcott's time, 14.3 seconds, was a tenth of a second over the Drake record he set in 1938. Wolcott is at the extreme right. Abreast of him at the left and at the last hurdle is Boyce Gatewood of Texas, who finished second.



Beefus Bryan of Texas breaks a 10 year old record in the pole vault. Bryan soared over the bar at 14 feet 1-16 inch to better the Drake mark of 13 feet 11 inches set in 1930 by Tom Warne of Northwestern. The vault was Bryan's best of the season.

Frank Church, Louisiana State anchor man, collapses and plunges to the cinders only a foot from the tape in Drake mile university relay. Victory was snatched from Church and the L. S. U. team when Warren Breidenbach of Michigan (left), who was almost on even terms with Church at the time, broke the tape for the Wolverines in 3:16.



Mozelle Ellerbe of Tuskegee institute wins the final of the invitational 100 yard dash at the Penn relays in 9.8 seconds. Ellerbe is on the right. Others shown are: Williams, North Texas Teachers, second; Maher, Villanova, third; Lawyer, New York university, fourth; Alfred Diebolt, Colgate, fifth, and Olvis Hicks, North Texas Teachers, sixth.

EAVES' WILDNESS HELPS KEEP SOX IN EIGHTH PLACE

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The White Sox rewon undisputed possession of last place in the American league yesterday when they lost to the St. Louis Browns, 6 to 2, in the first match of a two game series in Comiskey park. The Sox and Browns were tied for last when the crucial contest bgan.

Vallie Eaves, rookie right hander who showed great promise during the spring exhibition season, was the starting and losing pitcher. He was replaced by Jack Knott in the seventh. While he was not as wild as he was when he walked a dozen Tigers in seven innings the other day, Vallie had only a sketchy idea of where the plate was anchored and three of his five passes blossomed into runs.

Homer Finishes Vallie.

The first two St. Louis runs, with which the Browns tied a pair rung up by the Sox in the first inning, were put on base by walks. A homer by Walter Judnich put the Browns ahead, 3 to 2, in the fifth. In the sixth Harlond Clift walked and scored without the aid of a base hit after being moved up by a pass to Bob Swift. Eaves went away in the seventh after a two run homer by George McQuinn.

Jack Kramer went all the way for the Browns and had no trouble handling the Sox after a mild uprising

DIMAGGIO FEARS HE MAY BE KEPT IDLE LONG TIME

Washington, D. C., April 27 [Special].—The New York Yankees' hopes for a fifth consecutive pennant suffered a serious blow today when Joe DiMaggio, American league batting ace, was ruled indefinitely out of action with a torn ligament affecting the cartilage in his right knee.

DiMaggio came back to Yankee headquarters this afternoon, after paying a visit to Dr. George Bennett, at the Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore, and announced the physician had told him he had a torn ligament in the knee.

"That's what he said," repeated DiMag. "It's torn. I don't know how long I'll be out of action now."

Guesses ranged from a week to a month.

Despite the pessimism shrouding the case, DiMaggio got into uniform an hour later, but did no running. During the Yanks' infield practice he was stationed behind second base and relayed outfield throws back to the fungo hitters.

DiMaggio has yet to appear in a regular season box score. He injured his knee while sliding into second base the Sunday before the season opened in an exhibition game with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Dr. Bennett, who performed a knee operation on Frank Crosetti several years ago, did not hold out hope for DiMaggio's early return. In fact he told Joe it would be a long time before the center fielder would be able, with safety, to reclaim his post.

Tough Hombre Is One; Behaves in Time to Win Derby Feature

BY HOWARD BARRY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., April 27.—Tough Hombre, the colt which is expected to represent Mrs. Ethel V. Mars in the Kentucky Derby, came up under a hard drive to beat the Lexbrook stable's Potranco in the Daniel Boone purse, one of the features of Churchill Downs' opening program this afternoon.

Five of the six horses which went to the post are Derby eligibles, tho none is taken very seriously. Calumet farm's Bay Carse, the only one which is not nominated for next Saturday's big event, finished third, while True Star, Predicate, and Designer followed at a distance.

Troublesome at Post.

While racing during the winter at Santa Anita, Tough Hombre was excused for a pair of poor showings because he got tangled up in the rough and tumble struggle for position in big fields. His performance today indicated that he may have a genius for getting into trouble. With only five rivals to worry about, he had to be taken up and sent around the entire field before he could get into position for the final drive.

After breaking from the No. 2 post position in this six furlong dash, he failed to show sufficient early speed to hold his place near the rail. Potranco promptly took command.

Going into the turn, Jockey Carrol Bierman was forced to handle Tough Hombre carefully to keep out of serious difficulty while Potranco was going on freely. Meanwhile True Star was making a brief bid. As they came into the stretch Tough Hombre got all the worst of it, being forced to go wide while Potranco made the swing without losing an inch of ground. The Milky Way horse closed gamely, however, and got up to finish ahead by a neck. Bay Carse was four lengths behind Potranco.

The winner ran the six furlongs in 1:12 3-5 over a fast track. In the mutuels he returned $7, $3, and $2.04.

Stable Gets Double.

Tough Hombre wasn't the only Milky Way horse that trainer Roy Waldron had in top form today. The big opening day crowd saw the stable score a double when Up the Creek won the $2,500 Clark handicap, a run of a mile and a sixteenth.

He beat Arab's Arrow by three lengths while Shot Put was coming in third. The Woolford Farm's Technician, which had been established the 3 to 2 favorite, tired when called on in the stretch and finished fifth.

Track Superintendent Tom Young received word that W. L. Brann's Pictor, winner of the Chesapeake stakes, is on his way. Pictor worked the full Derby distance in 2:08 before leaving Havre de Grace. Harold Clark's Royal Man is also being shipped out from the east.

Bimelech, the Derby favorite, will leave Idle Hour farm early tomorrow and will be vanned over to Churchill Downs. He will be blown out for a half mile or so Monday and will start in the Derby trial Tuesday. His chief rival is this event is expected to be Dixiana farm's Sirocco.

Kentuckians were particularly interested in the news of Dit's victory in the Wood memorial at Jamaica this afternoon. They saw this horse run

DIT TRIUMPHS IN WOOD MEMORIAL; RED DOCK SECOND

New York, April 27 (AP).—Arnold Hanger's Dit, a front running rascal with a lot of wind, established himself more than ever today as the east's chief Kentucky Derby hope by whipping a big but otherwise not so hot field in the Wood Memorial at Jamaica.

By coming home three lengths in front, with nothing even close, the son of Transmute won the rather doubtful honor of going to Louisville to challenge Bimelech in the Derby next Saturday.

He was by all odds the class of the field, and a record crowd of 27,613 fans, who made him the $5,80 for $2 favorite in the field of 13, knew it.

Andy K. Finishes 5th.

He broke on top, made every pole a winning one and caused the finish to look like a parade, as Jockey Buddy Haas, part of the 120 pounds he carried, just held on and let her rip. Mrs. Payne Whitney's Red Dock was an easy second, five lengths in front of the surprising Devil's Crag, which John B. Partridge claimed from Mrs. H. C. Phipps a year ago.

The Crag led Mrs. Phipps' Snow Ridge by a length and a half, a length back came amblin' Andy K., second best 2 year old in the country last year, Along with the race came the announcement from Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons that William Woodward's chief Derby hope, Fenelon, and Mrs. Phipps' Asp, were definitely out of the Derby. Both developed an overnight cough.

Back of Andy K., the field was a procession that just came along for the ride despite Dit's time of 1:45 4-5. Sonny Whitney's two Derby hopes, Carrier Pigeon and Flight Command, ran 6th and 12th, respectively.

Betting Records Made.

Dit hit the jackpot today for the richest Wood in the 16 runnings of this annual pre-Derby test. With 13 starters, the victory was worth $19,225 to Hanger's stable, which is run by Max Hirsch, who trained Morton L. Schwartz' Bold Venture for his Kentucky Derby triumph in '36.

The combination of mild spring weather and the display of the east's classiest 3 year olds, resulted in an all time high turnout for the Jamaica track, some 5,000 more than the previous record. The crowd bet $183,224 for the big race, and more than a million for the entire program, new records for New York racing.

Seven Records Fall as 32,000 See Penn Meet

Philadelphia, Pa., April 27 (AP).—The featured special mile race was run in dog trot time, but the thousands of other athletes in the final day's competition of the 46th annual Penn relays today took up the slack by placing the record output on a mass production basis. Before 32,000 spectators the high school and college youths accounted for seven new meet marks, including the one set yesterday and another broken twice today, and tied still another meet record.

Walter Mehl of Wisconsin won over Chuck Fenske and Gene Venzke in the special mile in 4:25.8, the only excitement being provided in the last 220 yards as the trio made a concerted dash for the tape after loping around casually for three and one-half laps. Mehl finished about two yards in front of Fenske, with Venzke another two yards back.

Blozis Starts It.

Alfred Blozis of Georgetown had started the record breaking yesterday by putting the shot 55 feet 5⅝ inches. Today the assault was renewed with the result that records were set in the hammer throw, pole vault, 880 yard shuttle hurdle relay, the college 880 relay, the class B mile, and the one mile freshman relay. The shuttle hurdle mark was bettered twice. The one mile high school meet record tied to complete a gala day.

The records:

Ralph Ross of Army hoisted himself over the bar at 14 feet 2⅜ inches to better the meet pole vault record of 14 feet 1½ inches set by Keith Brown of Yale in 1935.

Robert Bennett of Maine loosed a 175 foot 2½ inch heave in the hammer throw to break the record of 174 feet 5 inches set by Fred Tootel of Bowdoin in 1923.

Better 880 Mark.

North Texas State's team of Welby Williams, Olvis Hicks, John Jackson, and Edward Rogers ran the college 880 relay in 1;25.4 to better the meet mark of 1:25.9 set by Pittsburgh last year.

The Yale 880 yard shuttle hurdle team of John Murphy, Richard Osborn, Ted Day, and Jay Shields ran a preliminary heat in 1:00.9 and the final in 1:00.8 to better the meet mark of 1:01.2 set by Virginia in 1938.

A Fordham team of Robert Dorland, Robert Winn, Hugh Bennett, and Wesley Wallace ran the class B one mile college relay event in 3:18.2. The old

INDIANA, TEXAS AND MICHIGAN SHARE HONORS

Bryan Tops Warne's Pole Vault Mark.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., April 27.—Indiana, Michigan, and Texas dominated the final program of the 31st Drake relay carnival this afternoon. Before a crowd of 12,000 these long time rivals made a complete sweep of the university relay schedule and also mustered four of the individual champions.

Only Fred Wolcott of Rice and Penn State's Nick Vukmanic and Norwood Ewell could break the monopoly.

Texas' crew of sprinters took the 440 yard and half mile relays, and the Longhorn hurdlers also raced to triumph in the shuttle hurdle event. Michigan picked up at this point and captured the mile and two mile relays. Indiana added the four mile relay to the sprint medley and distance medley contested yesterday.

Bryan Takes Spotlight.

While Indiana also could boast tonight of Archie Harris' shotput victory and Roy Cochran's brilliant quarter mile hurdle triumph and Michigan had the high jump by virtue of Don Canham's superiority, Texas produced the most brilliant single performance of the two day carnival.

Beefus Bryan, doughty half back who a year ago established a pole vault record at Kansas and then had to be content with only a share of the 1939 Drake title, smashed the 10 year old record. Indeed, by soaring 14 feet 1/16 of an inch over Drake's newly constructed pit, Bryan short-circuited the spotlight which had been directed on the special pole vault event between Earl Meadows, formerly of Southern California, and Milt Padway of Wisconsin.

Meadows, who shares the accepted world vault record of 14 feet 11 inches with Bill Sefton, was trying to match Cornelius Warmerdam's 15 foot mark, recently made. But both Meadows and Padway, after clearing 14 feet, failed at 14 feet 4 inches.

Tie Shuttle Hurdle Mark.

There was more drama to Bryan's record. Many times since 1930 when Tom Warne of Northwestern set the mark at 13 feet 11 inches [and in those days 14 feet still was almost a fable in the track world] the record had been threatened. But no one ever had bettered it. Today, with no warning Bryan turned in his best exhibition in a year.

Texas also accounted for the only other item measured in terms of all-time performances when its shuttle hurdle team, running in the first section of the event, matched the two year old record of 1:00.1, made by the Emporia, Kas., Teachers.

Altho devoid of the usual list of record breaking results—only four marks were broken and two tied in two days—no meet has offered more thrills. And the climax came in the final race of the afternoon, the university one mile relay.

Breidenbach Runs Perfect Race.

On the basis of preliminary time, Louisiana State figured to whip Michigan. The Baton Rouge team won the second trial yesterday in two seconds faster time than Michigan, winner in the first race. After three laps, the issue was faced by Warren Breidenbach of Michigan, defending outdoor quarter mile champion of the Western conference, and Frank Church, Louisiana's anchor runner. Church was away from the line by two strides in front of Breidenbach. He increased this distance to six yards going down the backstretch.

Then Breidenbach turned on the power. Steadily, almost by inches, he crept up. Ten yards from the line he still was not quite on even terms. But Breidenbach had judged his sprint perfectly. In the final step, as Church fell semi-conscious on the track, the Michigan star broke the finish tape. Church was revived and assisted to the dressing room. Michigan's time for the mile was 3:16.

Michigan whipped Indiana for the

HAMLIN IS STILL GIANTS' NEMESIS; DODGERS WIN 7TH

Ott Finally Hits a Homer; First Since Aug. 28.

New York, April 27 (AP).—Luke Hamlin who was the only Dodger pitcher to best the New York Giants five times last year, took up today where he left off and beat the Giants 4 to 1 to keep the Dodger winning streak intact at seven in a row.

The Giants' lone run came off the bat of Master Melvin Ott who got his first homer of the season; it also was his first one since last Aug. 28.

Cookie Lavagetto also was a Dodger hero, along with Hamlin. His double with two on in the seventh was the clincher.

REDS, 3; PIRATES, 0.

Cincinnati, O., April 27 (AP).—Bucky Walters returned Cincinnati to winning ways today with a brilliant 3-hit, 3 to 0 shutout over Pittsburgh's Pirates. It was Walters' second triumph of the year.

He also got a single to open the fifth, scoring when Lonnie Frey followed suit. Frank McCormick's two-bagger scored Frey.

Ival Goodman hit his second home run of the season in the seventh inning. Score:

PHILLIES, 5; BEES, 4.

Boston, Mass., April 27 (AP).—Two Boston Bee rookie hurlers allowed the Philadelphia Phillies to come from behind and gain a 5 to 4 decision today. Veteran Bill Posedel had given way to a pinch hitter in the eighth with the Bees ahead, 4 to 3. Right Hander Alva Javery opened the ninth by yielding doubles to Warren and May for the tying run. Then Del Young tripled off Javery's successor, Frank Lamanna, for the winning tally. Score:

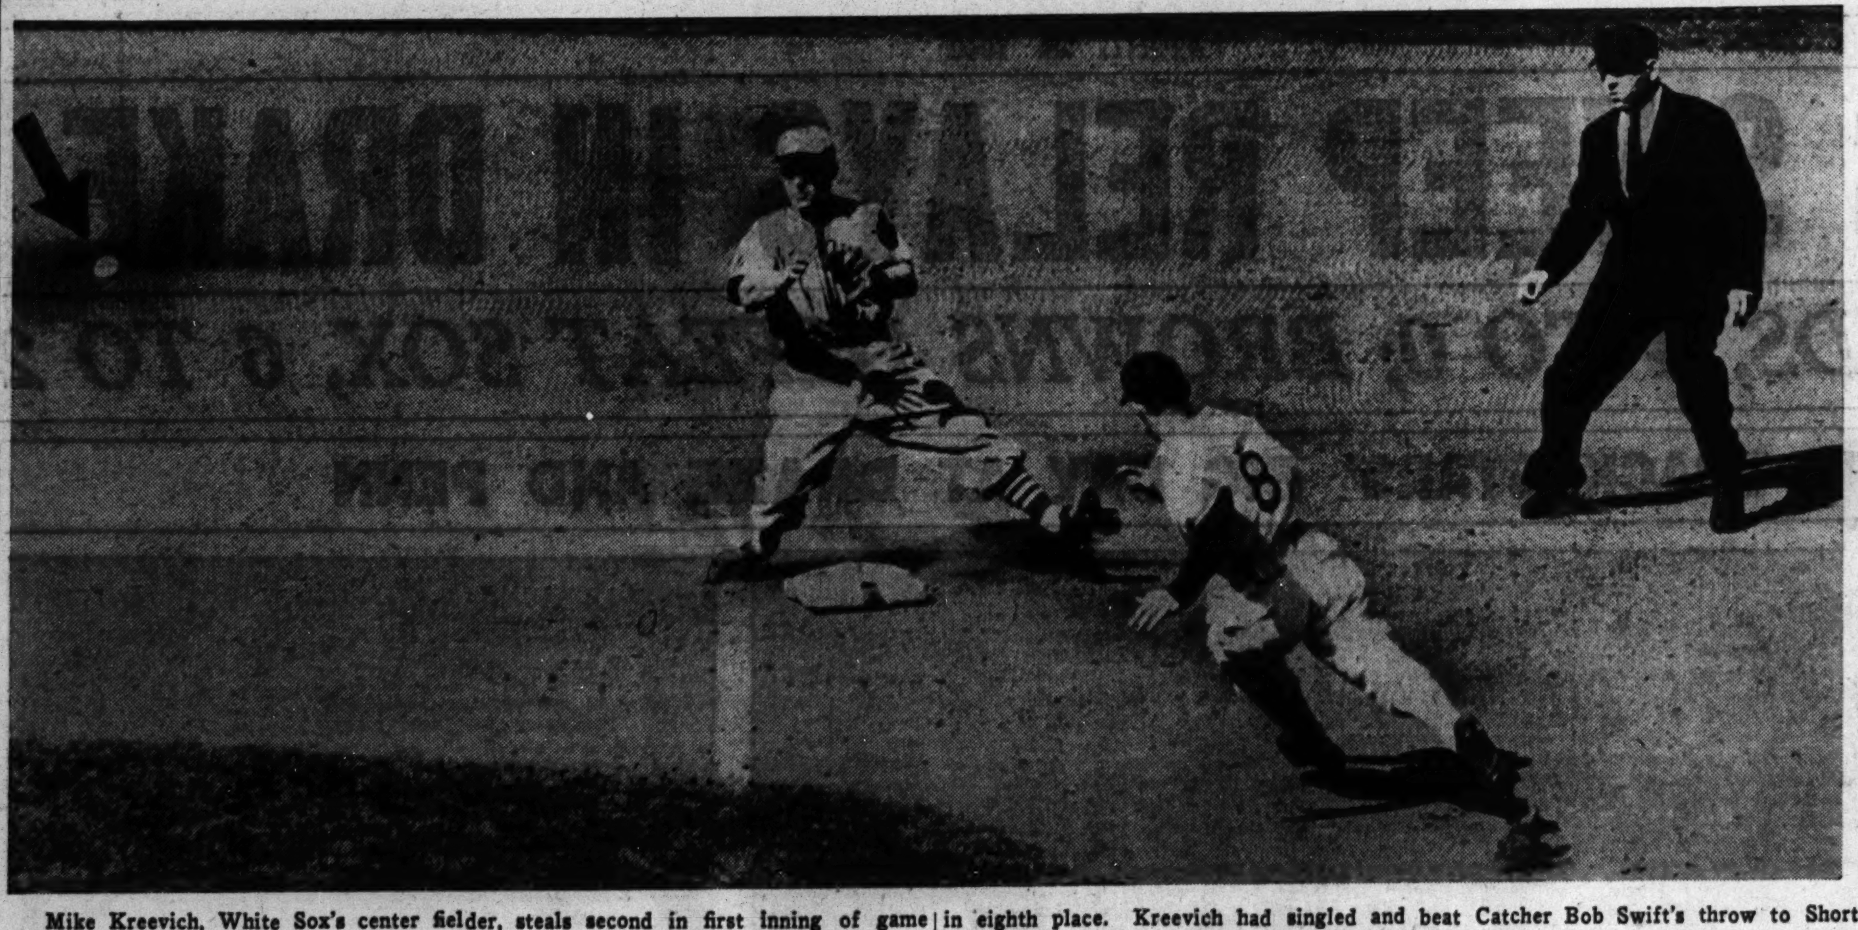
BOISTEROUS BROWNIES CLOSE CELLAR DOOR ON SOX



Mike Kreevich, White Sox's center fielder, steals second in first inning of game against the St. Louis Browns in Comiskey park yesterday, when the Browns clambered out of the cellar by whipping the Sox, 6 to 2. The defeat left the Sox alone in eighth place. Kreevich had singled and beat Catcher Bob Swift's throw to Short stop Alan Strange. Umpire Steve Basil calls the play. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

GRUNN FANS 19 AS WESLEYAN SHUTS OUT AUGUSTANA

Bloomington, Ill., April 27 [Special].—Harry Grunn of Waggoner, hurling for Illinois Wesleyan university, established what is believed to be a new Illinois college conference record today when he struck out 19 Augustana college batsmen in leading the Titans to an 11 to 0 victory over the Vikings. Of the four hits off Grubb, only one was lean.

Dick Woeher, Wesleyan shortstop, collected five hits in five trips to the plate, including two doubles. Score:

Janesville High Winner of Quadrangular Meet

Janesville, Wis., April 27 [Special].—The Janesville High track team successfully defended its championship in the annual quadrangular track meet in Monterey stadium yesterday, scoring 87 points. Winnebago was second with 61 5-6 points, Beloit third with 51 1-6 and Marengo fourth with 35.

The Sox got two runs out of that first inning melee and here is Julius Solters, new Sox outfielder, going into third base on Luke Appling's single after having driven in Kreevich with the first run on his single. The St. Louis third baseman is Harlond Clift.

Mule Haas, who returned to the Sox this year, does a spot of coaching at third base during yesterday's disappointing engagement.

EMBATTLED UMP FOUND A KNIFE IN HAND (HE SAYS)

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 27 (AP).—Umpire Bill Wilson said today he was as surprised as any one in the park upon finding an open knife in his hand during a tense moment in a Texas league baseball game.

Here to officiate at the Houston-Oklahoma City game, Wilson offered his version of last Thursday night's incident at Fort Worth which President Guy Airey of the San Antonio Missions termed the most disgraceful in organized baseball.

"The score was tied, 1 to 1, in the last of the ninth," said Wilson. "Fort Worth had the bases full. There was one out. The batter hit a grounder and San Antonio, seeking a double play, threw to Catcher Benny Huffman to force the runner. Huffman was not standing on the base when he caught the ball and I called the runner safe, Fort Worth winning, 2 to 1.

"Huffman made as if to spring at me. As other San Antonio players swarmed around me, I unconsciously drew my knife. I was as surprised as any one in the park when I saw it in my hand.

"I would do anything to erase that error. I will apologize fully to San Antonio and Texas League President Alvin Gardner. It was the worst boner I ever pulled."

Chicago Teachers Beat Armour Tech Nine, 9 to 0

Ed O'Brien yielded five scattered hits yesterday afternoon as the Chicago Teachers defeated Armour Tech, 9 to 0, in Shewbridge field. It was the Colonels' first victory of the season.

KNOX BEATS CORNELL.

Galesburg, Ill., April 27 [Special].—Knox opened its track season here today by defeating Cornell college, 66 to 65. Knox swept dashes and hurdles while Cornell scored heavily in field events.

Browns Keep Sox in Eighth Place, 6 to 2 in the first inning. With two out in that session Mike Kreevich, Julius Solters, Luke Appling, and Taft Wright knocked successive singles for the day's Chicago run harvest.

Wright continued to supply most of the vagrant sunbeams in the lives of the thwarted Sox. The stubby former Senator made three hits in four times at bat to lift his average for the eight games of the season to .484. His cluster yesterday lifted his hit total to 15, a plump total for a gent tangled in Bobby Feller's no-hitter in the season opener.

Kreevich Finds Range.

The Sox made 10 hits off Kramer, but never got two in the same inning after the opening session. Unlike Eaves, Kramer could see the plate. He walked none, so when the Sox did their scattered hitting they had no one on base taking a cheap ride. There were two Brownie errors, but the first of these came after two were out in the eighth and the other, at the start of the ninth, was wiped out in a game ending double play.

Only multihit gent in the Sox battle array other than the aforesaid Wright was Kreevich, who made two singles in four times at bat. Mike also had a good day in Cleveland Friday and may be off on a hitting streak, which the Sox can use in their eastern junketing which gets under way Tuesday afternoon on the home acreage of the ambitious Boston Red Sox.

Sox Go East Tonight.

The Sox and Browns will head east together on a special after this afternoon's game. The Browns are scheduled to tussle with the Yankees during the three days the Sox are fighting it out with the Red Sox.

The Chicagoans, by helping Ted Lyons to his 223d White Sox victory this afternoon, can start east with a .333 league standing. To date they have won one game from the Browns and one from the Cleveland Indians. They have lost two to the Browns, two to the Indians, and two to the Tigers.

No replacements are anticipated as yet.

ILLINOIS NORMAL NINE WINS OVER CHARLESTON, 15-3

Bloomington, Ill., April 27 [Special].—Scoring in each of the first six innings, Illinois State Normal won its second Little 19 game in three starts today, routing Charleston Teachers, 15 to 3.

First Baseman Jim Turner of Chicago drove in five runs for Normal with a double and two singles. Catcher Joe Garnero hit a home run with two on base in the second inning and later batted in another run.

Kermit Miller, shortstop, accounted for two of Charleston's three tallies when he drove out a home run with one aboard in the sixth. Score:

Charleston ....010 002 000— 3 5 2
Normal ....164 211 00*—15 14 5

Batteries—Jones, Treat, Johnson and Hastedt; McBride and Garnero.

Lyons Will Pitch for Sox Today; Roster Cut to 25

Ted Lyons will pitch for the Sox this afternoon against the St. Louis Browns. Vern Kennedy is slated for the St. Louis Browns. Kennedy, who led the American league in losses last year with 20, thus far has accomplished two losses in defense of his title.

Pitcher Jess Dobernic, who has been with the Sox briefly in three seasons, yesterday was released to St. Paul of the American association. This reduced the Sox roster to the player limit of 25, which does not become effective till May 15.

Jack Hayes, Sox second baseman whose current misery is eye trouble, will not be along when the Sox entrain for Boston after today's game. Sharkey, the clubhouse boy, will bat grounders to him every day.

John Whitehead, former White Sox pitching star, now with the Browns, is working honestly and diligently to reduce his heft, but having a tough time of it.

ILLINI GOLFERS WIN, 16-11, OVER NOTRE DAME

Champaign, Ill., April 27 [Special].—The University of Illinois golf team defeated Notre Dame today, 16 to 11. Summaries:

Best ball—Patton and Richart [I.] defeated Donahue and Wilson, 3-0. Holmstrom and Welsh [I.] defeated Nield and Wolf, 3-0. Modjeska and Usinger [I.] and Hagen and Schaller, tied 1-12 to 1-12.

Afternoon matches: Patton [I.] defeated Nield, 2 to 1. Donahue [N. D.] defeated Richart, 2½ to ½. Holmstrom [I.] defeated Hagen, 2½ to ½. Welsh [I.] defeated Schaller, 2 to 1. Modjeska [I.] and Wilson tied, 1½ to 1½. Wolf [N. D.] defeated Usinger, 2 to 1.

French Shuts Out Cards as Cubs Win, 4-0

rifled it to third in time to force S. Martin. Then Hack literally yanked French from the trouble zone. He smothered Medwick's terrific bounder, stepped on third and threw to Cavarretta to double Medwick.

Galan Breaks Ice.

The first Cub runner to reach base was Galan, who walked with two out in the opening inning. It turned out that he was the sole visitor thus honored until there one was out in the fifth. At this point Cavarretta bounced to Mize, who fumbled. Todd singled to right for the first hit off Warneke, Cavarretta legging it to third. Mattick put Medwick to work on a fly ball, Cavarretta scoring to give the Cubs a 1 to 0 lead despite the fact that they had only one hit to their credit. But this slander on their power at the plate was corrected in the sixth.

The sixth started with promise when Hack singled to right. Herman flied to Moore and Galan singled to center, making the third hit yielded by the veteran Warneke. Leiber lifted a fly over short left and as Medwick was playing deep, he couldn't reach it in time. The fly fell for a hit, filling the bases. One pitch was all Nicholson wanted to see. He slammed it to right for a double, Hack and Galan scoring. There was a slight pause while Warneke was replaced by Shoun. Cavaretta flied to Moore and Leiber registered. Todd then fouled to Mize to conclude the profitable skirmish.

Phil Comes to Rescue.

French enjoyed easy traveling during the fourth, fifth, and sixth, but the seventh brought him face to face with another batch of work. Marion beat out a slow bounding hit to Herman and Owen singled to left. Epps ran for Owen and Pepper Martin batted for Shoun. Pepper grounded to Hack for a force of Marion at third. S. Martin peeled off a liner toward right, but Cavarretta clutched it with his gloved hand and raced to the base to double Lake, who had been delegated to run for Pepper Martin.

The Cards didn't commit much mischief in the last two innings.

It's Lee for Cubs Against Cards Today

St. Louis, Mo., April 27 [Special].—The pitching program for the second game of the series here tomorrow will be Bill Lee for the Cubs and Fiddler Bill McGee for the Gas House gang.

The local lighting plant, which the Cards and Browns will use this summer, is nearing completion. The bulbs have already been hung aloft on half of the eight towers.

The Cubs found springlike weather for the first time today, so they felt fairly comfortable in their strip tease uniforms.

Hank Leiber was pretty mad about being called out at first on his tap to Don Gutteridge in the fourth. Hank barked lustily to Umpire George Magerkurth, and Manager Gabby Hartnett pushed him away a half dozen times before Hank decided to go to his position. As soon as Hartnett turned toward the dugout, Hank came running in to resume the argument, but the umpire remained aloof.

Pitcher Dick Bass, whom the Cubs purchased from Chattanooga on a dollar down basis, was turned back to that club today, but the latter, anticipating his return, already had sold him to Montreal of the Inernational league. Bass departed tonight for the Canadian city.

MICHIGAN COACH IS TAKEN ILL AT DRAKE MEET

Des Moines, Ia., April 27 [Special].—J. Kenneth Doherty, who became head track coach at the University of Michigan last spring after Charles Hoyt resigned to go to Yale, became ill suddenly last night while attending the Drake relays dinner. It was reported he was suffering from stomach ulcers. He was moved to a hospital this morning, where it was said he was in no immediate danger.

BOUDREAU SLAMS TWO HOME RUNS; INDIANS WIN, 4-2

His Single Scores 3d Run in Cleveland Victory.

Detroit, Mich., April 27 (AP).—Two home runs by Lou Boudreau, the first of his major league career, gave the Cleveland Indians a 4 to 2 decision over the Detroit Tigers today and boosted the Tribe into undisputed possession of the lead in the American league.

Boudreau led off with a homer in the first inning. His second homer broke a 2 to 2 deadlock in the eighth. Both were hit off Harold Newhouser, 18 year old Detroit high school boy, making his first big league start. Boudreau also delivered a run scoring single in the fifth.

Mike Naymick, 6 foot 8 inch rookie, limited Detroit to seven hits and was credited with the victory. Johnny Humphries came in with bases full and two men out to retire Hank Greenberg on a screaming liner to center field. Score:

Philadelphia, Pa., April 27 (AP).—Sam Chapman's home run with the bases full climaxed a seven run seventh inning uprising and clinched an 8 to 3 victory for the Athletics over the Boston Red Sox in their series opener today. Held in check by Jim Bagby except for Al Rubeling's home run in the fifth, the Athletics finally pounded Bagby out of the box in the seventh and continued their assault on Joe Heving, Fritz Ostermueller, and Woody Rich. Johnny Babich was credited with his second mound victory of the season over the Red Sox.

PURPLE ELEVEN BEATS WHITES AS PRACTICE ENDS

Freshmen Get Chance to Show Their Wares.

Northwestern football fans previewed the freshman Wildcats yesterday afternoon in Dyche stadium in an intrasquad game which wound up six weeks of spring practice. A crowd of 500 saw the game in which Quarter Back Dick Richards, Wildcat captain elect, led the Purple team to a 21 to 19 victory over the Whites, whose captain was Center Paul Hiemenz.

With 17 letter men from 1939 missing, and with seven members of the anticipated 1940 first string out for other spring sports, the contest presented a crop of freshmen who were out to prove their ability.

Star performers among the yearlings included Clarence Hasse, end; Nick Burke, guard; Otto Graham and Danny Williams, half backs, and William Sing and John Funderberg, full backs.

Williams, 165 pound colored left half, was responsible for two of the Purple touchdowns, scoring one on a run and providing an end zone pass to Hasse for the second.

Sing Leads Long Drives.

Sing led the White team on two long drives, which were climaxed by short scoring runs by Ike Kepford, veteran back. Graham, who executed numerous forward passes, provided the most exciting play with a 71 yard touchdown run. Funderberg demonstrated that he has power to spare. On a 10 yard touchdown run he bowled over four would-be tacklers by sheer force. Burke turned in a competent line game, charging consistently into his opponent's back field. Lineups:

NOTRE DAME VARSITY WINS

Notre Dame, Ind., April 27 [Special].—Striking for touchdowns from 41, 80, 64, and 17 yards away, Notre Dame's varsity mastered the Old Timers, 25 to 13, to complete the spring practice session today.

Taking a pass from Bill McGannon, Right Half Steve Juzwik of Chicago put the Irish into the lead midway in the first period. The gain netted 41 yards. Early in the second quarter, Bob Hargrave of Evansville, Ind., took a punt on his 20 yard line and ran 80 yards along the east sidelines to score.

Steve Bagarus, right half from South Bend, made the third varsity touchdown, running 64 yards off left tackle in the third period. Capt. Milt Piepul kicked the extra point.

The Old Timers then opened their scoring as Harry Stevenson dropped back to midfield and tossed a 50 yard pass to End Bill Kerr on the goal line for a touchdown. Lou Zontini place kicked the extra point.

A few moments later, the varsity marched to the 17 yard line and Jack Warner of New Haven, Conn., passed to Walt O'Meara of Stamford, Conn., for the final varsity score.

Taking the kickoff, the Old Timers marched 98 yards in 11 plays to score. Alan Mooney, a center last fall who performed at full back today, carried the ball.

BLUE WINS AT ILLINOIS

Champaign, Ill., April 27 [Special].—A blue shirted University of Illinois football team made up largely of veterans defeated the freshman Orange eleven, 15 to 7, today in the final game of spring practice.

Jim Easterbrook, junior half back, put the Blues in scoring position on the third play with a 55 yard run from his own 27 yard line to the Orange 16. He scored from the 6 yard line a few moments later.

Early in the second quarter, the Blues marched to the Orange 5 yard line on straight plays featuring the running of George Bernhardt and Bob Falkenstein. Easterbrook passed to Bob O'Brien for a touchdown.

Johnny Warbon, freshman half back from Englewood High school, Chicago, went 24 yards to the 6 yard line, where three line smashes by Myron Pfeifer of Illiopolis carried the ball over.

The Blues scored a safety when Bert Piggott's pass attempt was broken up in the end zone. Lineups:

Tribune Will Sponsor Prep Regatta June 2

BY EDWARD PRELL.

Chicago's schoolboy oarsmen, whose first big season was climaxed last year with the regatta sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and the Lincoln Park Boat club, in coöperation with the Chicago Park district, are out in bigger force this spring and are pointing toward the same event.

In 1939 athletes from Lane Tech, Amundsen, Waller, and Lake View had the competition all to themselves. This year a sturdy group of youngsters from Schurz High has entered. Each of the five schools has a varsity and junior crew, and these 10 units will battle for the championship of each division Sunday afternoon, June 2, in the second annual Chicago Schoolboy regatta. The site is the Lincoln park lagoon.

Lane Defends Two Titles.

The lads from Lane Tech are defending champions in each division. For two seasons [this represents the span of the sport among the city's preps], Lane Tech has been dominant. The seniors, in fact, have never been defeated, but only two of last year's crew are available. The boys who did the stroking for the juniors last year have filled the gaps wrecked by graduation.

Last year Lake View and Waller youngsters took up rowing for the first time. In the 1939 senior regatta Waller gave Lane a hard battle and was little more than two lengths back at the finish. There are indications that next year, now that boys from Schurz have entered, rowing will be given recognition as a major prep sport in Chicago.

In preparation for the Schoolboy regatta the rivals now are engaged in meeting each other once over a half-mile course. This competition will end on May 5. Winner of the title in each closs will go to Culver, Ind., for a race with the Culver varsity and juniors on May 25.

Three-Quarter Mile Course.

The Schoolboy regatta, however, will be raced over a three-quarter mile course. The races will start from the north end of the lagoon and finish where the body of water tapers off. In addition to the varsity and junior competition there will be other events to make up a two hour program, in which the city's outstanding oarsmen will compete.

Principal prize is THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE trophy in each division, which must be won three times for permanent possession. Lane will be fighting to get two legs on each cup and the other entrants will be just as determined to find a new resting place for the trophies.

Winners Clash Today.

In the first tests between the rivals last Sunday, Lane defeated Amundsen and Lake View won over the Schurz paddlers in close races. The two winners will clash this afternoon, while the boys from Amundsen and Waller will meet in the other contest. Members of the Lincoln Park Boat club are coaching the youngsters. They are:

Lane Tech—Walter Hollatz; Lake View, Charles R. Miner; Waller, Art Skrabel; Schurz, Ray Hudson; Amundsen, John Covington.

Personnel of the senior crews are:

Lake View—Peter Klein, No. 8; Silver Livaccari, No. 7; Louis Patterson, No. 6; Morris Snover, No. 5; John Terpning, No. 4; Walter Kelton, No. 3; Charles Whipple, No. 2; Bernard Duffy, No. 1; George Revesz, coxswain.

Lane Tech—Fred Jolzmann, No. 8; Chester Gonzorek, No. 7; Tony Georgeau, No. 6; Irving Kerner, No. 5; George Nicolai, No. 4; Calvert Dodge, No. 3; Hans Opfer, No. 2; Frank Adams, No. 1; Martin Gallagher, coxswain.

Waller—Dallas Washer, No. 8; Edward Heyden, No. 7; Joe Thomas, No. 6; Robert O'Donnell, No. 5; Francis Shilt, No. 4; Russell Denton, No. 3; Ike Sargis, No. 2; Robert Waite, No. 1; Kenneth Laubner, coxswain.

Amundsen—Wally Hanson, No. 8; Bill Stout, No. 7; Bill Stenstrom, No. 6; Bob Vyovich, No. 5; Bob May, No. 4; Minas Joannides, No. 3; Harry Morris, No. 2; Bill Johnson, No. 1; Harvey Deright, coxswain.

Four Races in Each Class.

Whereas last year's competition on the Chicago river resulted in only one race in each of the classes, there will be four in each division. Since March the youngsters have been given preliminary training consisting of calisthenics, workouts on rowing machines, and a mile of road work twice a week.

Byron Nelson, National Open Champion, Begins Golf Career as Caddy—Learns to Shorten His Swing

BY BYRON NELSON.

[This is the first of a series of articles by Byron Nelson, present national open golf champion and holder of the Vardon trophy for competitive excellence. He won the 1939 Western open championship and was runner-up for the national professional title in a 37 hole final.]

LIKE many another modern professional, I became interested in golf thru caddying, but I started a bit later than some of the other boys and didn't turn pro until I had played competitive golf as an amateur for a few years. In other words, my career has been slightly different from those of a couple of great fellows and golfers from my home state—Jimmy Demaret and Ben Hogan. Ben, with whom I caddied, turned pro long before I did, and Jimmy was a caddymaster when he was 9 years old.

I was born John Byron Nelson Jr. on a farm at Long Branch, Tex., about 28 miles from Fort Worth, on Feb. 4, 1912. There have been frequent references to my having Swedish descent, but as far as I ever could learn from my parents my background is Scotch-Irish.

Golf never entered my mind until we moved from the farm to Fort Worth, where my father organized a retail feed business, which he still operates. I had learned my A-B-Cs in the country schools, but entered the Fort Worth city schools in the sixth grade. We lived in the Glen Garden addition, a suburb of Fort Worth, which boasted the Glen Garden Country club, second oldest in the Forth Worth area.

Joins Caddy Army at Age of 12.

I was 12 years old when a couple of friends, Edward Witt and Rondys Downing, induced me to join the caddy army at Glen Garden. Ben Hogan was one of the caddies there and he and I met in a playoff one year in the annual Christmas holiday tournament the Glen Garden members put on for us. The members carried our bags and then gave us a big dinner.

We just played nine holes in this tournament, and Ben and I finished the round with 41s, four over par for that nine at Glen Garden. The members arranged another nine and I sank a long putt on the last green for the 39 that beat Ben's 40.

The first club I ever owned was a No. 5 iron, given to me by Judge J. B. Wade, for whom I used to caddy regularly at Glen Garden. There may have been an omen in that, for I never was an exceptional wood player, preferring irons. I always liked to swing things, and we kids used to have a game down in Texas which probably made a lot of us mighty good at swinging. During wet weather we would take big gobs of the black gummy soil, wrap them around broom weeds, and sling these missils at a target on the side of a barn. We became so expert in this that many of us could hit the target square at from 75 to 100 yards.

Swinging Urge Gets Him Into Trouble.

As a caddy my swinging urge frequently got me into trouble, but I wasn't the only guilty one, since it's human for caddies to take practice swings with their player's clubs once in a while. Just as a tip, however, to those boys who may still be doing it, I'll recall a case at Glen Garden. There was a space of about 75 yards between the 15th green and 16th tee, where the players could not see us. We used to duck down into this corner and take a few swift swings. On this particular day I took a player's 2 iron and broke a wooden shaft in taking a cut at an imaginary ball. I was scared to death, for it was against the rules. I was forgiven, however.

The greatest thrill of my early life in golf came one day in 1928, when Ted Longworth, then Glen Garden pro, invited me to drive the 30 miles to Dallas to see the semifinals of the National Professional tournament. We followed one match thruout almost every one of the 37 holes. That was the one between Al Espinosa and a fellow named Hagen.

Hagen Comes Thru in Great Style.

It was the first time I ever saw the Haig, and I'll never forget it. Hagen was two down on the 35th tee, but he got a birdie on that, and the match was all even after Espinosa three putted the 36th. Hagen took the par five 37th and the match with a four.

On the way home Longworth repeated what he had told me several times during the match—the length of the backswings used by Hagen and Espinosa. Ted pointed out that I was taking too full a swing and advised me to shorten it. I started to do this, and gradually worked into the three-quarters swing I now use.

WISCONSIN GOLF TEAM UPSETS NORTHWESTERN

The University of Wisconsin's golf team, which finished low in the 1939 conference standings, upset Northwestern's defending Big 9½ champions, 16½ to 10½, yesterday at the Kildeer Country club. Led by Sophomore Burleigh Jacobs, Wisconsin state amateur champion, Wisconsin tied the doubles matches with Northwestern, but pulled ahead to win in the singles. Jacobs defeated Chase Fannon, Northwestern's individual conference champion, 2½ to ½, in the feature match. Gordon Wolfley of Northwestern shot the day's low score with a 75.

SINGLES—Jacobs [W.] beat Fannon [N. U.], 2½—½; Walter Atwood [W.] beat Bland [N. U.], 3—0; Gordon Wolfley [N. U.] beat Ernie Mrkvicka [W.], 3—0; Joe McMahon [W.] beat Bill O'Neall [N. U.], 3—0; Bob Alwin [W.] beat Bob McCord [N. U.], 3—0; Richard Haskell [N. U.] beat Bob Owen [W.], 2½—½.

DOUBLES—Jacobs and Atwood [W.] beat Wolfley and Fannon [N. U.], 2—1; Bland and O'Neall [N. U.] beat Mrkvicka and McMahon [W.], 2—1; Owen and Alwin [W.] tied Haskell and Charles Barrett [N. U.], 1½—1½.

Dodgers to Fly West in Two Planes for Red Series

New York, April 27 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers, flying high in the National league, will take to the air on their first western swing, it was announced today. Two 21 passenger planes will fly the Brooklyn team to Cincinnati for the opening of their series with the Reds Tuesday, President L. S. MacPhail said today.

Illinois Poloists Win from Iowa State, 8 to 4

Champaign, Ill., April 27 [Special].—The University of Illinois polo team defeated Iowa State today, 8 to 4. Jimmy Martin and Bob Jaeger each contributed three goals to the Illinois scoring.

Iowa Defeats Wisconsin on Errors, 4 to 3

Madison, Wis., April 27 [Special].—Johnny Saxer, Wisconsin junior, pitched another fine game today, but eight errors gave Iowa a 4 to 3 victory in 10 innings. Iowa's only earned run was its winning score in the tenth.

Saxer did not yield a hit during the first six innings and gave up only one during the regulation nine.

The victory was the second for Harold Haub, Iowa's star pitcher, in two days here and his eighth straight in the Big Ten.

Iowa now has four victories in five conference games. Score:

Iowa ....000 000 201 1—4 3 2
Wisconsin ....100 000 020 0—3 10 8

Batteries—Stastny, Hohenhorst, Haub and Welp; J. Saxer and Cunningham, Willding.

MICHIGAN, 4; INDIANA, 3.

Bloomington, Ind., April 27 [Special].—Michigan came thru with a two run rally in the ninth inning to nose out Indiana, 5 to 4, today in the second of a two game series between the Big 9½ teams. The Wolverines scored the tying run when Mike Sofiak doubled to score Charley Pink, and then won when Forest Evashevski, Michigan football star, walked and later came home on Fred Trosko's hit to center field. Evashevski hit a home run to left field in the fifth. The victory gave the visitors an even break in the series, Indiana having won yesterday's opener, 4 to 3.

Indiana ....002 100 010—4 4 4

Batteries—Bond and Harmes; Hundley and Stoshitch.

ILLINOIS, 17; OHIO STATE, 6.

Columbus, O., April 27 [Special].—Illinois turned the tables on Ohio State today, winning the second game of the series, 17 to 6. Ohio State won yesterday's game, 4 to 1. Evers led the Illini attack with two home runs. Score:

Illinois ....035 412 002—17 16 4
Ohio State ....001 300 020— 6 5 5

Batteries—Pacotti and Brewer; Dornbrook, Blanche, Tobik, Mack and Morgan.

CHICAGO, 2; PURDUE, 1.

Art Lopatka's home run with a man on base gave the University of Chicago a 2 to 1 victory over Purdue on the Midway yesterday. It was the first Big 9½ victory for the Maroons in six games. Lopatka hit his homer in the fourth. In the eighth he moved from the outfield to the pitcher's box to relieve Ken Garverick. Purdue got eight hits, but was unable to produce more than one run because of fine defensive play. Score:

Purdue ....000 000 100—1 8 3
Chicago ....000 200 00*—2 4 0

Batteries—Higgins, Emmert and Fisher; Garverick, Lopatka and Levit.

WILDCATS BEAT IRISH, 6-3.

Northwestern's baseball team avenged an earlier defeat with a 6 to 3 victory over Notre Dame yesterday in Evanston behind John Goldak's six hit pitching. The Irish got away to a three run lead in the third inning but four runs in the fifth and two in the sixth settled the issue in favor of the Wildcats. Score:

Notre Dame ....003 000 000—3 6 6
Northwestern ....000 042 00*—6 7 2

Batteries—Hunthausen and Crimmins; Goldak and Arnold.

WESTERN STATE WINS, 19-6.

Lansing, Mich., April 27 [Special].—Michigan State's baseball team suffered its worst defeat in nearly 20 years today when Western State hammered three pitchers for 21 hits and swamped the Spartans, 19 to 6. Western State's eight run second inning was featured by a home run with the bases full by Frank Overmire, Bronco hurler. Overmire led his team with three hits and every Bronco hit safely at least once. Score:

Western State .....083 042 110—19 21 3
Michigan State ....100 004 001— 6 10 9

Batteries—Overmire and Yarger; Derrickson, Mekules, Hall and Wolkowicz, Manion, Bolster.

Silva Signs to Fight Lander at Marigold

Joey Silva, rugged Los Angeles lightweight, yesterday was substituted for Johnny Brown of the Catholic Youth organization in a 10 round bout against Eddie Lander of the west side in Marigold Gardens tomorrow.

Brown said a pain in his back would prevent his going thru with the match. Silva will arrive today from his headquarters in Philadelphia. The weight for the contest is 135 pounds.

Joey Spiegel, Milwaukee junior welterweight, and Ralph Guajardo will be opponents in a five round semifinal. Four round preliminary matches bring together Johnny Pleasant and Billy Borne, Frank Greene, and Tommy Johnson, and Paul Frazier and Mike Chrismas.

Danno O'Mahoney, who defeated Hans Schnabel in White City last Monday, will return for a bout against Charley [Gorilla] Grubmyer in the south side club tomorrow. Supporting encounters involve Bert Rubi and Seeli Samara, Angelo Leone and Walter Palmer, Bill Canny and Juan Umberto, Al Williams and Farmer Mack. . . . Leonard Bennett, Detroit welterweight, has been matched to meet Tony Reno in an eight round secondary feature to a 10 round event between Marty Simmons and Nate Bolden in White City Friday. Booker Beckwith, Gary middleweight star, will clash with Bill Duncan of Batavia in a six rounder. . . . Johnny Hanschen, Minneapolis heavyweight, who recently defeated Arne Anderson, will get a chance to repeat that victory in a 10 round rematch in Minneapolis Friday.

PURPLE'S TENNIS TEAM VICTORIOUS OVER IOWA, 9 TO 0

Northwestern's tennis team yesterday scored its first victory in Big 9½ competition, defeating Iowa, 9 to 0, on the Wildcats' courts. It was Northwestern's second triumph, the Wildcats winning from Marquette in their opener last Friday. Yesterday's summaries:

SINGLES—Seymour Greenberg, Northwestern, beat Robert Sandler, Iowa, 6-0, 6-0; Harry O'Neill, Northwestern, beat Robert Wallenweber, Iowa, 6-0, 6-1; Jerry Clifford, Northwestern, beat John Paulus, Iowa, 6-1, 6-0; Gene Richards, Northwestern, beat Robert Jensen, Iowa, 6-2, 6-4; Harrie Hall, Northwestern, beat Louis Wurl, Iowa, 6-1, 6-1; Beryl Shapiro, Northwestern, beat Earl Crain, 6-2, 6-1.

DOUBLES—Greenberg and Clifford beat Sandler and Wallenweber, 6-0, 6-0; O'Neill and Richards beat Jensen and Paulus, 6-3, 6-1; Hall and Shapiro beat Wurl and Crain, 6-3, 6-0.

Spartas Battle Manhattans for Triner Cup

BY OFFSIDE.

The Sparta Falstaffs, western soccer champions, who will begin play for the national title in Baltimore, Md., next Sunday, will step out in quest of another cup this afternoon. The Chicagoans will meet the Manhattan Brewers, 1939 western titleholders, in a Triner cup match in Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue. The Sparta reserves will meet the Hansa team in a preliminary game at 1 o'clock.

The busy Falstaffs expect to be extended by the Manhattans, who include in their lineup Jimmy Munro, star outside right, formerly of the Spartas. Manager Rudy Velk of the Spartas yesterday said the same team which defeated the Morgan Sport club of Pittsburgh, Pa., for the western title will start against the Brewers.

The Spartas also will enter the game with memories of their last meeting with the Brewers. The Spartas rallied in the second half to score four goals. The contest finished in a near riot.

Members of the International Soccer league also will see action this afternoon. Twenty games are scheduled. The Slovaks, who won the first division title last week, will meet the Spencer Coals at 5500 Fullerton avenue. The Swedish-Americans will oppose the Vikings at Kedzie avenue and Roscoe street, and the American Eagles will play the Wanderers in Reda stadium, 2600 West Grand avenue, in two other outstanding contests.

STOCKHOLDERS TO OKAY ARLINGTON SALE TOMORROW

New Syndicate Awaits Legal Settlement.

The stockholders of the Arlington Park Jockey club will approve sale of the race track to a syndicate composed of Chicago business men, headed by John D. Allen, in a meeting at 33 North La Salle street tomorrow afternoon. The board of directors recommended the sale on April 15 and last night it was announced control of the track will pass into the hands of the purchasing group without any opposition.

Otto Lehmann, president, and Leonard S. Florsheim, treasurer, will represent the board of directors at the meeting. Other directors, including Charles McCulloch, Warren Wright, Albert D. Lasker, Laurance Armour, John D. Hertz, and John R. Thompson Jr., will be unable to attend. All details of the sale, with the exception of legal procedures, will be concluded at the meeting. Legal procedures will be cleared by May 10, the deadline set for the transfer.

Purchase Price $1,600,000.

Allen, vice president of the Brinks Express company, and his associates, including John G. McCarthy, president of the Board of Trade; Benjamin Lindheimer, Joseph R. Rice of the grain firm of Daniel F. Rice, Inc., and Ralph Atlass, director of radio stations WJJD and WIND, are purchasing the track for $1,600,000. The present holders paid $2,400,000 for the property eleven years ago. Lindheimer is managing director of the Washington Park Jockey club.

Members of the syndicate have a capital of $800,000 and will form a corporation upon taking over the track. The balance due the present holders will be given in securities. Lindheimer subscribed $25,000 to the new syndicate. Lindheimer also had $10,000 invested in the Arlington Park Jockey club.

Meeting Opens June 24.

As soon as all details of the transfer are finished Allen and his associates are expected to announce the new group's policies. The meeting will open on June 24 and will end on July 27.

MASKED GENERAL VICTOR

Havre de Grace, Md., April 27 (AP). A closing day crowd of 17,000 was treated to a record-equalling performance today when Masked General, 6 year old chestnut gelding from the Brandywine stable, raced to a photo-finish victory in the $10,000 added Philadelphia handicap.

Closing with a burst of speed after laying back most of the way, Masked General beat out Mrs. A. J. Abel's Honey Cloud by a nose to take down the winner's purse of $8,100 in the 28th running of the stake.

Given a cagey ride by Jockey Maurice [Moose] Peters, Masked General covered the mile and a sixteenth in 1:44 1-5, tying the stake mark set by Stand Pat in 1935. The winner paid $13.50 for $2.

W. L. Brann's Aethelwold finished third, two and a half lengths behind the leaders and three lengths ahead of J. A. Manfuso's Affair.

The crowd, largest of the spring meeting, installed the A. C. T. Stock farm's Whichcee as the 6 to 5 favorite, but this bay gelding, which finished third to Seabiscuit and Kayak II. in the Santa Anita handicap, could do no better than fifth in the field of eight.

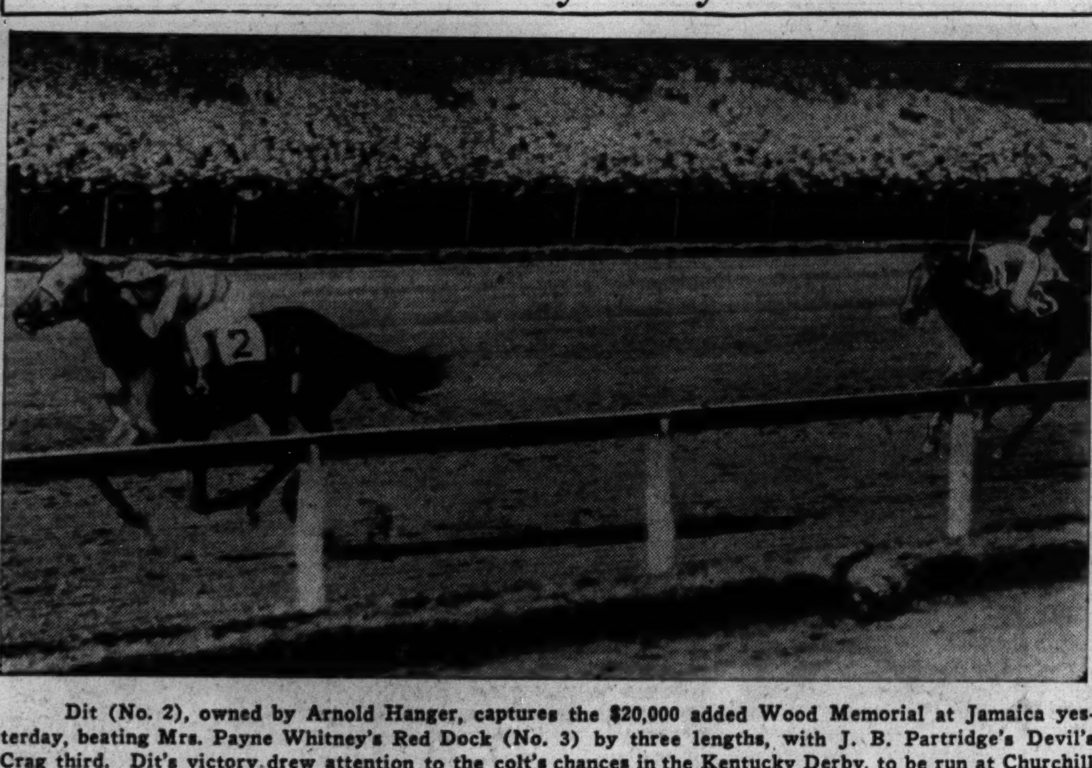
Dit Moves Into Kentucky Derby Consideration



Dit (No. 2), owned by Arnold Hanger, captures the $20,000 added Wood Memorial at Jamaica yesterday, beating Mrs. Payne Whitney's Red Dock (No. 3) by three lengths, with J. B. Partridge's Devil's Crag third. Dit's victory drew attention to the colt's chances in the Kentucky Derby, to be run at Churchill Downs Saturday. The horse returned $5.80 for each $2 mutuel ticket. Blockade Wins Steeplechase and Hunt Cup

Baltimore, Md., April 27 (AP).— Blockade, stout hearted 11 year old son of Man-O-War, hurdled an 11 year old jinx today to give his owner, Mrs. E. Read Beard, permanent possession of the Gold Challenge cup, prized trophy of the Maryland Hunt cup steeplechase. Blockade swept to his third straight victory by six lengths on the four mile course and its 22 timber and brook jumps, regarded as the toughest timber race in the country.

His victory gave Mrs. Beard both the Hunt cup and the Challenge cup donated in 1913 by Ross Whistler. The jinx was that no two time winners had ever managed a third.

Contender Falls Early.

Hopes of Charles S. Cheston, Philadelphia, to capture the challenge cup this year were dashed when his entry, Reconsidered, fell at the sixth jump when he was running abreast of Blockade. Cheston took the cup in 1933 and 1934 with his Captain Kettle.

Ridden by J. Fred Colwill, Blockade was out in front most of the way, cheered on by 20,000 spectators in the 47th running of the steeplechase.

Myrmidon, ridden by Hugh O'Donovan, came from behind after the last jump to outdash Cornwall II for second place. Cornwall II, with J. Diston up, at times led in the field of 11.

Dontara Comes a Cropper.

Dontara, entry of Mrs. B. H. Griswold III, came a cropper on the third jump.

Blockade, liking the firm footing on the course at J. W. Y. Martin's Worthington Valley estate, simply set too fast a pace for Myrmidon, winner of the Grand National 'chase in rain and mud lost Saturday, and two other well liked entries: Mrs. Frank M. Gould's Black Sweep, winner of the Middleburg, Va., cup in its last two runnings, and L. A. Randall's Monty R., who captured the My Lady's Manor Point-To-Point at Hereford, Md., recently.

CLASSIC LEAGUE TOP TEAMS WILL CLASH TONIGHT

Schlitz and Pabst Squads Head Program.

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

The Schlitz and Pabst Blue Ribbon bowling teams, champions, respectively, of the Sunday and Wednesday divisions of the Classic league, will omit a roll-off to determine a successor to the 1939 champions, the Monarch Beers; nevertheless, the schedule brings the two teams together tonight when the final three games of the Sunday division are bowled in the Stack & Ryan recreation, 1133 Milwaukee avenue.

The Schlitzes, with a 55-26 won and lost record, have a nine game margin over the Monarchs, runners-up in the Sunday division, while the Pabsts, with 69 won and 33 lost, lead the second place Schlitzes by 10 games in the Wednesday section. The Schlitzes will be at full strength tonight, but it is doubtful that Ned Day, Pabst anchor man, who was forced to postpone his singles and doubles competition in the A. B. C. tournament last week because of a leg infection, will be able to roll. If not, Capt. Eddie Krems will be in his place.

In other matches tonight the Michelobs bowl the Ambrosias; Koenigs oppose Prager, and Monarchs are paired with Power House.

Standings in the two sections:

[Sunday.]

	W.	L.		W.	L.
Schlitz	55	26	Michelob	38	43
Monarch	46	35	Koenig	36	45
Power House	42	39	Ambrosia	35	46
Pabst	41	40	Prager	31	50

[Wednesday.]

	W.	L.		W.	L.

FAMILY OF FLY FISHERS GROWS JUST LIKE TOPSY

It's No Longer Exclusive Fraternity of Yore.

BY BOB BECKER.

Seven fishermen were standing on the bank of a lake outlet a few days ago when we drove thru northern Illinois. They were fishing for crappies and bluegills. We had time to stop for a few minutes so we checked the tackle of these early season anglers. Six of the seven were using fly rods and artificial flies. The seventh had a bait casting rod and with it he was tossing a hook baited with worms into the channel. While we stood there we saw five crappies landed on flies.

The large number of early season fly fishermen in northern Illinois is indicative of a growing trend everywhere in the country toward an increased use of fly rods. For years we have urged fishermen to learn how to handle a long rod, not because fly fishing gives one a higher ranking in the sport of fishing, but because it's so much fun to fool a fish with a small artificial lure and then play it with a rod that bends much like a buggy whip. Another reason why fly fishing appeals to any fisherman [even the fellow who is interested only in the meat angle] is that it is deadly at certain times and under certain conditions. In fact, there are days when game fish will almost ignore other types of baits to swat fly rod lures and thus give the fly fisherman a definite advantage.

There was a time when fly rod outfits were very expensive and many who used such tackle were inclined to make other anglers feel as if they didn't belong. The fly fishing fraternity was limited in membership in those days and appeared to pursue its sport in a world apart from other anglers. But those days are gone. Fly rod sets [good ones, too] are no more expensive than bait casting outfits. Tackle has been improved. It has been demonstrated that it's just as easy, if not easier, to learn to toss a fly than to cast with a bait casting reel. So today more fishermen are taking up fly fishing for crappies, bluegills, bass, trout, and other species.

A fisherman today has a choice of steel and bamboo rods. The novice will do well to buy a first rod that may be a little bit heavier than he thinks he needs rather than one which is too light. We find that both the steel and bamboo rods have their good points.

State Normal Track Team Beats Illinois Wesleyan

Bloomington, Ill., April 27 [Special].—Led by Marion Cole of Lawrenceville who won the mile and two mile, the Illinois State Normal track team defeated Illinois Wesleyan, 79½ to 51½, today. The Wesleyan captain, Dominic Monge, won the discus and 120 yard high hurdles. Capt. Jim Hardgrove of Normal and Harold Wimberley, Wesleyan freshman from Roodhouse, ran a dead heat in the 100 yard dash in 10 flat. Wimberley won the 220 in 22.8.

BABE RUTH WILL OPEN EXHIBITION TOUR ON JUNE 1

George Herman [Babe] Ruth, former major league home run king, will open a batting exhibition tour in Chicago June 1.

The man who hit 734 home runs during a 20 year career with the Boston Red Sox, New York Yankees, and Boston Bees in the major leagues, will make a good-will tour which opens in Chicago and includes 10 day stopovers in middle western cities, as well as the east and far west.

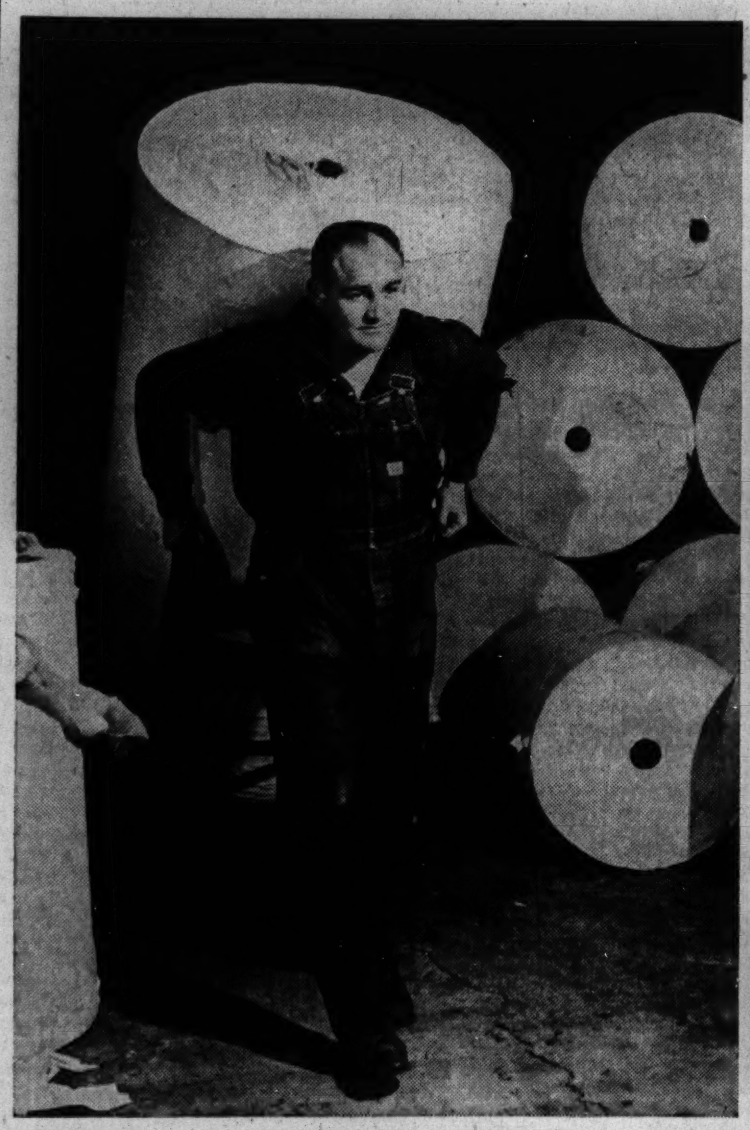
Ruth is chief instructor for Ray Doan's traveling baseball school which will hold 10 day sessions in all of the towns visited.

The tour was agreed upon early this spring when Ruth was teaching at the All-American Baseball school in Palatka, Fla. In addition to Ruth, Promoter Ray Doan has signed Gabby Street, Bobby O'Farrell, Jim [Hippo] Vaughan, Coach Otto Vogel of the University of Iowa, and Coach Wallie Roettger of the University of Illinois as members of the faculty board of the traveling school. Fundamentals of the game will be taught boys in two age groups, 15 years and under and 16 years and over.

BROWNS FARM TWO.

St. Louis, Mo., April 27 (AP).—Cutting down their rosters, the St. Louis Browns sent Shortstop Bobby Neighbors and Pitcher Loy Hanning on option to their San Antonio farm club today. Neighbors and Hanning played with Springfield, Ill., last season.

THIS IS WHAT PRO FOOTBALL PLAYERS ARE DOING THESE DAYS



Russ Letlow, guard on the Green Bay Packers' football team, National league champions who meet the College All-Americans on Soldiers' field the latter part of August, works in a Green Bay paper mill in the off season. Letlow was an all-National league choice in 1938. He is a graduate of San Francisco university.

George Wilson, Chicago Bears' end, finds employment with the Snow Ice Co., Inc., at 27th street and South Ashland avenue. He is seen packing a refrigerator car with ice. Wilson attended Northwestern and was a former star at Austin High school. He was 25 last February and is married. Next season will be his fourth with the team.

Frank Balazs, Packer full back, also works in Green Bay paper mills in the off season. He is stacking borax for use in manufacture of paper. Balazs had a highly successful first year last season. He is a graduate of the University of Iowa. Unloading sacks of this size is easy for Balazs, whose motto is "keep fit."

university two mile championship. John Kautz opened up a lead for the Wolverines that was increased so that Dye Hogan, anchor man, had 30 yards' advantage over Indiana's Campbell Kane. That decided the result, for Kane, with the handicap of a previous mile earlier in the afternoon, could not gain on the determined Wolverine.

Kane and Ralph Schwarzkopf, captain of the Michigan team, ran one of the greatest mile duels in the history of the relays. Kane's victory over Schwarzkopf gave the Hoosiers the four mile relay title.

Edgar Hedges, Charles Daniels, and Wayne Tolliver, running in this order, started Kane three yards in front for the anchor mile. Schwarzkopf, however, took the lead midway in the second lap and held it until the stretch. Kane's sprint in the last 50 yards beat the Wolverine captain by three strides.

Wolcott Pressed in Hurdles.

Ewell of Penn State won the 100 yard sprint easily. Ewell flashed to the finish line three yards in front of Billy Brown, Louisiana State, defending champion, who yesterday retained his broad jump honors. Myron Piker of Northwestern, Big 9½ sprint champion, was fifth. Penn State's other champion was Vukmanic, who threw the javelin 213 feet 9 inches. Three of the four place winners were over the 200 foot mark.

For the first time in three years, Wolcott was seriously pressed in the high hurdles. By covering the distance in 14 3-10 seconds, only one-tenth of a second slower than the all-time record he established here in 1938, the lithe southerner averted defeat by Boyce Gatewood of Texas.

120 YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by Wolcott, Rice; Gatewood, Texas, second; Dreiss, Texas A. and M., third; Gilliland, Louisiana State, fourth. Time, :14.3.

UNIVERSITY FOUR MILE RELAY—Won by Indiana [Hedges, Daniels, Tolliver, Kane]; Michigan, second; Minnesota, third; Oklahoma A. and M., fourth. Time, 17:44.

100 YARDS—Won by Ewell, Penn State; Brown, Louisiana State, second; Wolcott, Rice, third; Littler, Nebraska, fourth. Time, :09.9.

480 YARD SHUTTLE HIGH HURDLE RELAY—Won by Texas [Baggett, Jaques, Pack, Gatewood]; Louisiana State, second; Illinois, third; Marquette, fourth. Time—1:00.1 [Ties meet record established by Emporia, Kas. Teachers, 1938].

SHOT PUT—Won by Harris, Indiana, 48 feet 9¼ inches; Paskvan, Wisconsin, second, 48 feet 8½ inches; Dillon, Drake, third, 48 feet ¾ inch; Weber, Purdue, fourth, 47 feet 10 inches.

COLLEGE TWO MILE RELAY [Groups one and two]—Won by George Pepperdine college, Los Angeles [Russell, Bruitt, Summers, Luvvorn]; Emporia, Kansas Teachers, second; Pittsburgh [Kas.] Teachers, third; Coe, fourth. Time, 7:55.

UNIVERSITY 440 YARD RELAY—Won by Texas [Seay, Gatewood, Roberts, Ramsdell]; Rice, second; Texas A. & M., third; Minnesota, fourth. Time, :41.8.

UNIVERSITY TWO MILE RELAY—Won by Michigan [Barrett, Kautz, Jester, Hogan]; Indiana, second; Notre Dame, third; Illinois, fourth. Time—7:50.1.

440-YARD HURDLES—Won by Cochran, Indiana; Kelley, Michigan, second; Bunzell, Louisiana State, third; Foy, Kansas, fourth. Time—:53.3.

UNIVERSITY HALF MILE RELAY—Won by Texas [Seay, Gatewood, Roberts, Ramsdell]; Rice, second; Oakland, third; Texas A. and M., fourth. Time—1:26.7.

JAVELIN THROW—Won by Vukmanic, Penn State, 213 feet 9 inches; Grote, Nebraska, second, 204 feet 1 inch; Vosberg, Marquette, third, 203 feet, 3 inches; Waldram, Missouri, fourth, 195 feet, 5 inches.

POLE VAULT—Won by Bryan, Texas, 14 feet ⅛ inch [new meet record, former mark, 13 feet 11 inches, established by Tom Warne, Northwestern, in 1930]; Stolberg, Marquette, Higgins, Missouri, Hunt, Nebraska, and Sunseri, San Jose State, tied for second, 13 feet 8 inches.

COLLEGE MILE RELAY [Group One]—Won by East Texas State Teachers [Morris, Lowery, Benson, Cook]; Southwest Texas State Teachers, second; Iowa State Teachers, third; Pomona, fourth. Time—3:18.3.

COLLEGE ONE MILE RELAY [Group Two]—Won by Oklahoma Baptist [Pittman, Tyler, Watson, Westbrook]; Loyola, Chicago, second; Emporia, Kansas Teachers, third; Prairie View, fourth. Time, 3:19.4.

UNIVERSITY MILE RELAY—Won by Michigan [Barnard, Leutritz, Balyeat, Breidenbach]; Louisiana State, second; Notre Dame, third; Purdue, fourth. Time, 3:16.

HIGH JUMP—Won by Canham, Michigan, 6 feet 4¾ inches; James Smith of Northwestern, Schnacke of Iowa State, and Boydston of Oklahoma A. and M., tied for second, 6 feet 4 inches.

Seven Records Fall an 32,000 See Penn Meet

record of 3:19.3 was set by Maryland last year.

A Seton Hall quartet of T. Janiak, Joe Matyunas, William Gannon, and Lawrence Dineen, ran the one mile frosh relay in 3:18.9. The previous record of 3:19.2 was set by Penn frosh in 1930.

The Bishop Loughlin team of Brooklyn, made up of Francis Keane, Lawrence Schmidt, William Lindsay, and William Molloy, equaled the record of 3:25.2 for the one mile high school relay set by Altoona, Pa., last year.

Close finishes abounded in both the high school and college events, the most thrilling being provided by the two mile college relay when Jim Kehoe of Maryland and Les MacMitchell of New York U. hit the tape almost simultaneously. Maryland was declared the winner, but the time 7:48.4— was the same for both teams.

Maryland Takes Three Titles.

In setting the 880 record North Texas State also dethroned Pitt in that event. In fact, the Panthers salvaged only one of the four titles they won last year. They retained their quarter mile championship yesterday.

Maryland romped away with three of the eight major relay championships. With Mason Chronister, Southern conference mile champion, as their key man, the Marylanders won the distance medley, the four mile, and two mile events.

COLLEGE HALF MILE RELAY—Won by North Texas Teachers [W. Williams, O. Hicks, J. Jackson, E. Rogers]; Pittsburgh, second; Xavier, third; New York University, fourth. Time—1:25.4 [new record; former record, 1:25.9, set by Pittsburgh, 1939.]

JAVELIN—Won by John W. Guckeyson, Army, 203 feet 4½ inches; Edward Hahnfeldt, Navy, second, 202 feet, 2 inches; Albert Mikeska, North Texas Teachers, third, 197 feet, 11 inches; Seymour Cohen, Franklin and Marshall, fourth, 190 feet; John Armstrong, Shippensburg Teachers, fifth, 183 feet, 6 inches.

HAMMER—Won by Robert Bennett, Maine, 175 feet, 2⅛ inches; Stanley Johnson, Maine, second, 171 feet, 6½ inches; Matthew Flaherty, New Hampshire, third, 170 feet, 6½ inches; John McLaughry Brown, fourth, 156 feet, 8⅝ inches; David Davis, Princeton, fifth, 154 feet, 10 inches. [New record; old records, 174 feet, 5 inches, set by Fred Tootel, Bowdoin, 1923].

BROAD JUMP—Won by Don Blount, Dartmouth, 25 feet, ¾ inches; Walter Arrington, Michigan State, second, 23 feet, 11⅝ inches; Lester Murdock, Cornell, third, 23 feet, 4 inches; Anson Perina, fourth, 23 feet, 3 inches.

COLLEGE MILE RELAYS—First race—Won by Catholic [J. Milks, C. O'Keefe, J. Weschler, J. Doyle]; Delaware, second; Washington, third; American, fourth. Time—3:28.3.

Second race—Won by West Chester Teachers [W. Maurer, D. Cummings, J. Moore, J. Gormley]; Franklin and Marshall, second; Rochester, third; Muhlenberg, fourth. Time—3:28.8.

Third race—Won by Rider [I. Drake, C. P. Melston, F. Martin, S. Gillard]; Bloomsburg Teachers, second; La Salle, third; Howard, fourth. Time—3:31.5.

Fourth race—Won by St. John's, Brooklyn [F. Timmes, W. Osborne, A. Schutz, V. Bovino]; Rutgers, second; Lincoln, third; C. C. N. Y., fourth. Time—3:23.4.

Fifth race—Won by Seton Hall [A. Lukis, P. Wilson, W. Slack, C. Lipski]; St. Francis, Brooklyn, second; Villanova, third; Bucknell, fourth. Time—3:22.7.

SIXTH RACE—Won by Wayne [R. Wingo, D. Ainsworth, R. Waskiewicz, C. Doan]; Tuskegee, second; Lafayette, third; Washington and Lee, fourth. Time, 3:24.7.

TEACHERS COLLEGE MILE RELAY—Won by Hampton [W. Fugcron, J. Griffin, T. Childs, S. Washington]; Michigan Normal, second; Bloomsburg, third; Tuskegee, fourth. Time, 3:22.5.

FOUR MILE COLLEGE RELAY—Won by Maryland [T. Fields, R. Condon, J. Kehoe, M. Chronister]; Manhattan, second; New York university, third; Michigan State, fourth. Time, 17:44.8.

HIGH JUMP—Won by Joshua Williamson, Xavier, 6 feet 4 inches; Arthur Byrnes, Manhattan, second, 6 feet 2⅛ inches; David McDowell, Pittsburgh, third, 6 feet 2⅛ inches.

Pro Football Stars Adept in Many Tasks

Twenty-seven per cent of the young men under contract to teams in the National Football league spend the off season completing study for degrees. The remainder go to work, some with the idea of maintaining the condition that makes champions, others with an eye to the future.

At Green Bay, where many of the townsfolk haven't yet completed their celebration of last fall's victory over the New York Giants in the championship playoff, Cecil Isbell, Clarke Hinkle, and Don Hutson are under going rigid preparation for executive positions with the Kimberly-Clark Paper Co. They dig ditches, lug pulp and push trucks. These are the tasks previously given each year to three seniors selected from the graduating classes of the nation's colleges and universities. Instead of picking seniors last summer, the Kimberly-Clark company took three Packers.

Rebuild Injured Parts.

Russ Letlow, veteran Packer guard, and Frank Balazs, rookie full back last year, have gone to work for the Hoberg Paper mill, but they are interested primarily in keeping themselves in shape for the start of practice in August when the Packers assemble at Green Bay to prepare for the Tribune All-Star game. Letlow wrestles rolls of newsprint all day, exercising and strengthening the leg muscles that were torn in the championship game. Balazs, also injured last fall, builds up his weakened back with a daily stint in the receiving room of the paper company, where his task is unloading heavy sacks of borax.

Aldrich Is Printer.

Ki Aldrich, the Texas Christian center, who starred for the Cardinals last fall in his first year of professional football, tired of a prolonged vacation down south and came up to Plymouth court in Chicago to take a job in the Bentley-Murray print shop. Here he handles the type from which theater and mutuel tickets are printed.

George Wilson, the Bear end, has been studying refrigeration and for his practical experience he works for the Snow Ice company on the west side. Part of his assignment is the packing of refrigerator cars with pulverized ice, which is blown into the car after vegetables or other perishables have been loaded.

CHILI WALSH IS ADDED TO CARDS' FOOTBALL STAFF

Ex-Notre Dame Player to Coach Back Field.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Reorganization of the Chicago Cardinals' coaching staff was completed yesterday with the signing of Charles [Chili] Walsh, one half of Hollywood's contribution to Notre Dame football during the Four Horsemen era, and Phil Handler.

Walsh will serve as back field assistant to the Cardinals' new head coach, Jimmy Conzelman, and Handler, a former Cardinal guard, will continue as line coach, a position he held under Paul Schissler, Jack Chevigny, Milan Creighton, and Ernie Nevers, the more recent members of the fast growing association of former Cardinal head coaches. Handler and Walsh received one year contracts.

Notre Dame System Team.

With the signing of Walsh, the Cardinals definitely become a Notre Dame system team. Conzelman had considerable success with a modified Notre Dame offense at Washington university in St. Louis, where he won a Missouri Valley title last fall, and he plans on installing the system on the south side. Walsh, altho he was an end on the late Knute Rockne's 1925, 1926, and 1927 teams, successfully coached the back field at St. Louis university for four years and is thoroly familiar with the system.

Conzelman also was influenced by the fact that Green Bay has won five championships in the National league with a modified Notre Dame system. Like Green Bay, Conzelman prefers the shift behind an unbalanced line, but he also will employ the regular Notre Dame balanced line formations extensively.

Brother of Adam Walsh.

Walsh is a brother of Adam Walsh, captain and All-American center of Notre Dame's Four Horsemen team in 1924. He followed Adam as the star of the Hollywood, Cal., High school team and altho he did not gain the national fame of his brother in college, he held a regular starting assignment for three years at Notre Dame.

In 1928 Walsh went to St. Louis university as back field coach to Hunk Anderson. He became head coach in 1930 and in 1931 was made athletic director. He coached the St. Louis Gunners, a professional team, in 1934, and for the last few years has been affiliated with the sales and public relations staff of a large hotel chain. He played on the East team against the West in the San Francisco Shrine game in 1927 and in 1930 participated in the New York charity game in which a team of Notre Dame stars played the New York Giants.

Turner Talks Terms with Bears.

Walsh sent his St. Louis university team against Conzelman's Washington eleven twice, winning 19 to 6 in 1932 and 6 to 0 in 1933.

While Owner Charles Bidwill was signing coaches yesterday, Owner George Halas of the Bears was attempting to sign players. Clyde [Bulldog] Turner, 225 pound center from Hardin-Simmons, flew in from Abilene, Tex., talked terms, placed a contract in his pocket and flew back to Texas. Turner asked permission to have his father read the contract. If his father approves, Turner will sign next week.

C. Y. O. Boxers Meet Hawaiian Team July 10

Plans were completed yesterday to present an outstanding amateur boxing show in Soldiers' field Wednesday night, July 10, when Catholic Youth organization boxers will meet an Hawaiian squad.

The Hawaiian boxers will come to Chicago under the auspices of the Hawaii C. Y. O., which was organized in 1936 following a visit to the islands of a group of Chicago C. Y. O. boxers. The organization has spread from Honolulu to other towns in the territory of Hawaii in the four years that have elapsed.

The Hawaiian boxers are now en route home from Boston, where they won the national A. A. U. team boxing championship recently. Two Hawaiians won national titles and two others reached the finals.

St. John's Teams Defeat Hyde Park Three Times

Delafield, Wis., April 27 [Special]. —St. John's Military academy teams made a clean sweep today against Hyde Park High school of Chicago. The baseball team won, 11 to 1, behind the pitching of Ted Prideaux, who was credited with 13 strikeouts. The golfers triumphed 15 to 0, and the tennis team was victorious, 4 to 2.

BUSINESS CHIEFS LEAVE FOR 28TH C. OF C. MEETING

Oscar Mayer, John Black Head Chicago Group.

Prominent Chicago business executives left for Washington, D. C., yesterday to participate in the discussion of legislative and business problems affecting the nation at the 28th annual convention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The convention will open tomorrow and hold sessions thru Thursday.

Oscar G. Mayer, president of Oscar Mayer & Co., packing company, and president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and John D. Black, national councilor of the association, will represent the association, along with 16 other delegates. W. Homer Hartz, president, and B. C. Heacock, chairman of the board, headed a delegation of 20 members of the Illinois Manufacturers' association. Hartz is president of the Morden Frog and Crossing works, Chicago, and Heacock is president of the Caterpillar Tractor company, Peoria.

Press for Labor Law Revision.

Illinois members of congress will be guests of the associations at a banquet Wednesday.

The Chicago and Illinois delegations will press for adoption of a program designed to stimulate business and industrial recovery, with one of the principal proposals a revision of the national labor relations law. The program was outlined recently with the assertion economic conditions would be improved materially thru elimination of what were termed labor law provisions which hamper business and at the same time do not benefit labor.

Gen. Charles Gates Dawes is scheduled to discuss "the job confronting the next President of the United States in averting a national financial crisis." Dawes, chairman of the City National Bank and Trust company and former vice president of the United States, will address the national chamber on Tuesday.

To Discuss Export Trade.

C. M. Wynne, another Chicagoan, will speak Wednesday on the subject: "Building Export Trade Under War Conditions." Wynne is widely known as an authority on foreign trade and is managing director of Overseas Industries, Inc.

W. Gibson Carey Jr., president of the Yale and Towne Manufacturing company and president of the national chamber, will deliver an address, "Build America," theme of the convention, at a general session Tuesday. The convention will conclude with a banquet Thursday addressed by Lewis W. Douglas, former director of the budget and now president of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York.

FOREIGN BONDS ADVANCE; OTHER ISSUES NARROW

New York, April 27 (AP).—Important swings in today's quiet bond market were confined to the foreign list where various leaders pushed up 1 to 3 points. Most prominent were Japanese 5½s and 6½s, German 5½s and 7s, Belgian 6s, 6½s, and 7s, and Uruguay 6s. Most of the gains, traders believed, were due to speculative buying for a rally inspired by the recent sharp drop in prices on war commodities.

Corporate loans were quiet and prices remained narrow. Only a few United States government loans were traded at prices ranging from 13-32ds higher to 2-32ds lower.

Transactions of $2,756,000, face value were the smallest for a Saturday session since Feb. 3. Volume on the preceding Saturday was $3,078,700.

COTTON

While American cotton markets showed a firm undertone yesterday trading was light. Closing trades were .05 cent higher to .03 cent a pound lower, the old crop months showing the strength. More favorable weather conditions in the southwest and buying of May and July against sales of the distant positions was responsible for the easiness in the latter.

Exports of cotton goods from Japan from Jan. 1 to March 31 this year are reported at 910,000,000 square yards, compared with 510,000,000 yards during the same period in 1939.

Spot cotton closed .04 to .05 cent higher with New York, 10.98 cents; New Orleans, 10.82 cents; Houston, 10.48 cents, and Galveston at 10.45 cents a pound. Prices follow:

COAL PRODUCER ASSAILS FEDERAL PRICE DICTATION

Charges Requirements Mathematical Farce.

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 27 (AP)—President J. D. A. Morrow of the Pittsburgh Coal company declared that price fixing in the coal industry may boomerang and cause industrialists to turn to other sources of fuel.

J. D. A. Morrow.

Morrow assailed the federal bituminous coal act as "dictatorial," and asserted that its pricing requirements were a mathematical absurdity, an equation that not even an Einstein could solve. He said there were 13,500 coal mines and 150,000 destinations to be taken into consideration in making prices, as well as the size and classification of various kinds of coal.

Charges Blow at Industry.

Morrow charged that larger lump sizes, sold for resale to householders, had been depressed in price while the smaller and exclusively industrial sizes had been raised, adding:

"This is an openly admitted attempt to force industry to pay much more for its coal while the householder pays less, and thus popularizes this scheme. It is a brazen exercise of autocratic power for political purposes."

The price fixing act is one of two "revolutions" in the soft coal industry, Morrow told the eastern regional conference of the Robert Morris Associates, an organization of bank credit men. The other revolution, he said, is mechanization of coal production.

Calls Scheme Fantastic.

"The revolution in the wholesale selling of our coal imposed by act of government is a fantastic and incredible thing in this democracy of America—if it is still a democracy," he declared.

"To those of us who believe the American political and economic system has contributed more to human progress and happiness than any other creation of the race, it is as shocking as the 'blitzkrieg' in Poland.

"For here we have a bold attempt to destroy that system of our industry, and if this revolution establishes its order, then we will have this great basic industry run, not by men who invest their savings, their energy, but by impersonal authority in Washington—arbitrary, dictatorial, and absolute."

BUBBLING TEST TUBES.

The chemical industry is distinguished by its vigorous pioneering. While other industries slacken their pace or falter as old age creeps upon them, the chemical industry opens new frontiers of enterprise.

The secret of the sturdy growth of industrial and agricultural chemistry is research. Makers of chemicals maintain the largest laboratory staff of any industry. The ratio for the chemical industry of 300 research technicians to every 10,000 workers is the second highest in the country.

The emphasis on research is the result of the continuous and highly competitive hunt for more economical substitutes and processes as well as for new and diversified products. The quiet work done with laboratory test tubes is the source of the industry's youthfulness and vigor.

The chemical industry in this country developed at a leisurely rate until the world war. The wartime demand for dyes, explosives, gases, and other military chemicals was the propelling force which caused industrial chemistry to expand swiftly. In five years from 1914 the value of the industry's output trebled.

The depression of 1921 retarded only slightly the chemical industry's steady rise to the 1929 peak. Its ability to recover swiftly from business slumps was displayed again in 1933 when, after a harder fall, the industry bounced to a new high in production of more than a billion dollars in chemicals.

The output last year was estimated at about 1¾ billion dollars. Improvement in general business and increased exports as a result of the war were expected to aid the industry this year.

The tendency of chemical manufacturers to cut prices by increasing volume output has developed a situation in which added profits must be sought in new products and larger markets.

This search has already developed a multitude of new chemicals and products. The greatest achievement has been in the organic branch of the industry where synthetic fibers and plastics have been fabricated. The future growth of the industry, however, will depend largely on the trend of consumption of chemicals by general industry and agriculture.

[A list of chemical manufacturers and another of plastics companies are available to investors interested in the chemical industry. Reports on individual companies will also be sent upon request.]

FARMERS' HOLD OFF HOG POLICY BOOSTS PRICES

Packers Forced to Pay More as Receipts Fall.

The hold off policy maintained by hog raisers and feeders during the last three weeks sent the hog price average soaring from a six year low of $4.90 a hundred pounds the first week in April to $6.15 last week. This price was the highest in more than five months and only 50 cents a hundred pounds under the corresponding week in 1939.

With more hogs on hand than last year, farmers cut their volume of selling below the 1939 receipts at all leading packing centers. The 287,000 hogs received at the eleven leading markets last week cost packers a total of approximately $4,061,000, at the rate of $14.15 apiece. The same number of hogs three weeks ago required an investment of only $3,228,000 at the rate of $11.25 apiece. Average 25,000 pound carloads of hogs returned farmers $1,537 last week, against $1,225 three weeks earlier.

Find Corn Hard to Get.

Farmers in many sections of the corn belt have run up against an acute corn situation in their attempt to hold down hog supplies at the markets in their drive for higher prices. Many hog raisers and feeders who visited the Chicago stockyards the last few days to study the effects of the lighter receipts said they are finding it difficult to obtain sufficient corn to continue feeding hogs. Some admit they might be forced to liquidate unless government sealed corn comes out on the market in larger volume.

Farmers said there is no incentive to unseal corn for selling because after the 3 or 4 cents a bushel expense of the loan is taken care of on top of the payment of 57 cents to the government, there is no margin of profit left at present prices.

According to the Commodity Credit corporation, 13 states have 300,279,980 bushels sealed, and only 500,000 bushels have been taken out by farmers who paid off the loan.

Pork Is Relatively Cheap.

Meat men said yesterday that the large stocks of cured pork in storage plants have prevented a sharp rise in pork costs to consumers. A survey of the wholesale meat markets yesterday disclosed that many cured cuts of pork such as hams and bacon have changed very little in price during the last three weeks, and all cuts of pork except top light pork loins are substantially lower than a year ago.

Many classes of cattle also reached new 1940 peaks last week. The top load brought $13,10, the highest price paid for steers since May of last year. The week's average, at $9.80, up 25 cents, stood highest since early last week sold at $12.50.

Slaughter lambs were weak to 15 cents lower. The six day average dropped to $9.75.

BRITISH LEARN CLUB IS HIDDEN IN WAR BUDGET

Find Finance Plan Not So Moderate.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April, 27.—British business men and industrialists, after a close study of Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon's £2,667,000,000 budget proposal [about $9,394,507,000, based on the quotation of $3.52¼ for the pound on April 23, the day the budget was submitted] found themselves this week-end still grappling in the dark with the problem of how this country will pay for the war.

The congratulatory "grin and bear it" atmosphere evidenced in the house of commons and in financial circles immediately after the chancellor's outline of Britain's balance sheet, gave way on second thoughts to bewilderment and uncertainty as to the government's real intentions. The relief first felt because of an absence of a further increase in direct taxation was quickly followed by fears that borrowing will cause inflation and the market will be upset by Simon's dividend limitation scheme and the new sales tax.

Strong Opposition Expected.

Some quarters expressed concern over what was termed a "lack of realism" implied in the low estimate for the war expenditure for the coming year and this aspect is likely to loom large in the budget debates to be resumed in the house of commons Tuesday. The critical attitude of members of parliament representing business interests has cut right across party lines and the chancellor, as has already been indicated by parliamentary discussions, will have to face a storm from Conservative as well as opposition members.

Gradually emerging from the uncertainty, however, is the conviction that because of the inability to figure out war costs 12 months ahead the government deliberately framed the budget proposals vaguely, allowing sufficient flexibility for its welding into any shape the government chooses. Details of the new sales tax, observers said, still are not defined, but already it is viewed as a double barreled weapon to be employed either to cut down domestic consumption or as a profitable source for untapped revenue.

Means of Manipulation.

The annual turnover of goods affected by this tax is valued in business circles around 1 billion pounds [about 3 billion 500 million dollars]. On this basis the comparatively moderate 5 per cent levy would net the government 50 million pounds annually [about 1 billion 750 million dollars]. But by manipulating the scale of taxation it is realized the government could effectively reduce the domestic consumption of certain articles which may be needed for export purposes or reduce production which would be interfering with the war effort.

Altho stock market circles are still unable to gauge the full effect of the limiting of dividends to the highest paid in one of the three years preceding the war, the scheme is obviously designed to divert surplus earnings into war loans. Compulsory investment in government issues was not directly suggested by the chancellor but the treasury is now in complete control of the capital market and outlets for new investments are strictly limited.

Financial Writers Differ.

Some financial writers looked askance at Simon's proposal to obtain £1,433,000,000 [about $5,047,742,000], or approximately 54 per cent of the estimated expenditure for the coming year thru loans, and declared there was nothing in the existing economic position to show this could be done without resorting to inflationary finance. Others maintained the budget figures were illusory and the real ratio between taxation and borrowings in financing the war would not be revealed until the sales tax proposal was finally worked out and in operation.

The increase in indirect taxation and the growing direct government interference in industry has had a dampening effect on wartime profit expectations. The new sales tax, unless it is confined to a smaller range of goods than at present is indicated, will lead to intensified demands from workers for higher pay, it is believed.

The upshot of four days of pondering is that Simon's latest budget, originally termed "moderate and orthodox," will prove in effect much more severe than was expected.

Majestic Radio Plan Is Put Up to Stockholders

Majestic Radio and Television corporation's plan for its reorganization will be approved by Judge John P. Barnes of the United States District court if stockholders and creditors indorse it, the judge announced yesterday after vigorous objections had been made at a hearing.

Minority creditors, some stockholders, the Securities and Exchange commission and the Radio Corporation of America fought the plan. The SEC charged proposed new stock would be half "water."

New Company Proposed.

Judge Barnes ordered Leo T. Norvill, attorney for Majestic to present formal orders for approval and to send notices of the plan to creditors and stockholders. The plan is subject to approval by two-thirds of the 250 creditors and a majority of the shareholders. Judge Barnes set no date for the court's formal action of approval.

Majestic, a Chicago company, has been in bankruptcy since last October. Under the plan, a new company of the same name would be formed. It would have 80,000 shares of authorized preferred stock and 1,500,000 shares of new 1 cent par value common stock. It would have a funded debt of $165,000, consisting of new 5 per cent 10 year debentures, which for the first four years would pay interest only if earnings covered such interest.

Pay Underwriters in Stock.

The debentures are to be underwritten by three New York companies, Allied International Investing corporation, Automatic Products corporation, and Allen B. Dumont Laboratories, Inc., for a combined fee of 82,500 shares of common stock. Allied International and Automatic Products have claims against Majestic, which would be treated specially, the two companies receiving for their claims a total of 150,000 shares of the new common.

The court was informed the underwriters are prepared to take up any portion of the $165,000 of debentures not disposed of.

With the exception of the two claimants receiving special treatment, unsecured creditors will receive one share of preferred stock for each $10 of claims. Stockholders in the old company will receive rights to subscribe at 30 cents a unit to 30 cents worth of debentures and one share of new common stock.

SEC Opposed to Plan.

SEC attorneys told the court the plan is not feasible and fails to meet the standards of fairness required by law. They said no showing had been made that would indicate financial success for the reorganized company, that the company would emerge from reorganization without sufficient working capital and that the new common stock would be "50 per cent water."

Radio Corporation of America counsel said Radio corporation will stand on its petition to terminate its license agreement with Majestic unless past due royalties of about $23,000 are paid in cash. The counsel said the agreement is not transferrable to a new company.

Judge Defends Proposals.

Attorneys for creditors having claims of $40,000 asked liquidation of Majestic rather than reorganization.

When objection was made that control of the new company would fall to the three underwriters of the debentures, Judge Barnes said it is unlikely that any group could be found that would put up new money without obtaining control of the board of directors. The minority creditors and stockholders had admitted that liquidation probably would not yield more than 5 or 10 cents on the dollar.

USE OF INJUNCTIONS RISES IN WAGE-HOUR LAW ENFORCEMENT

Washington, D. C., April 27 (AP).—The wage-hour administration disclosed today an increasing use of injunctions and criminal prosecutions to force employer compliance with the law.

In the last six months, the agency said, 231 civil suits and 88 criminal cases have been filed, compared with 45 civil and 48 criminal cases in the first year's operation of the act.

There have been 208 injunctions granted out of the 231 actions filed, with three denied and the remainder pending. Of the criminal cases, the agency said 50 employers had pleaded guilty to indictments charging wage-hour law violations and had been assessed $266,862 in fines.

Back wage restitution growing out of litigation over the payment of subminimum wages, the agency said, has aggregated more than $500,000.

TAX SALE OF 450 LOTS NETS COSTS OF FORECLOSURE

Cook county's public sale of 450 tax foreclosed lots in Franklin Park last week netted $8,479, or about 4 per cent of the $200,000 in unpaid taxes that had accumulated on the properties, it was announced yesterday. Officials expressed belief this sum would cover all costs of foreclosing and returning the lots to the tax rolls.

Bids ranged from $5 to $250 and averaged about $20 a lot. Buyers must wait the customary two years for the deeds. Within that time the original owner may redeem their properties by paying the buyers whatever was bid, plus 6 per cent interest and any unpaid current taxes.

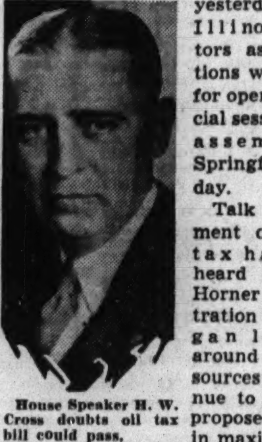
The low bids were for outlying lots without any improvements. All were 25 to 125 feet.

British Pound Dips ½ Cent in New York to $3.50½

The British pound sterling declined another ⅛ cent in terms of the American dollar in yesterday's foreign exchange dealings at New York. The closing price was $3.50⅛. The Dutch guilder rose 0.02 cent, but most other leading currencies, including the Canadian dollar, held steady at Friday's closing levels.

Move for Tax on Oil Opposed by Legislators

Growing opposition to a state production tax on crude oil was reported yesterday among Illinois legislators as preparations went ahead for opening a special session of the assembly at Springfield Tuesday.



House Speaker H. W. Cross doubts oil tax bill could pass.

Talk of enactment of such a tax has been heard since the Horner administration first began looking around for new sources of revenue to finance a proposed increase in maximum payments for old age assistance.

The special session will have before it a proposal to boost the maximum for old age payments from $30 a month to $40, and to provide a way to raise the extra revenue. This, officials said, would make it possible for the legislature to consider an oil production tax even tho such a tax is not mentioned in the special session call.

However, doubts have been expressed by some leaders, including Hugh W. Cross, Republican speaker of the house, that Republicans will consent to any new taxes at this time, unless they are in lieu of existing taxes.

Expect No Fight on Pensions.

Political observers at Springfield said that they do not expect much opposition to the proposed amendment of the old age assistance act, but that any proposal to put a production or "severance" tax on crude oil would start a legislative battle.

Oil men have declared that any such tax would put another burden on the oil industry, which they assert is already heavily taxed, and that one effect would be to curb incentive in the industry.

Oil already is taxed as "real estate" thru a system of appraising the value of active wells over a period of years.

At the present rate of oil production in Illinois, a severance tax of 3 cents a barrel would add about $4,500,000 a year to the oil industry taxes. Various rates for such a tax, ranging from 2 to 5 cents a barrel, have been discussed in recent months.

Doubt Action Before Election.

Oil men charge that with producers now paying a property tax on oil wells, drilling rigs, storage tanks, and other equipment, it would be discriminatory to single out the oil production industry for additional taxation.

Political observers expressed doubt that either the Democrats or the Republicans will want to push thru a tax bill prior to the November election. They consider it more likely that the production tax will be left for the next regular session.

INDUSTRY FAILS TO ESTABLISH A TREND FOR WEEK

War Suppliers Busy, but Others Lag.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Factories tuned to wartime demands led several American industries in a quickening march to higher ground last week, but other key industries fell back.

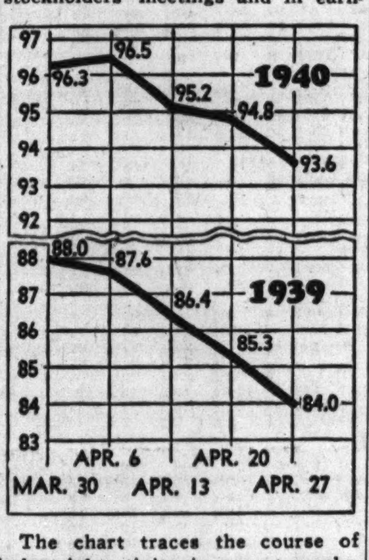
The munitions business stirred in a grim response to European developments. Makers of war planes and ships were busier than in the preceding week, and paper mills, influenced by the isolation of Scandinavia, important supplier of pulp and paper, speeded up as prices of some paper products were advanced.

Security Offerings Rise.

Meantime new offerings of securities rose in volume, banks loaned more to business, residential building work expanded, and private engineering construction projects showed an increase, altho a slackening of public construction was reported. Latest available figures indicated an upward trend in railroad freight business and electric power output.

In contrast, retail and wholesale trade made smaller gains than the season normally brings, steel mills again reduced output, cotton textile production fell off, and bank clearings decreased in volume. Automobile plants turned out fewer cars, altho sales were said to be brisk.

Corporation news, as disclosed at stockholders' meetings and in earnings reports, was mostly favorable. Bethlehem Steel corporation voted the largest quarterly dividend [$1.25] it has paid in recent years, and reported the largest first quarter profit since world war days.



The chart traces the course of industrial activity in recent weeks, as measured by the Associated Press' seasonally adjusted composite index, which is based on 1929-'30 activity as 100.

Shipbuilding Shows Gains.

Bethlehem has benefited from increased ship orders, and is one of the companies expected to gain business as a result of the removal of Scandinavian merchant fleets from the seas, a development which has caused American ship operators to look forward to increased business.

American vessel operators were reported to be increasing their share of shipping, especially on Latin American routes.

A hardening of prices for sheet and strip steel was interpreted as a sign that the steel industry is gaining confidence. Leading mills canceled recent price cuts. The industry still faces the problem of slackening domestic buying, however. Steel journals said inventories are large. On the other hand, foreign demand for steel was said to be increasing.

Mills reduced steel output to an average of 60 per cent of capacity for the week, compared with 60.9 per cent in the preceding week.

Automobile production totaled 101,-

Seaway Plan Is Condemned as 'Ruinous'

Buffalo, N. Y., April 27 (AP).—The Niagara frontier planning board today described the proposed St. Lawrence seaway as "generally ruinous to American commerce, industry, labor, and capital." That was the conclusion made by the board in a report of a five month survey of the project.

C. J. Hamlin leads group opposing seaway.

"The seaway would be so generally ruinous to American commerce, industry, labor, and capital that its nation-wide deleterious effects would far exceed whatever claimed advantages might redound to certain special interests from the waterway or to New York state and the province of Ontario from the power plan," the report said.

Officials to Get Copies.

Copies of the report, Chairman Chauncey J. Hamlin said, would be sent President Roosevelt and his cabinet, all members of congress, state governors, and Canadian officials.

Specific conclusions were:

A minimum total cost of $1,120,588,000; loss of $109,647,000 to American labor, transportation, and industry due to diversion of business to foreign carriers; possible maximum saving to the farmer of 3 cents a bushel on export grain which would be absorbed by the foreign purchaser and vessel owner.

Other Contentions in Report.

Foreign tramp steamers would have almost exclusive use of the seaway. because of shallow drafts; responsibility for defense might endanger relations with Canada; subsidization by United States of Canadian power to extent of $48,860,000; adequate power potentialities exist in New York and eastern Canada, and neither New York City nor western New York is a practical market for St. Lawrence power.

The planning board, comprising city and county officials in Erie and Niagara counties, has opposed the project.

The American Furniture Mart's spring home furnishings show will open tomorrow. Officials said yesterday that they expect about 2,500 merchants and buyers to attend the show.

MARCH EXPORTS OF PORK DIP TO NEW LOW MARK

British and Canadian Rules Cut Sales.

Restrictions placed on the purchase of pork in the United States by England and Canada late in February resulted in the smallest March exports on the records of the department of commerce, which date back more than 50 years. The department reported yesterday that shipments of pork last month totaled only 4,701,917 pounds.

February exports were 27,682,121 pounds and the January shipments totaled 28,587,458 pounds. Pork exports in March last year were 10,864,417 pounds. Canada alone during February, 1940, purchased 14,758,162 pounds of fresh and frozen pork in this country, and during January took 8,651,059 pounds.

Stocks Reported Large.

According to reports from the Canadian department of agriculture, cold storage houses in both England and Canada are well stocked with pork. Soon after the declaration of war by England, Canada made arrangements to ship nearly its entire pork output to England and started buying pork in the United States for domestic use last December.

However, packers across the border learned that England was unable to absorb the pork, and supplies began piling up. The flood of supplies from the United States threatened the price structure in the Canadian pork and hog markets. This brought the action by the Canadian government late in February in placing a quota of 1,625,000 pounds monthly on purchases in the United States.

April 1 Storage Figures.

On April 1 Canada had 60,983,571 pounds of pork in store. This was an increase of about 3,000,000 pounds over the large March 1 holdings. Stocks were 34,810,698 pounds on April 1 last year, and the five year average was 45,864,052.

Because of heavy pork sales in the first two months of this year exports from the United States in the first quarter were the largest in 10 years. The three month total, 60,971,496 pounds, compared with 27,552,998 a year ago and 21,961,613 two years ago.

March lard exports totaled 20,654,210 pounds, compared with 25,132,915 pounds during February and 27,588,373 pounds in January. The March sales a year ago totaled 22,157,416 pounds. Lard exports in the first three months of 1940 were 73,375,498 pounds, compared with 75,161,292 pounds a year earlier.

WINGS OF WAR GIVE BIG LIFT TO AIRCRAFT FIRMS

Exports in 3 Months Soar 225 Pct.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C, April 27.—Demand for war wings has the American aircraft business zooming. Trade figures released today show that aircraft exports in the first quarter of 1940 soared about 225 per cent over those of a year ago.

Frank Ashton-Gwatkin, British agent, says trade friction has been ironed out.

Shipments in the first three months totaled $66,800,000, compared with $20,600,000 in the corresponding months of 1939. Shipments in March, as the European war grew hotter, were the third largest on record, exceeded only by those in January and last December.

March shipments of $20,736,000 compared with $25,500,000 in January, 1940, and $28,900,000 last December. They were 4 per cent above the $20,600,000 worth of airplanes and parts exported in February.

Run Far Above Year Ago.

Aeronautic exports in the first quarter were equal to 57 per cent of those for all of 1939, which were $116,910,000, and barely missed equaling those for all of 1938, when shipments totaled $68,209,000.

American planes and parts, including engines, have been shipped to 70 countries so far in 1940, but 10 countries have taken 94 per cent of the total. The French and British empires took the largest part for use in the war with Germany. But the spread of the war and preparations for further expansion of the war zone are reflected in large orders from the smaller nations, including Scandinavia.

France Leads in Buying.

France led the list with purchases of $32,741,917. Others in the list were Australia, $7,746,773; United Kingdom [England, Wales, Scotland, and northern Ireland], $7,609,266; Canada, $4,400,640; Finland, $3,181,687; Sweden, $2,357,470; Turkey, $1,597,794; Norway,

STOCKS FINISH UNEVEN WEEK IN SELECTIVE RALLY

Machinery and Shipping Shares Lead Rise.

New York, April 27 (AP).—Selective recoveries today tipped the stock market slightly upward and enabled most of the list to close an uneven week with minor net advance.

Machinery and shipping stocks led the rise, with steels, aircrafts, and a few rails, coppers and farm implements showing moderate strength. Motors, rubbers, mail orders, and oils lagged. Gains ran to a point or so for favorites.

Ribbentrop Blast Ignored.

Financial quarters found nothing particularly upsetting in Nazi Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop's blast at the empires with the intensification of the overseas conflict, however, stocks of companies that can manufacture war materials were brought to the fore.

Forecasts of an upswing in next week's steel mill operations aided shares in the metal group. Aircrafts, recently sluggish, got more attention on the idea big plane orders from abroad in the last several weeks may have not been entirely discounted. More favorable prospects for passage of the transportation bill in congress helped carriers.

Trading Is Dull.

It was the slowest session since March 9, transfers for the two hours totaling 349,040 shares, against 720,660 last Saturday.

Baldwin Locomotive, Bridgeport Brass, and National Acme were among 14 issues reaching new 1940 highs. Other gainers included United States Steel, Bethlehem, Worthington Pump, International Paper, New York Shipbuilding, International Mercantile Marine, American Car & Foundry, American Smelting, Douglas Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Ex-Cell-O corporation, Johns-Manville, Loft, and Great Northern.

WHEAT FUTURES PRICES RISE ON SHORT COVERING

The wheat market staged a rally of about 1⅛ cents a bushel at one time yesterday after an early decline of about ½ cent. The downturn had carried prices back to near the level that prevailed at the time Germany invaded Denmark and Norway. Closing trades were ½ to ⅞ cent higher.

Short covering by traders who were evening up for the week-end was responsible for the upturn, brokers said. Outside trade, however, was not as large as recently, and the market was rather easily influenced at times.

Corn and other grains followed the action of wheat. Trade was mainly of a professional character. Corn futures closed ⅝ to ⅞ cent higher. The Winnipeg rye market which showed pronounced weakness at the close on Friday finished at gains of about 3 cents yesterday.

REPORT COPPER RUSSIA BOUGHT IS TURNED BACK

Traders Hear Britain Has Extended Blockade.

American copper turned back in mid-Pacific on a voyage to Vladivostok has come home to roost, according to reports in the New York metal trade yesterday. The shipment, estimated at 15,000 tons, is part of substantial supplies acquired in this country by Russia earlier in the year, and was sent back presumably thru operation of the expanded British blockade.

Altho Russia's efforts to dispose of the metal have not been successful thus far, New York dealers said little apparent effort is being made to force it on the American market. They reported the metal may have to be sold at a substantial discount because the Russian specifications as to shape and size made the copper less valuable to other consumers. Reports indicated an unnamed motor producer as a potential buyer of part of the Russian holdings.

Copper for future delivery closed about steady, one point lower to 2 higher, in yesterday's New York commodities markets, and other metals were about unchanged. Sugar futures rose 0.02½ cent a pound and slight advances were posted for Santos coffee, cottonseed oil, and cocoa. Rubber, hides, and wool top futures slipped a notch. Yesterday's and comparative prices:

SEVERAL FIRMS IN CHICAGO AREA HAVE PROFIT GAIN

Abbott Laboratories Sets Record for Quarter

Several Chicago area companies yesterday reported that their earnings for various periods ending in 1940 were larger than a year earlier.

Abbott Laboratories, North Chicago manufacturer of pharmaceutical and vitamin products, announced that profits and sales for the first quarter and for the 12 months ended March 31 were the largest ever recorded for the company.

Quarter Profit $745,491.

March quarter profit was $745,491, equal to 96 cents a share on the common stock, compared with $617,835, or 88 cents a share, in the corresponding 1939 period. Consolidated net income for the 12 months rose to $2,119,150, or $2.71 a share, from $1,770,831, or $2.50 a share, in the preceding 12 months.

Sales for the latest quarter, totaling $3,412,716, were 18 per cent larger than the volume of $2,889,195 reported a year earlier. Twelve month net sales were $12,008,929, compared with $10,196,365, an increase of 17 per cent.

General Finance corporation, Chicago, had March profit of $24,160, or 2 cents a share, a small decline from the $25,945 earned in the 1939 month, but net income for the four months ended March 31 rose to $115,059, equal to 11 cents a share, from $92,451, or 7 cents a share a year earlier.

Clothing Maker Nets More.

Reliance Manufacturing company, Chicago maker of work clothing and play garments, reported it earned $80,759 in the first three months of this year, compared with $39,988 in the 1939 period.

Pressed Steel Car company, which has one of its plants in the Chicago area, had March quarter net income of $436,914, equal to 72 cents a share, against net loss of $237,906 in the first three months of last year. A large part of the company's first preferred stock is held by General American Transportation corporation, Chicago.

Hershey Chocolate corporation, Hershey, Pa., had net profit of $1,758,856, equal to $1.82 a share, in the March quarter, compared with $1,795,514, or $1.88 a share, in the 1939 period.

McWilliams Dredging company, Chicago, reported for the three months ended March 31 net loss of $24,585. In the 1939 period it had profit of $4,635. Its volume of uncompleted work on March 31 was $3,212,000, compared with $1,369,000 a year earlier.

The Truck Tests.

CHICAGO.—With reference to the article in THE TRIBUNE of April 7, 1940, headed "Delivery Study Tests Truck and Express Service," we regret that the tests indicate general lack of routing experience, or information on direct routes to the points, to which the number of hours given for trucks is abnormally in excess of the service actually available.

This is especially true in the figures published for the following:

Chicago to Buffalo, N. Y.—Tribune tests: Hours—Truck, 97:00; express, 48:30. By Inter-State system the running time is 26 hours, and second morning delivery is made. Total door to door delivery, 40 to 48 hours.

Chicago to Columbus, O.—Tribune tests: Hours—Truck, 37:52; express, 23:55. By Lecrone Motor Transport Lines, Inc., truck running time is 10 to 12 hours. Overnight service is rendered on freight received at their terminal or picked up by their own truck up to 6 p. m.

Chicago to Denver, Colo.—Tribune tests: Hours—Truck, 69:30; express, 46:40. By Denver-Chicago Trucking company, the truck running time is 36 hours, and second morning delivery is made with trucks leaving at 6 p. m.

Chicago to Detroit, Mich.—Tribune tests: Hours—Truck, 34:25; express, 23:45. By Inter-State system truck running time is 12 hours, and next morning delivery is made.

Chicago to East St. Louis, Ill.—Tribune tests: Hours—Truck, 50:50; express, 23:00. By Decatur Cartage company overnight service is provided regularly.

Surely with adequate routing information, more direct service could have been secured for the truck shipments to many of the points, and the hours substantially reduced.

TOY AIRCRAFT SALES RIVAL THOSE IN BIG WARPLANE INDUSTRY

Hollywood, Cal., April 27 [Special].—While war orders are piling up huge backlogs and taxing production facilities of the aircraft industry, one local company is building aircraft designed to bring joy to boys thruout the world, and likewise finding it difficult to keep up with orders.

Reginald Denny.

The company is Reginald Denny Industries, Inc., of Hollywood, designers and builders of miniature airplanes ranging from rubber band propelled gliders to ships propelled by an engine which develops up to ¼ horse power.

Like its bigger brothers, the company is receiving orders from all parts of the world, and boasts a sales record and backlog of unfilled orders rivaling in quantities some of the major companies.

Reginald Denny Industries was founded about six years ago by the film actor, aviator, and inventor whose name it bears. The company has manufactured and sold more than 8,000 of its little engines known as the "Dennymite." More than 4,000 of its engine propelled airplane kits have gone to every part of the globe along with 30,000 to 40,000 of the rubber band kits.

The company has developed a radio-controled craft which has attracted the interest of the United States army air corps.

INDUSTRY FAILS TO ESTABLISH A TREND FOR WEEK

War Supply Makers Busy, Others Lag.

405 units, compared with 103,725 in the preceding week.

Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., estimated that retail trade in various sections of the nation showed increases of 4 to 7 per cent over the corresponding 1939 week. This was a smaller year to year gain than was reported for the preceding week.

"Wholesale business was rather disappointing in most lines," the mercantile agency said. "Among smaller store buyers there was evident an unwillingness to enlarge commitments."

Index at New Low.

The weekly index of industrial activity compiled by the Associated Press dropped again to the lowest level reached so far this year. The index, with component groups based on latest figures, calculated 1929-'30 levels as 100, compared as follows:

	Last wk.	Prev. wk.	Yr. ago.
Composite index	*93.6	94.8	84.0
Auto output	*87.5	91.0	65.2
Steel activity	*80.5	81.7	65.2
Cotton mfg.	*112.3	113.5	102.1
Electricity use	122.5	123.1	113.4
Home building	84.0	82.3	89.6
Rail loadings	67.6	68.5	60.4

*1940 low.

In a move that mystified financial circles, Raymond H. Fogler suddenly stepped out of his $103,350 a year job as president of Montgomery Ward & Co., announcing his resignation on the day before he was scheduled to be reëlected a director at the stockholders' annual meeting. He was the third high official to resign in four months.

Sewell L. Avery, chairman of the company, was reëlected to that post and also was elected president.

MORE MAY ENTER SUIT AGAINST J. P. MORGAN AIDS

Other Chicagoans may enter the suit begun in New York on Friday against J. P. Morgan & Co. partners demanding an accounting of alleged personal benefits thru a 1931 security transaction, it was indicated yesterday. The suit also named the Guaranty Trust company and charged worthless stock was issued in 1931 to holders of $30,000,000 of notes of the Van Sweringen corporation, a railway holding company which has been involved in extensive litigation in the last few years.

Initiating the litigation were Elias Hackner of 433 Wellington avenue, retired clothing manufacturer; C. J. Bowman of Standard Brands, Inc., and Lees Ballinger, 1460 Asbury avenue, Evanston.

The three held a total of $7,500 of the notes, which they exchanged for new notes and stock. Hackner indicated others may become parties to the suit.

$1,256,817 worth of aeronautic exports in March was shipped to 47 different countries.

March shipments consisted of 148 land planes, valued at $10,653,037; land planes, minus engines, $320,350; land planes to be assembled abroad, $3,873,290; engines, $2,336,593; engine parts and accessories, $792,780; instruments and parts, $254,047; propellers and parts, $924,637; parachutes and parts, $121,732, and other parts and accessories valued at $1,458,525.

View on Trade Friction.

Coincident with the release of these trade figures by the department of commerce, a press conference was held by Frank Ashton-Gwatkin, British representative on the mission in this country to smoothe out difficulties encountered by the United States as a result of the empires' blockade and economic restrictions imposed because of the war. He expressed confidence that the empires can conduct a wartime trade with a minimum of friction. Preparing to return to England, Ashton-Gwatkin said that he was satisfied that the mission dissolved a large part of the controversy arising from the empires' war measures.

He said that altho the war economy measures had forced Great Britain and France to curtail purchases of many farm commodities, there was no reason to fear that purchases of all agricultural products would be stopped. This will prove of little solace to the protesting farmers.

There has been a rising feeling among farmers against the restrictions now in effect. The empires have switched their farm trade from the United States to their colonies or neutrals where they gain trade advantages and conserve exchange.

Food Exports Decrease.

Detailed trade figures on foodstuffs released yesterday in connection with the general trade figures for March and the nine months ended in March showed a sharp decline in food exports because of food import restrictions particularly in the United Kingdom and Canada.

United States export trade in foodstuffs in March, at $25,805,000, was 7 per cent below the $27,894,000 in food shipments for March, 1939. In the nine months there was a 14 per cent drop, exports of $241,631,000, comparing with $281,644,000 a year earlier. Wheat and corn more than accounted for 40 million dollar slump. Wheat exports dropped from $43,807,000 to $14,275,000, and corn exports fell from $38,565,000 to $18,303,000. Meats and lard also suffered losses in the export figures. Meanwhile, farmers have protested that the reciprocal trade agreements retain in force tariff concessions on imports to this country from Canada and the United Kingdom.

Report Pulp Group Favors 40 Cent Minimum Wage

Washington, D. C., April 27 [Special].—A majority of the pulp and primary paper industry committee, it was announced today, has reported in favor of a 40 cents an hour minimum wage for the industry. A public hearing will be held in Washington on May 20 on their recommendation. The recommended minimum wage must be approved by the administrator of the wage and hour division, Col. Philip B. Fleming.

WALLACE URGES FIGHT FOR FARM INTEREST SLASH

St. Paul, Minn., April 27 (AP).—Henry Wallace, secretary of agriculture, today urged farmers to organize and fight for reorganization of the federal land bank system, reduction of farm mortgage interest rates, and liberalization of farm credit policies thruout the nation.

Wallace, in an address at a mass-meeting of farmers from 18 states, characterized the land bank system as "of real value to agriculture" but attacked "selfish interests which opposed efforts to improve the system and put it on a better basis for serving farmers."

The land bank system, Secretary Wallace contended, "can be put on a self-financing basis which will enable the American farmer to get permanently the benefit of a 3½ per cent interest rate." He singled out the American Bankers' association and some of the state bankers' associations as being prominent in the fight against lower interest rates for farmer borrowers.

The meeting was called by the National Farmers' union and the National Federation of Grain Coöperatives. Attendance was estimated at 12,000 by the committee in charge.

UNITED AIR ADDS MORE PLANES ON FASTER SCHEDULE

United Air Lines today will increase its schedule of miles flown daily more than 20 per cent in the most extensive expansion in the air line's history, it was announced yesterday by R. F. Ahrens, regional traffic manager. The line will add two new daily flights from Chicago to the Pacific coast, one to Denver, one to Cleveland, and one to New York.

Flying time between Chicago and San Francisco will be reduced one hour and 47 minutes, and flying time to the Pacific northwest will be cut more than an hour. Four minutes will be clipped off the Chicago-New York nonstop schedule. The new schedules will add 13,500 scheduled miles of daily flying, bringing the total to 65,500 miles a day.

NORTH WESTERN LINE'S OPERATING REVENUES GAIN

March operating revenues of the Chicago and North Western railway rose slightly to $6,397,492 from $6,389,307 a year ago, the road announced yesterday. Revenues for the first quarter of 1940 were $19,684,019, against $18,124,000 last year. The road's net loss after all charges was $4,633,979 for the quarter, compared with $5,089,208 in 1939.

BUILDING FALLS OFF, NATIONAL SURVEY SHOWS

Home Construction Has Slight Increase.

Building construction thruout the United States during the first three months of 1940 showed a decline of about 10 per cent, according to E. M. Craig, executive secretary of the National Association of Building Trades Employers. His quarterly survey of building activities in 44 states and 39 cities was made public yesterday. It disclosed that building for the first quarter of this year in the 44 states covered had a value of $751,568,000. For the same period last year the figure was $846,259,000.

E. M. Craig.

For the 39 cities covered in the survey there were 49,674 building permits issued during the first quarter of 1940, with an estimated value of $182,459,000. Last year during the same period there were 52,222 permits, for buildings valued at $189,486,000.

Chicago in Tenth Place.

New York continues the most active city in the building field, with Los Angeles second and Detroit third. Chicago is in tenth place.

Of the larger cities, San Francisco, Cleveland, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Kansas City, and Seattle had more building than last year.

New York, Los Angeles, Detroit, Houston, Washington, and Chicago all had less building the first quarter of this year than last year.

Reports from 34 American cities on home building disclosed a slight increase in number and value of homes built during the first three months of this year over last. Permits for 12,700 homes were issued during the first quarter of this year, with a value of $61,364,000. During the same period last year 12,586 homes, costing $58,886,000, were built.

As home building figures were not available from New York, Los Angeles was rated first in the residential field. Detroit was second, Houston third, and Chicago eighth.

Watch Labor Plans.

Craig reported in his survey that several cities were maintaining a watchful-waiting attitude toward the move to lower labor rates in order to stimulate home building. Chicago, he said, was one of the centers, which is waiting to see the result of such action in other cities.

"Kansas City carpenters, iron workers, lathers, and cement finishers accepted reductions to $1 an hour on residential work," Craig said, "and the electricians and sheet metal workers to $1.12½.

"Cincinnati cement finishers reduced their hourly rate to $1 on residential work, and on other types to $1.37½. Fort Worth claims their home building costs are lower because building tradesmen working in pairs are taking subcontracts on homes for less than it would cost if union labor were employed.

Unions Readjust Rates.

"Outside the city of St. Louis, but in St. Louis county, there is much home building work proceeding under open shop conditions. Several organized crafts have readjusted their rates to meet this competition: Plumbers to $1; electricians, $1.10; lathers, $1.12½; cement finishers, $1.20; laborers, 60 cents; bricklayers, $1.12½, and tile setters, $1.12½.

"New York, Detroit, San Francisco, Nashville, and Louisville are expecting a decision on lowering labor costs on April 29. Philadelphia operative builders have negotiated agreements at slight increases for labor."

Craig said that altho the building survey showed less building so far this year indications are that the second quarter will show a decided increase.

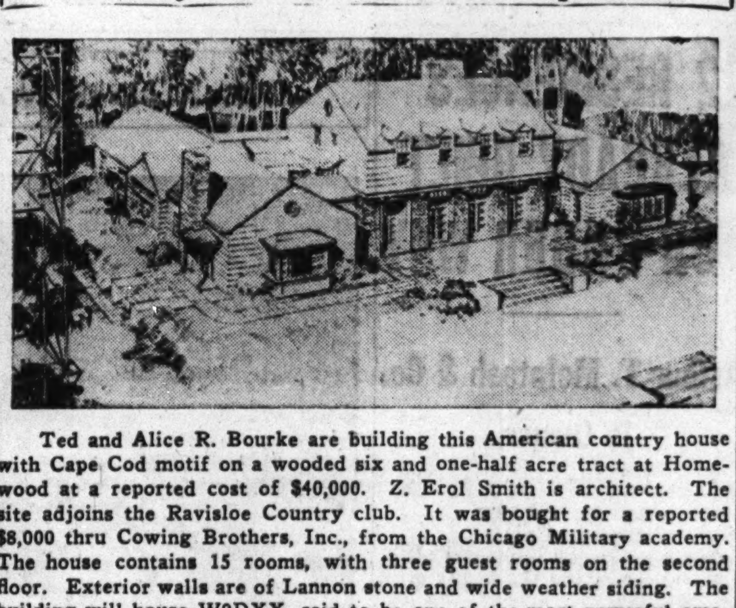
Hampered by Weather.

"Increased wage demands in certain cities undoubtedly have caused the public to hold back," he said. "Also early spring building activity has been hampered by bad weather conditions.

"The definite position of the building and construction trades in insisting that their members must remain at work and submit their differences to arbitration, has no doubt influenced contemplated construction work.

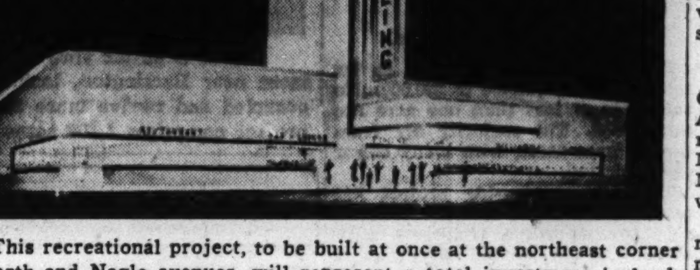
"Both employers and organized labor are now coöperating to this end and this is an encouraging sign toward speeding up construction activities."

Built by Amateur Radio Operator



Ted and Alice R. Bourke are building this American country house with Cape Cod motif on a wooded six and one-half acre tract at Homewood at a reported cost of $40,000. Z. Erol Smith is architect. The site adjoins the Ravisloe Country club. It was bought for a reported $8,000 thru Cowing Brothers, Inc., from the Chicago Military academy. The house contains 15 rooms, with three guest rooms on the second floor. Exterior walls are of Lannon stone and wide weather siding. The building will house W9DXX, said to be one of the most powerful amateur radio stations in the United States. It is owned and operated by Mrs. Bourke, who is a member of the army amateur reserve system. The steel skeleton shown to the left is part of a 60 foot tower for a rotary beam antenna.

New Recreational Building



This recreational project, to be built at once at the northeast corner of North and Nagle avenues, will represent a total investment in land, building, and equipment of $300,000, it was said. Rapp & Rapp are the architects. It will contain 28 bowling lanes, a restaurant, large cocktail lounge, billiard room, men's and women's locker rooms, and league committee rooms. Completion is set for Sept. 1.

Plan $300,000 Bowling Lanes at North-Nagle

Work is scheduled to begin at once on a recreational building at the northeast corner of North and Nagle avenues which will cost $300,000 for land, building and equipment, according to Rapp & Rapp, architects. It will contain 28 bowling lanes, a large restaurant and cocktail lounge, and a billiard room.

A feature will be a children's room where bowlers may leave their youngsters under supervision of play directors.

The entire building will be air conditioned with a year 'round system. The bowling lanes will have flourescent lighting. This will be the first time this type of illumination has been used for bowling, it was said.

The owners are three large operators of bowling lanes in Chicago: James P. Flynn, president of Schueneman & Flynn, now operating four bowling units; William Goldammer, president of Goldammer Brothers, operators of six units, and John D. Quan, a member of the board of governors of the Bowling Proprietors association of America.

In February, 1939, a $415,000 theater and store building was announced for this corner. It was to contain a 1,000 seat playhouse, 25 bowling lanes, and 14 stores. It was then owned by the North-Nagle Building corporation. This project was not completed.

Realty Miscellany

The Greenebaum Investment company will open its new quarters at 39 South La Salle street Tuesday, and at the same time observe the 85th anniversary of the founding of the institution in 1855 by Elias Greenebaum. Since its beginning the concern has been headed by one family. The founder was succeeded by his son, M. E. Greenebaum, and the latter by his son, Edgar N. Greenebaum, president of the company at the present time. For twenty-five years the company has been at 11 South La Salle street.

Because of a 50 per cent increase in personnel during the last year the offices of Irvin Jacobs & Co., in the Borland building, 105 South La Salle street, are to be enlarged. An additional 1,100 square feet of space will be taken on the third floor. Organized in 1925 with a staff of four, the mortgage banking firm now has 60 employés.

SELL 3 APARTMENT BUILDINGS ON SOUTH SIDE FOR $137,500

McKey & Poague, Inc., yesterday reported the sale of three south side apartment buildings, containing 53 suites, for $137,500 for the Metropolitan Life Insurance company.

The 26 apartments at the southwest corner of Kenwood avenue and East 61st street were sold to the 6100 Kenwood corporation for $60,000 of which $7,500 was cash. They were built in 1912 by Charles M. Poague, one of the founders of McKey & Poague.

In removing the wall paper the prices at which the flats were rented in 1912 were found written on the plaster. The four room suites rented then for $32.50 and the five rooms at $37.50. These same suites now rent for $45 and $47.50.

The second building sold was at the northeast corner of St. Lawrence avenue and 80th street. It has 16 suites and was bought by the 7953 St. Lawrence corporation for $45,000, with a cash payment of $5,750.

The third property is the eleven flat building at the northeast corner of Yale avenue and 76th street, sold to the 7555 Yale Building corporation for $32,500, with $4,200 in cash. Henry W. Kennedy of McKey & Poague represented the Metropolitan Life in all sales.

FIELD BUILDING LEASE.

Woodruff, Hayes & Co., investment counsel, 231 South La Salle street, has leased space in the Field building.

HEAVY MAY 1 MOVING ACTIVITY IS INDICATED

Chicago will have the most active May 1 moving day in several years according to movers and the telephone company. Real estate agents, however, predict that there will be less moving than last year.

According to the Illinois Bell Telephone company 16,047 orders to move phones on May 1 had been received up to yesterday. This is an increase of 2,474 or 18.23 per cent over last year's total which was 13,573.

Daniel Healy, secretary of the Movers' Association of Chicago, comprising 400 units, said that orders were much heavier than last year. He predicted there would be about twice as much moving this May as last.

Reports Few Vacancies.

Leonard Downie, business manager of the Chicago Real Estate board, said that inquiry thruout the city disclosed so few vacancies that little moving was expected. He said that with the exception of certain choice apartment properties there would be little or no increase in rentals. The slight increases, he said, are in apartments which had no increase last May or last October, and are merely being brought up to the level of other flats in the same buildings.

Roy E. Knauer Sr., president of the North Side Real Estate board, said there would be less moving and that rents would remain about the same on the north side. James J. Curtis, president of the West Side Real Estate board, expressed a similar view on the moving situation. He said there were practically no vacancies in west side apartments.

Same as Year Ago.

Mrs. W. H. Wright, president of the Oak Park Real Estate board, and Archibald Jennings, chairman of the renting committee of the Evanston-North Shore Real Estate board, said May 1 moving day in those suburbs would be about the same as last year.

In Evanston there will be more moving in the higher priced apartments than last year, Jennings said, owing to the larger number of families moving into new residences.

Open 1,300 Acre Country Home Development Near Barrington

22 RESIDENCES ALREADY BUILT OR UNDER WAY

Arthur T. McIntosh & Co. Is Owner.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

One of the largest residential building developments in the higher price bracket was announced yesterday by Arthur T. McIntosh & Co. It is called Inverness properties and covers 1,300 acres of rolling country between Barrington and Palatine. The McIntosh firm has been assembling the big tract for several years.

Arthur T. McIntosh.

Ten residences already have been built, sold, and occupied. Twelve more are now under construction. Two of these are sold.

Sites to Be Acre or More.

The residential price range so far has been from $10,000 to $20,000. No homesites of less than one acre are being sold. The majority are from one to three acres, with many larger tracts platted.

The big countryside project has been laid out by a regional planner, aided by landscape architects, with winding roads, taking advantage of the rolling Barrington terrain.

In the geographical center of this country development is the Inverness Golf club, formerly called the Meadow Grove Country club, with an 18 hole course. Many of the residence sites overlook the club grounds.

Club Owned by McIntosh.

The country club and its grounds are owned by the McIntosh firm. It has not yet been definitely decided what the status of the club will be. Tentative plans call for its operation during the week as a fee course and as a private club over week-ends.

Bertram E. Weber, successor to White & Weber, Chicago architects, has designed and supervised the construction of all the residences so far built and now building. Owners may build homes designed by any architect they may choose, provided the plans are approved by the Inverness owners.

Is Highly Restricted.

The entire development has a stringent set of restrictions covering all residential construction. Garages must be made an integral part of the homes. All the homes are heated by gas. No duplex homes are permitted.

A small restricted business section at the north end of the development, near the intersection of Northwest highway, Baldwin and Roselle roads, is contemplated later.

At the south end of Inverness is the summer home of Arthur T. McIntosh. This is an old farmhouse set so far back as to be invisible from Roselle road, and remodeled into a rambling, modern home. Eventually, it is understood, the McIntosh farm will become part of the Inverness development.

This is an air view of the north part of Inverness, Arthur T. McIntosh & Co.'s country development near Barrington, looking west over Roselle road. Ten residences have been completed and are occupied and twelve more are under construction. Winding country roads are a feature. The entire project comprises 1,300 acres and is one of the largest of its kind in the middle west.

Home in New McIntosh Project

The above residence of Mr. and Mrs. Knowles B. Hollowell, is one of 10 houses built, sold, and occupied at Inverness, the 1,300 acre residential development of Arthur T. McIntosh & Co., southeast of Barrington. Bertram E. Weber was architect. There are four bedrooms, two baths, living and dining rooms, kitchen, and a paneled basement recreation room. The house has two fireplaces and is heated by gas. The reported price was $14,000, with a 20 per cent down payment. Monthly payments on the FHA insured mortgage, covering all costs, are $86. The house stands on a two acre site

Fred Jacky, Chicago advertising man, bought the Cape Cod residence at 1306 Greenwood street, Wilmette, from George Dewey Bertke for an undisclosed consideration. The house, designed by Morris Hobbs, architect, was built in 1933. It contains seven rooms, three baths, and a knotty pine recreation room. W. A. Sadler of Smart & Golee, Inc., was broker.

At the Realty Boards

Elizabeth Wood, executive secretary of the Chicago Housing authority, will discuss the recent ruling of the authority evicting 700 families from three of the CHA housing projects, at a meeting of the Chicago Real Estate board next Wednesday evening, May 1, at the board room, 32 West Randolph street.

MORTGAGE FIRMS ORGANIZE NEW ILLINOIS GROUP

Organization of the Illinois Mortgage Bankers' association was announced yesterday with A. E. Steitmatter of the Alliance Life Insurance company of Peoria, its first president. The new group is affiliated with the Mortgage Bankers' Association of America. Plans for establishing the new state-wide group were perfected at a meeting in Peoria under the direction of George H. Patterson, secretary and treasurer of the national body.

Other officers include: A. H. Seise, Northern Illinois Mortgage company of Rockford, and W. C. Rainford, Mercantile Mortgage company, Granite City, vice presidents; and M. A. Pollak of Draper & Kramer, Chicago, secretary and treasurer.

The organization's board of governors comprise the officers and E. F. Cramer, First National Bank and Trust company of Galesburg; M. B. Stine, First National bank of Danville, and O. H. Mendenhall, Equitable Life of Iowa, Decatur.

The initial membership consists of 22 firms. According to Patterson the Illinois group was organized primarily to work in coöperation with the Chicago Mortgage Bankers' association, so that the mortgage interests of the entire state may be fully represented in legislative and other matters pertaining to their field of banking.

Mortgage Banking Firm Moving to La Salle-Monroe

Salk, Ward & Salk, Inc., mortgage bankers, now at 11 South La Salle street, have leased space in the La Salle-Monroe building [formerly the New York Life building] and will move on May 1. The new quarters will be twice the size of the present. The lease was negotiated by J. Gordon Smith of the George S. Lurie company, agents of the building.

OSCAR G. MAYER BUYS FIVE ACRES ON LAKE GENEVA

Oscar G. Mayer, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce and of Oscar Mayer & Co., packers, has purchased approximately five acres belonging to the Otto Young estate at Lake Geneva. The property comprises the northerly 240 feet of the estate fronting on the lake. It extends back about 1,100 feet to Lakeshore drive. Mayer plans to build eventually. William F. Best & Son, Lake Geneva, was broker.

Seaman Paper Leases Adams-Franklin Space

The Seaman Paper company, which has been in business in Chicago for 40 years, has leased approximately 3,500 square feet in the Adams-Franklin building, 222 West Adams street. The company's offices have been at 410 Michigan avenue. L. Springer, secretary of the company, represented the paper concern and Winston & Co. acted for the owners of the building.

TRUCK CO. LEASES VACANT.

The National Truck and Parts company has leased for five years from May 1 the vacant lot at 2406-40 South Wabash avenue, with option to buy. The land is 375 by 211 and will be used for the dismantling of trucks and truck parts.

EVANSTON AGAIN REVISES ALL OF ZONE ORDINANCE

Drastic Changes Made in 19 Year Old Law.

To keep abreast of local planning developments, the city council of Evanston has revised drastically its city zoning ordinance for the second time since 1921 when the suburb was first zoned. The revision was made in an effort to adapt the ordinance to conditions which have changed since 1927—when the first complete revision was made—and to adjust it to future developments.

The new Evanston ordinance reduces by 20 per cent the amount of land zoned for commercial purposes, and by 50 per cent the area zoned for multiple dwellings or apartment houses, according to a bulletin issued by the Public Administration Clearing house, of Chicago.

Must Use Larger Home Sites.

Single family homes, under the new ordinance, must be built on larger lots. The revision increased the area required for a home in the "A" zone from 4,300 to 7,200 square feet, and in the "B" zone to 5,000 square feet.

The ordinance also creates a new district in which two-family and row houses may be constructed, and requires apartment buildings, row houses, and theaters to provide off-street parking facilities—one parking space for every two dwelling units, and one for every 10 theater seats.

According to the American Society of Planning Officials, other cities are bringing their zoning ordinances up to date, altho few by such complete revision as in Evanston. These cities include New York, Los Angeles, Portland, Ore., and Des Moines.

Other Cities Overzoned.

Des Moines city planning officials decided to draft a new zoning ordinance after a survey showed, in part, that the city's residence districts as now zoned are large enough for the city of Memphis or Indianapolis; that multiple dwelling districts are large enough to accommodate apartment buildings in a city of nearly 2,000,000 people; and that there is enough area zoned for commerce to provide for Minneapolis.

Chicago has even more inconsistencies in its zoning ordinance. For example, if all the property in the city zoned for multistory or elevator type apartments alone were improved to highest available use, 45,000,000 people could be housed, according to J. Soule Warterfield, former president of the Chicago Real Estate board.

There are 48.64 square miles of property in Chicago zoned for manufacturing use, whereas only 26.57 square miles are used for such purposes.

SIX APARTMENT BUILDINGS ARE SOLD FOR $415,000

Six apartment properties, containing 190 suites, yesterday were reported sold by I. Deemar & Co., for the State Mutual Life Assurance company. The total selling price was $415,000.

The Alger Building corporation bought the 34 flats at 7220-34 North Clark street for $72,000, and the 20 flats and 3 stores at 6656-60 North Clark street for $43,000. The Bussy Building corporation bought the two stores and four flats at 3911-13 Lawrence avenue for $19,000. The 815 Cornelia Building corporation bought the 67 flat building at 815-23 Cornelia avenue for $113,500.

The Prairie State bank took title in trust to the 43 apartments at 1435-45 East 67th street, at $92,500, and the nine stores, 22 flats, and 13 garages at 1447-65 East 67th street, at $75,000.

BUYS FIVE STORY BUILDING.

Henry Neville of the U. S. Fruit Service company bought the five story building at the southwest corner of Noble and Chestnut streets from Robert H. Eberle and the Germaine company for $15,500, according to William H. Suchier & Co. The buyer will occupy the first floor and basement and sublease the other floors.

MURRAY E. RANDELL MADE PARTNER OF HOOKER & SLOSSON

Murray E. Randell, in charge of the management department of Hooker & Slosson since 1937, has been made a partner of the firm, which now will be known as Hooker, Slosson & Randell. On May 25 the organization, which has been in the Marquette building for the last 26 years, will move to larger quarters in the Michigan Boulevard building at 30 North Michigan avenue. The building is managed by the firm.

Randell has specialized in the management of office buildings and other types of income property for the last 25 years. Prior to his association with Hooker & Slosson, he spent several years in Omaha, where he managed many of the largest buildings. He was vice president of the realty firm of George & Co. of that city.

PAYS $140,000 FOR 28 FLATS IN ALDINE AVENUE

The twenty-eight apartment building at 425-37 Aldine avenue was sold yesterday by S. E. Simons, William S. Innis, and Raymond H. Trott, trustees of the Rimnik Trust, to the 425-37 Aldine Avenue Building corporation. Baird & Warner were brokers. According to revenue stamps on the deed the selling price was $140,000. Of this amount $14,000 was cash and the balance a $126,000 purchase money mortgage. The three story building is on a lot 136 by 166 feet. It contains four, five, six, and seven room suites. It was built by Peter F. Reynolds in 1930 and is 200 feet from Lake Shore drive.

BRUCE BENSON BUYS FARM NEAR LONG GROVE, ILL.

Bruce Benson of Benson & Rixon Co. purchased a 90 acre farm near Long Grove, Ill., from the Wickersheim estate thru William C. Wickersheim for an undisclosed consideration. He is modernizing the house, which he expects to occupy shortly. The property is near the Kildeer Country club. Harriet R. Graf of Elmer E. Stults, Inc., was broker.

DOCTOR BUYS TWELVE FLATS IN SUNNYSIDE

Dr. Henry Rehm has purchased the building at the southeast corner of Hamilton and Sunnyside avenues from Anna H. Carlson, trustee, for an undisclosed consideration. The building, on a lot 35x125 feet, contains 12 4-room apartments. Elmer E. Stults, Inc., represented the buyer, and Sturm-Bickel, Inc., the seller.

LINCOLN BEACH TO OPEN IN JUNE

SUNDAY EVENING CLUB IS FACING ITS FIRST DEFICIT

Drive Under Way to Raise $3,000.

The Chicago Sunday Evening club is facing its first deficit. For 32 years the club has managed to close its books in black ink, and an intensive campaign for supporting members is now under way to avoid closing the present fiscal year, ending May 31, in the red. A threatened deficit estimated at $3,000 was revealed at a recent meeting of the board of trustees.

Clifford W. Barnes.

Increased expenses this season are due partly to the fact that the president and founder of the club, Clifford W. Barnes, has been unable to take part in the administration and give informal Bible talks in Orchestra hall as he did for 25 years. Also, new activities have developed thru the growth of the club, such as the midweek social meetings for young people and a Monday council for the men.

Decline in Income.

On the other side of the ledger, there has been a marked decline in income during the last few years. There has been a loss of funds thru the death of several generous donators, lower interest rates on the club's small investment fund, lower collections in Orchestra hall due to the reduced economic status of the audience, and a falling off in annual subscriptions from business sources.

The budget of approximately $40,000 has been met without great strain in former years. The club was one of the first large nonsectarian religious organizations to meet with success and leaders of all denominations thruout the world have approved its purpose and spoken from its platform.

It was the first service of worship on the air, over KYW in 1922. Under the club's administration setup, its board of managers is composed of 35 business men, who are members of various church bodies. Among the pioneers on the first board of trustees were John G. Shedd, A. C. Bartlett, Charles L. Hutchinson, and Frank Armstrong.

Back for Another Talk.

Dr. Harold C. Phillips, minister of the First Baptist church, Cleveland, O., is being returned by popular request as speaker for the 8 o'clock meeting this evening in Orchestra hall. His first appearance was on April 7. Tonight he will speak on "Three Truths About God." Mr. Barnes will preside and Edward Foss Wilson will participate in the program.

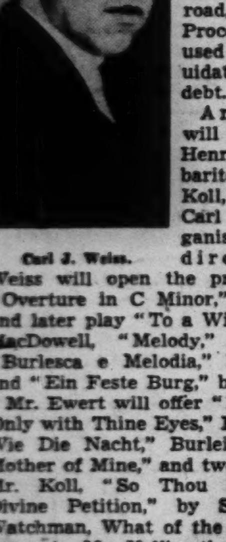
Dr. Phillips was born in Jamaica and came to the United States in 1912. He preached in small churches while studying at Denison university, Granville, O., and later entered Union Theological seminary. His first important pastorate was the Mount Vernon Baptist church in New York City. Since Dr. Phillips was assigned to his Cleveland church in 1929, the congregation has doubled. His preaching is noted for its humanitarian appeal.

Plan Skating Party.

The Health, Luck and Happiness club will hold a roller skating party Wednesday in the Park Casino roller rink, 3825 West Madison street.

BETHANY LUTHERAN CHURCH TO SPONSOR MUSICAL ON SUNDAY

A musical for the benefit of Uptown Bethany Evangelical Lutheran church, Magnolia and Thorndale avenues, will be given at 3:30 o'clock next Sunday in the home of Frederick Kissner, 734 Arbor road, Glenview. Proceeds will be used to help liquidate the church debt.



Carl J. Weiss.

Artists who will appear are Henry Ewert, baritone, Robert Koll, tenor, and Carl Weiss, organist and choir director. Mr. Weiss will open the program with "Overture in C Minor," by Hollins, and later play "To a Wild Rose," by MacDowell, "Melody," by Dawes, "Burlesca e Melodia," by Baldwin, and "Ein Feste Burg," by Faulkes.

Mr. Ewert will offer "Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes," Bohn's "Still Wie Die Nacht," Burleigh's "Little Mother of Mine," and two duets with Mr. Koll, "So Thou Liftest Thy Divine Petition," by Stainer, and Watchman, What of the Night?" by Sargent. Mr. Koll's other songs will be "The Voice in the Wilderness," by Scott, "How Lovely Is the Hand of God," by Loughbourgh, and "The Lord's Prayer," by Malotte.

Receiving honors for their beauty is inevitable for this trio. Since they are as attractive in person as in their pictures, Joan Dreyfuss, Katherine Wenter, and Sue Ingalls will be among the campus "queens" who will model in the style show sponsored by the Associate Alumnæ of Northwestern university Friday afternoon in the Evanston Country club. Miss Dreyfuss, Pi Beta Phi, was empress of the Navy ball this winter. Miss Wenter, Kappa Kappa Gamma, known as the "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi," is a sister of Mrs. Paul S. Cummins, general chairman of the benefit show and bridge. Miss Ingalls, Kappa Alpha Theta, was a Syllabus queen last year.

Cheers to Ring for Steinmetz High on Radio

From Chicagoland radios tuned to W-G-N at 7 o'clock Wednesday night will come a rousing cheer, signal that "Citizens of Tomorrow" is on the air again. This half hour high school program sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will feature the Charles P. Steinmetz High school, located at 3030 North Mobile avenue. Six hundred students, accompanied by their principal, Daniel F. O'Hearn, will be present in the new W-G-N audience studio to give this enthusiasm to the occasion.

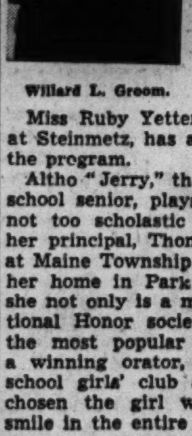
Daniel F. O'Hearn.

It will be the fifth program in a series of 11 Wednesday night weekly broadcasts dedicated to the youth of America. The last program for the school year will be held the night of June 12 when the Wright Junior college students will be guests. Next Wednesday night Waller High school will be represented.

Philip Maxwell, a member of THE TRIBUNE staff, who is the "Principal" on the broadcast, says that he never realized before what talent for song and pep there is in the younger generation.

"The W-G-N engineers have to watch that the volume doesn't wreck the delicate broadcasting instruments," he said, "and as far as the choral singing is concerned, some of the groups being presented would rank favorably with adult professional organizations."

Willard L. Groom will direct the Steinmetz mixed chorus in three numbers, the school loyalty song, a patriotic number entitled "Chicago" by Granville English and the "Happy Isle," by Bantock. Those cheers which the late Dr. Steinmetz might have compared to some of his man-made thunder, will be led by James Taylor, Grace Tveter, Loretta Wagner, and Steve Walker.



Willard L. Groom.

Miss Ruby Yetter, radio chairman at Steinmetz, has aided in preparing the program.

Altho "Jerry," the 16 year old high school senior, plays the part of one not too scholastic on the program, her principal, Thompson R. Foulkes, at Maine Township High school near her home in Park Ridge, says that she not only is a member of the National Honor society but is one of the most popular students. She is a winning orator, president of the school girls' club and recently was chosen the girl with the happiest smile in the entire school.

Popular in School.

To Charlie Jones, the third character in the show, who depicts the part of every school's engineer custodian, will fall the task of relating some of the brief history of Steinmetz which is only six years old, and he'll probably delve into the early history of the community to tell all about the O. A. Thorpe school, the oldest elementary public school in that area.

One of the most popular parts of the show is the weekly Tribune news quiz which is conducted by Mr. Maxwell. Just before going on the air Announcer Pierre Andre picks out six students from the audience and they compete for cash awards totaling from $10 to $15.

Call Honor Roll.

Another highlight of the program is the naming of five Chicagoland boys and girls to the "Honor Roll" of each broadcast. These students have been nominated by their principals for outstanding achievement.

In addition to the radio entertainment, the audience sees "Trees to Tribune," the talking movie showing the vast operation of The Tribune organization and then 100 of the group take an escorted tour thru THE TRIBUNE plant.

PLANT GUILD WORKS ON TRAIN SCHEDULE FOR LILAC SHARING

Officials of the Chicago Plant, Fruit and Flower guild last week completed their organization for lilac day when 150 members, including guild chairmen of garden clubs, held their annual luncheon at Carson, Pirie, Scott tearoom and drafted final plans. The schedule of trains that will furnish free transportation for the lilacs is to be worked out this week.

The ten division chairmen of the guild are keeping in close touch with lilac growers in their territories in order to determine when the blooms will be ready to cut.

Each division chairman will report to the Chicago headquarters of the guild on May 5 and again on May 10, giving detailed information about the opening of the lilac blossoms in the various sections. T. V. Purcell, guild president, said yesterday that the distribution date likely could be determined from the May 10 reports.

MIDWEST SAFETY CONFERENCE TO ATTRACT 3,500

Michigan avenue mannequins will model the latest fashions in safety garments for mines and factories at the three day Midwest Safety conference which will open Tuesday at the Hotel Sherman. Fourteen sessions will be held and 76 speakers will speak on safety problems.

It will be the eighteenth annual meeting to be held by the Greater Chicago Safety council. More than 3,500 safety experts from twenty states, Canada and Hawaii are expected to attend.

North side heads of the council are J. S. Kemper and G. C. Kimball, vice presidents; Robert E. Kenyon Jr., John G. Learned and William Seymour, members of the board of directors, and W. N. Barker, T. J. Carney, James B. Forgan Jr., August Kochs, Oscar Mayer, G. A. Richardson, and D. D. Fennell, advisory board members.

Acclaims Lilacs as Pat on Back for City's Sick

One hundred persons on the Rev. D. M. Hofer's visiting list last year received bunches of lilacs as part of the work of the Chicago Plant, Flower and Fruit guild. This year most of them are still being visited by the Rev. Mr. Hofer on the days he goes calling on the needy, the sick, the shut-ins in the Lincoln avenue-Diversey boulevard neighborhood.

He is the superintendent of the Gospel Mission at 2812 Lincoln avenue, which he founded 25 years ago. He is 70 years old now but still presides at the meetings held several times weekly, and personally distributes bread to the poor in the neighborhood.

Some Never Get Out.

"It was a wonderful thing," he says, "to see the faces of the shut-ins when we distributed the lilacs. Some of them were old, crippled people, too old and too infirm to get out of doors again. It was a touching thing to see them smiling thru their tears as they took the fragrant lilacs."

He tells of one crippled woman, 75 years old, who sits in a wheelchair looking out the window of her room all day long. She asked the other day how long it would be before the lilacs would bloom. Lilac day was one of her happiest days last year.

Helps Other Fellow.

There are others, bed-ridden children, old people, all of them too poor to know the fragrance of a bouquet of flowers. These are on the Rev. Mr. Hofer's list this year.

In the window of the Gospel Mission there is a motto, "Shake Hands with the Other Fellow." The Rev. Mr. Hofer says that Lilac day carries out this slogan, adding: "The bringing of lilacs to the sick is just another way of shaking hands with the other fellow—a wonderful, worthy action."

HOOSIER SALON TO OPEN EXHIBIT WITH TEA FRIDAY

The Hoosier Salon Patrons association will sponsor an exhibition by Glen Mitchell of Minneapolis, Minn., and Charles Reiffel, San Diego, Cal., from Friday thru May 31 in the Hoosier Art gallery, 211 Wacker drive, suite 814. Gallery hours are from 9 to 5 o'clock and on Saturdays until 3 o'clock.

The exhibit will open with a program and tea at 2:30 o'clock Friday. Karl Plath, a Chicago artist connected with the Brookfield zoo, will talk on "Birds That I Paint," and Rudolph Mohr, horticulturist at the Garfield Park conservatory, will discuss "The Distribution of the Orchid."

Hostesses will include Mrs. Charles F. Amacker, Mrs. Victor Anderson, Mrs. Delbert K. Baggs, Mrs. H. P. Bruner, Mrs. Chester W. Cleveland, Mrs. Clarence Lee Holtzman, Mrs. Philip Maxwell, Mrs. Harry Mock, Mrs. Paul W. Paver, Mrs. Pearl Power, Mrs. Clifford Rogers, Mrs. G. L. Shideler, Mrs. A. Paul Vignola, and Mrs. T. K. Williamson.

Will Exchange Pulpits.

Rabbi Charles Shulman of North Shore Congregation Israel, Glencoe, and Rabbi Jacob J. Weinstein of K. A. M. temple, 920 East 50th street, will exchange pulpits this morning.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

BIRTHDAY greetings began pouring in last week from all parts of the United States to Mrs. Daniel J. Schuyler, who is 95 years old today. Hundreds of her friends and acquaintances, and their children and grandchildren, are scattered thruout the nation. Mrs. Schuyler, who is less than five feet tall and who weighs less than 100 pounds, resides at 1400 Lake Shore drive. She takes a walk every day, in the lobby on cold days and along the drive when the weather is warm.

Mrs. Daniel J. Schuyler.

Her apartment is lined with pictures of historical incidents that occurred in her lifetime. From these she recalls a parade of memories.

When Lee surrendered to Grant at Appomattox Mrs. Schuyler was a belle in a hoop skirt, with a reputation for being "the prettiest girl in all Chicago."

When the great fire of 1871 swept thru the city, she was a wife and the mother of four small children.

She became a grandmother before the Spanish-American war and at the time of the first World war she was a great grandmother.

In the fire of 1871 she lost a silver cake basket which she received from Commodore Nutt, P. T. Barnum's "little man," as an award that went with the title of "prettiest girl." Of her four children, only one survives. He is Daniel J. Schuyler, 1500 Lake Shore drive.

ROY F. DENT, 244 East Pearson street, a junior in the medical school of Northwestern university, is the first winner of the Frederick H. Rawson Jr. scholarship. The award is for 1940-41 and carries a stipend of $350 a year. The scholarship was established in March with an endowment fund given to the university by Mrs. Frederick H. Rawson Sr. and was named for the donor's son, Northwestern university alumnus, who died in January.

Mrs. T. A. Movery, a resident of Rogers Park for 25 years, was surprised by her friends at a party on her 81st birthday recently. She resides with a friend, Mrs. Lillian DeLong, at 2015 Estes avenue. Youthful looking Mrs. Movery was asked how she stayed so young.

"I keep up my interest in life thru old friends," she responded, "and by making new ones every chance I get."

FORMATION of the Wilmette Lions club was announced last week. An international charter was presented to the club Tuesday evening at the Wilmette Masonic temple by Edgar Elbert, district governor. Officers include Martin L. Olson, president; Philip Bleser, John Dornbos, and John J. Moran, vice presidents; Neal Austin, secretary-treasurer; Jack M. Okean, lion tamer, and Dr. F. J. Benster, tail twister. Directors include Charles E. Forsberg, Karl M. Milgrom, Donald Pearson, and B. B. Udell.

Donald Getz, 1410 Catalpa avenue, was recently appointed business manager of the "Crimson," Ripon college year book published by the student body.

OUR TOWNERS recently elected as heads of the Patten Players, Evanston Y. M. C. A. group, include Allan Julin, general chairman; Miss Lee Spaid, publicity director; Thomas Wildman, business director; Joseph Wawrzniah, production manager; Charlotte Pape, secretary; John H. Palmer, drama director, and Jane Elliott, play reading committee chairman.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O. Moulton, 807 Greenleaf street, Evanston, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Tuesday. They have resided in Evanston for more than 45 years. They are the parents of three daughters, Miss Ethel Moulton, Mrs. Clarence E. Nicholson, and Mrs. Neil D. Skinner, and one son, Dr. O. B. Moulton.

Seventy-eight guests attended a surprise party for Mrs. Ferdinand Peterson last Sunday in celebration of her 75th birthday. Mrs. Peterson had planned to give a party on her birthday Thursday, but the family gave one earlier in order to save her the work.

Family members present were her 81 year old husband, an only son, Russell Mansfield and his wife, and the two grandchildren, Shirley and Peer Mansfield, who reside at 6315 Wayne avenue. The Petersons' home is at 1431 Rosemont avenue.

Mrs. Peterson was born in Sweden, but came to Chicago with cousins when she was 21 years old. She has ben an active member of the First Swedish Methodist church ever since she has lived here. Ferdinand Hagrup, choirmaster at the time Mrs. Peterson joined the church, also came to congratulate here.

Rabbi Charles Shulman of North Shore Congregation Israel, Glencoe, and Rabbi Jacob J. Weinstein of K. A. M. temple, 920 East 50th street, will exchange pulpits this morning.

50,000 BATHERS TO FIND SPACE ON LAKE SANDS

Showers Enough for 6,000 at Once.

Work on the south half of the three-quarter mile bathing beach at North avenue was completed last week and the remainder, including the new red and white, ocean liner shaped beach house, is expected to be ready in time for the swimming season late in June.

As the beach, capable of accommodating 50,000 bathers comfortably, neared completion, surfacing work was begun on the North avenue grade separation bridge on the outer drive. The new highway is to be criss-crossed by an arterial highway running across the south end of Lincoln park into La Salle street so that motorists can reach the loop by turning directly into La Salle street without using the present maze of local drives.

Most of the bulkheads jutting into the lake to provide a sandy stretch of beach and to protect the shoreline and beach house from damage by heavy storms, have been finished. A total of 950,000 cubic yards of sand will have been used to fill in the beach.

Total Cost Is $2,906,000.

The total cost of the whole project will come to $2,906,000. Approximately 45 per cent of the bill will have been paid with government funds.

All in all, the project is to include drives, subways, walks, bridle paths, parking space, and recreation facilities in connection with the beach. The new parking areas will serve motorists visiting the Chicago Historical society and other points of interest in the south end of the park.

Will Accommodate 6,000.

The beach house, with its striped steamship funnels, will be capable of serving 6,000 bathers at one time with shower and locker facilities. There will be no charge for its use. A fee of 10 cents, however, will be charged for the checking of clothing and parcels. Park supervisors last week declined to predict what effect the opening of the new beach would have on the lessening of the swimming season crowds at Oak street beach.

The grade separation bridge, say park district engineers, is considered to be one of the most advanced pieces of structural engineering in the city. Technically it is known as a rigid frame bridge, and is said to be the largest of its type in the world. The frame measures 101 by 84 feet. Engineers describe the structure as being "a skewed, reinforced concrete, two-hinged, ribbed cellular haunched, tied rigid frame bridge on slim reinforced subpiers of rock."

Product of Last Decade.

This type of bridge has been developed in the last decade and has been confined almost exclusively to shorter spans, engineers say. The frame was completed last August, and testing experiments have been made of it almost continuously since that time. Engineers have made approximately 2,000 temperature observations, 400 deflection measurements, 500 hinge movement measurements and 2,000 strain-gage extensometer measurements of actual stress.

Testing for safety has been completed and engineers have found that an interior girder will hold a load of 85 tons safely. Another test was the placing of a load of 180 tons at midspan along the crown. These loads are the more severe than any to which the bridge will be subjected, they explained.

Pedestrians will have access to the beach by means of a passerelle where Menominee street touches Lake Shore drive. There also will be underpasses for pedestrians at State street directly north of North avenue, and at Dearborn street at Stockton drive, a short distance northwest of the Lincoln monument. These will provide access to the park's picnic and playgrounds in the vicinity.

3 ACT COMEDY TO BE OFFERED FRIDAY EVENING

"Faith, Hope and Flarity," a three act comedy by Jay Tobias, will be given by Progress chapter, Order of Boy Builders and Bethel 7, Order of Job's Daughters, at 8 o'clock Friday in the Lincoln auditorium, 4217 Lincoln avenue. Shirley Clark, 4553 North Wolcott avenue, and Bernice Baasch, 4417 North Richmond street, will portray the twins, Faith and Hope Crabbe, and Harold Tyzak, 3319 Berteau avenue, will appear opposite them as Flarity. Others in the cast are Rudy Kostyl, Dolores Voss, Orin Hale, Dorothy Schroeder, Urban Vershern, Bud Hale, Elinor Netzelmann, Bill Beck and LaVerne Wermick. Miss Edna L. Thorsen is directing the play.

Outing Club Plans Hike in Indiana Dunes Today

The Indiana Dunes state park will be the objective of the Park District Outing club today on one of its regular Sunday hikes. The group will board a South Shore train at Randolph street at 9 o'clock this morning and will return to the city at 8 o'clock this evening. The length of the hike is 10 miles. Miss Elizabeth Sauer will lead the hikers and Frank Parker and Mildred Zelenka will accompany them as guides.

HAND IN GLOVE WITH SPRING

IN TODAY'S INCOMPARABLE PICTURE SECTION

Voice of the North Side

Readers of the Metropolitan Section are invited to contribute to this column on matters of neighborhood interest. Readers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Full names and addresses must be given. No manuscripts will be returned. Address Voice of the North Side, The Tribune.

GIVE THE LITTLE GRASS A BREAK.

May I use your columns to protect my front lawn? Spring is here [?] and summer is coming and I am trying to raise a crop of grass. I would be somewhat successful, too, if my heavy-footed neighbors gave me a fair chance. Why can't they stay off the lawns until the grass is strong enough to bear their weight?

If only people [and their dogs] gave me a decent break, I am sure I could raise grass. It would improve the looks of the neighborhood, and be a boon to my otherwise even temper. Please give the grass a break! LAWN GROWER.

NEED TRAFFIC LIGHTS.

Months ago I read some letters in the Voice saying that Division and Clark streets should have stop and go lights. This corner is one of the most dangerous on the entire north side. If the city won't station a policeman here to assist pedestrians, it certainly ought to install lights. DISGUSTED.

TOSS BLACKOUT RIGHT INTO LAP OF NILES CENTER

McCormick Blv. Lights Await Board Meet.

That neat little problem in blackout, how to keep traffic lights lit on McCormick boulevard, last week bounced into the lap of Niles Center, where it will stay until May 21.

Up to a few months ago the Sanitary district, which operated the lights, turned the boulevard over to the county. The county accepted the highway but not the lighting of it. The county highway department has no money for lights, it says, and has given over the lighting jurisdiction to the suburbs bordering the road. Practically all of McCormick boulevard runs thru Niles Center territory.

Stuck with Problem.

Mayor George E. Blameuse said the suburb now has jurisdiction over almost every traffic signal light on the thorofare. "The problem has been dumped on Niles Center and we're stuck with it," he declared.

But it doesn't end there. The suburb has never included operation of McCormick lights in its budget. "At present we have no money to pay for their maintenance," the mayor said. "We may consider an appropriation for signal lights, but not for the illuminating street lights. They are out of the question, for their operation is too costly."

Will Have to Wait.

The light problem will have to wait until May 21 when the Niles Center village board meets, Mayor Blameuse asserted. Each set of traffic signal lights would cost the suburb $28 a month to maintain, he estimated. There are five full sets and one-half of another that would be operated by Niles Center. They are located at Touhy avenue and Oakton, Main, Church, Dempster, and Simpson streets.

The illuminating street lights have been turned off since January, but the signal lights were on until last week. Originally the Sanitary district set March 15 as the deadline for furnishing electricity for the stop and go lights, but extended it to April 15. Meanwhile the county highway department has installed reflectorized stop signs at important crossings to take the place of the traffic lights.

WILMETTE CLUB TO INSTALL TEN BOARD MEMBERS

Holds Spring Luncheon Next Wednesday.

Ten new members of the board of the Woman's club of Wilmette will be installed at the spring luncheon Wednesday in the Edgewater Beach hotel. Luncheon will be served at 12:30 o'clock in the Marine room. Mrs. George B. Williams, president, will present the officers-elect.

Mrs. Harley L. Ward.

The group includes Mrs. F. L. McGrath, second vice president; Mrs. Edward J. Matot, third vice president; Mrs. John E. Schuette, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Walter N. Sutherland, treasurer; Mrs. F. A. Cushing-Smith, literature chairman; Mrs. B. L. Mitchell, civics; Mrs. Kenneth B. McAfee, program; Mrs. Walter D. Wilson, social; Miss Rebecca Fitch, rentals, and Mrs. Harrison A. Storms, house and grounds.

Mrs. Harley L. Ward, closing her two year term of office as program chairman, will present the guest artists, Agatha Lewis, lyric soprano, the Saidenberg Symphoniette dance group and a string quartet, all under the direction of Daniel Saidenberg.

Glencoe Library Club.

Mrs. Warner R. Nelson, retiring president, will preside at the annual meeting Wednesday. At the morning session opening at 10 o'clock, reports will be received from the officers, other board members, department chairmen and delegates and representatives to other organizations. Election of officers will be held. Nominated for president is Mrs. Charles A. Steele, who was honored recently for having "the longest and most outstanding record of leadership among present members."

Luncheon for 1 o'clock has been arranged by Mrs. Emmett L. Kearney, chairman of the social committee. Seated at the speakers' table will be past presidents, members of the board and guests, including Mrs. Charles S. Clark, president of the Conference of Club Presidents and Program chairmen; Mrs. Maude Merritt, tour chairman of the Municipal Art league of Chicago; Miss Betty Miller, Junior auxiliary president, and Mrs. Harry D. Wiley, president, Glencoe Relief and Aid.

Others are Mrs. George Spaulding, president, Glencoe center of the Chicago Infant Welfare society; Mrs. John D. Galbraith, president, Glencoe American Red Cross; Mrs. George J. Pope, regent, Daughters of the American Revolution, and a past president; Mrs. Otto G. Schmidt, president, Glencoe P.-T. A., and Miss Jean Fox, reporter.

Members of the hospitality committee, Mrs. John F. Adamson, chairman, will greet members and guests. Mrs. Dwight C. Orcutt, music chairman, will present the Chicago Concert ensemble for the afternoon program. Nesta Smith is first violinist and other members of the ensemble are Lois Dangremond and Phyllis Gaylord Becker, violinists; Florence Dangremond, cellist, and Alvena Reckzeh, pianist.

The annual nature tour, scheduled for May 10, and the annual meeting of the French department on May 8 will complete the club's spring calendar.

Club Woman's Bureau.

Mrs. M. H. Lieber of Winnetka will lead the spring classes in parliamentary law sponsored by the bureau. The class will meet for five consecutive Wednesdays at 2:45 o'clock in the ninth floor tearoom of Mandel Brothers starting this week.

All clubwomen are invited to attend. Mrs. Lieber also will preside at a luncheon table from 12:45 o'clock until class time. She has been an officer in many clubs and recently was appointed to the staff of Northwestern university to teach parliamentary law.

Friends of Orphans.

Mrs. Grant Chandler of Wilmette will open her home at 727 Forest avenue on Wednesday for the club's closing all day sewing and business meeting. The hostess is patron of the group, formerly known as the Friends of Lake Bluff orphanage. Originally formed four years ago to help the Lake Bluff home, the group added the Lydia Children's home, 4300 Irving Park road, and the Central Baptist home in Maywood to its list and decided to change its name accordingly.

Mrs. Vilas Johnson, founder and president, will preside at the morning business session. After election of officers, the 40 members will make plans for a luncheon for the 56 patrons to be held in June. A final checkup will be made on the summer needs of the 225 children in the three orphanages.

About $1,200 of the $3,000 earned at the March benefit has been spent on clothing and shoes and a dishwasher for the Lydia home. After a substantial sum has been set aside to provide for fall clothing for the children, the remaining funds will be used to make improvements at the Lydia home.

Evanston Woman's Athletic Club.

The annual meeting and election of officers are scheduled for 2 o'clock Thursday in the Congregational Church house, 1417 Hinman avenue, Evanston. Preceding the business session Mrs. Gertrude C. Lieber will discuss current events. Mrs. Paul Johnson, president, will preside and Mrs. E. W. Springer, chairman of the nominating committee, will read the slate prepared by her committee.

At 2:30 o'clock Friday, the membership committee will entertain the executive board and new members at tea in the home of Mrs. Harold E. Jones, 2760 Garrison street. Mrs. Walter L. Jones is chairman, assisted by Mrs. William W. Fickling, Mrs. Edward P. Coleman and Mrs. Jones.

Will Appear in "Stage Door"

Althea Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Dean Murphy of Winnetka, will appear in "Stage Door," the Ferber and Kaufman comedy, which will open in the Guild theater in Evanston Thursday. This will be the theater's fourth production since it was incorporated last January. Martin Magner, for 20 years an actor and director in Budapest and Vienna, is the director. Others in the cast are Hope Summers, Tracy Hackbert, Natasha Wentcher, Alan Hokanson, Mary de Tarnowsky, Jeanne Miles, Gertrude Smith, Lenore Russell, Barbara Barry, James Dester, Raymond Perlman, Joe Nellis, and Edwin S. Mills Jr.

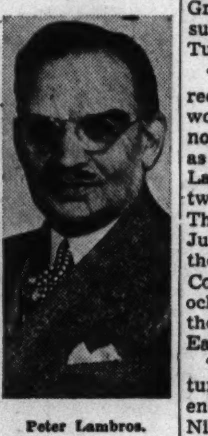
News and Queries Within and Without the Church
A Religious Voice of the People — Edited by the Rev. John Evans

For more than 100,000 Chicago Christians and for nearly one-third of all the Christians of the world, today is Easter Sunday. "Christ Is Risen," will be salutations on the lips of Chicago Christians of these national descents: Greek, Russian, Armenian, Slovakian, Assyrian, Serbian, Rumanian, Orthodox Polish, and Ukrainian. These are members of the Greek Orthodox communion.



Peter Lambros.

We asked Peter Lambros, editor of our contemporary, the Greek Star, to tell us something about the Greek Easter and why it differs in date from western Christianity as represented by Catholic, Anglican, and Protestant churches. Mr. Lambros, who is celebrating his first half century as a resident and citizen of Chicago, said Easter to the Greek has a double meaning—the resurrection of Christ and the resurrection of the Greek nation in 1821 when it battled successfully for freedom from the Turks.

"Because there is but one resurrection and one Easter, people often wonder why the Greek churches do not celebrate Easter at the same time as the other denominations," Mr. Lambros said. "The difference is between Julian and Gregorian calendars. The Greek Easter date goes by the Julian calendar so as not to impair the integrities of the patriarchates at Constantinople, Jerusalem, and Antioch, altho the Greek church adopted the Gregorian calendar—excepting Easter—two decades ago.

"During earliest Christian centuries Easter was observed at different times, but at the council of Nicaea, 325 A. D., Emperor Constantine decided that Easter should be designated on the first Sunday of spring, or the Sunday after the full moon of the spring equinox, and after the Jewish Passover.

"A point to be emphasized is that altho Greek Easter comes on the Gregorian calendar date, April 28, the real date is April 14 under the Julian calendar."

CLOSE CONTESTS ARE REVEALED IN CONGRESS RACES

Complete Official Count in Cook County.

Close contests for both congressman and delegate to the national party conventions were revealed when the results of the official canvass for Cook and Lake county congressional districts were announced.

Districts 1 to 10 are in these two counties. The closest congressional race in these ten districts in the April 9 primary, according to the canvass, was run in the 3d district by two Republicans, Waldemar J. Roehler and Goodwin L. Dosland.

Roehler, a young real estate banker making his maiden try for political office, won the Republican nomination by a margin of only 299 votes over Dosland, who was his party's nominee two years ago. Roehler was credited with 19,807 votes and Dosland with 19,508. Friends of Dosland see the possibility of a recount.

Delegate Race Ends in Tie.

Two candidates for delegate to the Republican national convention from the 6th district ran a dead heat for second place, the canvass revealed. They are Philip E. Gilbert of Chicago and Joseph A. Coyner of Oak Park, each of whom received 19,668 votes. Julius H. Miner of Chicago was first with 31,219 votes and thus was assured one of the two delegate posts.

The tie between Gilbert and Coyner for the second post probably will be decided by the toss of a coin.

Convention Might Decide.

Some observers said such a procedure would not necessarily be conclusive. The loser of the toss, they said, could appeal to the credentials committee of the national convention.

The table below shows the vote for the various candidates for congress and for delegate as determined by the canvass, made by the Chicago election board and the county clerks of Cook and Lake counties. The asterisks denote sitting congressmen, and the names of the primary winners in each district appear in boldface type.

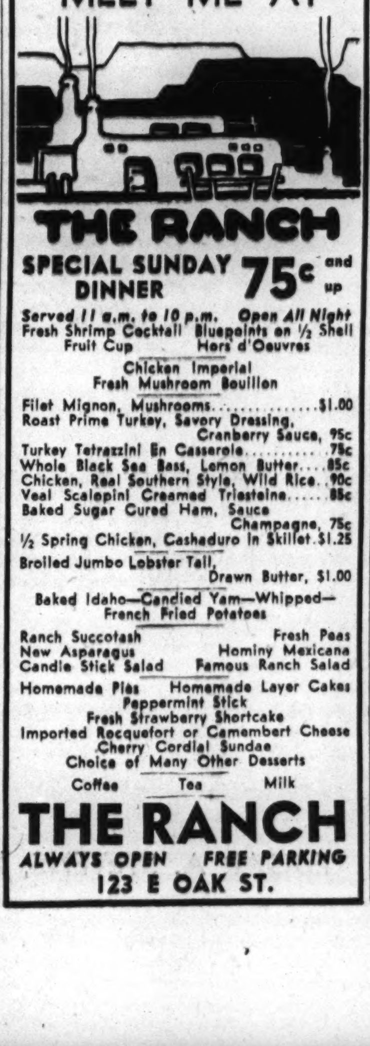
STAFF ELECTION WILL BE HELD BY SISTERHOOD

The Anshe Emet sisterhood will hold its last open meeting of the season at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the Community hall, Pine Grove avenue and Grace street. Mrs. William Markoff, president, will preside during the election of officers.

Mrs. A. D. Marks, chairman of the day, has arranged for a program by the Chicago Operetta company, a group of 75 Negro men and women. They will offer selections from "The Mikado," "The Vagabond King," and "Chimes of Normandy."



GLENCOE PUPILS OFFER CONCERT THIS AFTERNOON

P.-T.A. Sponsors Plan; 125 to Take Part.

One hundred and twenty-five Glencoe public school pupils who are studying instrumental music as a result of a Parent-Teacher association project that got under way two years ago, will present their annual orchestral concert this afternoon in the suburb's Central school.

Two years ago members of the P.-T.A. and the suburban board of education employed Miss Martha Ream as counselor of instrumental music. Pupils taking the instrumental course are assigned first to small ensembles and later they are given positions in the advanced orchestra. Proceeds of this afternoon's concert will go toward the purchase of new instruments.

Installation of new officers of Daniel Boone Parent-Teacher association will be held Friday evening at Indian Boundary fieldhouse, 2500 Lunt avenue. Delegates who attended the recent state convention will read their reports and Dr. H. M. Ross will be chairman of a panel discussion of "Promoting Child Welfare Thru Better Knowledge of School Education."

Dr. Ross, who resides at 6535 North Fairfield avenue, is the new president. Other officers to be installed include Mrs. Otto Wenk, 6535 North Artesian avenue, first vice president; Mrs. Roy L. Swanson, 6711 North Campbell avenue, second vice president; Mrs. Edna M. Murphy, 6409 North Talman avenue, third vice president; Mrs. Fred Fleig, 6723 North Artesian avenue, recording secretary, and Mrs. Charles Schmidt, 6627 North Campbell avenue, corresponding secretary.

Le Moyne P.-T.A. will hold a card party Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Arthur Linick, 3750 Lake Shore drive, to raise funds for the student aid project.

ATTIC PLAYERS GIVE TWO PLAYS FRIDAY EVENING

Junior and intermediate actors of the Attic Players of Green Briar park, 2650 Peterson avenue, will present two plays, "Hansel and Gretel" and "Don't Tell a Soul" Friday evening at the fieldhouse.

Members of the younger group who will enact "Hansel and Gretel" include Elyne Langermann, Betty Ann and Mary Jane Sunwald, Dorothy Olson, Lois Wettleton, Betty Eiden, Margaret Rohner, Helen Browne, and Rozanne Glass.

The cast of the intermediate group presenting the second play includes Patricia Garrity, Mary Agnes Moroney, June Pose, Hortense Harles, Phyllis Troik, Elaine DeMet, Jean Freeding, and Marion Butler.

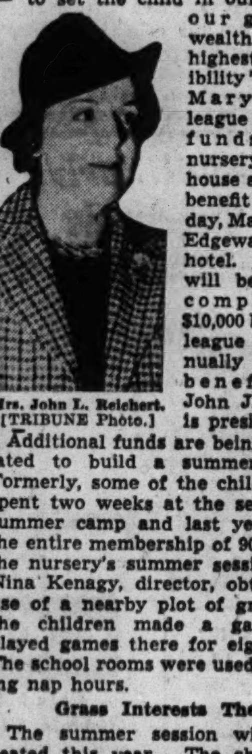
LITTLE FOLKS OF NURSERY TO HAVE BENEFIT

1,600 Expected by Mary Crane League.



Mrs. John L. Reichert.

Pledged to Jane Addams' philosophy—"to set the child in our midst as our greatest wealth and our highest responsibility"—the Mary Crane league will raise funds for its nursery in Hull house at a spring benefit Wednesday, May 8, in the Edgewater Beach hotel. Proceeds will be used to complete the $10,000 budget the league raises annually thru two benefits. Mrs. John J. Reichert is president.

Additional funds are being accumulated to build a summer cottage. Formerly, some of the children have spent two weeks at the settlement's summer camp and last year almost the entire membership of 90 attended the nursery's summer session. Miss Nina Kenagy, director, obtained the use of a nearby plot of ground and the children made a garden and played games there for eight weeks. The school rooms were used only during nap hours.

Grass Interests Them.

The summer session will be repeated this year. The children already have shown an interest in the blades of grass pushing thru the ground. Last week some of them hurried out to clean up the papers and other débris that accumulated thru the winter and any day now they'll start their spring planting.

"They love this garden," said Miss Kenagy. "We covered the playlot with tanbark and they roll in it with joy."

But the league is not satisfied with this little taste of the outdoors for their charges and the members hope to have the cottage ready by another year.

More than 1,600 persons are expected to attend the benefit. Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock and a book review by Mrs. Florence Bourke Ellis, bridge and a fashion show will be featured during the afternoon.

Mrs. Harry Mason Smith, second vice president and ways and means chairman, has appointed Mrs. Maurice Stans as general chairman. Serving with here are Mrs. Ira Owen, cochairman; Mrs. Frank Bryan and Mrs. Bruce Brown, advertising chairmen; Mrs. William Potter and Mrs. Thomas Murchison, book review; Mrs. William Warren and Mrs. Richard Schmid, card tables.

Others Lend Help.

Mrs. Russell Baker, prize chairman, assisted by Mrs. Paul Arndt, Mrs. J. Burchfield Kennedy, Miss Marjorie Williams, Miss Virginia Johnston, Mrs. Alfred Gansberg, and Mrs. S. W. Shafer; Mrs. Leslie Drew and Mrs. D. R. Peck, style show; Mrs. E. W. Glaser, Mrs. George Theisen, Mrs. Robert Spaeth, and Mrs. Michael Tighe, tickets, and Mrs. George D. Cullis, publicity.

Serving in an advisory capacity are Mrs. W. V. Gathany, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Frederick Orser, and Mrs. Reichert. Seven young north shore women who will be models are Miss Williams, Miss Nadine Kinney, Miss Kay Littlefield, Miss Betsy Davis, Miss Louise Yates, Miss Virginia Johnson, and Mrs. Merrill MacNamee.

The nursery school was founded at Hull House in 1925 by the late Jane Addams and Edna Dean Baker, president of the National college of education in Evanston. In addition to serving the underpriviledge children of the neighborhood, it functions as a demonstration center.

Routine for Nursery.

Miss Kenagy, who has directed the nursery since its beginning, explained that the children are brought in about 8:30 o'clock and are under supervision until the last child has been called for, often after 5 o'clock, to accommodate a working mother. The program is one of educative play based on a wholesome health program, a hot meal at noon [often the best meal the children have], and sleep.

Since the league assumed full financial responsibility six years ago, four rooms have been furnished and full time teachers have been added to the staff originally composed of Miss Kenagy and Miss Dorothy Hatch.

The league now is composed of nine chapters under the following presidents: Mrs. Francis B. Reckitt of Wilmette, Jane Addams chapter; Mrs. J. Burchfield Kennedy, Evanston, Myra Lane chapter; Mrs. William Tell, Evanston, Nina Kenagy chapter; Mrs. Leslie Drew, Kenilworth, Kenilworth chapter, Mrs. William Scott, Chicago, Edna Dean Baker chapter; Mrs. Michael Tighe, Evanston, Clara Belle Baker chapter; Mrs. Le Roy Waggonseller, Chicago, Edgewater Beach chapter; Miss Jeanne Anna Stokes, Chicago, Meredith Peake chapter, and Mrs. Ira J. Owen, Winnetka, Elizabeth Harrison chapter.

Candidates for Queen

GERTRUDE SWEENEY.

PATRICIA McCABE.
[Gibson Photo.]

The social season at Loyola university will reach its climax at the Loyola union senior ball Saturday evening in the Lake Shore Athletic club. At midnight the king and queen of the ball will be announced. The former will be named by a popular vote taken at the dance and his queen will be selected for her beauty, poise and personality. Among the queen candidates from the north side are Gertrude Sweeney, 6651 Newgard avenue; Patricia McCabe, 4721 North Hermitage avenue; Rose Fisher, 4451 North Paulina street; Anne Marie O'Rourke, 1120 Loyola avenue, and Kathryn Dealy, 6634 Bosworth avenue.

Co-Chairman

Mary Ellen Le Claire, 1254 Loyola avenue, is co-chairman of the arrangements committee in charge of a tea to be held this afternoon at the Blackstone hotel in connection with the formal induction ceremonies of Beta chapter of Kappa Delta Gamma sorority.

Will Skate Tonight.

The Young People's club of St. Genevieve's parish will hold a skating party tomorrow night in the Hollywood rink, 4823 North Kedzie avenue. Joseph Dwyer is chairman of the committee and Joseph Cleary is president of the club.

7TH IN SERIES OF CONCERTS IS SET FOR FRIDAY

The American Concert orchestra will present the seventh in its series of adult music appreciation concerts on Friday evening in the Illinois Music Concert hall, 632 North Dearborn street. Ralph Cissne will direct the orchestra in a program of numbers by Verdi and Wagner.

The program will open with Verdi's overture to "La Forza del Destino" and continue with his prelude to "La Traviata" and a march from "Aïda." Then will come Wagner's prelude to "Lohengrin" and the prelude to the third act of the same opera. Wagner's "Siegfried Idyll" and the "Dance of the Apprentices" from "Die Meistersinger."

Another unit of the Illinois music project, the Chicago Operetta company, will offer a concert at 2:30 Wednesday for the Anshe Emet sisterhood in the temple at Pine Grove avenue and Grace street.

Church Young Folks Plan Picnic for This Afternoon

One of the first picnics to be held by a north side organization this spring will be given this afternoon by the Young People's Canterbury club of St. Ansgarius church, 2514 Thorndale avenue, at Harms Woods in Niles township. Miss Virginia Bell, 6033 North Albany avenue, is chairman of the arrangements committee.

PIONEER RAABE FAMILY HOLDS A TRIPLE FESTIVAL

Anniversaries in Plenty Fall on Same Day.

April 14 is a popular date in the Raabe family. A triple celebration was held on that date in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Walter G. Raabe, 5807 Wentworth avenue. The family and 50 friends observed the 60th wedding anniversary of Dr. Raabe's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Raabe of Morton Grove, John Raabe's 81st birthday and Dr. and Mrs. Raabe's 33d wedding anniversary.

Family members at the party were a daughter, Miss Matilda Raabe, a grandson, George Raabe and his wife, and a great-granddaughter, Mary Anne.

Recalls Earlier Event.

The event recalled the older couple's golden wedding celebration in their own home 10 years ago. At that time they were the third generation of the Raabe family to celebrate a golden wedding in Cook county.

Mr. Raabe's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. John Dudley Raabe, marked their golden wedding day on the south side of Chicago in 1899 and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Raabe, celebrated theirs on the north side in 1869.

Barn in Niles Center.

Both John and his wife, Fredericka, are 81 years old. They were born in Niles Center and knew each other as children. At the time of their marriage, young John was an assistant in a hardware store in Niles Center.

They moved to Chicago's south side where he opened a hardware store and stayed there until 1904. Later he entered the ice manufacturing business. During those years, the couple resided in Highland Park and on the north side. Fifteen years ago Mr. Raabe retired and he and his wife settled in Morton Grove.

ARTS FESTIVAL WILL BE GIVEN BY ANSHE EMET

Three temple organizations of Anshe Emet synagogue, Pine Grove avenue and Grace street, last week began rehearsing for the annual congregation arts festival to be held Sunday evening, May 26.

The Anshe Emet Symphony orchestra of 90 musicians will give the first Chicago performance of "The Emek," composed by Mark Lavry. It was introduced by the Palestinian Symphony orchestra under the direction of Arturo Toscanini.

The temple drama group and the synagogue choir will present a musical comedy, "200,000," by Sholom Aleichem. An exhibit of Jewish photographic art and paintings is planned.

On Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Ehlen are on a honeymoon thru the south after their wedding April 20 in Queen of All Saints church. The bride is the former Miss Elizabeth Hoffmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hoffmann, 6221 North Knox avenue. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Thomas Burke, assisted by the Rev. Francis Dolan. A dinner for the immediate family was held at the Edgewater Beach hotel followed by a reception in the Hoffmann home.

'BITTERSWEET' IS FIRST SHOW IN THEATER OF AIR

Marion Claire, Melton to Star in W-G-N Series.

The Chicago Theater of the Air—W-G-N-Mutual's new program featuring great operettas—will present as its first offering from 9 to 10 p. m. next Thursday Noel Coward's "Bittersweet." The series will be presented by THE TRIBUNE.

Marion Claire, brilliant soprano of operetta, radio, movie, and concert fame; James Melton, distinguished tenor, and an augmented chorus and concert orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber, and a dramatic cast will give the operetta before an invited audience of 600 persons including 100 officers from the United States naval training station at Great Lakes. The operetta will be aired over the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

William A. Bacher, noted radio producer and director, brought to Chicago from Hollywood, will produce the operettas which have been adapted for broadcasting in 60 minutes by Noel Gerson.

Miss Claire as Sari Linden.

Miss Claire will portray the part of Sari Linden. It is a familiar part for her. She is one of the three outstanding vocalists who have appeared in this part. She appeared in the "Bittersweet" company here with Allan Jones opposite her several seasons ago.

James Melton will sing the rôle of Carl Linden, the young music teacher who elopes with Sari. Melton has had starring rôles in movies, concert successes, and operatic hits in addition to his perfomances on many coast to coast radio programs.

Orchestra to Be Enlarged.

Miss Claire and Melton will be supported by an augmented chorus, a cast of outstanding Chicago radio actors, and an enlarged concert orchestra directed by Mr. Weber, musical director of W-G-N and of the Chicago Opera company.

Among the Coward songs which will be heard are "I'll See You Again," "Tokay," "Zigeuner," "Call of Life," and "Small Café." An original musical theme has been composed by Mr. Weber for use in the series of operettas.

Following "Bittersweet" will be "The Student Prince," by Sigmund Romberg, to be broadcast May 16.

SYMPHONIC HOUR TO MAKE BOW ON W-G-N TONIGHT

Tribute to Association of Commerce Planned.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The new W-G-N Symphonic hour, to be presented by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE as a public service, will make its bow from 9 to 10 o'clock tonight over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. The Symphonic hour will be presented by the W-G-N Concert orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, with Marion Claire, renowned soprano, and Michael Wilkomirski, noted violinist, as the soloists. There will also be an augmented chorus.

An added feature of the Symphonic hour will be a gesture of honor each Sunday evening to one of the great organizations of the community which contribute to the security, prosperity, and welfare of the public. Tonight the tribute will be paid to a specially invited audience of the Chicago Association of Commerce, headed by President Oscar G. Mayer. Frank J. Loesch, Chicago's civic leader and ormer president of the Chicago Crime commission will speak briefly.

Other Tributes Planned.

In subsequent programs, special tribute will be paid to the police and fire departments, the army, prominent educators and the men who deliver the mail.

The second of the invitation affairs will be given in honor of the army. Officers of the United States army will be studio guests next Sunday when Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, commander of the 6th corps area, is to deliver the talk of the evening.

Miss Claire, beautiful star of opera, screen, and radio, was born in Lake Bluff, Ill. She made her first operatic appearance in "La Bohème" in Rovigo, near Venice. Since then she has starred in many operas and operettas including "The Great Waltz" and "Bittersweet." She is to star in "Bittersweet" in the new W-G-N Theater of the Air next Thursday at 9 p. m. She made her film debut in "Make a Wish." In private life, Miss Claire is the wife of Mr. Weber, who is musical director of W-G-N and artistic director of the Chicago Opera ocmpany.

Concertmeister at W-G-N.

Michael Wilkomirski, concertmaster of the W-G-N Concert orchestra, is rated by critics as one of the nation's finer violinists.

Wilkomirski was born in Moscow of Polish parents. His father, a teacher in the conservatory there, trained him as a very small boy. He made his debut when only six.

The program for tonight:

Overture "Donna Diana"......von Reznicek
Concert orchestra.

......Miss Claire, octet and orchestra.
[a] Scene and Gypsy Song from Caprice Espagnole.......Rimsky-Korsakov
[b] Fandango of the Asturias from Caprice Espagnole.......Rimsky-Korsakov
Concert orchestra.

The broadcasts are to be aired from W-G-N's beautiful main audience studio where visitors will witness the broadcasting technique of a modern radio station.

Kay Kyser to Be Guest on NBC Bandwagon Tonight

Kay Kyser, the old professor, will be answering the questions instead of asking them when he and his orchestra are guests of Henry M. Neely, m. c. on the Bandwagon at 6:30 p. m. today over WMAQ-NBC.

PAGANINI TRIBUTE PROGRAM TODAY BY PHILHARMONIC

Tribute will be paid to Niccolo Paganini, great Italian virtuoso who died 100 years ago May 27, by the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra as it performs an arrangement by Arcady Dubensky of the celebrated "La Campanella" at 2 p. m. today over WIND.

"La Campanella" [The Little Bells] is the third movement, or "Rondo a la Clochette," of Paganini's Second Violin Concerto. Dubensky, a member of the Philharmonic's second violin section, arranged it especially for Barbirolli and the orchestra. He calls it a "free" transcription "made from the original score with the idea of giving the symphony orchestra the part of the solo virtuoso."

"La Campanella" is so named because of an imitation of bell sounds it contains.

The program opens with the Overture to Mozart's opera, "The Marriage of Figaro," continuing with Brahms' Fourth Symphony. After intermission, during which Deems Taylor will give his commentary the Paganini-Dubensky work will be given and finally Tschaikowsky's Fantasy-Overture, "Romeo and Juliet."

Editor's Daughter

JOAN BANKS.

Two popular daytime serials—"Mary Foster, Editor's Daughter" and "Linda's First Love"—will be aired over W-G-N starting tomorrow. They are not new stories to Chicago listeners, but this is their first appearance on W-G-N. "Linda" with Arline Blackburn as star, will be aired at 10:45 a. m., and "Editor's Daughter" with Joan Banks playing the lead at 11 a. m.

Linda Crockett and Mary Foster have much in common. Their lives are aimed toward a sensible, normal married life when they find and win the ideal man, but beyond this the stories differ. Linda's back-breaking duty of caring for an invalid foster-mother and father as well as a stepson has made her life a hectic one.

LOSE WEIGHT
this amazingly, easy safe way
IF you want to take off ugly fat easily and pleasantly all you have to do is—
First ... eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating. Second .. mix ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ of a glass of water and drink before meals and at bedtime. Thus you reduce caloric intake considerably. But you do not suffer a hungry moment. There are no strict diet lists, strenuous exercises or taking drugs. Yet!—in a test conducted by Dr. Damrau of New York, with this method among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, an average weight loss of seven pounds was registered per month. This remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men as it is for overweight women. There is only one thing to watch. Eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating; and be sure to use Welch's Grape Juice—always made from the pick of the grape crop; always full strength; always pure.

Irene Rich, lovely star of the screen and radio, now past 40, weighs the same as she did at 16. She recommends the easy Welch way to everyone.
Try This Amazing Welch's Tomato Juice
If you think all Tomato Juice is alike, try Welch's new, vitamin-rich Tomato Juice. It is so rich and thick you can add ¼ water or ice and still have a most delicious Tomato Juice.

Pull the Trigger on Lazy Bowels, and Also Pepsin-ize Stomach!
When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

MISS BANKHEAD NEXT GUEST ON 5TH ROW CENTER

Noted Actress to Star in "Hurricane."

Tallulah Bankhead, one of the nation's outstanding actresses, will be starred on Fifth Row Center over W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system from 7 to 7:30 p. m. next Friday.

Miss Bankhead will be heard in a special radio play, "Hurricane,"

Miss Bankhead is appearing in Lillian Hellman's play, "The Little Foxes," at the Selwyn theater. The show, which had a run of more than four hundred performances on Broadway, has been hailed as one of Miss Bankhead's greatest triumphs.

In "Hurricane," she will play the rôle of a young wife whose marriage nears a breakup because of indifference and a series of misunderstandings.

Born in Alabama.

A native of Alabama, Tallulah is a daughter of Speaker William B. Bankhead of the house of representatives, and a niece of Senator John Bankhead. She scored her first great stage hit in London in 1922, when she appeared with Sir Gerald du Maurier in "The Dancers." Prior to that she had appeared in several ingenue rôles on Broadway.

She starred in "They Knew What They Wanted," in London. She did numerous other shows across the Atlantic, including "Her Cardboard Lover," "The Green Hat," and "Camille." In the eyes of the British she was the greatest of all American actresses.

After nine years in London, Miss Bankhead returned home, and has appeared in such plays as "Forsaking All Others," "Something Gay," "Reflected Glory," "I Am Different," and revivals of "The Circle" and "Rain." Her biggest hit in the United States has been in "The Little Foxes."

In "Hurricane," Miss Bankhead will be surrounded by a cast of outstanding radio actors.

Blair Walliser is director of the Fifth Row Center presentations.

GLEE CLUB GIVES SONG FESTIVAL FRIDAY EVENING

The spring song festival of the Philharmonic Glee club of Chicago will be presented at 8:15 o'clock Friday in the Ravenswood Masonic temple, 4601 North Paulina street, under the direction of Robert Ernst Miller. Soloists will be Flora McGlasson, soprano, and Robert W. Miller and Tom Burdick, baritone and bass. Herman Baehrend, violinist, and William Curtis, pianist, will assist.

Members of the club include Hilda Baehrend, Florence Cruzen, Viva Curtis, Dorothy Dutton, Polly Elliott, Harriet Faktor, Winnie Gruening, Esther Hart, Lucille Luecke, Dorothy Miller, and Lorraine Pape, sopranos; Dorothy Arenson, Margaret Bailey, Helen Davis, Kay Hartman, Helen Hollis, Pearle Turner, Miriam von Plachecki, Margo Wallschlaeger, and Ruth Wallschlaeger, altos.

Others are Howard Adams, Gaston Anderson, Orville De Mers, Omer Dill, Howard Ehrlinger, and Harold Swartz, tenors; Peter Hoag, Mr. Baehrend, Mr. Curtis, Marvin Mulkaski, Jack Muth, Don Tyson, and Otto Seulberger, baritones and basses, and Mrs. Gladys Felman, accompanist.

Deerfield P.-T. A. Sponsors Opera in Highland Park

The Junior Program opera, "Bumble Bee Prince," will be presented at two performances, 4 and 7:30 o'clock Friday, in the Highland Park High school auditorium, under auspices of the Deerfield Township P.-T. A. groups. The story was written by Alexander Pushkin as the "Tales of Tsar Saltan" and presented as a Christmas gift to the children of the late Czar Nicholas. Later Rimsky-Korsakoff used the story for his opera. Tickets for children and adults will be on sale at the schools.

Head Patrolmen's Club

In a ceremony held last week in the presence of the policemen, new officers of the Chicago Patrolmen's club were installed. Policeman John J O'Malley of Hudson avenue station (seated) won the presidency by 11 votes from Daniel M. Andrews of Marquette station, the incumbent. Other officers are, left to right, George Weber, recording secretary; Nicholas J. Reidy, first vice president; Harry Larson, second vice president; Frank J. Brady, third vice president, and John J. Cleary, financial secretary. The club is composed of 3,800 members.

3 FELLOWSHIPS ARE AWARDED TO NORTH SIDERS

Three north side students have been awarded fellowships to the University of Chicago for the 1940-'41 academic year. The fellowships are in zoölogy, physics, and art. They were awarded to Millard Buxton Rogers, 1100 North La Salle street, who has exhibited several paintings in Big Ten art shows; Leo Seren, 4636 Hazel avenue, physics, and Rupert Leon Wenzel, 640 Belden avenue, coölogy. A total of 143 students from all parts of the United States have received appointments to university fellowships, George A. Works, dean of students, announced last week.

Choral Club to Present 'Chimes of Normandy' Twice

Members of the Douglas Smith Choral club will present "The Chimes of Normandy" Saturday and Sunday evenings at the group's headquarters, 844 Rush street. The cast includes Mary Ann Tobin, J. P. Wendt, John Oates, Elizabeth Salla, Richard Salla, and Tony Rizzo. Miriam Knauf is the director.

W-G-N PERFECTS PLANS TO COVER 2 CONVENTIONS

Quin Ryan, Henning Head Staff.

The major networks are busy completing plans for the most complete coverage of the national conventions in radio history. When the Republicans convene in Philadelphia on June 24 and the Democrats in Chicago on July 15, the broadcasters will be ready with scores of experts—newscasters, political interpreters, analysts, commentators, editorialists, special features men, announcers and engineers—to give listeners thruout the world a complete account of the proceedings.

W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system have arranged the most elaborate coverage of these crucial conventions. More than 130 stations in the United States, Canada and Hawaii will be linked on Mutual for the convention broadcasts. In addition, the convention broadcasts will be short-waved to the world thru the facilities of WRUL, Boston.

Mutual System's Staff.

Mutual's staff will represent the ablest reporters and commentators available from its key stations W-G-N; WOR, New York; WOL, Washington, and WFIL, Philadelphia. Heading the staff will be Quin Ryan, a veteran of national conventions since crystal set days; Arthur Sears Henning, chief of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Washington bureau and W-G-N commentator; Fulton Lewis Jr., Washington newscaster; Gabriel Heatter, veteran newscaster; Wythe Williams, editor of "Greenwich Time" and Dave Driscoll of WOR, New York.

Following a final pre-convention meeting here last week, Mutual officials announced that regular program commitments, commercial and sustaining, would be subject to cancellation so that continuous convention transmissions from Philadelphia and Chicago may be made available to listeners. An announcement of the proposed convention broadcasting schedule will be made shortly.

50 Microphones in Halls.

Elaborate technical set-ups will be installed under the supervision of three Mutual network chief engineers—Carl Meyers, of W-G-N; J. R. Poppele, of WOR; Arnold Nygren, of WFIL, and Andrew L. Poole, traffic manager of the network.

More than 50 microphones of Mutual, CBS and NBC will be placed strategically inside both halls and across the speakers' platforms so that each state chairman will have his own microphone. Specially constructed radio booths will tower over the stages, with auxiliary studios and offices maintained directly beneath the main stages in both halls.

Parabolic microphones, which pick up sounds in a concave bowl and reflect them directly into the microphones, will be used for crowd atmosphere.

Other Networks Reporters.

A. A. Schechter, NBC news editor, has announced the following staff for NBC: For the NBC Red network H. V. Kaltenborn and Earl Godwin will be the chief commentators. On the Blue network H. R. Baukhage, Lowell Thomas and Raymond Clapper will head the staff. Announcers to assist them include Charles Lyon of Chicago; George Hicks, Carleton Smith and Herluf Provenson. Ann Underwood will cover women's activities.

Columbia's staff, as mustered by Paul White, director of public affairs, includes Elmer Davis, Bob Trout, Albert Warner and John Charles Daly. Edwin C. Hill and Paul Sullivan may also assist with the coverage.

—L. W.

UNUSUAL HOUSE HAS LIVING ROOM ON SECOND FLOOR

Dining-Recreation Space Found on First.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

What makes a house a home, with roots deep down in treasured soil, instead of just—another house? Money often has precious little to do with it, or size, or style. It is rather a matter of fine taste, excellent planning, and a meticulous attention to detail.

When Mr. and Mrs. Reginald G. Schuler, 337 Oakland avenue, Highland Park, decided to build they discussed many matters with their architect, William N. Alderman, 19 East Pearson street, Chicago. When the house was completed it had a background especially designed for the owners; a house with an unmistakable atmosphere, personal and inviting.

The design is a careful blending of the modern and the traditional. Distinctive details have given it a note of importance, and discreet planning has added materially to its feeling of space.

Stay In Their Budget.

Mr. and Mrs. Schuler had definitely decided how much they wished to spend on their home, and Mr. Alderman kept to their figure. [Always a satisfying accomplishment to all concerned.]

The interesting and unusual layout is partly a result of the decision to keep within a stipulated budget. Here is how it was done.

FIRST FLOOR

Mr. Schuler had very much wanted a large recreation room in the basement, but Mr. Alderman pointed out that such a feature would increase estimated costs. So a compromise was reached, and a most unusual combination dining room and recreation room was planned for the first floor. Quite a man's room, and treated in the lively Mexican spirit. Then, on the second floor was a living room with studio ceiling—carried out as Mrs. Schuler wished.

May Be Enlarged.

Informality on the first floor. More formal touches on the second. And possibilities for various entertainment, formal and informal, as the occasion dictates.

A clever feat to accomplish in a five room home. Tho, incidentally, this house, small at present, has a future. Provision has been made for later additions in living space.

As you approach the house, which stands on a beautifully wooded site, a flagstone walk leads to a quaintly walled-in garden and a doorway of stone, and at the right of the entrance doorway is the door which leads to the garage.

The exterior walls are of brick for the first floor, with cream colored stucco panels on front and vertical wide boards of cypress.

Inside you see the intriguing combination recreation-dining room, with beamed wood ceiling and a two story stairwell to the second floor. This large room faces two ways, and opens onto a wide screened porch—thru folding doors and an opening 9 feet wide. When these doors are "folded" open the effect is virtually to bring the porch into the room.

At the far end is a 16 foot wide fireplace which extends across one entire wall, with a red brick hearth 6 feet deep.

The kitchen likewise has a beamed wood ceiling, with planks painted white, and dark brown beams. The cases are white, the floor a handsome red linoleum tile. There are lively touches here in this room, red and yellow splashes of color in the Mexican vein.

From the colonial-keeping room a two story stairwell rises to the second floor.

Here there is a large, studio ceiling room, designed as Mrs. Schuler desired, in delicate pastel shades. The floor is a light oak, and there are stunning white rugs and soft toned gray-blue walls. The entire room is dominated by a fine colonial mantelpiece.

Several very interesting and unusual features are found on this second floor.

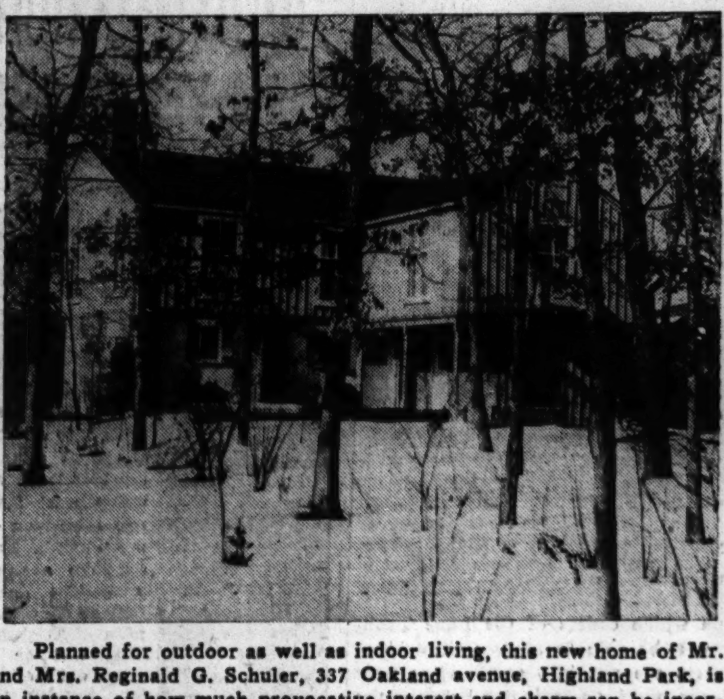
There is a diminutive, intriguing study opening from the living room. A window on one side overlooks the garden area of the house. Opposite this wall is a honeycombed opening overlooking the stairwell.

In the hall there is a built-in space for a disappearing type of bed. A retreat which offers extra accommodation for the extra guest.

On this second floor there also are two bedrooms and bath. The bedrooms have closets with sliding doors, with cane panels for ventilation.

The living room opens onto a large screened porch. The overall of living room and porch is some 26'x18'. In the warm weather months this living room and porch can be counted as one room a great deal of the time, as the opening is 11 feet wide, with doors which slide into wall recesses.

Five Rooms in Highland Park



Planned for outdoor as well as indoor living, this new home of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald G. Schuler, 337 Oakland avenue, Highland Park, is an instance of how much provocative interest and charm can be incorporated in a five room home when wise planning and heed of details are back of its design. The architect is William N. Alderman, 19 East Pearson street, Chicago.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, April 29.

Garden activities open with a rush after the cold weather of spring, and it is necessary that all operations be done at the proper time. Transplant or rearrange perennials early to permit each divided plant to become established as soon as possible. Attention to the shrubbery includes early spading thru the plants. Shrubs need food as much as other plants. Planting may continue as long as the material can be obtained, but early planting is best. Be sure that each shrub has plenty of space, good soil, and that the plant is set only slightly deeper than it grew in the nursery. All broken roots should be cut back, the tops pruned, and old wood removed. Tamp the soil around the roots. Leave a depression around each plant and give it lots of water.

Tuesday, April 30.

When pruning roses remove all the prunings to prevent the spread of diseased parts. It is good practice to feed roses when the buds are breaking. Spread a complete commercial food around each plant and hoe it under. Make a second application just before the flowering period, but do not feed after Aug. 1. Roses in this section are best planted in spring.

Wednesday, May 1.

If you have any of the common snowball plants on the grounds be sure to spray with an oil spray just as the buds start and afterward at intervals of a few days with nicotine sulphate and soap. This should control the aphids that cause the leaves to curl. Spray young peony growths with bordeaux. Sulphur dust is excellent to control mildews, rusts, black spot on roses, red spiders, and mites. Remember that stomach poisons kill leaf eating insects and contact sprays sucking insects.

Thursday, May 2.

Divide hardy chrysanthemums in spring. Transplant the shoots in rich soil about 9 inches apart. Hardy asters and boltonia also should be transplanted now. If a shipment of plants is received and they are dried out, plunge in water or bury in wet soil for a few hours until they have revived, then plant. Most annual flower seed can be sown within a short time. As soon as the tulips have ceased flowering, sow annuals between them, such as phlox drummondi, poppies, California poppies, nasturtiums, and sweet alyssum. Try a few of the strawflowers for cutting and for use as winter bouquets. Why not buy a few small pot chrysanthemums for winter bloom? Line the plants out in the garden, keep well watered and fed, pinch back the young growths, lift before frost, and pot. They will furnish fine material for the house.

Friday, May 3.

Save a lot of time by spraying liquid weed killer in the walks and drives. Try a few strawberries. If you have a coldframe you may enjoy a lot of sweet scented flowers by planting violets. The plants winter well and bloom early in spring. Plants will need watering when the weather gets warm. This is especially true of newly planted material, such as shrubs, evergreens, and perennials. Do not plant tender water lilies until the end of the month, for cold weather will check them.

Saturday, May 4.

Wait until the soil is warm and there is no danger from late frost before planting tender plants outdoors. Gladioli can be planted at intervals of two weeks until about June 15 for a succession of bloom. Wait until May 20 before setting out tomato plants. Pole beans give a better yield and require little more space than the bush varieties. Try a few. Watch currants and gooseberries for mildew and leaf eating worms. Repair window boxes and fill with suitable plants. Most flowering plants require full or partial sun. The small flowered petunias are among the best for window boxes. Buy young plants that have been pinched. Prune flowering shrubs after flowering.

SAVE THE LAWN CAMPAIGN PLANS ARE COMPLETED

Entries Are Expected to Set New Record.

Plans for the sixth annual Save the Lawn campaign of the Chicago park district and associated groups were completed last week, it was announced by Paul Schulze, chairman of the Municipal Art league, head of the citizens' committee in charge.

A record number of home owners and lawn keepers is expected to enter this year's competition, officials said. As a consequence, lawns thruout the Chicago area will reach a new high in beauty, they predicted.

Numerous community chairmen for the north side were named by Mr. Schulze as a starter for the campaign proper. Mrs. George V. McIntyre, president of the Women's Chicago Beautiful club, was appointed general north side chairman.

Others on List.

Others named, with the districts and organizations they represent are:

Edgewater district, Mrs. H. W. Adelman, delegate of the Edgewater-Uptown Civic council; Lake View district, Louis Holst, real estate dealer; North Center district, Miss Margaret O'Shea, president Paul Revere Improvement association; Ravenswood district, Mrs. Ralph H. Jewell, district chairman Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs; Rogers Park district, Jacob L. Zender, florist; Seward Park district, Mrs. Marie Francis Fox, president Seward Park Women's club, and Sheridan Center district, Mrs. George J. Aste, president Lake Shore Woman's club.

Other north siders who are cooperating are:

Mrs. W. B. Pratt, treasurer of the Rogers Park civic council; Mrs. P. Francis Burke of the Brownson Circle, and Miss R. W. Bross, who represents the Lake View Women's club.

Also Lending Aid.

Aiding Mr. Schulze on the general committee of citizens are Gustave A. Brand, art chairman of Chicago; James H. Burdett, director National Garden Clubs; Mrs. J. P. Edwards, state garden chairman Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs; Miss Ethel Foster, Chicago Association of Commerce; John Howatt, chief engineer board of education.

Mrs. F. Russell Lyon, president Illinois Federation Parent-Teacher Associations; James B. McCahey, president board of education; Ernest I. Pugmire, commander Salvation Army; Oakley V. Morgan, horticulturist for Commonwealth Edison company; the Most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, senior auxiliary bishop of Chicago; Mrs. George Plamondon, president Garden Club of Illinois; the Right Rev. George Craig Stewart, bishop of Chicago; Eugene S. Taylor, manager Chicago Plan commission, and Miss Harriet Vittum of Northwestern University settlement.

Members of the educational committee are Mrs. Charles W. Balch, state chairman of recreation of the Illinois P.-T. A. congress; the Rev. D. F. Cunningham, superintendent of Catholic schools; Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of public schools; Mrs. G. A. Millard, president north side P.-T. A. high school council; Mrs. Levi S. Nelson, 1st district chairman Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs; the Very Rev. Michael O'Connell, president of De Paul university; Mrs. Milton Weiner, president south side P.-T. A. high school council, and the Rev. Samuel Knox Wilson, president of Loyola university.

Competition Is Divided.

There will be separate competitions for home owners, apartment house caretakers, public and parochial schools, and police and fire stations—four classifications in all.

School winners will receive plaques given by Mr. McCahey of the school board.

1,000 NORTH SIDE YOUTHS TO HAVE SWIM LESSONS

Y. M. C. A.s Offer Classes During Vacation.

More than 1,000 north side grade school pupils will learn to swim this week at four branch Y. M. C. A.'s as part of a national Y campaign to reduce the number of deaths from drowning in the United States.

From tomorrow to Saturday, the May vacation period for school children, instructors at ten Y's thruout the city will teach more than 3,000 boys and girls how to swim. The instructors will use teaching techniques adopted by the Y. M. C. A. in 1938 after 10 years of research in the subject by Dr. Thomas K. Cureton Jr. of Springfield college, Mass. The lessons have been standardized by the national Y aquatic committee, of which John W. Fuhrer, Chicago Y. M. C. A. assistant general secretary, is a member.

Branches where the north side courses will be taught are Wilson Y. M. C. A., 1725 Wilson avenue; Lincoln-Belmont, 3333 North Marshfield avenue; Lawson, 30 West Chicago avenue, and North Avenue-Larrabee, 1508 Larrabee street.

Teaches 10,000 Boys.

At the Wilson Y, J. J. Toedt, physical instructor for 30 years, will supervise the program. In the 30 years at this branch he has directed the teaching of swimming to 10,000 boys. He resides at 4319 Greenview avenue.

Girls who will assist Miss Jessie Phillips, instructor, at the North Avenue-Larrabee Y are Mildred Ackerman, Elizabeth Becker, Margaret Goldman, Erna and Helen Gomall, Doris Grunewald, Jean Haben, and Phyllis Rigsby. Boys will be taught by Thomas Miller, instructor. His assistants include John Hagen, Edward Lemke, Richard Lash, Henry Kegel, Henry Scheelk, William Klan, Thomas English, and Mike Mannion.

A total of 487 pupils from 13 schools will learn to swim at the Lincoln-Belmont Y. Schools to be represented include Hamilton, Blaine, Burley, Jahn, Audubon, St. Luke's, Hawthorne, Le Moyne, Agassiz, Nettlehorst, Morris, Prescott, and Schneider.

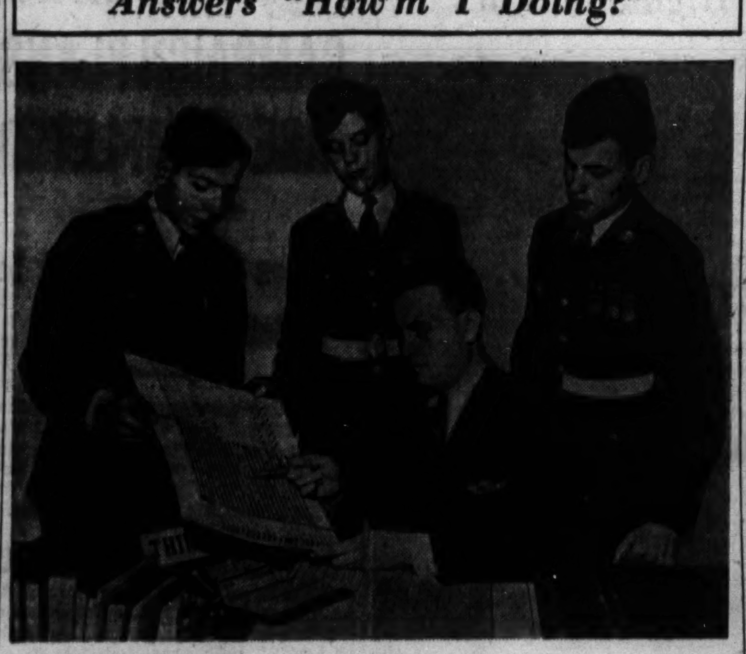
Answers "How'm I Doing?"



"How'm I doing?" is a question which cadets of the Lane Technical High school R. O. T. C. unit will be able to answer themselves if these experimental motivation charts are put into regular use next fall, as is planned. Here Arthur R. Korzeneski, co-ordinator between the civil and R. O. T. C. branches of the school (seated), shows First Lieutenant Edward Kirishian (left), Private Jack Lowe, and Corporal Bob Strom how at one glance they can find how they stand with regard to attendance, appearance, and discipline—and, indirectly, chances of promotion.

9,203 ENROLLED IN CITY'S PUBLIC SCHOOL R. O. T. C.

A new high mark in Chicago public high school R. O. T. C. enrollment has been set by this semester's official figures, released by Col. W. F. Morrison, director of the public schools unit. They show a total of 7,609 uniformed cadets in the 27 high schools which offer R. O. T. C. instruction, as compared with 7,238 for the semester which ended in February.

Besides these, there are 1,594 freshmen enrolled, for whom uniforms are not supplied, thereby giving the public schools a total enrollment of 9,203 cadets. There were 1,514 cadets without uniforms last year.

Lane Technical High school continues to lead the city schools with a total enrollment of 1,059, including 898 cadets with uniforms. Crane jumped from fifth to second place, with an increase in enrollment from 408 to 492. The Lake View unit is third in size, with 476 cadets.

The total enrollment, both with and without uniforms, in the various school regiments, is as follows: Amundsen, 293; Austin, 451; Bowen, 299; Calumet, 317; Crane, 492; DuSable, 318; Englewood, 284; Fenger, 326; Foreman, 215; Harrison, 260; Harper, 208; Hirsch, 273; Hyde Park, 386; Kelly, 154; Lake View, 476; Lane, 1,059; Lindblom, 380; Marshall, 183; Morgan Park, 301; Roosevelt, 240; Schurz, 422; Senn, 390; Steinmetz, 305; Sullivan, 301; Tilden, 434; Von Steuben, 204, and Waller, 230.

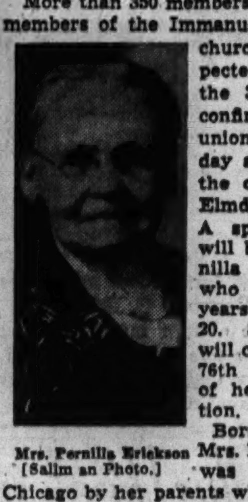
ROBERT J. KOLP NAMED HEAD OF LAKE VIEW UNIT

Lake View High school's R. O. T. C. regiment will be commanded this semester by Lieut. Col. Robert J. Kolp, according to an announcement by Sergt. Alford D. Lee, military instructor. Other cadets appointed to the staff are Maj. Herschel S. Allentuck, executive officer; Maj. Sidney P. Dane and Maj. Robert E. Hyman, battalion commanders; Capt. John N. Mouzak, adjutant; Capt. Thomas E. McDowell, supply officer; Capt. Norman I. Press, plans and training officer; 1st Lieut. Robert P. Kahn, range officer; 2d Lieuts. Herbert E. Schifter and Raymond J. Schifo, battalion adjutants; 2d Lieut. Howard S. Levin, publicity officer, and 2d Lieut. William E. Lindsey, personnel officer.

WOMAN TO NOTE CONFIRMATION 76 YEARS AGO

Will Be Guest at Church Reunion of 350.

More than 350 members and former members of the Immanuel Lutheran church are expected to attend the 38th annual confirmation reunion next Sunday afternoon in the church, 1510 Elmdale avenue. A special guest will be Mrs. Pernilla Erickson, who will be 91 years old on June 20. Sunday she will celebrate the 76th anniversary of her confirmation.



Mrs. Pernilla Erickson

Born in Sweden, Mrs. Erickson was brought to Chicago by her parents when she was 2 years old. As a child she attended Immanuel church when it was located on Superior street on the near north side and was confirmed there when she was 15 years old. Thru the years Mrs. Erickson has seen four churches erected.

Church Twice Burned.

The congregation moved into its second building at Sedgwick and Hobbie streets just before the Chicago fire and had to rebuild it afterward. The third church burned in 1921 and since most of the parishioners had moved out of the neighborhood, a fourth building was started at the present address. Mrs. Erickson has attended services regularly, supported its philanthropies and sent her sons and daughter there.

Those residing in Chicago, a daughter, Ella, and two sons, Edward and Arthur Erickson, are church members. Her only grandson is a fourth generation member of the church. Mrs. Erickson resides with her daughter and Edward at 1459 Victoria street. Another son, Walter, lives in Detroit.

Altho her eyes are failing, Mrs. Erickson is at home alone all day, keeps the house, cooks, irons, and tries to sew. Her keen mind conceives ways to outwit her failing faculties. Whenever she wants a neighbor boy to do an errand, she hangs a newspaper out the window. In the morning she has her son thread several needles for her, and if she runs out of thread during the day, she asks the iceman or any one who comes to the door to help her.

Founded in 1853.

Last year she attended the confirmation reunion and is looking forward to this year's. Altho confirmation exercises have been held since the year after the church was founded in 1853, the reunions are a more recent activity. Dr. Emmy C. Evald, now of New York, the wife of a former pastor, started the reunions.

Paul E. Olson, president, is in charge of the program, assisted by the officers, Mrs. Cecelia Ericsson, vice president; R. Allan Larson, treasurer; Mrs. Edith S. Wetterberg, secretary, and Mrs. Helen S. Schierling, assistant secretary.

A reception will be held from 4:30 to 7 o'clock and a buffet supper will be served during the last hour by members of the May circle of the ladies' aid. The Rev. John B. Hubbard, pastor of St. John's Episcopal church in Park Ridge, will be guest speaker on the program starting at 7:30 o'clock.

Music on Program.

The Rev. C. O. Bengtson, pastor, will open and close the program. A prelude, "Concerto in D Major," will be played by Mrs. Miriam Benson, organist, and Miss Marguerite Kallstrom, pianist. Three songs will be sung by the Peirce P.-T. A. Mothers' chorus, directed by Mrs. Wetterberg, with Mrs. Carl F. Ruck as accompanist.

The numbers are "A Spirit Flower," by Tipton; "Morning," by Speaks, and "In a Monastery Garden," by Ketelbey. Samuel L. Anderson, Sunday school superintendent for 25 years, will lead the community singing, with George H. Nelson at the piano.

CITIZENSHIP DAY TO BE OBSERVED BY CHURCH GUILD

For Citizenship day Wednesday, the Woman's guild of the Evanston First Methodist church has obtained Mrs. Donald Mann, past president of the Evanston League of Women Voters, as guest speaker. At 1:45 o'clock she will discuss "Dependent Children in Illinois." Preceding the luncheon at 12:30 o'clock, Mrs. W. G. Tallman will lead the chapel service.

Mrs. Walter L. Johnson was elected president of the Junior guild at the last meeting. Other new officers are Mrs. John C. Risius, 1st vice president; Mrs. Harold F. Layman, 2d vice president; Mrs. Roger D. Hardy, recording secretary; Mrs. George J. Cyrus, treasurer, and Mrs. Harold E. Green Jr., corresponding secretary.

All of the officers except Miss Erma Arnold, vice president, were reëlected by the Evening guild. Miss Florence Stewart is the new vice president, Miss Florence A. Hale is president, Mrs. Birdie Johnson, secretary, and Miss Emily Greenman, treasurer.

Park One Act Play Contest Reaches Final Performances

Final performances in the park district city-wide annual one act play contest will be held Tuesday evening at the Goodman theater. The winning play groups will receive plaques to be presented by V. K. Brown, director of recreation. Tickets may be obtained at the office of W. J. Higgins, music and drama director, at the Administration building, 425 East 14th street.

"I'D LIKE TO RECOMMEND HIM, BUT . . ."

"I don't think he has the training needed for that job."

Character, personality, ambition—these all count in getting and holding a job. But there is one quality which commands special consideration—training.

Does lack of training bar you from advancement? If so, consider the advantages of taking one of the regular or short courses of specialized training offered to ambitious men and women in the Trade Schools, Instruction, Musical and Dramatic, Dressmaking and Millinery Schools and Dancing Schools columns of the Tribune want ad section.

"How Does He Expect Us to Do It?"

"We haven't a machine in the place that will handle it."

Are you turning profits away because you lack the equipment to handle the business?

Keep close watch on the Machinery and Equipment column of the Tribune want ad section. In this column you will find many opportunities to save money on motors, lathes, presses, metal and woodworking equipment and special and standard machinery for numerous jobs. By taking advantage of these offers, you can keep your business in step with your customers' requirements.

"In the Shop Again?"

"These repair bills are getting terrific."

Sooner or later every motorist has to replace his car with a better one.

When this decision is up to you, consult the Used Automobiles for Sale columns in the Tribune want ad section.

There you will find scores of late model used car values from which to choose. Many of these cars can hardly be told from new. Extra equipment—such as radios, heaters, spotlights, trunks and other accessories—are often featured. Prices represent considerable reductions below original cost.

Your present car may be the only down payment required to put you behind the wheel of a good-looking, dependable, late model used car which you will be proud to drive. Review the Used Automobiles for Sale columns in the want ad section of today's Tribune.

HOW'S YOUR GAME? Champions may do all right even with inferior equipment, but if you take your favorite sport seriously, you owe it to yourself to play with the best you can buy. Good used equipment for many sports is advertised at attractive prices in the Sporting Goods columns of the Tribune want ad section. See these offers today.

Because they get better results, want ad users place more total want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

CHEERS TO RING FOR STEINMETZ HIGH ON RADIO

600 Youths Will See W-G-N Show.

Daniel F. O'Hearn.

From Chicagoland radios tuned to W-G-N at 7 o'clock Wednesday night will come a rousing cheer, signal that "Citizens of Tomorrow" is on the air again. This half hour high school program sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will feature the Charles P. Steinmetz High school, located at 3030 North Mobile avenue. Six hundred students, accompanied by their principal, Daniel F. O'Hearn, will be present in the new W-G-N audience studio to give this enthusiasm to the occasion.

It will be the fifth program in a series of 11 Wednesday night weekly broadcasts dedicated to the youth of America. The last program for the school year will be held the night of June 12 when the Wright Junior college students will be guests. Next Wednesday night Waller High school will be represented.

Philip Maxwell, a member of THE TRIBUNE staff, who is the "Principal" on the broadcast, says that he never realized before what talent for song and pep there is in the younger generation.

"The W-G-N engineers have to watch that the volume doesn't wreck the delicate broadcasting instruments," he said, "and as far as the choral singing is concerned, some of the groups being presented would rank favorably with adult professional organizations."

Willard L. Groom.

Willard L. Groom will direct the Steinmetz mixed chorus in three numbers, the school loyalty song, a patriotic number entitled "Chicago" by Granville English and the "Happy Isle," by Bantock. Those cheers which the late Dr. Steinmetz might have compared to some of his man-made thunder, will be led by James Taylor, Grace Tveter, Loretta Wagner, and Steve Walker.

Miss Ruby Yetter, radio chairman at Steinmetz, has aided in preparing the program.

Altho "Jerry," the 16 year old high school senior, plays the part of one not too scholastic on the program, her principal, Thompson R. Foulkes, at Maine Township High school near her home in Park Ridge, says that she not only is a member of the National Honor society but is one of the most popular students. She is a winning orator, president of the school girls' club and recently was chosen the girl with the happiest smile in the entire school.

Popular in School.

To Charlie Jones, the third character in the show, who depicts the part of every school's engineer custodian, will fall the task of relating some of the brief history of Steinmetz which is only six years old, and he'll probably delve into the early history of the community to tell all about the O. A. Thorpe school, the oldest elementary public school in that area.

One of the most popular parts of the show is the weekly Tribune news quiz which is conducted by Mr. Maxwell. Just before going on the air Announcer Pierre Andre picks out six students from the audience and they compete for cash awards totaling from $10 to $15.

Call Honor Roll.

Another highlight of the program is the naming of five Chicagoland boys and girls to the "Honor Roll" of each broadcast. These students have been nominated by their principals for outstanding achievement.

In addition to the radio entertainment, the audience sees "Trees to Tribune," the talking movie showing the vast operation of The Tribune organization and then 100 of the group take an escorted tour thru THE TRIBUNE plant.

YOUNG PEOPLE TO CELEBRATE 3D SEDER TODAY

The traditional third Seder will be celebrated by the Shaare Zedek Young People's league at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon in the social hall of the Logan Square congregation, 3135 Fullerton avenue. The committee on arrangements consists of Bernard Gusfield, chairman, Milton Horwitz, Miss Jeanette Perlman, Irving Simmons, Miss Millie Harris, Charles Cohen, and Miss Bernice Greenstein. There will be dancing after the ceremony. Norman Albin is the president and Rabbi B. H. Birnbaum the spiritual advisor.

Sharpshooters of the Marble Rings

Sharpshooters of the marble rings were preparing their fanciest shots last week for the finals in the six area tournaments to be held next Saturday as part of the annual marble tournament sponsored by the Chicago park district. Among those who expect to qualify in the tournament in Wilson park, Leland and Milwaukee avenues, are (left to right) Richard Bartnick, 4564 Milwaukee avenue; Le Roy Clemmons, 5344 Windsor avenue, and Herman Mansolf, 5306 Montrose avenue. The six winners in each area will be permitted to compete in the final park district tournament on May 11 in Douglas park. The city marble champion will be selected by a later elimination tournament, including contestants from schools, Y. M. C. A.'s, playgrounds, and boys' clubs.

Lilacs Carry Katie Miller Back to Rhine

The windows in Mrs. Katie Miller's frugal near northwest side apartment are filled with plants—plants that never bloom. Enough sunlight slants thru the smoky haze to keep them alive, but there is never enough to encourage them to blossom.

She bathes the leaves every week, and once a year she buys a basket of fresh earth and repots them all. There is one with long, slender leaves [she doesn't know its name] that has been growing in her window for 40 years. Now and then she revitalizes it by propagating a slip.

Another is a fragment that she found in the street a few days ago. By last week it had developed what she calls "beautiful roots." One large pot is lush with a dense growing Italian vegetable resembling parsley. A fruit merchant gave her the seeds.

Color from Outdoors.

But altho her own plants never blossom, there is a day when her rooms are bright with color. It is the day when thousands of lilac growers in Chicagoland share their blossoms with the city's shut-ins.

Last year when workers from the Chicago Commons settlement house brought the lilacs, she greeted them with the words, "These are little angels from heaven." She kept them until the last petal withered and fell.

Last week she watched anxiously from her window when clouds obscured the sun and cold winds blew. A tardy spring, she knew, would postpone the day when the trucks loaded with fragrant blossoms would come.

"More than 70 years ago I used to walk thru the little fields around Frankfurt in Germany and along the Rhine river. We had lilacs there, too, and I have loved them ever since," she said. "When I first came to Chicago 56 years ago I was able to go to Lincoln park now and then to see the spring flowers. Now I am too old to walk or get on street cars."

Has Only Dog and Plants.

Since she is 85 years old, practically all of her friends are dead. Except for her dog and her plants she lives alone in a third story flat at 604 North Sangamon street. That is why the arrival of the lilacs is the day from which she dates most of the events of the year.

Miss Ursel Stock, a worker at the settlement house, says that her case is typical of hundreds whose lives are brightened by the flowers distributed by the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild with the coöperation of the Tribune. Last year more than 20,000 persons received bouquets. Plans are now being made to provide them for even more next month.

Park-Plaines Orchestra Will Offer Concert Today

The Park-Plaines Civic orchestra will give a concert at 3:30 this afternoon in Maine Township High school. A. M. Harley will direct and Wilbur Held is associate conductor. The orchestra began as a recreation for musically minded townpeople, but has become a part of the adult education movement, sponsoring night classes for which the high school board allows credit. This idea has recently been extended to the Junior college and three of these students are filling places in the orchestra left vacant by adult players.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

QUEEN of the De Paul university senior ball next Saturday night will be Miss Eileen Tiede, 3931 North Kostner avenue, a senior in the college of liberal arts. Her escort will be Wilfred O'Sullivan, president of the class. The ball will be held in the Louis XVI. room of the Hotel Sherman. Miss Tiede is majoring in the classics, Greek and Latin. She is vice president of Rho Delta Pi sorority.

Martin Goerger, Arlington Heights florist, was involved recently in an odd mesh of circumstances. A niece sent him a Hollywood newspaper which contained a French war picture of his brother, Andrew, a baker by trade. During the world war Andrew had fought for four years on the German side; now he is enlisted on the French side. Martin has another brother, Celest, who was too young to fight in the world war, but is now in the French army. The Goerger family live in Alsace-Lorraine. Martin left home in 1907 and returned there in 1911 to be married. Neither he nor Mrs. Goerger have visited Europe since.

Miss Jeanette Shargel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shargel, 3305 Diversey avenue, was married Saturday, April 20, to Irwin Silberberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Silberberg, 3223 Diversey avenue. After a reception at the Midwest Athletic club they left on a honeymoon tour of the southern states.

RELATIVES and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Willard M. Strickland, 5036 North Sawyer avenue, will gather Tuesday night in their home to congratulate them on their 50th anniversary. They have lived in Chicago 47 years. Their children are Otey, Harold, and Mrs. William Sell.

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hackett, residents in Logan Square for 51 years, will receive friends tonight in their home at 2642 North Francisco avenue. They have been married 56 years. Five daughters and four sons, all residing in Chicago, will attend the reception. They are Mrs. Oscar J. Gillie, Miss Catherine, Mrs. Walter T. Prendergast, Mrs. Edward R. Conahan, Mrs. William T. Shanahan, Thomas, James, Joseph, and William. Mr. Hackett is 79 years old and his wife is 75. He has been retired for 12 years.

THERE was a triple celebration in the Walter Patterson home, 2819 North Mobile avenue, last week. Mr. and Mrs. Patterson had been married 25 years; their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Mickow, 2320 North Knox avenue, had been married 5 years, and Mr. Mickow's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mickow, 2931 North Keating avenue, had been married 34 years.

Miss Lorayne Geier made her debut as a radio singer last Monday night over a local station. A soprano, she first won a reputation as a singer at Schurz High school where she was graduated in 1937. A number of friends helped her celebrate the occasion later at the home of a friend, John Ullrichs. Among them were Kenneth Chappel, Mrs. Martha Chappell, Mrs. Kay Smith, and her mother, Mrs. Edna Geier. Her home is at 4161 Cornelia avenue.

Judges brought in a draw decision in the recent final public speaking contest at Wright City college. Seymour Mann and Seymour Schriar tied for first place. Both will speak at the Illinois Junior college oratorical contest at Morton Junior college on May 13. Runners-up in the contest were Stanley Levy, Oscar Wsolowski, Benjamin Sutton, George Reimer, Arthur Zapel, Elayne Rudes, and Emil Josczynski.

Two Our Towners, students at Armour Institute of Technology, will have rôles in "Room Service" when it is produced next Saturday night in the auditorium of the student union building, Federal and 33d streets. They are Miss Helen Ruoss, a student of architecture from Park Ridge, and Eugene Kalnin, 4936 Parker avenue.

Among those who will appear in the cast of "The Red Headed Stepchild" Thursday and Friday nights in the Albany Park Methodist church, Albany and Wilson avenues, will be Mary Virginia Yates, Kenneth Johnson, Marion Hurley, William Douglass, Carl Wennstrom, Verla Bayly, LaVerne Erickson, Mary Goolsby, John Tolbart, Shirley Farrington, Evelyn Norum, and Jane Bisantz.

Maurice Blythe will direct the Bethany Presbyterian Playmakers Wednesday and Thursday nights when they offer the mystery comedy, "The Ghost Parade." A children's performance will be offered Tuesday afternoon. The auditorium is at Humboldt boulevard and Cortland street.

PLANT GUILD WORKS ON TRAIN SCHEDULE FOR LILAC SHARING

Officials of the Chicago Plant, Fruit and Flower guild last week completed their organization for lilac day when 150 members, including guild chairmen of garden clubs, held their annual luncheon at Carson, Pirie, Scott tearoom and drafted final plans. The schedule of trains that will furnish free transportation for the lilacs is to be worked out this week.

The ten division chairmen of the guild are keeping in close touch with lilac growers in their territories in order to determine when the blooms will be ready to cut.

Each division chairman will report to the Chicago headquarters of the guild on May 5 and again on May 10, giving detailed information about the opening of the lilac blossoms in the various sections. T. V. Purcell, guild president, said yesterday that the distribution date likely could be determined from the May 10 reports.

MOVE 706 FOOT BRIDGE AS FIRST STEP IN PROJECT

Traffic to Pass Over Grand Avenue.

BY CLAYTON KIRKPATRICK.

The way will be cleared this week to begin the construction of Cook county's largest road building project this year and one of the largest in the history of the county highway department. Central avenue viaduct, antique link between the west and northwest sides of the city, will be moved away to make room for a new $808,662 structure on the same site.

County engineers supervising the construction said last week that the old structure will be closed to automobile traffic at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning. Trolley buses will continue to use the bridge until Saturday while engineers prepare to shift the central section 30 feet eastward, where it will rest on temporary piers.

Vast Engineering Task.

Wooden ramps to these piers have already been built. The work of fitting the span between the ramps is expected to be finished in two days so that traffic can be resumed over the temporary viaduct Monday morning, May 6. It will remain in use until the summer of 1941, when the new structure, extending three-fourths of a mile from Bloomingdale avenue to a point 200 feet north of Palmer street, will be completed.

The journey to the temporary piers will be the second and last for the old bridge. Originally it carried a single track railroad across the Mississippi river. It was purchased by the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad in 1907, dismantled, shipped to Chicago, and reassembled to span the 52 tracks of the railroad's Galewood yards.

This time Ernest Sporry, general superintendent of the Thomas McQueen Engineering company, expects to move the 706 foot long structure in one piece. Its 2,320,000 pounds will be raised by jacks and placed on rollers. Engines working on tackles will then draw the old bridge to its new location. This will be one of the most difficult and spectacular engineering feats in the entire project.

Crosses Over Grand Avenue.

One of the principal features of the new viaduct will be the extension of the elevation at the north end to separate the grade intersection of Grand and Central avenues. West and northwest side residents have called the hazardous crossing "Death Corner" for years.

Ramps will be built on each side of Central avenue north from Grand avenue to Palmer street to provide motorists with means to pass from one level to the other. Stairways will be erected on either side for the convenience of pedestrians. Litigation to secure right of ways for these ramps is still in process.

On the east side all the required property belongs to the board of education and is now used as an athletic field. Six houses must be moved on the west side to make room for the ramps.

With the exception of $97,000 supplied by the railroad, all the cost of the improvement will be paid from motor fuel tax revenues already on hand in what is known as the county refund fund. This fund consists of payments made by the state to the county highway department for improvements which the county has made on state and state aid highways.

3,886 Feet Long.

The total length of the improvement will be 3,886 feet, more than 1,000 feet longer than the present viaduct. At the south end it will ascend at a grade of 5 per cent from Bloomingdale avenue until it reaches a level 31 feet above the railroad tracks. The first 300 feet will be over earth fill and the next 400 will be supported on reinforced concrete pillars.

The level span in the center will be 817 feet long. At the north end it will descend at a 5 per cent grade over 700 feet of supported structure and 400 feet of earth fill. Paving will extend for some distance beyond the approaches at both ends.

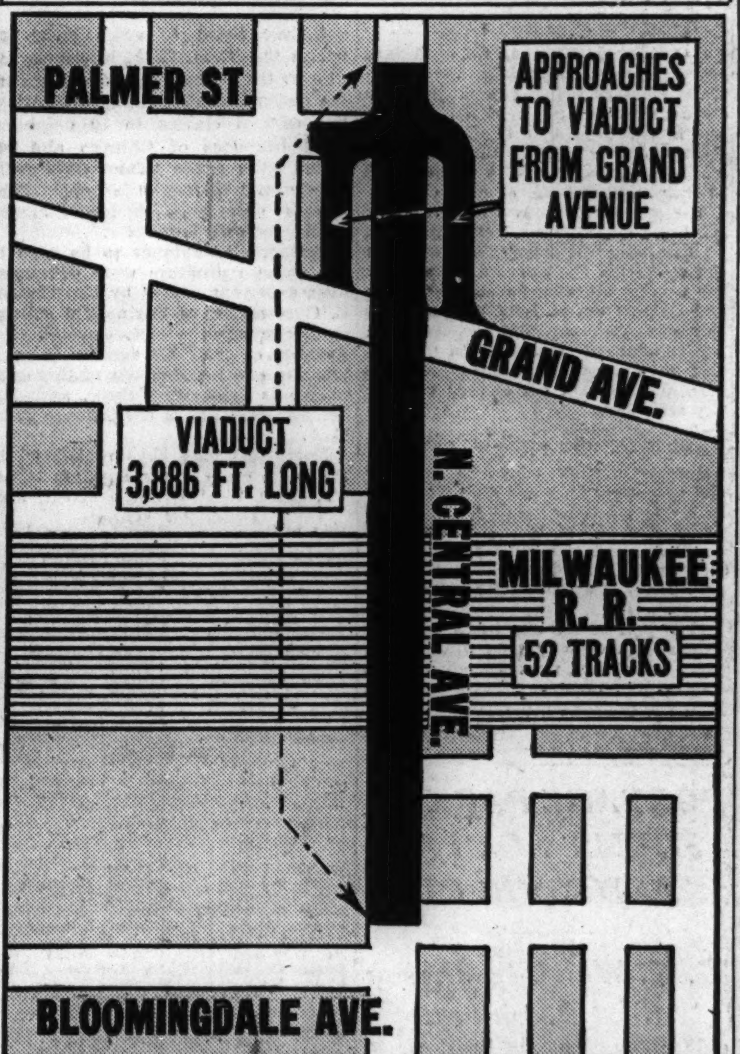
A dividing curb 2 feet wide and 1 foot high will separate the roadway into two lanes, each 24 feet wide. Reflector buttons will be placed on this. Lamps will be mounted on posts set in the superstructure. Seven and one-half foot sidewalks will be provided on each side of the bridge.

Civic Groups Succeed.

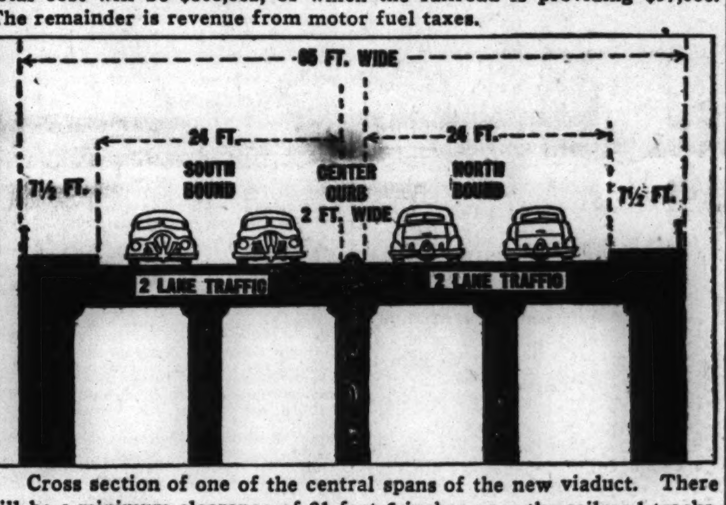
R. O. Mortenson is the resident engineer for the county highway department. Civic organizations that have been active in furthering the project include the North Austin Lions club, the Austin North End Woman's club, Palmer post and Melin-Romer post of the American Legion, North Avenue Business Men, Hanson Park Business Men, and Lafollette Park Improvement association.

Others are West Towns Chamber of Commerce, Northwest Woman's Improvement club, Central Austin club, West Side Traffic and Transportation committee, Austin Merchants, West Side Property Owners' association, West Town Property Owners' alliance, Midtown Kiwanis club, and West Side Federation of Clubs.

New Central Avenue Viaduct

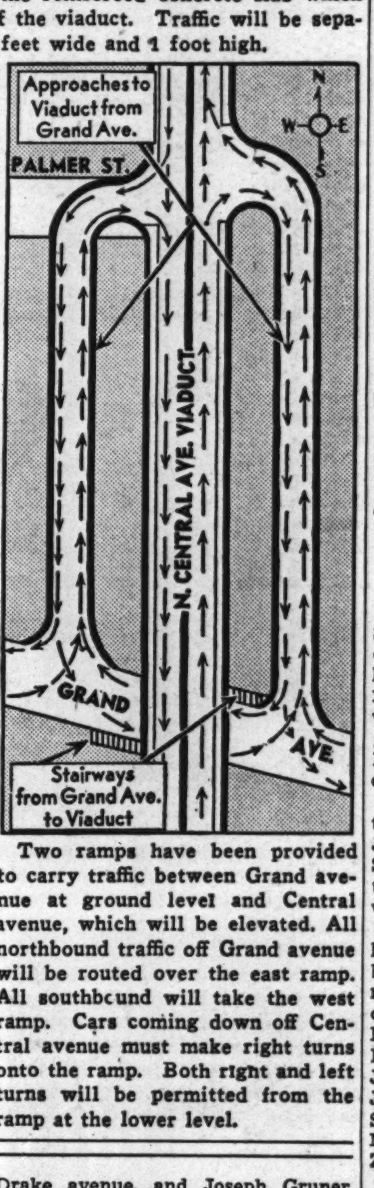


The Cook county highway department's biggest road building project this year is the Central avenue viaduct spanning the 52 tracks of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, and Pacific railroad company's Galewood yards. The total improvement stretches from Bloomingdale avenue to a point about 200 feet north of Palmer street, a distance of 3,886 feet. Maximum elevation over the railroad tracks will be slightly more than 31 feet. The project includes a grade separation at Grand avenue. The total cost will be $808,662, of which the railroad is providing $97,000. The remainder is revenue from motor fuel taxes.



Cross section of one of the central spans of the new viaduct. There will be a minimum clearance of 21 feet 6 inches over the railroad tracks. I-beams 6½ feet high will support the reinforced concrete slab which will be 7 inches thick on the deck of the viaduct. Traffic will be separated by a continuous center curb 2 feet wide and 1 foot high.

The map locates the Central avenue viaduct. The old bridge, erected in 1907, will be moved this week to make room for a new $808,662 structure. The narrow 18 foot viaduct and the hazardous intersection of Grand and Central avenues have created a bottleneck between the west and northwest sides which will be removed by the new bridge.



Two ramps have been provided to carry traffic between Grand avenue at ground level and Central avenue, which will be elevated. All northbound traffic off Grand avenue will be routed over the east ramp. All southbound will take the west ramp. Cars coming down off Central avenue must make right turns onto the ramp. Both right and left turns will be permitted from the ramp at the lower level.

COURT OF HONOR ADVANCES ONE TO EAGLE RANK

At a recent court of honor Jerome Hojaacki, 3145 North St. Louis avenue, of Troop 12, was the only boy in the northwest district of the Chicago Boy Scout council to be advanced to the rank of Eagle.

Among the other boys who were advanced in rank was William Westerlund, 2221 Springfield avenue, Troop 86, who received the bronze palm.

The following were given life ranking: Charles McNurney, 4825 West East End avenue, Troop 355 chairman; Kenneth Kray, 3134 Linder avenue; Fred Hahn, 2535 North McVicker avenue; Robert Mollenhauer, 2518 North McVicker avenue; Roger A. Kennedy, 5910 Wellington avenue, and Walton Schuman, 3046 Luna avenue, all of Troop 166; John Ness, 2949 Montclare avenue, Troop 101, and Richard Kelly, 3821 North Whipple street, Troop 27.

Boys made Star scouts are: Walter Kiesgen, 2905 North Lowell avenue; Howard Schmalz, 2820 North Lowell avenue; and Roy Coon, 2834 North Lowell avenue, all of Troop 70; George Lundie, 1431 Wicker Park avenue, and George Kosecke, 1365 North Hoyne avenue, both of Troop 62; Herbert Madsen, 2158 North Kimball avenue; Harold Olsen, 3422 McLean avenue; Richard Hoffman, 2038 North Drake avenue, and Joseph Gruner, 3416 Cortland street, all of Troop 27.

August H. Gruetering, 1050 Armitage avenue, Troop 25; Arthur Jensen, 4344 Parker avenue; Robert Carlson, 4350 Dickens avenue; Elmer Homan, 4341 McLean avenue, and Dan Olsson, 2119 North Kenneth avenue, all of Troop 89; Waldemar B. Karow, 4415 Wright street, Troop 96; Robert Pelt, 2820 Montclare avenue, Troop 101.

Francis Wagner, 3570 Medill avenue, and Chester Sabinski, 2441 North Harding avenue, Troop 119; Edward Lamd, 2322 North Drake avenue, Troop 128; James Citta, 826 Hudson avenue, Troop 155; Donald Johnson, 5421 School street, Troop 166, and Richard Zacharias, 3042 Medill avenue, Troop 195.

SUNDAY EVENING CLUB IS FACING ITS FIRST DEFICIT

Drive Under Way to Raise $3,000.

The Chicago Sunday Evening club is facing its first deficit. For 32 years the club has managed to close its books in black ink, and an intensive campaign for supporting members is now under way to avoid closing the present fiscal year, ending May 31, in the red. A threatened deficit estimated at $3,000 was revealed at a recent meeting of the board of trustees.

Clifford W. Barnes.

Increased expenses this season are due partly to the fact that the president and founder of the club, Clifford W. Barnes, has been unable to take part in the administration and give informal Bible talks in Orchestra hall as he did for 25 years. Also, new activities have developed thru the growth of the club, such as the midweek social meetings for young people and a Monday council for the men.

Decline in Income.

On the other side of the ledger, there has been a marked decline in income during the last few years. There has been a loss of funds thru the death of several generous donators, lower interest rates on the club's small investment fund, lower collections in Orchestra hall due to the reduced economic status of the audience, and a falling off in annual subscriptions from business sources.

The budget of approximately $40,000 has been met without great strain in former years. The club was one of the first large nonsectarian religious organizations to meet with success and leaders of all denominations thruout the world have approved its purpose and spoken from its platform.

It was the first service of worship on the air, over KYW in 1922. Under the club's administration setup, its board of managers is composed of 35 business men, who are members of various church bodies. Among the pioneers on the first board of trustees were John G. Shedd, A. C. Bartlett, Charles L. Hutchinson, and Frank Armstrong.

Back for Another Talk.

Dr. Harold C. Phillips, minister of the First Baptist church, Cleveland, O., is being returned by popular request as speaker for the 8 o'clock meeting this evening in Orchestra hall. His first appearance was on April 7. Tonight he will speak on "Three Truths About God." Mr. Barnes will preside and Edward Foss Wilson will participate in the program.

Dr. Phillips was born in Jamaica and came to the United States in 1912. He preached in small churches while studying at Denison university, Granville, O., and later entered Union Theological seminary. His first important pastorate was the Mount Vernon Baptist church in New York City. Since Dr. Phillips was assigned to his Cleveland church in 1929, the congregation has doubled. His preaching is noted for its humanitarian appeal.

SLOVAK SOCIETY TO CELEBRATE JUBILEE TODAY

The 10th district of the National Slovak society will celebrate its golden jubilee at Czecho-Slovak American hall, 1440 West 18th street, today at 11 o'clock. The program will start with a commemoration visit to the grave of the society's founder, P. V. Rovnianek, in the Bohemian National cemetery.

V. S. Platek, supreme president of the society, will speak, as well as Judge Michael Tremko and Joseph Shipka, president of this district of the club. The Chicago Slovak choir will sing.

A program will be provided at the hall in the afternoon, and there will be a banquet and dancing in the evening. Members of the arrangements committee are: Mr. Shipka, George Durkovic, Andrew Fricko, Michael Benovsky, Paul and Joseph Kovac, Joseph Tomaskovic, Martin Lejko, John Hlavacka, Joseph Steller, Stephen Skriba, Stephen Michuda, Mrs. Mary T. Sopocy, and Mrs. Anna Zdanowsky.

BETHANY CHURCH WILL CELEBRATE 52D BIRTHDAY

Bethany Presbyterian church, Humboldt boulevard near Cortland street, will celebrate the 52d anniversary of its founding and the 30th anniversary of the ordination of the pastor, the Rev. William J. Ohan, at the 11 o'clock service today. The church board has sent invitations to present and past members and to many of the pastor's own friends. Fifty-two voices will sing at the 7:30 o'clock service, when past and present members will make up the choir under the direction of the director emeritus, W. Frank Barnes. Former choir directors will be present.

CALL FOR THE DOG CATCHER.

S O S dog catchers. In Norwood Park there are many stray dogs. Every day about eight go roaming in groups down Raven street to Nagle street. There's one in particular that bites. She is of light tan color and on three occasions I've seen her go after WPA workers, bite at their shoes and also at small children.

The police have been notified at least six times by neighbors and myself, and we have been told they can't do anything but notify the dog catchers. I've sat at my window watching for some sign of a dog catcher, but so far I have not seen any signs of them. But the dogs, yes. Plenty of them. I don't mean the dogs that get out once in a great while but I mean these that are allowed to roam day after day.

A. P. S.

AND WHY NOT BICYCLE PATHS?

Another outdoor season is upon us and once again boys and girls must take to the motor traffic roads for bicycling. Every one knows how crowded these roads are and how many dangers the bike riders must face. Nonetheless, the bicycle riders will do their riding in spite of all dangers.

Each part of the city needs a bicycle path and in view of the facilities given every other sport from lawn bowling to fly casting the bicycle riders should have their wishes fulfilled, too.

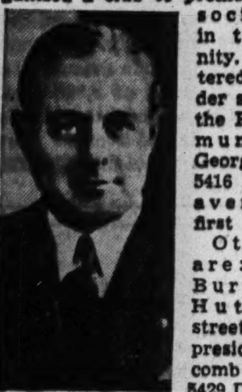
PORTAGE PARK FORMS SOCIAL AND CIVIC CLUB

G. N. Welsh Is Chosen First President.

Residents of Portage Park have organized a club to promote civic and social activities in the community. It was chartered recently under state laws as the Portage Community club. George N. Welsh, 5416 Pensacola avenue, is the first president.



George N. Welsh.
[Walinger Photo.]

Other officers are: Lawrence Burwick, 5456 Hutchinson street, first vice president; Newcomb S. Gibons, 5429 Dakin street, second vice president; Edwin L. Myers, 5034 Berteau avenue, treasurer; C. O. Curtis, 5436 Hutchinson street, recording secretary; Arthur J. Sturwold, 5236 Pensacola avenue, corresponding secretary, and William H. Kornbeck, 5529 Berenice avenue, chairman of the publicity committee.

Activities Are Divided.

Since the club is neither wholly civic nor wholly social in its aims the first meeting each month will be devoted to civic problems and the second to social entertainment.

Among the community improvements which the club will seek, Mr. Welsh said, are an auditorium for the Portage park fieldhouse, and stop-and-go traffic signals at dangerous intersections.

Other Charter Members.

In addition to the officers and their wives the other charter members are: Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Eggers, 5241 Berteau avenue; Walter Eulert, 5434 Cullom avenue; Henry Gilson, 5345 Berteau avenue; Ralph Hirschberg, 5453 Hutchinson street; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hoeller, 5510 Berteau avenue; Dr. and Mrs. Frank R. Huckin, 4936 Hutchinson street.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Kaitis, 4044 North Major avenue; Mr. and Mrs. William H. Kromling, 5240 Pensacola avenue; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd G. Miller, 4421 North La Crosse avenue; Dr. and Mrs. Harry F. Olson, 4125 North Leamington avenue; Mr. and Mrs. Donald A. Warbritton, 4931 Cuyler avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wertke, 5025 Hutchinson street.

PLANS TO TEACH 3,000 CHICAGO BOYS TO SWIM

Y. M. C. A. Opens Classes in Ten Branches.

A free learn to swim campaign which the Y. M. C. A. is sponsoring all over the country in order to reduce the national death rate by drownings, has opened classes in 10 neighborhood branches of Chicago and enrolled 3,000 grade school boys from public and parochial schools. The classes will meet during Clean-up week, starting tomorrow.

Teaching techniques to be used in the aquatic program were developed over a 10 year period by Dr. Thomas E. Cureton Jr. of Springfield college in Massachusetts. Dr. Cureton is a member of the "Y" aquatic committee, and another member of this committee is John W. Fuhrer, assistant general secretary of the Chicago Y. M. C. A.

Northwest side boys registered in the swim class at the Division street "Y," 1621 West Division street, are:

First Step in Swimming

The first step in learning to swim is to conquer fear of the water, and these four neophytes at the Division Street Y. M. C. A. are ready for the first plunge under. Learn-to-swim classes at this branch are taught by Ody Bohlander, "Y" swimming instructor. Members of his spring class, are (left to right) George Ferianchik, Theodore Michaels, John Herezina, and George Keck. [Ray Rising Photo.]

MOUNT PROSPECT PUBLIC SCHOOL PLANS CONCERTS

The first spring concert will be held in the Mount Prospect Public school auditorium under the auspices of the school music department, at 8 o'clock, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 7 and 8. Miss Florence Ottesen will direct the choruses, and Miss Bernice Markunis the band.

Each grade will present a group of songs selected by the children from their singing books. The concert will include folk songs as well as the classics of Bach and Handel. The Primary Rhythm band, boys and girls' choruses, and an upper grade mixed choir, will be among the entertainers.

The debut of the school band will be directed by Miss Markunis, and will offer a 30 minute concert. The band was only recently organized. It consists of 34 pieces.

Aids Tag Day

Miss Dorothy H. Neuman will be co-chairman with Theo. Potocki in charge of the tag day which Avondale post, No. 41, Polish Legion of American Veterans, will hold today. Proceeds of the tagging will go toward the relief fund of the Legion and to disabled Polish veterans. Commander William D. Mrugocz, Vice Commander Bruno Wolfe, Thomas Glownia, and Zigmund de Latour are members of the committee.

SCOUT UNIT 265 WILL CELEBRATE 10TH BIRTHDAY

Boy Scout troop, No. 265, of St. Casimir parish, 2226 Whipple street, will celebrate its 10th anniversary at 6 o'clock this evening with a reunion banquet.

Special tribute will be paid to the troop founders, the Rev. Stanley Derwinski, and Michael Lomasz. The latter was the first scoutmaster. The first assistant scoutmasters who helped to found the troop are Anthony Kass and Walter Kott.

Speakers will be Jack Conley, west side scout executive; Leonard Serduik, publisher of a community newspaper, and Frank H. Bicek, judge of the Juvenile court.

MAY BASKETS FOR PARENTS IS GIRL SCOUT IDEA

They'll Feature Party in Park Ridge.

Girl Scouts, Brownies, and intermediate and senior Mariners of Park Ridge will revive the old custom of presenting May baskets to loved ones when their parents are guests at a party in the Lincoln school auditorium at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night. Having fun with their parents and remembering sister scouts the world over are the two objectives of the program, which was planned by troop leaders.

Flags of the 32 countries where Girl Scouts are organized will make a background for the opening ceremony, when singing will be led by Miss Shirley Peterson.

Listen to 'Em Sing!

Fathers will then try to outdo their wives in singing, under the direction of C. R. Nowack, while Mrs. Marion Gregg will accompany on the piano.

Max R. Levy will show a movie of Girl Scouts at camp. Ushers will be Sea Scouts and Mariners. Troop flags and flags of various countries will be displayed in the Pickwick theater lobby thru tomorrow, in conjunction with the showing of a film, "Scouting Begins at Seven."

Park Ridge merchants will display posters advertising the sing. The posters were made by the senior troop and the mariner ship. There also will be exhibited drawings showing the 10 fields of girl scouting.

Girls Taking Part.

Girl Scouts taking part in the opening flag ceremony will be: Troop 2—Barbara Behlke, Georgia Burrows, Karin Clafford, Dorothy Dahl, Joan Johnston, Joyce Valy; Troop 3—Lois Atwood, Phyllis Bohnsack, Audrey Coon, Deronda Kopp, Gloria Pugh, Sue Smith; Troop 4—Betty Braue, Barbara and Joan Dunmore, Lynette Hubbard, Joan Bouemeister, Denny van de Sande; Troop 5—Doris Cornell, Mary L. Hansen, Duane Lauritzen, Diane Leslie, Jean Petersen, Nancy Welty.

Troop 7—Rosemary Wiltjen, Lois Larson, Rosemary Lamich, Elaine Payton, Jean Ann Passeneau, Margaret Fritz; Troop 8—Audrey Elgh, Jean Kreigel, Prisilla Kelder, Phyllis Reiter, Ruth Skeppstrom, Carol Snelling; Troop 9—Mary L. Beckwith, Helen Cornelius, Marjorie Faulkner, Ann Keefer, Nancy Koshwitz, Carol Schroeder.

100 DEMOCRAT WOMEN TO MAKE CAPITAL VISIT

A delegation of 100 members of the women's division of the Democratic national committee will depart Thursday for Washington, D. C., for the National Institute of Government tour. Mrs. Theresa Murphy, 4810 North Linder avenue, will head the delegation. Tea in the White House with Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, luncheon with congressmen, and educational conferences are planned. Mrs. Murphy is committeewoman of the 41st ward Democratic organization and a director of the Illinois Democratic Women's club.

On Honeymoon

[Du Bois—the Drake.]

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Ehlen are on a honeymoon thru the south after their wedding April 20 in Queen of All Saints church. The bride is the former Miss Elizabeth Hoffmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hoffmann, 6221 North Knox avenue. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Thomas Burke, assisted by the Rev. Francis Dolan. A dinner for the immediate family was held at the Edgewater Beach hotel followed by a reception in the Hoffmann home.

SOCIAL GROUP WILL INSTALL NEW OFFICERS

The Goodfellow's club will install new officers at Brands park fieldhouse, 3259 Elston avenue, at 8 o'clock next Tuesday night. Mrs. Bobbe Behrns, 3429 North Troy street, is the new president of the club. Mrs. Alma Ptag is honorary president. Other officers are Mrs. Harriet Gardella, 2915 George street, vice president; Mrs. Bernice Gillespie, 3232 North Troy street, secretary; Mrs. Theresa Freiboth, 3409 North Albany avenue, treasurer. CLOSE CONTESTS ARE REVEALED IN CONGRESS RACES

Complete Official Count in Cook County.

Close contests for both congressman and delegate to the national party conventions were revealed when the results of the official canvass for Cook and Lake county congressional districts were announced.

Districts 1 to 10 are in these two counties. The closest congressional race in these ten districts in the April 9 primary, according to the canvass, was run in the 3d district by two Republicans, Waldemar J. Roehler and Goodwin L. Dosland.

Roehler, a young real estate banker making his maiden try for political office, won the Republican nomination by a margin of only 299 votes over Dosland, who was his party's nominee two years ago. Roehler was credited with 19,807 votes and Dosland with 19,508. Friends of Dosland see the possibility of a recount.

Delegate Race Ends in Tie.

Two candidates for delegate to the Republican national convention from the 6th district ran a dead heat for second place, the canvass revealed. They are Philip E. Gilbert of Chicago and Joseph A. Coyner of Oak Park, each of whom received 19,668 votes. Julius H. Miner of Chicago was first with 31,219 votes and thus was assured one of the two delegate posts.

The tie between Gilbert and Coyner for the second post probably will be decided by the toss of a coin.

Convention Might Decide.

Some observers said such a procedure would not necessarily be conclusive. The loser of the toss, they said, could appeal to the credentials committee of the national convention.

The table below shows the vote for the various candidates for congress and for delegate as determined by the canvass, made by the Chicago election board and the county clerks of Cook and Lake counties. The asterisks denote sitting congressmen, and the names of the primary winners in each district appear in boldface type.

Head Patrolmen's Club

In a ceremony held last week in the presence of the policemen, new officers of the Chicago Patrolmen's club were installed. Policeman John J O'Malley of Hudson avenue station (seated) won the presidency by 11 votes from Daniel M. Andrews of Marquette station, the incumbent. Other officers are, left to right, George Weber, recording secretary; Nicholas J. Reidy, first vice president; Harry Larson, second vice president; Frank J. Brady, third vice president, and John J. Cleary, financial secretary. The club is composed of 3,800 members.

REBUILDING OF BURNED CHURCH TO START SOON

Reconstruction of the Evangelical Mission Covenant church of Irving Park, destroyed by fire on Jan. 28, is expected to begin this week, the Rev. Carl A. Gavert has announced. The new building will be the third erected by the congregation on the site at Monticello and Berteau avenues. The first structure was razed 27 years ago to make room for the one that burned.

The Rev. Carl A. Gavert.

The new church will be of modified Gothic architecture with a high English basement. The first floor of the one story brick building will contain an auditorium seating about 325 persons. There will also be rooms for the choir, church committees, the Sunday school secretary and superintendent, and the pastor's study.

The basement will be divided into rooms for the Sunday school with part of the space being reserved for a kitchen and serving rooms.

More than half the cost of the new structure, estimated at $35,000, will be paid from insurance collected on the old building. The difference of approximately $15,000 is expected to be raised by a financial drive which is now being organized. The church had no previous debt.

CANVASS SHOWS OFFICIAL VOTE FOR ASSEMBLY

O'Keefe Is Given Largest Count in State.

Here is a tabulation of the Cook county primary vote for Illinois legislative offices in the five senatorial districts that include northwest side territory, based on the official canvass. The asterisks indicate incumbents, and the boldface type denotes the new nominees.

It is interesting to note that State Representative O'Keefe of the 25th district, veteran legislator who was renominated, received the highest total vote of any Illinois legislative candidate in this year's primary.

Schedule 2 Safety Talks for Northwest Side Groups

George W. Fleming, general secretary of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee, will make two speeches this week on traffic safety on the northwest side. One will be at the Northwestern University settlement, 1400 Augusta boulevard, Tuesday evening, and the other will be before members of the North End Improvement association, 2975 Clybourn avenue, Friday night. Two traffic safety films will be shown at both meetings, "The Chance to Lose" and "The Man at the Wheel." A third film, "Bicycling with Complete Safety," will be shown at the settlement meeting.

"I'D LIKE TO RECOMMEND HIM, BUT..."

"I don't think he has the training needed for that job."

Character, personality, ambition—these all count in getting and holding a job. But there is one quality which commands special consideration—training.

Does lack of training bar you from advancement? If so, consider the advantages of taking one of the regular or short courses of specialized training offered to ambitious men and women in the Trade Schools, Instruction, Musical and Dramatic, Dressmaking and Millinery Schools and Dancing Schools columns of the Tribune want ad section.

"How Does He Expect Us to Do It?"

"We haven't a machine in the place that will handle it."

Are you turning profits away because you lack the equipment to handle the business?

Keep close watch on the Machinery and Equipment column of the Tribune want ad section. In this column you will find many opportunities to save money on motors, lathes, presses, metal and woodworking equipment and special and standard machinery for numerous jobs. By taking advantage of these offers, you can keep your business in step with your customers' requirements.

"In the Shop Again?"

"These repair bills are getting terrific."

Sooner or later every motorist has to replace his car with a better one.

When this decision is up to you, consult the Used Automobiles for Sale columns in the Tribune want ad section.

There you will find scores of late model used car values from which to choose. Many of these cars can hardly be told from new. Extra equipment—such as radios, heaters, spotlights, trunks and other accessories—are often featured. Prices represent considerable reductions below original cost.

Your present car may be the only down payment required to put you behind the wheel of a good-looking, dependable, late model used car which you will be proud to drive. Review the Used Automobiles for Sale columns in the want ad section of today's Tribune.

HOW'S YOUR GAME? Champions may do all right even with inferior equipment, but if you take your favorite sport seriously, you owe it to yourself to play with the best you can buy. Good used equipment for many sports is advertised at attractive prices in the Sporting Goods columns of the Tribune want ad section. See these offers today.

Because they get better results, want ad users place more total want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

HOME GARDENERS START ON TRAIL OF LAWN PRIZES

Firemen, Police, Janitors Also to Compete.

Amateur gardeners thruout the northwest side began sharpening their tools and their skill last week for their approaching participation in the sixth annual Save the Lawns campaign.

Plans for the competition were announced by Paul Schulze, chairman of the Municipal Art league, who is head of the citizens' committee that is cosponsor of the drive with the Chicago Park district. Mr. Schulze predicted that this year's contest would attract a record number of entries.

The primary purpose of the campaign is to help beautify the city by encouraging more persons to turn their hands to brightening up barren or waste space, Mr. Schulze said. The drive also benefits in greater public coöperation in avoiding freshly seeded lawns.

Name Area Leaders.

Mrs. Frank Marseh Jr., 7th district garden chairman for the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, was named northwest side chairman for this year's campaign last week. Those appointed to aid her in their capacity as community chairmen include:

Mrs. Henry B. Reith, president of the Mothers' Drama club, who represents the Logan Square district; John Riva of the Mayfair Garden club, head of the Mayfair contest activities; Frank J. Tomczak, president of the Park View Citizens' Improvement club, and Mrs. James Silk, president of the Wicker Park Women's club.

Numerous Chicago leaders are aiding Mr. Schulze as members of the citizens' committee.

These include: Gustave A. Brand, art chairman for the city; James H. Burdett, director of the National Garden clubs; Mrs. J. P. Edwards, state garden chairman of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs; Miss Ethel Foster, representing the Chicago Association of Commerce; John Howatt, chief engineer for the board of education; Mrs. F. Russell Lyon, president of the Illinois Parent-Teacher congress.

Others on Committee.

Others on the citizens' committee are James B. McCahey, president of the board of education; Commander Ernest I. Pugmire of the Salvation Army; Oakley V. Morgan, horticulturist for the Commonwealth Edison company; Bishop Bernard J. Sheil; Mrs. George Plamondon, president of the Garden Club of Illinois; Bishop George Craig Stewart, Eugene S. Taylor, manager of the Chicago plan commission, and Miss Harriet Vittum, head resident of the Northwestern University settlement.

On the educational committee are: Mrs. Charles W. Balch, state recreation chairman for the Illinois P.-T. A. congress; the Rev. D. F. Cunningham, Catholic superintendent of schools; Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of public schools; Mrs. G. A. Millard, president of the north side P.-T. A. high school council; Mrs. Levi S. Nelson, first district garden chairman of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs; President Michael O'Connell of De Paul university; Mrs. Milton Weiner, president of the south side P.-T. A. high school council, and President Samuel Knox Wilson of Loyola university.

Competition in the approaching campaign will be divided into these four groups: Small homes, apartment houses, public and parochial schools, and police and fire stations.

Prizes in Divisions.

Home and apartment house gardeners will compete for garden tools and supplies donated by Chicago merchants. Mr. McCahey has posted plaques to be awarded winners in the school section. The police and fire stations will vie for a cup donated by Fire Marshal Michael J. Corrigan.

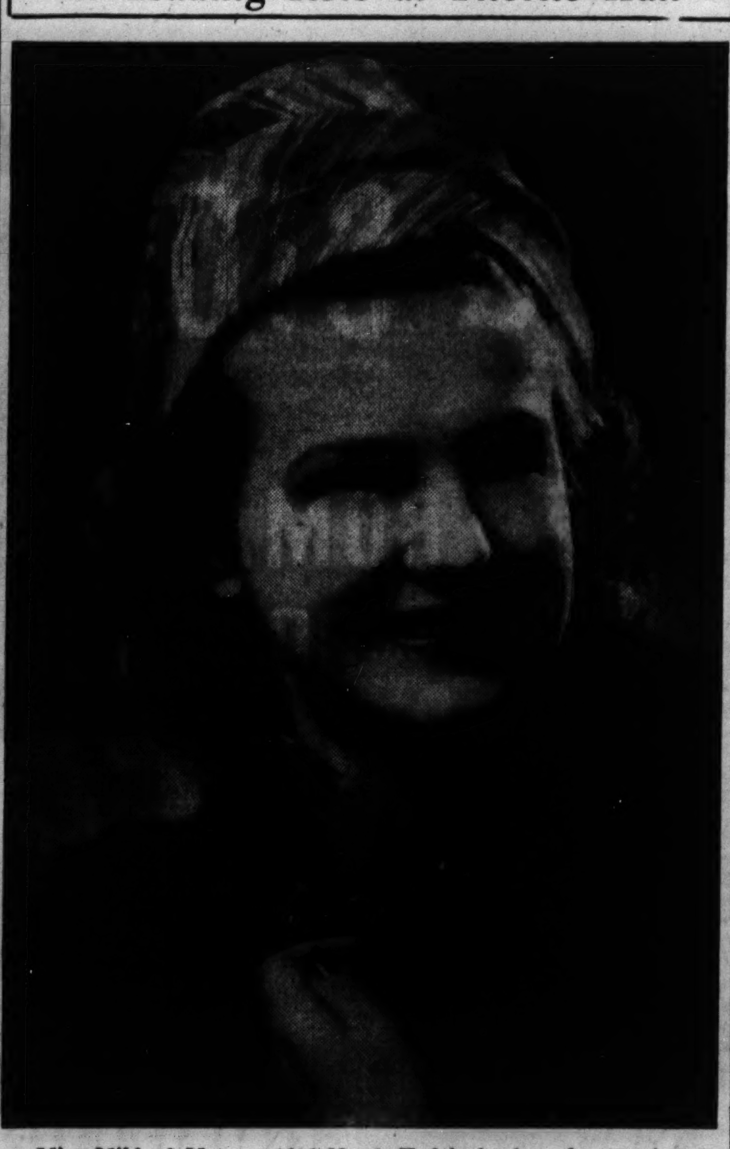
The park district, besides taking a leading part in sponsoring the annual drive for batter lawns, has prepared two other aids. One is a pamphlet giving information on the proper planting and care of grass. The other is a special sign appealing for public coöperation in starting new lawns, urging all to "Save this lawn for summer."

Both these aids are available without cost at park district fieldhouses thruout the city, it was announced by Layne Rogers, engineer in charge of landscape maintenance for the district.

Athletic Club Auxiliary Gives Card Party Tomorrow

Members of the Logan Square Athletic club auxiliary will hold a luncheon and card party at the Milk Foundation, 75 East Wacker drive, tomorrow noon. Cards will be played. Mrs. Marie Poggensee is chairman of the arrangements committee and aiding her are Mrs. Elizabeth Yoekel and Mrs. Mae Bredberg.

In Leading Role at Thorne Hall



Miss Mildred Meyers, 1416 North Kedzie boulevard, will play the leading role of Wanda Parris in the play "Blackberry Winter," which the Montgomery Ward players will present at Thorne hall of the Northwestern university Chicago campus the evening of May 10.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, April 29.

Garden activities open with a rush after the cold weather of spring, and it is necessary that all operations be done at the proper time. Transplant or rearrange perennials early to permit each divided plant to become established as soon as possible. Attention to the shrubbery includes early spading thru the plants. Shrubs need food as much as other plants. Planting may continue as long as the material can be obtained, but early planting is best. Be sure that each shrub has plenty of space, good soil, and that the plant is set only slightly deeper than it grew in the nursery. All broken roots should be cut back, the tops pruned, and old wood removed. Tamp the soil around the roots. Leave a depression around each plant and give it lots of water.

Tuesday, April 30.

When pruning roses remove all the prunings to prevent the spread of diseased parts. It is good practice to feed roses when the buds are breaking. Spread a complete commercial food around each plant and hoe it under. Make a second application just before the flowering period, but do not feed after Aug. 1. Roses in this section are best planted in spring.

Wednesday, May 1.

If you have any of the common snowball plants on the grounds be sure to spray with an oil spray just as the buds start and afterward at intervals of a few days with nicotine sulphate and soap. This should control the aphids that cause the leaves to curl. Spray young peony growths with bordeaux. Sulphur dust is excellent to control mildews, rusts, black spot on roses, red spiders, and mites. Remember that stomach poisons kill leaf eating insects and contact sprays sucking insects.

Thursday, May 2.

Divide hardy chrysanthemums in spring. Transplant the shoots in rich soil about 9 inches apart. Hardy asters and boltonia also should be transplanted now. If a shipment of plants is received and they are dried out, plunge in water or bury in wet soil for a few hours until they have revived, then plant. Most annual flower seed can be sown within a short time. As soon as the tulips have ceased flowering, sow annuals between them, such as phlox drummondi, poppies, California poppies, nasturtiums, and sweet alyssum. Try a few of the strawflowers for cutting and for use as winter bouquets. Why not buy a few small pot chrysanthemums for winter bloom? Line the plants out in the garden, keep well watered and fed, pinch back the young growths, lift before frost, and pot. They will furnish fine material for the house.

Friday, May 3.

Save a lot of time by spraying liquid weed killer in the walks and drives. Try a few strawberries. If you have a coldframe you may enjoy a lot of sweet scented flowers by planting violets. The plants winter well and bloom early in spring. Plants will need watering when the weather gets warm. This is especially true of newly planted material, such as shrubs, evergreens, and perennials. Do not plant tender water lilies until the end of the month, for cold weather will check them.

Saturday, May 4.

Wait until the soil is warm and there is no danger from late frost before planting tender plants outdoors. Gladioli can be planted at intervals of two weeks until about June 15 for a succession of bloom. Wait until May 20 before setting out tomato plants. Pole beans give a better yield and require little more space than the bush varieties. Try a few. Watch currants and gooseberries for mildew and leaf eating worms. Repair window boxes and fill with suitable plants. Most flowering plants require full or partial sun. The small flowered petunias are among the best for window boxes. Buy young plants that have been pinched. Prune flowering shrubs after flowering.

Glee and Guitar Clubs Join for Kelvyn Park Concert

The Norwegian Glee club will hold its 51st annual spring concert in collaboration with the Elgin Hawaiian Guitar club, in the Kelvyn Park High school auditorium, Milburn and Wrightwood avenues, at 5 o'clock today. The 70 voices of the glee club will be directed by Knute Hansen. The guitar club's 100 members will play guitars, mandolins and banjos. Birger Sande is chairman of arrangements. Thorsten Thorstensen is secretary, and Magnus Petersen is treasurer of this committee.

9,203 ENROLLED IN CITY'S PUBLIC SCHOOL R. O. T. C.

7,609 Cadets Uniformed; New Record.

A new high mark in Chicago public high school R. O. T. C. enrollment has been set by this semester's official figures, released by Col. W. F. Morrison, director of the public schools unit. They show a total of 7,609 uniformed cadets in the 27 high schools which offer R. O. T. C. instruction, as compared with 7,238 for the semester which ended in February.

Besides these, there are 1,594 freshmen enrolled, for whom uniforms are not supplied, thereby giving the public schools a total enrollment of 9,203 cadets. There were 1,514 cadets without uniforms last year.

150 Extra Uniforms.

A yearly average of no more than 7,500 uniforms is allotted to the city schools by the 6th corps area army headquarters, but an extra allotment of 150 uniforms was obtained for this semester last week, and according to Col. Morrison every qualified student who has applied for a uniform has received one.

Lane Technical High school continues to lead the city schools with a total enrollment of 1,059, including 898 cadets with uniforms. Crane jumped from fifth to second place, with an increase in enrollment from 408 to 492. The Lake View unit is third in size, with 476 cadets.

The large increase in enrollment at Crane has taken place since Sergt. James C. Pinneo became instructor there last fall. Sergt. Pinneo, however, ascribes it to the fact that Crane is for boys alone, and that interests spread rapidly among boys.

How Schools Compare.

The total enrollment, both with and without uniforms, in the various school regiments, is as follows: Amundsen, 293; Austin, 451; Bowen, 299; Calumet, 317; Crane, 492; DuSable, 318; Englewood, 284; Fenger, 326; Foreman, 215; Harrison, 260; Harper, 208; Hirsch, 273; Hyde Park, 386; Kelly, 154; Lake View, 476; Lane, 1,059; Lindblom, 380; Marshall, 183; Morgan Park, 301; Roosevelt, 240; Schurz, 422; Senn, 390; Steinmetz, 305; Sullivan, 301; Tilden, 434; Von Steuben, 204, and Waller, 230.

The only other R. O. T. C. unit in the city is at St. Mel Parochial High school, where there are 545 uniformed and 219 freshmen cadets enrolled.

MOTHERS, GIRLS TO BANQUET AT MAINE SCHOOL

The annual junior-senior mothers and daughters dinner for Maine Township High school will be held in the school cafeteria at 6:30 o'clock Thursday night. Morton Hughes Jonathan, said to be the youngest syndicated columnist in the country, will speak. His daily newspaper column and his new book, "Gentlemen Aren't Sissies," both have the teenage viewpoint and he is preparing another book considering the case of the adolescent girl.

Mrs. Edward Larson and Mrs. B. W. Ruark will offer toasts to their daughters, Jane and Alice, respectively, and another toast will be offered by Miss Dorothy Gregory, president of the Girls' club, which sponsored the get-together. Miss Mary Brunnke will give a dramatic reading, Miss Phyllis Johnson will sing, and Miss Marion Gudena will play the accordion.

Miss Lou Johnson is chairman of the banquet committee. Assisting will be the following committee heads: Miss Phyllis Johnson, program; Miss Shirley Narowetz, tickets; Miss Frances McCrumb, menu; Miss Marilyn Williams and Miss Bruhnke, decorations, and Miss Phyllis Umbach and Miss Jane Abbott, publicity.

Outing Club Plans Hike in Indiana Dunes Today

The Indiana Dunes state park will be the objective of the Park District Outing club today on one of its regular Sunday hikes. The group will board a South Shore train at Randolph street at 9 o'clock this morning and will return to the city at 8 o'clock this evening. The length of the hike is 10 miles. Miss Elizabeth Sauer will lead the hikers and Frank Parker and Mildred Zelenka will accompany them as guides.

Printers' Dance Entertainers

Lois (above) and Jane Lonette will be among the entertainers at the annual spring dance of Chicago Typographical union next Saturday night in the Grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel. The cabaret party will start at 9 o'clock. Thomas Canty is president of the union and Edward L. Herbeck is chairman of the dance. [Korman Photo.]

WOMAN DOCTOR, 66, WAITS CALL TO BATTLE ZONE

Susan K. Ackermann Eager to Help Norse.

She says her friends are starving dogs and cats, destitute mothers and neglected children. Yet the King of Norway sent her a decoration and summoned her to an audience when she traveled on a diplomatic pass as guest to the 900th anniversary celebration of the death of Saint Olaf, first king of Norway, held there in 1930. Now, tho she has long been an American citizen, she has offered her services to Norway and is only waiting to be called. She will go there, via Canada, at a moment's notice.

Dr. Susan Ackerman.

This is the tale of Dr. Susan K. Ackermann, 1820 Humboldt boulevard, who has long been known as the Jane Addams of the Norwegians and was closely associated with Miss Addams for many years in humanitarian activities in Chicago.

Born in Far North.

Dr. Ackermann was born in Vadso, Norway, within the Arctic circle, only three Norwegian miles from the Russian border. For three months of every year that world is bathed in sunshine night and day, flowers grow riotously, and during the summer English tourists crowd in. Her father was a sea captain, who sailed merchant ships to Portugal.

When she was 16, in 1890, she had completed all the available education yet could not by law be a teacher until she was 21. So she came to America to stay with relatives in Wisconsin, hoping eventually to teach. She was persuaded by a cousin, who was a brain specialist in the medical field, to become a doctor.

She took her premedic study at Valparaiso university, Indiana, and her medical degree in 1910 at the Chicago College of Medicine and Surgery, which school later merged with the Loyola university school of medicine. She also became a graduate pharmacist.

Practices in Slums.

"Then," as she explains it, "something within me finer than myself urged me to use my medical skill for humanity." She opened two offices in slum areas in Chicago, and for many years administered to those who were often too poor to pay her.

Twenty-five years ago she started a singing society for Norwegians because they love to sing.

Dr. Ackermann has long been interested in the Chicago Art institute and has her own collection of paintings. One has an unusual story. In the slums she met a neatly, but shabbily dressed young woman artist and her mother. The mother had sold her farm so that the girl could go thru art school. Now she was ready to enter her work in an exhibition, but—perhaps owing to her shabby appearance — the nationality group which should have welcomed her was not interested.

Dr. Ackermann persuaded the Chicago Art institute to include the artist's work in an exhibition. One of the paintings was sold for $300. With the money the girl and her mother went to New York, where the girl won a Paris scholarship. Today she is highly successful.

Entertains the Lowly.

When life in the slums finally taxed her too greatly, Dr. Ackermann moved to her present home which has in back a deep lawn, garden and two summer houses. At Christmas time she gives a big party for the old and the friendless and in summer she gives a similar group a garden party.

For many years Dr. Ackermann has lived for Chicago's poor, but now she feels that the Norwegians will need her even more.

AMATEUR STAGE GROUPS TO GIVE VARIED BILLS

Ward Players Will Offer 'Blackberry Winter.'

Dramatic talent is budding on the northwest side in true spring fashion, and a number of plays are to be presented during the coming weeks. "Blackberry Winter" is a comedy to be given by the Montgomery Ward players May 10 in Thorne hall on the Northwestern university downtown campus, and on May 17 at the Rogers Park Presbyterian church for the Gladys Ramsey guild. Mildred Meyers, 1416 North Kedzie avenue, will play the lead.

Other members of the cast are Bernard Van Marm, 2956 North Keating avenue; Theresa Oswald, 4834 West Wabansia avenue; Marion Connelly, 4119 Henderson avenue; Eleanor Andres, 5718 Mobile avenue; Anita Schmakel, 5109 Medill avenue. Helen Foster, 4501 North Kimball avenue, is ticket chairman.

Riis Park Players.

The Riis Park senior and junior dramatic clubs are both in final rehearsal for plays to be given this week. The seniors will present "The Great Allowance Battle," a one-act comedy, and also a one-act minstrel show, at the park auditorium, 6100 Fullerton avenue, at 8 o'clock tomorrow night. In the play are Tony Corso, 5914 Fullerton avenue; Helen Kerber, 2216 Nagle avenue; Hank Letrich, 2316 McVickers avenue; Eddie Tia Rito, 2200 North Parkside avenue, and Ginger Lee Corso, 5914 Fullerton avenue.

The minstrel performers will be Carl Locascio, Bernice Heck, Vincent and Edward Fiorito, Rose Corso, Carmen Gilberto, Irene and Loretta Bernecki, Frank Pietrandoni, Ed Malatesta, Elaine Iwaszuk, Rosie and Josie Corso, Adalina Kawa, Carmella Gilberto, Helen Kerber, Dorothy Dull, Siss Hefferon, Mary Messina, and Tino Sebben. Cathryn Troy of the Chicago park district drama staff will direct the performance.

The Riis Park juniors will present "Snickerty Nick and the Giant," in the fieldhouse auditorium, Wrightwood and Mead avenues, at 8 o'clock Thursday. Principals in the cast will be Delores Pavlis, Geraldine Dugo, Phyllis Schultz, Rosaline Vernon, Ruth Beebe, May Jane Wrobleski, LaVerne Dode, Leona Pryszanski, Rose Marie Mickus, and Joan Sonafranek.

Other members of the cast will be Frances Savistana, Bernadine and Jack Canzone, Lois, Joan, and Bobbie Pries, Alice Duffy, Gloria Egan, Theresa Tamborina, Renee Paul, Frances Pilolo, Herbert Paule, and Lois Richards. Lois Preis and Carolyn Egan will present a specialty number.

Offer Two Plays.

Children of the Franklin Park public school will give two one-act plays, "Elmer," and "Bandit of the Mist," in the school auditorium Tuesday night. The cast of "Elmer" includes John Phillips, Dorothy and Daisy Nelson, Connie Frybarger, Lois Fivelson, Caroline King, Jimmy Papadakis, Roy Sorensen, and Charlotte Glashagel.

In the other play will be Dick Plier, Thor Lofgren, Michael Leffew, Billy Reeves, Orpha Ayres, Dorothy Starkweather, Elaine Rodgers, and Adeline Matusek. Margaret Rausch and Asa Shear will direct. The boys' manual training classes will supervise stage settings and sound effects.

"No Dating Tonight."

"No Dating Tonight" will be the three-act play the Irving Park Catholic Woman's club will present in St. Viator's school auditorium, Addison and Kedvale avenues, the evening of May 7. The club's drama department will sponsor the play, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Ray Kinkaid. Victoria Gawlas is coaching the players and Kay Strubbs will take the leading rôle.

Other members of the cast are Viola Price, Mrs. Nicholas Oehlberg, Erna Klein, Mary Hill, Mrs. Delmar Feser, Mary Bunting, and Mrs. Albin Hedstrom. Arrangements committees will include: Properties, Mrs. Frank Bradley, and Mrs. Joseph O'Donnell; tickets, Mrs. Herbert Gottschalk; programs, Mignon Ingham, Virginia Lewand, Mrs. James Anderson, Mrs. Kincaid, and Betty Sommers.

Will Present Comedy.

"Don't Darken my Door" will be a three-act comedy presented by the St. John's Walther League of Niles, at the St. Matthew's parish hall, Milwaukee avenue and Ballard road, Friday and Saturday.

Following are members of the cast: Lillian Meyer, Frank Chalupnik, Dolores and Lois Dittman, Walter Bloethner, Florence Sietmann, Raymond Schilf, Virginia Lenzen. The play will be directed by E. A. Abraham, principal of St. John's Lutheran church.

The final performance of the fourth annual one-act play tournament of the Chicago Park district will be presented at the Goodman theater, Monroe street in Grant park, at 8:15 o'clock next Thursday night.

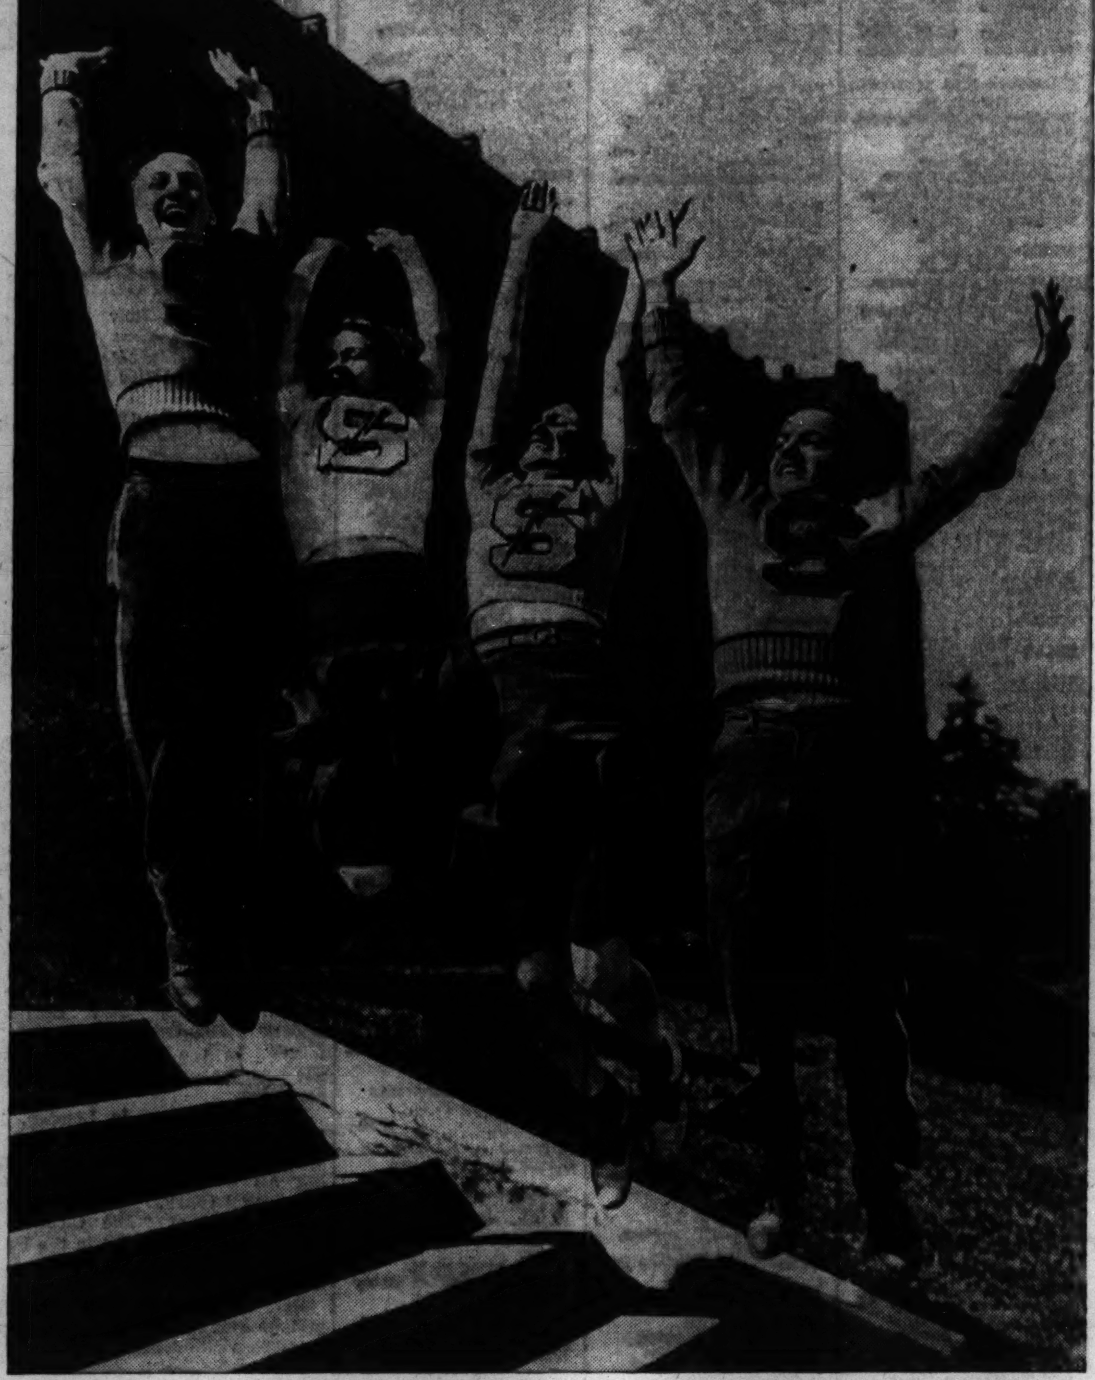
Will Give First Play.

St. Bartholomew's Young Peoples club will present its first annual play, "The Family Upstairs," in Lane Technical High school auditorium, the evening of May 3. Enrolled in the cast are: Ione Ault, Kenneth McGrath, Marianne Ofenlock, William Wendel, Joseph Diesenroth, Catherine Diskin, Donald Redmond, Mary Hanlon, Mary Mitchell, Joseph Nivilinsky Jr., Francis Harrison, Medard Czesok, and Anthony Accomando. Katherine Wendell and Rose La Cerra are in charge of makeup and the wardrobe.

Vincent McEvily is in charge of tickets and program, and will be assisted by Margaret Felbinger, Ann Pacilio, Lorraine Winard, Virginia Schwind, Kenneth Redmond, George Ebert, George Weber, and Mr. Accomando. Publicity is in the hands of Victor Stich, Leona O'Leary, and Emil Melkovitz.

Proceeds of the play will be turned over to the church's new rectory fund. Mr. McEvily is the club's president, and the Rev. Patrick F. Enright is moderator of the church.

Cheers Will Ring at W-G-N



Cheer Leaders James Taylor, Grace Tveter, Loretta Wagner, and Steve Walker (left to right) will keynote the spirit of Steinmetz High school for the radio audience of station W-G-N next Wednesday night. They will lead the cheer introducing "Citizens of Tomorrow" broadcast from 7 to 7:30 o'clock. The program will tell of the history and traditions of the school and its students. The chorus, directed by Willard L. Groom, will sing. Daniel F. O'Hearn is the principal. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

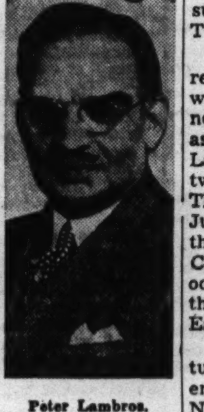
News and Queries Within and Without the Church
A Religious Voice of the People — Edited by the Rev. John Evans

For more than 100,000 Chicago Christians and for nearly one-third of all the Christians of the world, today is Easter Sunday. "Christ Is Risen," will be salutations on the lips of Chicago Christians of these national descents: Greek, Russian, Armenian, Slovakian, Assyrian, Serbian, Rumanian, Orthodox Polish, and Ukrainian. These are members of the Greek Orthodox communion.



Peter Lambros.

We asked Peter Lambros, editor of our contemporary, the Greek Star, to tell us something about the Greek Easter and why it differs in date from western Christianity as represented by Catholic, Anglican, and Protestant churches. Mr. Lambros, who is celebrating his first half century as a resident and citizen of Chicago, said Easter to the Greek has a double meaning—the resurrection of Christ and the resurrection of the Greek nation in 1821 when it battled successfully for freedom from the Turks.

"Because there is but one resurrection and one Easter, people often wonder why the Greek churches do not celebrate Easter at the same time as the other denominations," Mr. Lambros said. "The difference is between Julian and Gregorian calendars. The Greek Easter date goes by the Julian calendar so as not to impair the integrities of the patriarchates at Constantinople, Jerusalem, and Antioch, altho the Greek church adopted the Gregorian calendar—excepting Easter—two decades ago.

"During earliest Christian centuries Easter was observed at different times, but at the council of Nicaea, 325 A. D., Emperor Constantine decided that Easter should be designated on the first Sunday of spring, or the Sunday after the full moon of the spring equinox, and after the Jewish Passover.

"A point to be emphasized is that altho Greek Easter comes on the Gregorian calendar date, April 28, the real date is April 14 under the Julian calendar."

UNUSUAL HOUSE HAS LIVING ROOM ON SECOND FLOOR

Dining-Recreation Space Found on First.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

What makes a house a home, with roots deep down in treasured soil, instead of just—another house? Money often has precious little to do with it, or size, or style. It is rather a matter of fine taste, excellent planning, and a meticulous attention to detail.

When Mr. and Mrs. Reginald G. Schuler, 337 Oakland avenue, Highland Park, decided to build they discussed many matters with their architect, William N. Alderman, 19 East Pearson street, Chicago. When the house was completed it had a background especially designed for the owners; a house with an unmistakable atmosphere, personal and inviting.

Stay In Their Budget.

The interesting and unusual layout is partly a result of the decision to keep within a stipulated budget. Here is how it was done.

Mr. Schuler had very much wanted a large recreation room in the basement, but Mr. Alderman pointed out that such a feature would increase estimated costs. So a compromise was reached, and a most unusual combination dining room and recreation room was planned for the first floor. Quite a man's room, and treated in the lively Mexican spirit. Then, on the second floor was a living room with studio ceiling—carried out as Mrs. Schuler wished.

May Be Enlarged.

Informality on the first floor. More formal touches on the second. And possibilities for various entertainment, formal and informal, as the occasion dictates.

As you approach the house, which stands on a beautifully wooded site, a flagstone walk leads to a quaintly walled-in garden and a doorway of stone, and at the right of the entrance doorway is the door which leads to the garage.

Inside you see the intriguing combination recreation-dining room, with beamed wood ceiling and a two story stairwell to the second floor. This large room faces two ways, and opens onto a wide screened porch—thru folding doors and an opening 9 feet wide. When these doors are "folded" open the effect is virtually to bring the porch into the room.

At the far end is a 16 foot wide fireplace which extends across one entire wall, with a red brick hearth 6 feet deep.

The kitchen likewise has a beamed wood ceiling, with planks painted white, and dark brown beams. The cases are white, the floor a handsome red linoleum tile. There are lively touches here in this room, red and yellow splashes of color in the Mexican vein.

From the colonial-keeping room a two story stairwell rises to the second floor.

Here there is a large, studio ceiling room, designed as Mrs. Schuler desired, in delicate pastel shades. The floor is a light oak, and there are stunning white rugs and soft toned gray-blue walls. The entire room is dominated by a fine colonial mantelpiece.

Several very interesting and unusual features are found on this second floor.

There is a diminutive, intriguing study opening from the living room. A window on one side overlooks the garden area of the house. Opposite this wall is a honeycombed opening overlooking the stairwell.

In the hall there is a built-in space for a disappearing type of bed. A retreat which offers extra accommodation for the extra guest.

On this second floor there also are two bedrooms and bath. The bedrooms have closets with sliding doors, with cane panels for ventilation.

The living room opens onto a large screened porch. The overall of living room and porch is some 26'x18'. In the warm weather months this living room and porch can be counted as one room a great deal of the time.

Five Rooms in Highland Park

Planned for outdoor as well as indoor living, this new home of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald G. Schuler, 337 Oakland avenue, Highland Park, is an instance of how much provocative interest and charm can be incorporated in a five room home when wise planning and heed of details are back of its design. The architect is William N. Alderman, 19 East Pearson street, Chicago.

Sisterhood to Elect.

Officers will be elected by the Sisterhood B'nai Israel of Austin Wednesday afternoon in the synagogue, 5433 West Jackson boulevard. Sondra Gatz will give a dramatic reading. Mrs. Harry Bell is program chairman.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

LOSE WEIGHT
this amazingly, easy safe way

IF you want to take off ugly fat easily and pleasantly all you have to do is—
First ... eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating. Second .. mix ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ of a glass of water and drink before meals and at bedtime. Thus you reduce caloric intake considerably. But you do not suffer a hungry moment. There are no strict diet lists, strenuous exercises or taking drugs. Yet!—in a test conducted by Dr. Damrau of New York, with this method among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, an average weight loss of seven pounds was registered per month. This remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men as it is for overweight women. There is only one thing to watch. Eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating; and be sure to use Welch's Grape Juice—always made from the pick of the grape crop; always full strength; always pure.

Irene Rich, lovely star of the screen and radio, now past 40, weighs the same as she did at 16. She recommends the easy Welch way to reduce.

Try This Amazing Welch's Tomato Juice
If you think all Tomato Juice is alike, try Welch's new, vitamin-rich Tomato Juice. It is so rich and thick you can add ⅓ water or ice and still have a most delicious Tomato Juice.

SYMPHONIC HOUR TO MAKE BOW ON W-G-N TONIGHT

Tribute to Association of Commerce Planned.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The new W-G-N Symphonic hour, to be presented by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE as a public service, will make its bow from 9 to 10 o'clock tonight over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. The Symphonic hour will be presented by the W-G-N Concert orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, with Marion Claire, renowned soprano, and Michael Wilkomirski, noted violinist, as the soloists. There will also be an augmented chorus.

An added feature of the Symphonic hour will be a gesture of honor each Sunday evening to one of the great organizations of the community which contribute to the security, prosperity, and welfare of the public. Tonight the tribute will be paid to a specially invited audience of the Chicago Association of Commerce, headed by President Oscar G. Mayer. Frank J. Loesch, Chicago's civic leader and ormer president of the Chicago Crime commission will speak briefly.

Other Tributes Planned.

In subsequent programs, special tribute will be paid to the police and fire departments, the army, prominent educators and the men who deliver the mall.

The second of the invitation affairs will be given in honor of the army. Officers of the United States army will be studio guests next Sunday when Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, commander of the 6th corps area, is to deliver the talk of the evening.

Miss Claire, beautiful star of opera, screen, and radio, was born in Lake Bluff, Ill. She made her first operatic appearance in "La Bohème" in Rovigo, near Venice. Since then she has starred in many operas and operettas including "The Great Waltz" and "Bittersweet." She is to star in "Bittersweet" in the new W-G-N Theater of the Air next Thursday at 9 p. m. She made her film debut in "Make a Wish." In private life, Miss Claire is the wife of Mr. Weber, who is musical director of W-G-N and artistic director of the Chicago Opera ocmpany.

Concertmeister at W-G-N.

Michael Wilkomirski, concertmaster of the W-G-N Concert orchestra, is rated by critics as one of the nation's finer violinists.

Wilkomirski was born in Moscow of Polish parents. His father, a teacher in the conservatory there, trained him as a very small boy. He made his debut when only six.

The program for tonight:

Overture "Donna Diana"......von Reznicek
Concert orchestra.
Ave Maria..............................Schubert
Miss Claire, octet and orchestra.
[2] Der Neugirige.
[b] Ungeduld .... Schubert

Mr. Wilkomirski.
Chorus from Il Trovatore....Giuseppe Verdi
Octet and orchestra.
Talk..............................Frank J. Loesch
Artists Life Waltz............Johann Strauss
Concertorchestra.
"Light" from "Gitanjali"............
...................John Alden Carpenter.
Miss Claire.
Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms.....................
......Miss Claire, octet and orchestra.
[a] Scene and Gypsy Song from Caprice Espagnole.......Rimsky-Korsakov
[b] Fandango of the Asturias from Caprice Espagnole.......Rimsky-Korsakov
Concert orchestra.

The broadcasts are to be aired from W-G-N's beautiful main audience studio where visitors will witness the broadcasting technique of a modern radio station.

Steelmakers to Salute Bethany College Today

A musical salute by the Mutual network's coast-to-coast "Musical Steelmakers" to Bethany College's Centennial will be heard on W-G-N from 7:30 to 8 p. m. today.

The Bethany College alma mater song, Ardenne White, singing "Angel in Disguise," and collegiate capers by the entire cast, including Dorothy Ann Crowe, the Steele sisters, the Old Timer, Regina Colbert, and the orchestra will round out this program from Wheeling, W. Va.

'Faust' to Be Presented on Radio City Music Hall

A portion of Gounod's "Faust," with Tenor Jan Peerce singing the title rôle, will be presented by the Radio City Music Hall of the Air Opera company at 11 a. m. today over WCFL. The cast also will include Charlotte Symon as Marguerite, Lorenzo Alvari as Mephistopheles, Robert Weede as Valentin, Louise Bernhardt as Siebel, and Llopis de Olivares as Wagner. Erno Rapee directs.

Editor's Daughter

JOAN BANKS.

Two popular daytime serials—"Mary Foster, Editor's Daughter" and "Linda's First Love"—will be aired over W-G-N starting tomorrow. They are not new stories to Chicago listeners, but this is their first appearance on W-G-N. "Linda" with Arline Blackburn as star, will be aired at 10:45 a. m., and "Editor's Daughter" with Joan Banks playing the lead at 11 a. m.

Linda Crockett and Mary Foster have much in common. Their lives are aimed toward a sensible, normal married life when they find and win the ideal man, but beyond this the stories differ. Linda's back-breaking duty of caring for an invalid fostermother and father as well as a stepson has made her life a hectic one.

W-G-N PERFECTS PLANS TO COVER 2 CONVENTIONS

Quin Ryan, Henning Head Staff.

The major networks are busy completing plans for the most complete coverage of the national conventions in radio history. When the Republicans convene in Philadelphia on June 24 and the Democrats in Chicago on July 15, the broadcasters will be ready with scores of experts—newscasters, political interpreters, analysts, commentators, editorialists, special features men, announcers and engineers—to give listeners thruout the world a complete account of the proceedings.

W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system have arranged the most elaborate coverage of these crucial conventions. More than 130 stations in the United States, Canada and Hawaii will be linked on Mutual for the convention broadcasts. In addition, the convention broadcasts will be short-waved to the world thru the facilities of WRUL, Boston.

Mutual System's Staff.

Mutual's staff will represent the ablest reporters and commentators available from its key stations W-G-N; WOR, New York; WOL, Washington, and WFIL, Philadelphia. Heading the staff will be Quin Ryan, a veteran of national conventions since crystal set days; Arthur Sears Henning, chief of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's Washington bureau and W-G-N commentator; Fulton Lewis Jr., Washington newscaster; Gabriel Heatter, veteran newscaster; Wythe Williams, editor of "Greenwich Time" and Dave Driscoll of WOR, New York.

Following a final pre-convention meeting here last week, Mutual officials announced that regular program commitments, commercial and sustaining, would be subject to cancellation so that continuous convention transmissions from Philadelphia and Chicago may be made available to listeners. An announcement of the proposed convention broadcasting schedule will be made shortly.

50 Microphones in Halls.

Elaborate technical set-ups will be installed under the supervision of three Mutual network chief engineers—Carl Meyers, of W-G-N; J. R. Poppele, of WOR; Arnold Nygren, of WFIL, and Andrew L. Poole, traffic manager of the network.

More than 50 microphones of Mutual, CBS and NBC will be placed strategically inside both halls and across the speakers' platforms so that each state chairman will have his own microphone. Specially constructed radio booths will tower over the stages, with auxiliary studios and offices maintained directly beneath the main stages in both halls.

Parabolic microphones, which pick up sounds in a concave bowl and reflect them directly into the microphones, will be used for crowd atmosphere. —L. W.

Kay Kyser to Be Guest on NBC Bandwagon Tonight

Kay Kyser, the old professor, will be answering the questions instead of asking them when he and his orchestra are guests of Henry M. Neely, m. c. on the Bandwagon at 6:30 p. m. today over WMAQ-NBC.

'BITTERSWEET' IS FIRST SHOW IN THEATER OF AIR

Marion Claire, Melton to Star in W-G-N Series.

The Chicago Theater of the Air—W-G-N-Mutual's new program featuring great operettas—will present as its first offering from 9 to 10 p. m. next Thursday Noel Coward's "Bittersweet." The series will be presented by THE TRIBUNE.

Marion Claire, brilliant soprano of operetta, radio, movie, and concert fame; James Melton, distinguished tenor, and an augmented chorus and concert orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber, and a dramatic cast will give the operetta before an invited audience of 600 persons including 100 officers from the United States naval training station at Great Lakes. The operetta will be aired over the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

William A. Bacher, noted radio producer and director, brought to Chicago from Hollywood, will produce the operettas which have been adapted for broadcasting in 60 minutes by Noel Gerson.

Miss Claire as Sari Linden.

Miss Claire will portray the part of Sari Linden. It is a familiar part for her. She is one of the three outstanding vocalists who have appeared in this part. She appeared in the "Bittersweet" company here with Allan Jones opposite her several seasons ago.

James Melton will sing the rôle of Carl Linden, the young music teacher who elopes with Sari. Melton has had starring rôles in movies, concert successes, and operatic hits in addition to his perfomances on many coast to coast radio programs.

Orchestra to Be Enlarged.

Miss Claire and Melton will be supported by an augmented chorus, a cast of outstanding Chicago radio actors, and an enlarged concert orchestra directed by Mr. Weber, musical director of W-G-N and of the Chicago Opera company.

Among the Coward songs which will be heard are "I'll See You Again," "Tokay," "Zigeuner," "Call of Life," and "Small Café." An original musical theme has been composed by Mr. Weber for use in the series of operettas.

Following "Bittersweet" will be "The Student Prince," by Sigmund Romberg, to be broadcast May 16.

MELODY PAGEANT GETS NEW HOUR ON WEDNESDAYS

The Pageant of Melody, featuring the W-G-N concert orchestra and conducted by Henry Weber, will be heard at a new time beginning Wednesday on W-G-N and the Mutual network. Formerly broadcast at 9:30 p. m., the show will be presented from 9:15 to 10 p. m. each Wednesday.

Attilio Baggiore, tenor; Kathryn Witwer, lyric soprano; octet, and the women's quartet will be the featured vocalists. Baggiore will sing for his solo, "O Paradiso," by Meyerbeer. Miss Witwer will do "Liebesbriefchen," by Korngold. With the quartet Miss Witwer will sing "Chorus of the Flower Maidens," from Richard Wagner's "Parsifal."

The "Song of India," by Nicolai Rimsky-Korsakow, will be presented by Baggiore, Witwer, and the octet and orchestra. Other numbers will include "March Tannhäuser," by Wagner; "Malaguena," by Moszkowsky; "Le Lac Enchante," by Liadoff, and "Emperor Waltz," by Johann Strauss.

Romance in Rhythm to Present Current Favorites

"Romance in Rhythm," a fast moving half hour program featuring the hit tunes of the day, will present the W-G-N dance orchestra, directed by Harold Stokes, Edna O'Dell, Lawrence Salerno, and the Four Shades of Blue, at 9:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Edna O'Dell will sing "You, Your Darlin'." With the chorus she will do "I Walk with Music." Salerno will sing "Make Love with a Guitar," and will join the chorus in "Gwine to Hebbin." The Four Shades of Blue will harmonize in "My My," from the show, "Buck Benny Rides Again."

Blair Walliser to Talk on '99 Years in Radio'

Blair Walliser, W-G-N production director, will make an appearance before students of the Mummers Theater Workshop today in the group's studios in the Auditorium Theater building. He will discuss "My 99 Years in Radio." Walliser produces the Fifth Row Center and Bob Becker shows on W-G-N and Backstage Wife and the Romance of Helen Trent.

MISS BANKHEAD NEXT GUEST ON 5TH ROW CENTER

Noted Actress to Star in "Hurricane."

Tallulah Bankhead, one of the nation's outstanding actresses, will be starred on Fifth Row Center over W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system from 7 to 7:30 p. m. next Friday.

Miss Bankhead will be heard in a special radio play, "Hurricane,"

Miss Bankhead is appearing in Lillian Hellman's play, "The Little Foxes," at the Selwyn theater. The show, which had a run of more than four hundred performances on Broadway, has been hailed as one of Miss Bankhead's greatest triumphs.

In "Hurricane," she will play the rôle of a young wife whose marriage nears a breakup because of indifference and a series of misunderstandings.

Born in Alabama.

A native of Alabama, Tallulah is a daughter of Speaker William B. Bankhead of the house of representatives, and a niece of Senator John Bankhead. She scored her first great stage hit in London in 1922, when she appeared with Sir Gerald du Maurier in "The Dancers." Prior to that she had appeared in several ingenue rôles on Broadway.

She starred in "They Knew What They Wanted," in London. She did numerous other shows across the Atlantic, including "Her Cardboard Lover," "The Green Hat," and "Camille." In the eyes of the British she was the greatest of all American actresses.

After nine years in London, Miss Bankhead returned home, and has appeared in such plays as "Forsaking All Others," "Something Gay," "Reflected Glory," "I Am Different," and revivals of "The Circle" and "Rain." Her biggest hit in the United States has been in "The Little Foxes."

In "Hurricane," Miss Bankhead will be surrounded by a cast of outstanding radio actors.

Blair Walliser is director of the Fifth Row Center presentations.

Press and Radio in 1940 Election, Broadcast Topic

"Press and Radio in the 1940 Election" will be discussed on the Northwestern University Reviewing Stand over W-G-N and MBS from 10:15 to 10:30 a. m. today. Elmo Scott Watson, professor in the Medill School of Journalism and editor of the Publishers' Auxiliary, and Parker Wheatley, radio director at Northwestern university, will exchange ideas on the broadcast.

On W-G-N

Tallulah Bankhead, star of the stage play, "The Little Foxes," who will make a guest appearance on the Fifth Row Center program on W-G-N-Mutual at 7 p. m. next Friday.

RELIGION'S BIG BUSINESS TO BE MIDDAY SUBJECT

The Midday Service program for this week will have as its theme, "Religion's Big Business." The program is broadcast daily except Saturday and Sunday at 12:35 p. m. over W-G-N. Speakers for the week will be:

Monday—The Rev. D. L. McNary, First Presbyterian church, Freeport, Ill.
Tuesday—President Timothy Lehman, Elmhurst college.
Wednesday—The Rev. Father Walter A. Croarkin, St. Agatha's Catholic church.
Thursday—Prof. Charles S. Braden, Northwestern university.
Friday—The Rev. Herbert W. Prince, rector, Church of the Holy Spirit, Lake Forest.

[ADVERTISMENT]
Pull the Trigger on Lazy Bowels, and Also Pepsin-ize Stomach!
When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

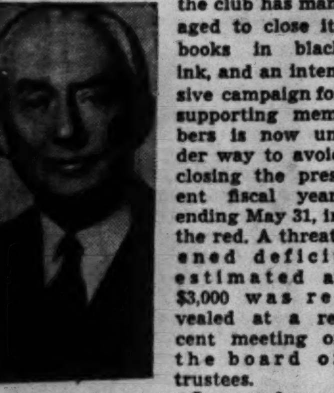
ANNOUNCE 6TH DISTRICT CLUB AWARDS

SUNDAY EVENING CLUB IS FACING ITS FIRST DEFICIT

Drive Under Way to Raise $3,000.

The Chicago Sunday Evening club is facing its first deficit. For 32 years the club has managed to close its books in black ink, and an intensive campaign for supporting members is now under way to avoid closing the present fiscal year, ending May 31, in the red. A threatened deficit estimated at $3,000 was revealed at a recent meeting of the board of trustees.



Clifford W. Barnes.

Increased expenses this season are due partly to the fact that the president and founder of the club, Clifford W. Barnes, has been unable to take part in the administration and give informal Bible talks in Orchestra hall as he did for 25 years. Also, new activities have developed thru the growth of the club, such as the midweek social meetings for young people and a Monday council for the men.

Decline in Income.

On the other side of the ledger, there has been a marked decline in income during the last few years. There has been a loss of funds thru the death of several generous donators, lower interest rates on the club's small investment fund, lower collections in Orchestra hall due to the reduced economic status of the audience, and a falling off in annual subscriptions from business sources.

The budget of approximately $40,000 has been met without great strain in former years. The club was one of the first large nonsectarian religious organizations to meet with success and leaders of all denominations thruout the world have approved its purpose and spoken from its platform.

It was the first service of worship on the air, over KYW in 1922. Under the club's administration setup, its board of managers is composed of 35 business men, who are members of various church bodies. Among the pioneers on the first board of trustees were John G. Shedd, A. C. Bartlett, Charles L. Hutchinson, and Frank Armstrong.

Back for Another Talk.

Dr. Harold C. Phillips, minister of the First Baptist church, Cleveland, O., is being returned by popular request as speaker for the 8 o'clock meeting this evening in Orchestra hall. His first appearance was on April 7. Tonight he will speak on "Three Truths About God." Mr. Barnes will preside and Edward Foss Wilson will participate in the program.

Dr. Phillips was born in Jamaica and came to the United States in 1912. He preached in small churches while studying at Denison university, Granville, O., and later entered Union Theological seminary. His first important pastorate was the Mount Vernon Baptist church in New York City. Since Dr. Phillips was assigned to his Cleveland church in 1929, the congregation has doubled. His preaching is noted for its humanitarian appeal.

HOOSIER SALON TO OPEN EXHIBIT WITH TEA FRIDAY

The Hoosier Salon Patrons association will sponsor an exhibition by Glen Mitchell of Minneapolis, Minn., and Charles Reiffel, San Diego, Cal., from Friday thru May 31 in the Hoosier Art gallery, 211 Wacker drive, suite 814. Gallery hours are from 9 to 5 o'clock and on Saturdays until 3 o'clock.

The exhibit will open with a program and tea at 2:30 o'clock Friday. Karl Plath, a Chicago artist connected with the Brookfield zoo, will talk on "Birds That I Paint," and Rudolph Mohr, horticulturist at the Garfield Park conservatory, will discuss "The Distribution of the Orchid."

Hostesses will include Mrs. Charles F. Amacker, Mrs. Victor Anderson, Mrs. Delbert K. Baggs, Mrs. H. P. Bruner, Mrs. Chester W. Cleveland, Mrs. Clarence Lee Holtzman, Mrs. Philip Maxwell, Mrs. Harry Mock, Mrs. Paul W. Paver, Mrs. Pearl Power, Mrs. Clifford Rogers, Mrs. G. L. Shideler, Mrs. A. Paul Vignola, and Mrs. T. K. Williamson.

United Lutheran Church Chorus Will Sing Vespers

The United Lutheran Church chorus will present a musical vesper service at 4 o'clock this afternoon in St. Peter's church, Spaulding avenue and Le Moyne street, the Rev. Freeman A. Kunz, pastor. The program will be directed by Dr. H. Grady Davis, professor of music at the Chicago Theological seminary, Maywood.

Infant Welfare to Present John Carter in Concert

Oak Park Infant welfare, circle 25, is observing Baby week with a benefit concert Wednesday evening. John Carter, Metropolitan Opera tenor, will sing, beginning at 8:30 o'clock, in the Oak Park High school auditorium.

"The Clown of Doodle Doo"

"The Clown of Doodle Doo" will have his day in Oak Park Saturday evening. And the clown chorus will do its best for Doodle Doo when Oak Park children perform for their parents. The circus act of Barrie playground will be part of the dramatic festival in Lowell Children's theater when the Beauty will cry over the plight of the Beast, who is under the spell of the wicked witch of Knoor. Helping to transform the Lowell school stage into an Alice's Wonderland are, left to right, Peggy Hoberg, La Verne Vyduna, Marilyn Heaton, Dorothy Wacker, and Barbara Haas. (Story on Page 2.) Date Lost, So She Has Lots of Birthdays

BY MILDRED WILDS.

Mary Connelly doesn't have a birthday. She was a very young child one of a large family, when she begged some neighbors to take her along on the boat to America from County Tyrone, Ireland. Without her mother to remind her, she forgot her birthday date. That's why somebody is always giving her a birthday party. In March she had six.

Miss Mary Connelly.

In the move from County Tyrone Mary lost her Irish accent as well as her birthday. But she kept her Irish wit and has become one of the best known parlor maids in the country. Since 1893 she has been dusting, sweeping, and picking up crumbs, but has made more friends at the job than many big corporation presidents.

Mary Connelly is the oldest woman employé of the first settlement house in America. This spring her Irish smile and silver hair are a part of the picture as Hull House celebrates its golden anniversary.

She'll Be Remembered.

On May 17 at the Hull House banquet, "alumnae" of the settlement will pay her tribute. She may have forgotten their names, but she says she can remember their faces, the noses she wiped and the chins she chucked. For a parlor maid at Hull House does everything there is on the list.

It was early in Mary's life when she came from Philadelphia to see the World's Fair in the big meat packing city. There she saw an exhibit from an odd place, a house on Halsted street where the doors were always open to the poor or lonely. A woman named Jane Addams had started it all three years before as an antidote to city slums.

Cane Only for Sunday.

Mary has a cane she leans on only on Sundays—because it's the one that Miss Adams gave her. She has a tiny room on the third floor of the old section of Hull House. She's been offered the best quarters, but she won't move because Jane Addams put her there in 1893. "And Miss Addams said I could die there," reports Mary at the slightest moving suggestion.

Miss Thora Lund, superintendent of Bowen Country club, suggested St. Patrick's day as her birthday. So celebrations at Hull House for Mary started in March and have just ended. One club bought her a canary bird. The Italian Mothers club had a reception for her.

The Visiting Nurse association, also celebrating its golden anniversary this year, sent a taxicab for her and took her to the loop for a holiday. Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, named "First Citizen in Chicago" for her work in social service, sent Mary roses. House residents had her to lunch.

She Might be 75.

"I don't know how old I am," she claims, but she looks as tho she does. "Like I told the census man, we might as well guess 75." Mary looks pleased and pats her carefully coifed head if you don't believe it.

The parlor maid is also the nurse of every green thing that ever grew in a settlement flower pot. Near her room is a sunny window which everybody calls, "Mary's horticulture hospital." She won't accept the fact that a plant is dead. She will nurse it back from the brown, drooped stage to a second blooming.

They say Mary's done the same thing many times for the problem boy when others said, "He has no more good in him."

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About People You May Know

CELEBRATING its sixteenth anniversary, Morton Junior college, Cicero, will feature the crowning of a "sweet sixteen queen" at annual open house Friday night. As the result of a vote among the students, Miss Eleanor Grove has been chosen for the honor role. Her attendants, the four closest candidates, will be Miss Ethelie Vachta, Miss Violet Janda, Miss Virginia Busch and Miss Ruth Brebis.

Miss Eleanor Grove.

The open house program will include hobby exhibits, music by the Orkestra klub and Choral group, excerpts from the operetta, "The Chimes of Normandy," and a Players' guild sketch directed by Miss M. A. Reed. Members of the executive committee are Donald Hattrem, Vivian Reznik, Elisabeth Leisge, Robert Nelson, James Cadieux, Violet Janda, Bette Personett, Joseph Sakala, and Joseph Briggman.

Roger Swett is going to a college where there are no examinations, grades or formal credits. The University of Rochester invited him to enter its division of honor studies beginning next September. Swett, who resides at 714 Franklin avenue, River Forest, was one of 18 students selected to study without the restrictions placed on the average collegian. Each week he will attend two seminars limited to seven students each.

Swett is a graduate of Oak Park High school in the class of 1938. He is holder of a $1,200 Genesee scholarship and will be a junior.

The honors division is a part of a new liberalized curriculum introduced at the university last year.

More than 3,000 persons attended the fifth annual revue of dances improvised by Miss Edythe B. Rayspis and her assistant recently presented in the J. Sterling Morton High school auditorium. More than 250 dance pupils participated. Miss Rayspis, 1830 Gunderson avenue, Berwyn, earlier in the year featured her group ensembles and European ballet routines at the annual convention of the Dancing Masters association at the Congress hotel.

Did you know that the bump on Austin boulevard at 16th street in Cicero is a famous water shed, with the rain falling on the north side finding its way to the St. Lawrence river, while rain on the south side winds up in the Gulf of Mexico? The bit of information was passed along by Walter B. Spelman, dean of Morton Junior college, to members of the Rotary club of Cicero in recent session. After "Spel's" talk, members of the club decided there were many things about the town that had never been brought to their attention. Ogden avenue, for example, was originally an Indian trail.

Lilacs' Glory Soon to Cheer Vets at Hines

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

When lilac time comes to the hedge rows of Chicagoland suburbs, it will come as well to the rooms and wards and corridors of the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital.

Into the lilac, nature has crowded the essence of soft winds and morning dew and all the fragrances and beauty of a season proclaiming that the long, drab winter has passed. The lilac means that May is again at its best, and springtime provides them in profusion so they may not only be enjoyed first hand but that their message may be carried by the thoughtful to those who might otherwise miss its inspiration.

The 1,600 war veterans at Hines hospital will not be forgotten in the "Share Your Lilacs" campaign, sponsored by the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Depends on Weather.

Men who have been at the hospital over a period of years recall visitations of the blossoms in the past and are looking forward to the 12th annual distribution, the date of which depends upon weather whims.

"It is obvious to everybody," said Charles G. Beck, manager of the hospital, "that because of the custom of sending flowers to the sick in hospitals, the 'Share Your Lilacs' gestures is indeed appropriate. Flowers create an atmosphere of cheerfulness that might not otherwise exist. We are glad to be remembered at Hines and I am sure the patients are most appreciative."

It has required many truck loads of purple and white and various shaded petals to supply the rooms and wards at Hines, where the four story hospital building stands nearly a half mile long.

Always Means Spring.

"It has always meant spring coming in," said Miss Noreen Regan, chief occupational therapy aid, who will take charge of the distribution and care of bouquets.

It was explained at the hospital that in order to properly handle the incoming flowers, days other than Tuesday and Thursday, visiting days, be selected. Also, a preference for distribution as early as possible in the morning was suggested.

At Hines there are 25 ex-service women patients who will be given cheer thru the remembrance of some gardener cutting stems from the profusion of lilacs in his or her home garden.

PLANT GUILD WORKS ON TRAIN SCHEDULE FOR LILAC SHARING

Officials of the Chicago Plant, Fruit and Flower guild last week completed their organization for lilac day when 150 members, including guild chairmen of garden clubs, held their annual luncheon at Carson, Pirie, Scott tearoom and drafted final plans. The schedule of trains that will furnish free transportation for the lilacs is to be worked out this week.

The ten division chairmen of the guild are keeping in close touch with lilac growers in their territories in order to determine when the blooms will be ready to cut.

Each division chairman will report to the Chicago headquarters of the guild on May 5 and again on May 10, giving detailed information about the opening of the lilac blossoms in the various sections. T. V. Purcell, guild president, said yesterday that the distribution date likely could be determined from the May 10 reports.

GREAT VIADUCT TO AID CENTRAL AVENUE TRAFFIC

Will Supplant Old Railway Bridge.

BY CLAYTON KIRKPATRICK.

The way will be cleared this week to begin the construction of Cook county's largest road building project this year and one of the largest in the history of the county highway department. Central avenue viaduct, antique link between the west and northwest sides of the city, will be moved away to make room for a new $808,662 structure on the same site.

County engineers supervising the construction said last week that the old structure will be closed to automobile traffic at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning. Trolley buses will continue to use the bridge until Saturday while engineers prepare to shift the central section 30 feet eastward, where it will rest on temporary piers.

Vast Engineering Task.

Wooden ramps to these piers have already been built. The work of fitting the span between the ramps is expected to be finished in two days so that traffic can be resumed over the temporary viaduct Monday morning, May 6. It will remain in use until the summer of 1941, when the new structure, extending three-fourths of a mile from Bloomingdale avenue to a point 200 feet north of Palmer street, will be completed.

The journey to the temporary piers will be the second and last for the old bridge. Originally it carried a single track railroad across the Mississippi river. It was purchased by the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad in 1907, dismantled, shipped to Chicago, and reassembled to span the 52 tracks of the railroad's Galewood yards.

This time Ernest Sporry, general superintendent of the Thomas McQueen Engineering company, expects to move the 706 foot long structure in one piece. Its 2,320,000 pounds will be raised by jacks and placed on rollers. Engines working on tackles will then draw the old bridge to its new location. This will be one of the most difficult and spectacular engineering feats in the entire project.

Crosses Over Grand Avenue.

One of the principal features of the new viaduct will be the extension of the elevation at the north end to separate the grade intersection of Grand and Central avenues. West and northwest side residents have called the hazardous crossing "Death Corner" for years.

Ramps will be built on each side of Central avenue north from Grand avenue to Palmer street to provide motorists with means to pass from one level to the other. Stairways will be erected on either side for the convenience of pedestrians. Litigation to secure right of ways for these ramps is still in process.

On the east side all the required property belongs to the board of education and is now used as an athletic field. Six houses must be moved on the west side to make room for the ramps.

With the exception of $97,000 supplied by the railroad, all the cost of the improvement will be paid from motor fuel tax revenues already on hand in what is known as the county refund fund. This fund consists of payments made by the state to the county highway department for improvements which the county has made on state and state aid highways.

3,886 Feet Long.

The total length of the improvement will be 3,886 feet, more than 1,000 feet longer than the present viaduct. At the south end it will ascend at a grade of 5 per cent from Bloomingdale avenue until it reaches a level 31 feet above the railroad tracks. The first 300 feet will be over earth fill and the next 400 will be supported on reinforced concrete pillars.

The level span in the center will be 817 feet long. At the north end it will descend at a 5 per cent grade over 700 feet of supported structure and 400 feet of earth fill. Paving will extend for some distance beyond the approaches at both ends.

A dividing curb 2 feet wide and 1 foot high will separate the roadway into two lanes, each 24 feet wide. Reflector buttons will be placed on this. Lamps will be mounted on posts set in the superstructure. Seven and one-half foot sidewalks will be provided on each side of the bridge.

Civic Groups Succeed.

R. O. Mortenson is the resident engineer for the county highway department. Civic organizations that have been active in furthering the project include the North Austin Lions club, the Austin North End Woman's club, Palmer post and Melin-Romer post of the American Legion, North Avenue Business Men, Hanson Park Business Men, and Lafollette Park Improvement association.

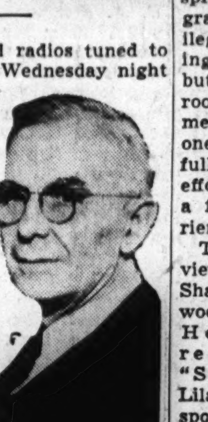
Others are West Towns Chamber of Commerce, Northwest Woman's Improvement club, Central Austin club, West Side Traffic and Transportation committee, Austin Merchants, West Side Property Owners' association, West Town Property Owners' alliance, Midtown Kiwanis club, and West Side Federation of Clubs.

Fashions for Spring

Fashions will be the spring contribution to the social calendar by Trinity High school alumnae. The show and card party will be held at 8 o'clock Friday evening in the school gymnasium, Lathrop and Division streets, River Forest. Two of the models are Lucille Burke, left, and Bette Rock. Mary Jane Brogan is chairman of arrangements.

Cheers to Ring for Steinmetz High on Radio

From Chicagoland radios tuned to W-G-N at 7 o'clock Wednesday night will come a rousing cheer, signal that "Citizens of Tomorrow" is on the air again. This half hour high school program sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will feature the Charles P. Steinmetz High school, located at 3030 North Mobile avenue. Six hundred students, accompanied by their principal, Daniel F. O'Hearn, will be present in the new W-G-N audience studio to give this enthusiasm to the occasion.



Daniel F. O'Hearn.

It will be the fifth program in a series of 11 Wednesday night weekly broadcasts dedicated to the youth of America. The last program for the school year will be held the night of June 12 when the Wright Junior college students will be guests. Next Wednesday night Waller High school will be represented.

Philip Maxwell, a member of THE TRIBUNE staff, who is the "Principal" on the broadcast, says that he never realized before what talent for song and pep there is in the younger generation.

"The W-G-N engineers have to watch that the volume doesn't wreck the delicate broadcasting instruments," he said, "and as far as the choral singing is concerned, some of the groups being presented would rank favorably with adult professional organizations."

Willard L. Groom will direct the Steinmetz mixed chorus in three numbers, the school loyalty song, a patriotic number entitled "Chicago" by Granville English and the "Happy Isle," by Bantock. Those cheers which the late Dr. Steinmetz might have compared to some of his man-made thunder, will be led by James Taylor, Grace Tveter, Loretta Wagner, and Steve Walker.

Willard L. Groom.

Miss Ruby Yetter, radio chairman at Steinmetz, has aided in preparing the program.

Altho "Jerry," the 16 year old high school senior, plays the part of one not too scholastic on the program, her principal, Thompson R. Foulkes, at Maine Township High school near her home in Park Ridge, says that she not only is a member of the National Honor society but is one of the most popular students. She is a winning orator, president of the school girls' club and recently was chosen the girl with the happiest smile in the entire school.

Popular in School.

To Charlie Jones, the third character in the show, who depicts the part of every school's engineer custodian, will fall the task of relating some of the brief history of Steinmetz which is only six years old, and he'll probably delve into the early history of the community to tell all about the O. A. Thorpe school, the oldest elementary public school in that area.

One of the most popular parts of the show is the weekly Tribune news quiz which is conducted by Mr. Maxwell. Just before going on the air Announcer Pierre Andre picks out six students from the audience and they compete for cash awards totaling from $10 to $15.

Call Honor Roll.

Another highlight of the program is the naming of five Chicagoland boys and girls to the "Honor Roll" of each broadcast. These students have been nominated by their principals for outstanding achievement.

LILACS ARE COMPANY LONG AFTER DONORS LEAVE, SHUT-IN FINDS

Lilacs may be just a part of the spring scene to those who take for granted the privileges of roaming out of doors, but lilacs in the room of a shut-in mean that some one has thoughtfully made an effort to remove a four wall barrier.

John T. Shaw.

That is the view of John T. Shaw, 3720 Hollywood avenue, Hollywood, regarding the "Share Your Lilacs" campaign sponsored by the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild and THE TRIBUNE. Mr. Shaw has not been able to leave his room for eight years eight months and 18 days. "Imagine," said Mr. Shaw, "what it means over so long a period to have no further contact with the outside world than that to be gained from one's window. Flowers are a symbol not only of spring but that some one has visited you. They remain as company after the company has gone. They are a reminder of pleasant things that have been said, and every shut-in knows the desire to have such experiences linger."

ANNUAL REPORT SHOWS SCOPE OF CIVIC PROJECTS

Funds Assist Health and Forestry.

Hundreds of senior and junior clubwomen from the 55 clubs in the 6th district of the Illinois federation gathered up their poetry, press scrapbooks, garden ideas and project reports and took them to the final 1939-'40 district meeting held in Austin. Some went home with blue ribbons, red ribbons, honorable mention and bouquets.

The clubs, which have organized women in every west area community and suburb, have done work in American citizenship and better homemaking. They have contributed hundreds of dollars to Illinois conservation, Indian welfare and separately have urged "community beautiful" by comparing gardens.

Aid Art and Indians.

The report given by the district treasurer, Mrs. P. J. McNamara, shows that 6th district clubs gave $620 toward federated club projects. The penny art fund which is used to buy prizes for art contests in the schools received $80 from west area women. They gave $40 toward the conservation work which is a reforestation project in southern Illinois.

The Indian welfare department, which trains Indian girls for nursing, was given $100 from the district and the Park Ridge School for Girls received $250. The Cancer control fund was swelled by $150.

No club took home all the honors from the district meet. The list of prizes was widely distributed thru the west area. Five of the officers elected at the meeting served last year and four are newcomers but are experienced in local club work. The annual business meeting ended the district's 1939-'40 club year and prepared the women for participation in the state meet on May 13, 14, and 15.

Some Officers Reelected.

Mrs. J. F. Johnson will be 6th district president during 1940 and '41. Others who served with her during the current year who will work with Mrs. Johnson again are Mrs. Earl A. Phillips, first vice president; Mrs. B. C. Wolcott, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. McNamara. Mrs. S. J. Novark will continue as a director.

Newly elected officers are the two directors, Mrs. Mary L. Drobish and Mrs. Frank G. Hinman. Mrs. Frank W. Ault was named second vice president and Mrs. Carl Friedley, recording secretary.

In addition to awards to members and clubs, the district named the winners in the school children's art contest conducted by Mrs. E. C. Grunwald, district art chairman. First place went to Anna Beck of Roosevelt school, Cicero. Others are: Second, Elinore Loose, Stevenson school, Melrose Park; third, Robert Cechner, Cicero school, Cicero; fourth, Marion Pahl, Piper school, Berwyn; and fifth, Jean Kolgina, Jefferson school, Berwyn. There were 26 pictures submitted from 37 schools.

Prizes for Writing.

Mrs. Charles A. Melsheimer conducted the creative writing and poetry contest. She is chairman of the 6th district literature and library service committee. Winners in the poetry division are: First, Mrs. Janet Norris Bangs, Riverside Woman's club; second, Mrs. Elsie M. Fowler, 19th Century club of Oak Park, and third, Mrs. Donnafred D. Hoff, Hollywood Woman's club. Honorable mention went to Mrs. Frank Drummond, Austin North End Woman's club.

Mrs. B. C. Yearly won first place in the short story contest. She is a member of the 19th Century club of Oak Park. Other winners are: Second, Mrs. S. B. Gross, Riverside Woman's club; third, Mrs. Robert S. Kozelka, Millard Avenue club, and, honorable mention, Mrs. J. B. McEwan, Neighborhood Civic club.

Mrs. Beatrice E. Harms, the 6th district garden chairman, conducted the garden scrap book contest. Blue ribbon was won by the Berwyn Junior Civic league in the junior division. In the senior division first and fourth prizes went to the Brookfield Woman's club, second to the Longfellow club, and third, the Southwest Woman's club of Maywood.

Press Contest Awards.

The press and publicity contest was conducted by Mrs. R. H. Tamplin, 6th district press chairman. Blue ribbons went to Mrs. N. K. Wright, Forest Park club; Mrs. Frank J. Swec, Western Springs Woman's club; Mrs. A. E. Abnet, Cicero Woman's club, and Mrs. Stanley Anderson, La Grange club. The junior award went to the Berwyn Junior Civic league where Mrs. Mildred Schecter handles the publicity.

Red ribbons in the senior division went to Mrs. R. F. Peterson, Clyde Woman's club; Mrs. H. E. Shorey, Millard Avenue club; Mrs. E. H. Davis, Austin North End club, and Mrs. Nelda Stephens, Austin club.

A red ribbon in the junior division went to the Austin North End Junior club, Miss Irene Nelson, chairman.

WHERE SHOULD ADULTS PLAY?

I am writing in behalf of a group of young married men living in the 23d and 24th wards. For a few years we have been getting some recreation and exercise by playing ball in the Mason school yard, 18th street and Keeler avenue, on Sunday mornings. We have never yet broken any windows, as we play in a corner of the yard far removed from the school building.

Of late, after the primary elections, we have been asked by the police of the Lawndale station to stop playing in this yard. What is the reason? Who is responsible for this order? We hope to find out, so that we can vote next time for officials who will not bebrudge us a little recreation. Our only recourse is to play in the street, where the hazards are numerous.

If for some reason the school yard is not to be used, how about getting WPA employés to level off the ground on the empty lots across the street from the Mason school? That would make an excellent ball field. We hope this letter will be printed so that it can reach the attention of thoze responsible.

JACKSON.

PEACE IS WITH US.

All the world is not at war. The many communities in the west suburban area are busy with peacetime activities. Another spring is here and thoughtful neighbors are planning on sharing their lilacs with shut-ins in the hospitals. All this was well reflected in last Sunday's Metropolitan section, and it was a relief.

Our schools and churches and clubs continue their activities uninterrupted by fear. The doings of people in constructive channels make refreshing reading. It is my opinion that so many columns devoted to current, common events are more than informative. Distinctly, they sound a harmonious respite in the worldwide confusion.

PROVISO SCHOOL BANDS JOIN FOR CONCERT, TODAY

Two Directors Numbered Among Alumni.

Proviso Township High school's 100 piece band, under the direction of J. Irving Tallmadge, will present a concert this afternoon in the fieldhouse with all the township grade school bands, numbering 250 musicians, taking part.

Two Proviso graduates, Sam Mages, director of the Forest Park grade school band, and Henry Granzow, director of Maywood's grade school band, as well as Proviso's director, will conduct the combined groups. John Davies, '39, also will lead the Proviso band in one number.

Featured numbers at the final concert of the season will include Donald Harbin, playing a baritone solo, "From the Shores of the Mighty Pacific," by Clarke; the brass ensemble, playing Busch's "Quintet," and eight clarinets in unison playing Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Flight of the Bumblebee."

Well known numbers which the high school band will play are Dvorak's "Largo" from the New World Symphony; "Tarantella," by Holmes; Von Suppe's "Poet and Peasant," and "Rienzi," by Wagner. The combined groups will play a series of grade school contest pieces, "The Traveller," by Buchtel; Bizet's "Agnus Dei" from L'Arlesienne Suite, and "Comet March," by Olivadote. They will also play "Fortuna," by Zamecuik, and Holmes' "Dreadnaught."

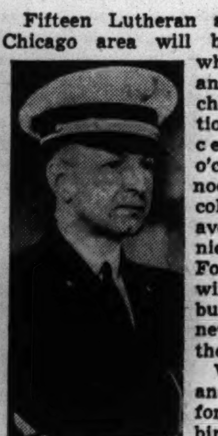
Outing Club Plans Hike in Indiana Dunes Today

The Indiana Dunes state park will be the objective of the Park District Outing club today on one of its regular Sunday hikes. The group will board a South Shore train at Randolph street at 9 o'clock this morning and will return to the city at 8 o'clock this evening. The length of the hike is 10 miles. Miss Elizabeth Sauer will lead the hikers and Frank Parker and Mildred Zelenka will accompany them as guides.

LUTHERAN MUSIC GROUPS JOIN IN CONCERT TODAY

Fifteen Schools Are to Be Represented.

Fifteen Lutheran schools in the Chicago area will be represented when the Lutheran Band and Orchestra association gives a concert at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon in Concordia college, Augusta avenue and Bonnie Brae, River Forest. Proceeds will be used to buy music and new uniforms for the bands.



William F. Bertram.

Wearing blue and gold uniforms, the combined bands and orchestra will be directed by William F. Bertram, co-founder with Andrew Wendelin of the Lutheran school band and orchestra movement in the Chicago area.

Mr. Bertram is principal of Immanuel Lutheran school at Elmhurst and is organist and choirmaster of Immanuel church. He was also director of the first band and orchestra school at the International Walther League camp at Arcadia, Mich., in 1938 and 1939.

Have Four Organizations.

The players make up four music organizations, the Lutheran School orchestra of Greater Chicago, directed by Mr. Wendelin; the West Suburban Lutheran band, directed by Mr. Bertram; St. Paul's Lutheran Melody band, Erich Haase, director, and the Chicago-South Suburban Lutheran band, William J. Thurn, director.

The roster of schools with delegates in these four organizations are St. John's, Forest Park; Immanuel, Elmhurst; St. John's, La Grange; Zion, Hinsdale; Zion, Lyons; Immanuel, South Chicago; St. Paul's, Riverdale; St. Peter's, Joliet; Christ school, Oak Park, and Grace school, River Forest. The Chicago schools are Christ, Peace, St Andrews, Bethany, and Golgotha.

Members of Band.

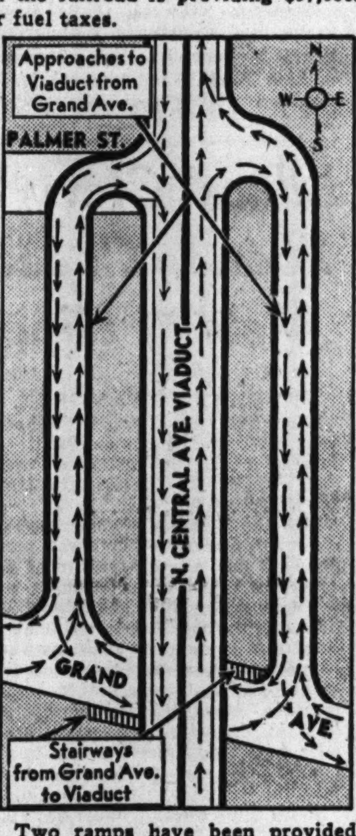
The Cook county highway department's biggest road building project this year is the Central avenue viaduct spanning the 52 tracks of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, and Pacific railroad company's Galewood yards. The total improvement stretches from Bloomingdale avenue to a point about 200 feet north of Palmer street, a distance of 3,886 feet. Maximum elevation over the railroad tracks will be slightly more than 31 feet. The project includes a grade separation at Grand avenue. The total cost will be $808,662, of which the railroad is providing $97,000. The remainder is revenue from motor fuel taxes.



Two ramps have been provided to carry traffic between Grand avenue at ground level and Central avenue, which will be elevated. All northbound traffic off Grand avenue will be routed over the east ramp. All southbound will take the west ramp. Cars coming down off Central avenue must make right turns onto the ramp. Both right and left turns will be permitted from the ramp at the lower level.

AUSTIN FRIENDS UNITE TO HELP BRANCH LIBRARY

Will Solicit Funds and Gifts of Books.

One day a man with wonder in his eyes came up to Miss Maude Blake, head of the Austin branch library. "Say," he said, "I've been living in Austin for 15 years and I didn't know you had a library here."

Mrs. F. Percy Boynton.

Miss Blake doesn't want this ever to happen again. A new club, the Friends of the Library, has been organized to make it impossible for any one not to hear of the library. The club also will solict memorial funds, rare and precious material for safekeeping and gift books and periodicals.

Is Made Chairman.

Austin's new club is one of about 150 such organizations thruout the country. "It is to the library," explains Miss Blake, "what the P.-T. A. is to the school or what the ladies' aid is to the church. It could be called a citizens advisory group.

Just two meetings of the Friends of the Library have been held. At the first one Mrs. F. Percy Boynton, secretary of the Illinois Federation of Woman's clubs and chairman of the book circle for the Austin Woman's club, was made chairman.

There are definite needs that Mrs. Boynton will try to satisfy. The library could use many extra copies of current books and also wants a collection of historical material.

Ground Only Scratched.

The Austin branch of the Chicago Public library, located at 5615 West Race avenue, circulated 257,000 books last year. More than 10,000 reference questions were answered. It circulated 9,700 pictures and 4,000 slides.

Yet Mrs. Blake says the branch "has only scratched the ground." She says only a small part of the population of Austin uses the library.

In addition to the circulation of books, the branch conducts the Austin forum on controversial subjects twice a month from September thru May. There is a Saturday morning story hour for children.

VOCATION NIGHT SCHEDULED AT SUBURB SCHOOL

Seniors to Get Tips on Future Careers.

An innovation at Downers Grove Community High school, planned for Tuesday by Clarence Johnson and Mrs. Charlotte Andersen, deans, is vocational night.

Thru a survey taken in senior English classes, the deans discovered that about 50 different occupations interest this year's graduating classes. On vocational night, men who are successful in their occupations will be invited to meet with the students. Juniors as well as seniors, and parents who are interested have been urged to take advantage of the opportunity to learn about occupations.

Talks on New Careers.

A general assembly at 7:45 p. m. in the auditorium will open the program. Gunnar Nordberg, associate editor of Science Research association, will speak on "New Careers for Youth." After the meeting, students and parents will talk with representatives.

The most popular jobs, as indicated by the survey, are those of secretary, accountant, dress designer, beauty culturist, engineer in various fields, mechanics of all types, printer, teacher and nurse. The most unusual vocations mentioned are those of deep sea diving, clarinet manufacturer, and leader of a jazz orchestra.

Hold College Night.

Leading up to vocational night, the school recently held its annual college night for juniors and seniors and their parents who wish to gain first hand infomation to aid in choosing a college. Seniors indicated an interest in 45 different institutions of higher learning, and 25 representatives of schools were present to offer guidance.

College night helps students to choose a college where they will be satisfied and may obtain the best training for the amount of money they have to invest.

SLOVAK SOCIETY TO CELEBRATE JUBILEE TODAY

CLOSE CONTESTS ARE REVEALED IN CONGRESS RACES

Complete Official Count in Cook County.

Close contests for both congressman and delegate to the national party conventions were revealed when the results of the official canvass for Cook and Lake county congressional districts were announced.

Districts 1 to 10 are in these two counties. The closest congressional race in these ten districts in the April 9 primary, according to the canvass, was run in the 3d district by two Republicans, Waldemar J. Roehler and Goodwin L. Dosland.

Roehler, a young real estate banker making his maiden try for political office, won the Republican nomination by a margin of only 299 votes over Dosland, who was his party's nominee two years ago. Roehler was credited with 19,807 votes and Dosland with 19,508. Friends of Dosland see the possibility of a recount.

Delegate Race Ends in Tie.

Two candidates for delegate to the Republican national convention from the 6th district ran a dead heat for second place, the canvass revealed. They are Philip E. Gilbert of Chicago and Joseph A. Coyner of Oak Park, each of whom received 19,668 votes. Julius H. Miner of Chicago was first with 31,219 votes and thus was assured one of the two delegate posts.

The tie between Gilbert and Coyner for the second post probably will be decided by the toss of a coin under the supervision of the state canvassing board, as provided by law, according to Daniel A. Carey, head of the Cook county clerk's election department.

Convention Might Decide.

Some observers said such a procedure would not necessarily be conclusive. The loser of the toss, they said, could appeal to the credentials committee of the national convention.

The table below shows the vote for the various candidates for congress and for delegate as determined by the canvass, made by the Chicago election board and the county clerks of Cook and Lake counties. The asterisks denote sitting congressmen, and the names of the primary winners in each district appear in boldface type.

Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Nick De Grazio, 740 North Ridgeway avenue, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on April 16 with a dinner in the Belmont hotel. There were 200 relatives and friends in the party. The De Grazios were married in Italy and have resided in Chicago for 45 years. They have 8 sons and daughters and 28 grandchildren.

PARADE TO OPEN DOWNERS GROVE YOUTH FESTIVAL

Craft Exhibit Arranged for Saturday.

Starting Saturday with an achievement exhibition, Downers Grove will observe its eighth annual Youth week celebration for the purpose of focusing attention on the youth in the community, encourraging creative effort, and teaching practical lessons in citizenship.

School children of the suburb will parade at 1:30 o'clock Saturday. Five divisions of the pageant will be pets, bicycles, dolls, vehicles, and costumes. Sunday a gas model airplane flying contest will be held south of the village, and on Mondays there will be an athletic program in the high school gymnasium.

Following an annual custom, local schools will elect student officials to important national, state, county, and village offices, and those selected will take over their offices at some period during Youth week.

Sponsored by Legion.

The project is being sponsored for its eighth successive year by Alexander Bradley Burns post of the American Legion, with G. D. Lea as general chairman. Those in charge of the various activities are V. W. Yost, parade; Clark D. Gwinn, achievement; William Hooper, Americansim; Leon Wilson, model planes; Steve Ducay, softball; Mrs. E. W. Harkness, Monday night athletic show.

The achievement exhibit will be held immediately after the parade on Saturday and will be open to the general public. Hundreds of articles made by boys and girls of the village during the year will be on display at the Masonic temple. Exhibits must be received by Friday night in order to be identified with the owner's name. Bakery and other perishable goods may be accepted Saturday morning.

Route of Parade.

The parade led by school bands will start at the high school grounds at Main and Grant streets, move south on Main to Curtiss street, turn east on Curtiss, and disband at the Masonic temple, Curtiss and Washington streets.

SUBURB COUPLE CELEBRATE THEIR GOLDEN JUBILEE

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John Staiger, 811 South Taylor avenue, Oak Park, was celebrated recently with an open house at their home. The Staigers have been residents of Oak Park for the last ten years. Mr. Staiger has been a baker since his boyhood. Sons and daughters are Mrs. Minnie Abel, Mrs. Emma Reed, Mrs. Elsie Huebner, and William, John, Arthur, and Herman Staiger.

Dads and Sons to Compete in Softball Game at 'Y'

Fathers and sons will compete in a softball game Thursday evening as the feature of the monthly get together of the Dads' and Lads' club, which meets in the Austin Y. M. C. A., 501 North Central avenue. After the game the boys of both generations will look at movies of fishing and camping. The committee in charge consists of C. E. Feldpausch and Edward Feldpausch, W. T. Foreman and son, Billy, and F. A. Dewsberry and son, Arthur.

State senators and state representatives are elected according to senatorial districts. Each district selects one senator every four years and three representatives every two years.

ADDED OUTDOOR BEAUTY IS AIM OF ST. CHARLES

In a campaign to obtain orders for 1,000 flowering crab apple trees to be planted Friday and Saturday in St. Charles, committees from civic organizations will canvass the community Wednesday. Last year when the project was started, more than 1,000 trees were planted along the river banks, in the parks, and at homes in the suburb. Louis Rockwell, Kane county treasurer is general chairman of the community planting committee, and Edwin Early Swick is assistant chairman.

MELODISTS TO GIVE 6TH ANNUAL CONCERT NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT

Miss Charlotte Sifert of Maywood and Francis E. Smith of Elmhurst will be guest artists at the sixth annual concert to be presented by the Melodists Friday night in the Little Theater of the Lowell school, Lake street and Forest avenue, Oak Park. Miss Sifert plays the marimba. Mr. Smith is a baritone. The group is directed by Mrs. DeWitt Cleland. Ruth Rankin Kilbey is accompanist. During its seven years the quality of music offered by the Maywood and Oak Park singers has earned them recognition among music critics in the west suburbs.

Miss Charlotte Sifert.

In addition to their own concerts the Melodists have appeared before clubs and fraternal organizations.

"I'D LIKE TO RECOMMEND HIM, BUT . . ."

"I don't think he has the training needed for that job."

Character, personality, ambition—these all count in getting and holding a job. But there is one quality which commands special consideration—training.

Does lack of training bar you from advancement? If so, consider the advantages of taking one of the regular or short courses of specialized training offered to ambitious men and women in the Trade Schools, Instruction, Musical and Dramatic, Dressmaking and Millinery Schools and Dancing Schools columns of the Tribune want ad section.

"How Does He Expect Us to Do It?"

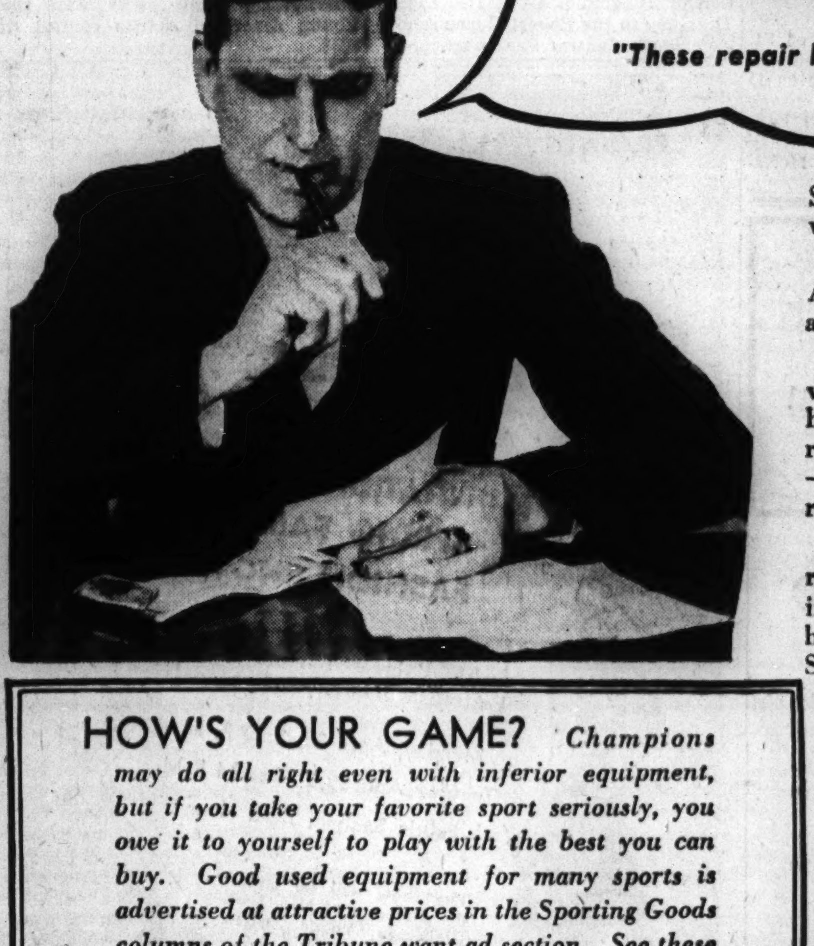
"We haven't a machine in the place that will handle it."

Are you turning profits away because you lack the equipment to handle the business?

Keep close watch on the Machinery and Equipment column of the Tribune want ad section. In this column you will find many opportunities to save money on motors, lathes, presses, metal and woodworking equipment and special and standard machinery for numerous jobs. By taking advantage of these offers, you can keep your business in step with your customers' requirements.

"In the Shop Again?"

"These repair bills are getting terrific."



Sooner or later every motorist has to replace his car with a better one.

When this decision is up to you, consult the Used Automobiles for Sale columns in the Tribune want ad section.

There you will find scores of late model used car values from which to choose. Many of these cars can hardly be told from new. Extra equipment—such as radios, heaters, spotlights, trunks and other accessories—are often featured. Prices represent considerable reductions below original cost.

Your present car may be the only down payment required to put you behind the wheel of a good-looking, dependable, late model used car which you will be proud to drive. Review the Used Automobiles for Sale columns in the want ad section of today's Tribune.

HOW'S YOUR GAME? *Champions may do all right even with inferior equipment, but if you take your favorite sport seriously, you owe it to yourself to play with the best you can buy. SERVING CHICAGO FOR 92 YEARS

NEEDS OF POOR FIND RELIEF IN CICERO CENTER

Once Was the Mansion of Rich Quarryman.

There is a home in Cicero painted sky blue inside where a man may get help for anything from a toothache to a tiff with his wife. But he can't get it if he has money. It's for those who haven't any.

Mrs. George W. Cerny.

Once a man named William Dolese lived in the house. They called him the watch dog of Cicero's morals. He spent thousands of dollars hiring attorneys to see that public officials were honest. One lawyer was Clarence Darrow. Trying to keep goodness and justice in Cicero and strong drink out was his hobby from 1910 to 1927 when he died.

The name of "Bill" Dolese, who made a fortune quarrying stone, and his 17 year drive for community betterment, will be remembered thru the 14 room house that he built, now the Cicero Welfare Center.

Daughter Sells Home.

Last December his daughter, Miss Marie Dolese, sold the old corner homestead, 5341 West Cermak road, to the center for $20,000. The property has been estimated worth $50,000.

The first open house and tea in the new home will be held by the year old ladies auxiliary of the center from 2 until 6 o'clock this afternoon. The 13 welfare activities and the seven clubs and classes will be explained by the executive secretary, Mrs. Bret L. Vilna.

Spacious halls and formal high ceilinged rooms will be jammed with men, women and children today.

Old Clothes Made Good.

They will touch the carefully folded clothing, once worn out, but made ready to wear by the Mothers Help club. They will see the woodwork and cabinet making, products of the Fathers club, and the paintings and watercolors created in the Welfare Art school.

Cicero Girl Scouts and American Legion Auxiliary juniors, serving as ushers, will direct the crowd into the sky blue meeting room where the Cicero School orchestra will play chamber music directed by Miss Ina Wolf.

In the matching lounge, with plum, peach and blue upholstered chairs, the ladies auxiliary will pour tea. The sofa, rugs and trimmings in the lounge were the gifts of Joseph Kral, Jerry Justin, and Mrs. Rose Cuchna, neighborhood furniture dealers.

The chairman of the social committee, Mrs. Jerry Silha, will pass cookies. Hostesses will be Mrs. George W. Cerny, auxiliary president; Mrs. D. Belle Kreider, past president; Mrs. George Schwebel, and Mrs. Frank J. Christenson. The widow of William Dolese will be a guest.

Fits Needs of Center.

The Dolese home fits all the needs of a welfare center. It is a mixture of modern convenience and sentiment. The upstairs portion was the old Morton Park Grade school that once stood at 51st street and 24th avenue, the first school in Cicero.

"Bill" Dolese wanted those historical walls to be a part of his home. At great expense he had the school moved, put up on stilts and ordered a first floor and basement under it.

Almost every organization in Cicero has helped in the 20 point project that is the Center. George A. Schwebel, superintendent of schools, was chairman of the building committee along with Frank Stach. Others were Eugene Clark, Mrs. Catherine Eiselt, Mrs. Bessie Razim, Mrs. Anne Silha, Mrs. Alice Grew, Mrs. Irene V. Cooney, Joseph Lohr, and Adolph Taussig.

Clubs Meet There.

The service clubs now meeting in the Center are the Boy and Girl Scout councils, the Ladies' auxiliary of the Center, the Red Cross Cicero unit, Cicero Girl Scout Leaders association, Cicero Safety council, the Woman's club chorus, the American Legion auxiliary juniors, and the Cicero Woman's club juniors.

Officers of the ladies auxiliary, in addition to Mrs. Cerny, are Mrs. Schwebel and Mrs. Silha, vice presidents; Mrs. Charles Emrick, secretary, and Mrs. Walter D. North, treasurer.

9,203 ENROLLED IN CITY'S PUBLIC SCHOOL R. O. T. C.

A new high mark in Chicago public high school R. O. T. C. enrollment has been set by this semester's official figures, released by Col. W. F. Morrison, director of the public schools unit. They show a total of 7,609 uniformed cadets in the 27 high schools which offer R. O. T. C. instruction, as compared with 7,238 for the semester which ended in February.

Besides these, there are 1,594 freshmen enrolled, for whom uniforms are not supplied, thereby giving the public schools a total enrollment of 9,203 cadets. There were 1,514 cadets without uniforms last year.

Lane Technical High school continues to lead the city schools with a total enrollment of 1,059, including 898 cadets with uniforms. Crane jumped from fifth to second place, with an increase in enrollment from 408 to 492. The Lake View unit is third in size, with 476 cadets.

The total enrollment, both with and without uniforms, in the various school regiments, is as follows: Amundsen, 293; Austin, 451; Bowen, 299; Calumet, 317; Crane, 492; DuSable, 318; Englewood, 284; Fenger, 326; Foreman, 215; Harrison, 260; Harper, 208; Hirsch, 273; Hyde Park, 386; Kelly, 154; Lake View, 476; Lane, 1,059; Lindblom, 380; Marshall, 183; Morgan Park, 301; Roosevelt, 240; Schurz, 422; Senn, 390; Steinmetz, 305; Sullivan, 301; Tilden, 434; Von Steuben, 204, and Waller, 230.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, April 29.

Garden activities open with a rush after the cold weather of spring, and it is necessary that all operations be done at the proper time. Transplant or rearrange perennials early to permit each divided plant to become established as soon as possible. Attention to the shrubbery includes early spading thru the plants. Shrubs need food as much as other plants. Planting may continue as long as the material can be obtained, but early planting is best. Be sure that each shrub has plenty of space.

Tuesday, April 30.

When pruning roses remove all the prunings to prevent the spread of diseased parts. It is good practice to feed roses when the buds are breaking. Spread a complete commercial food around each plant and hoe it under. Make a second application just before the flowering period, but do not feed after Aug. 1. Roses in this section are best planted in spring.

Wednesday, May 1.

If you have any of the common snowball plants on the grounds be sure to spray with an oil spray just as the buds start and afterward at intervals of a few days with nicotine sulphate and soap. This should control the aphids that cause the leaves to curl.

Thursday, May 2.

Divide hardy chrysanthemums in spring. Transplant the shoots in rich soil about 9 inches apart. Hardy asters and boltonia also should be transplanted now. If a shipment of plants is received and they are dried out, plunge in water or bury in wet soil for a few hours until they have revived, then plant. Most annual flower seed can be sown within a short time. As soon as the tulips have ceased flowering, sow annuals between them, such as phlox drummondi, poppies, California poppies, nasturtiums, and sweet alyssum.

Friday, May 3.

Save a lot of time by spraying liquid weed killer in the walks and drives. Try a few strawberries. If you have a coldframe you may enjoy a lot of sweet scented flowers by planting violets. The plants winter well and bloom early in spring. Plants will need watering when the weather gets warm. This is especially true of newly planted material, such as shrubs, evergreens, and perennials.

Saturday, May 4.

Wait until the soil is warm and there is no danger from late frost before planting tender plants outdoors. Gladioli can be planted at intervals of two weeks until about June 15 for a succession of bloom. Wait until May 20 before setting out tomato plants. Pole beans give a better yield and require little more space than the bush varieties.

UNUSUAL HOUSE HAS LIVING ROOM ON SECOND FLOOR

Dining-Recreation Space Found on First.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

What makes a house a home, with roots deep down in treasured soil, instead of just—another house? Money often has precious little to do with it, or size, or style. It is rather a matter of fine taste, excellent planning, and a meticulous attention to detail.

When Mr. and Mrs. Reginald G. Schuler, 337 Oakland avenue, Highland Park, decided to build they discussed many matters with their architect, William N. Alderman, 19 East Pearson street, Chicago. When the house was completed it had a background especially designed for the owners; a house with an unmistakable atmosphere, personal and inviting.

The interesting and unusual layout is partly a result of the decision to keep within a stipulated budget. Here is how it was done.

Effect a Compromise.

Mr. Schuler had very much wanted a large recreation room in the basement, but Mr. Alderman pointed out that such a feature would increase estimated costs. So a compromise was reached, and a most unusual combination dining room and recreation room was planned for the first floor. Quite a man's room, and treated in the lively Mexican spirit. Then, on the second floor was a living room with studio ceiling—carried out as Mrs. Schuler wished.

Informality on the first floor. More formal touches on the second. And possibilities for various entertainment, formal and informal, as the occasion dictates.

As you approach the house, which stands on a beautifully wooded site, a flagstone walk leads to a quaintly walled-in garden and a doorway of stone, and at the right of the entrance doorway is the door which leads to the garage.

Inside you see the intriguing combination recreation-dining room, with beamed wood ceiling and a two story stairwell to the second floor. This large room faces two ways, and opens onto a wide screened porch—thru folding doors and an opening 9 feet wide. When these doors are "folded" open the effect is virtually to bring the porch into the room.

Has Wide Fireplace.

At the far end is a 16 foot wide fireplace which extends across one entire wall, with a red brick hearth 6 feet deep.

The kitchen likewise has a beamed wood ceiling, with planks painted white, and dark brown beams. The cases are white, the floor a handsome red linoleum tile. There are lively touches here in this room, red and yellow splashes of color in the Mexican vein.

From the colonial-keeping room a two story stairwell rises to the second floor.

Here there is a large, studio ceiling room, designed as Mrs. Schuler desired, in delicate pastel shades. The floor is a light oak, and there are stunning white rugs and soft toned gray-blue walls. The entire room is dominated by a fine colonial mantelpiece.

Several very interesting and unusual features are found on this second floor.

There is a diminutive, intriguing study opening from the living room. A window on one side overlooks the garden area of the house. Opposite this wall is a honeycombed opening overlooking the stairwell.

In the hall there is a built-in space for a disappearing type of bed. A retreat which offers extra accommodation for the extra guest.

On this second floor there also are two bedrooms and bath. The bedrooms have closets with sliding doors.

The living room opens onto a large screened porch. The overall of living room and porch is some 26'x18'. In the warm weather months this living room and porch can be counted as one room a great deal of the time.

Editor's Daughter

JOAN BANKS.

Two popular daytime serials—"Mary Foster, Editor's Daughter" and "Linda's First Love"—will be aired over W-G-N starting tomorrow. They are not new stories to Chicago listeners, but this is their first appearance on W-G-N. "Linda" with Arline Blackburn as star, will be aired at 10:45 a. m., and "Editor's Daughter" with Joan Banks playing the lead at 11 a. m.

Linda Crockett and Mary Foster have much in common. Their lives are aimed toward a sensible, normal married life when they find and win the ideal man, but beyond this the stories differ. Linda's back-breaking duty of caring for an invalid foster-mother and father as well as a stepson has made her life a hectic one.

'BITTERSWEET' IS FIRST SHOW IN THEATER OF AIR

Marion Claire, Melton to Star in W-G-N Series.

The Chicago Theater of the Air—W-G-N-Mutual's new program featuring great operettas—will present as its first offering from 9 to 10 p. m. next Thursday Noel Coward's "Bittersweet." The series will be presented by THE TRIBUNE.

Marion Claire, brilliant soprano of operetta, radio, movie, and concert fame; James Melton, distinguished tenor, and an augmented chorus and concert orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber, and a dramatic cast will give the operetta before an invited audience of 600 persons including 100 officers from the United States naval training station at Great Lakes. The operetta will be aired over the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

William A. Bacher, noted radio producer and director, brought to Chicago from Hollywood, will produce the operettas which have been adapted for broadcasting in 60 minutes by Noel Gerson.

Miss Claire as Sari Linden.

Miss Claire will portray the part of Sari Linden. It is a familiar part for her. She is one of the three outstanding vocalists who have appeared in this part. She appeared in the "Bittersweet" company here with Allan Jones opposite her several seasons ago.

James Melton will sing the rôle of Carl Linden, the young music teacher who elopes with Sari. Melton has had starring rôles in movies, concert successes, and operatic hits in addition to his perfomances on many coast to coast radio programs.

Orchestra to Be Enlarged.

Miss Claire and Melton will be supported by an augmented chorus, a cast of outstanding Chicago radio actors, and an enlarged concert orchestra directed by Mr. Weber, musical director of W-G-N and of the Chicago Opera company.

Among the Coward songs which will be heard are "I'll See You Again," "Tokay," "Zigeuner," "Call of Life," and "Small Café." An original musical theme has been composed by Mr. Weber for use in the series of operettas.

Following "Bittersweet" will be "The Student Prince," by Sigmund Romberg, to be broadcast May 16.

Will Give Concert.

The National Youth Administration orchestra, composed of 30 young musicians, will play in the Tuesday Evening Musical series this week in the Jewish People's institute. Irwin Fischer is conductor.

LOSE WEIGHT
this amazingly, easy safe way

If you want to take off ugly fat easily and pleasantly all you have to do is— First ... eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating. Second .. mix ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ of a glass of water and drink before meals and at bedtime. Thus you reduce caloric intake considerably. But you do not suffer a hungry moment. There are no strict diet lists, strenuous exercises or taking drugs. Yet!—in a test conducted by Dr. Damrau of New York, with this method among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, an average weight loss of seven pounds was registered per month. This remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men as it is for overweight women. There is only one thing to watch. Eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating; and be sure to use Welch's Grape Juice—always made from the pick of the grape crop; always full strength; always pure.

Irene Rich, lovely star of the screen and radio, now past 40, weighs the same as she did at 16. She recommends the easy Welch way to reduce.

Try This Amazing Welch's Tomato Juice
If you think all Tomato Juice is alike, try Welch's new, vitamin-rich Tomato Juice. It is so rich and thick you can add ⅓ water or ice and still have a most delicious Tomato Juice.

SYMPHONIC HOUR TO MAKE BOW ON W-G-N TONIGHT

Tribute to Association of Commerce Planned.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The new W-G-N Symphonic hour, to be presented by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE as a public service, will make its bow from 9 to 10 o'clock tonight over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. The Symphonic hour will be presented by the W-G-N Concert orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, with Marion Claire, renowned soprano, and Michael Wilkomirski, noted violinist, as the soloists. There will also be an augmented chorus.

An added feature of the Symphonic hour will be a gesture of honor each Sunday evening to one of the great organizations of the community which contribute to the security, prosperity, and welfare of the public. Tonight the tribute will be paid to a specially invited audience of the Chicago Association of Commerce, headed by President Oscar G. Mayer. Frank J. Loesch, Chicago's civic leader and ormer president of the Chicago Crime commission will speak briefly.

Other Tributes Planned.

In subsequent programs, special tribute will be paid to the police and fire departments, the army, prominent educators and the men who deliver the mail.

The second of the invitation affairs will be given in honor of the army. Officers of the United States army will be studio guests next Sunday when Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, commander of the 6th corps area, is to deliver the talk of the evening.

Miss Claire, beautiful star of opera, screen, and radio, was born in Lake Bluff, Ill. She made her first operatic appearance in "La Bohème" in Rovigo, near Venice. Since then she has starred in many operas and operettas including "The Great Waltz" and "Bittersweet." She is to star in "Bittersweet" in the new W-G-N Theater of the Air next Thursday at 9 p. m. She made her film debut in "Make a Wish." In private life, Miss Claire is the wife of Mr. Weber, who is musical director of W-G-N and artistic director of the Chicago Opera ocmpany.

Concertmeister at W-G-N.

Michael Wilkomirski, concertmaster of the W-G-N Concert orchestra, is rated by critics as one of the nation's finer violinists.

Wilkomirski was born in Moscow of Polish parents. His father, a teacher in the conservatory there, trained him as a very small boy. He made his debut when only six.

Blair Walliser to Talk on '99 Years in Radio'

Blair Walliser, W-G-N production director, will make an appearance before students of the Mummers Theater Workshop today in the group's studios in the Auditorium Theater building. He will discuss "My 99 Years in Radio." Walliser produces the Fifth Row Center and Bob Becker shows on W-G-N and Backstage Wife and the Romance of Helen Trent.

Press and Radio in 1940 Election, Broadcast Topic

"Press and Radio in the 1940 Election" will be discussed on the Northwestern University Reviewing Stand over W-G-N and MBS from 10:15 to 10:30 a. m. today. Elmo Scott Watson, professor in the Medill School of Journalism and editor of the Publishers' Auxiliary, and Parker Wheatley, radio director at Northwestern university, will exchange ideas on the broadcast.

On W-G-N

Tallulah Bankhead, star of the stage play, "The Little Foxes," who will make a guest appearance on the Fifth Row Center program on W-G-N-Mutual at 7 p. m. next Friday.

MISS BANKHEAD NEXT GUEST ON 5TH ROW, CENTER

Noted Actress to Star in 'Hurricane.'

Tallulah Bankhead, one of the nation's outstanding actresses, will be starred on Fifth Row Center over W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system from 7 to 7:30 p. m. next Friday.

Miss Bankhead will be heard in a special radio play, "Hurricane."

Miss Bankhead is appearing in Lillian Hellman's play, "The Little Foxes," at the Selwyn theater. The show, which had a run of more than four hundred performances on Broadway, has been hailed as one of Miss Bankhead's greatest triumphs.

In "Hurricane," she will play the rôle of a young wife whose marriage nears a breakup because of indifference and a series of misunderstandings.

Born in Alabama.

A native of Alabama, Tallulah is a daughter of Speaker William B. Bankhead of the house of representatives, and a niece of Senator John Bankhead. She scored her first great stage hit in London in 1922, when she appeared with Sir Gerald du Maurier in "The Dancers." Prior to that she had appeared in several ingenue rôles on Broadway.

She starred in "They Knew What They Wanted," in London. She did numerous other shows across the Atlantic, including "Her Cardboard Lover," "The Green Hat," and "Camille." In the eyes of the British she was the greatest of all American actresses.

After nine years in London, Miss Bankhead returned home, and has appeared in such plays as "Forsaking All Others," "Something Gay," "Reflected Glory," "I Am Different," and revivals of "The Circle" and "Rain." Her biggest hit in the United States has been in "The Little Foxes."

In "Hurricane," Miss Bankhead will be surrounded by a cast of outstanding radio actors.

Blair Walliser is director of the Fifth Row Center presentations.

RELIGION'S BIG BUSINESS TO BE MIDDAY SUBJECT.

Serbian Hour to Observe Orthodox Easter on WGES

The Jugo-Slav hour from 9 to 10 a. m. today on WGES will present a special orthodox Easter program under the direction of George Marchan. The choir of the Serbian Orthodox church, St. Michael Archangel will sing Easter carols and there will be a sermon.

[ADVERTISMENT]
Pull the Trigger on Lazy Bowels, and Also Pepsin-ize Stomach!

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

MELODY PAGEANT GETS NEW HOUR ON WEDNESDAYS

The Pageant of Melody, featuring the W-G-N concert orchestra and conducted by Henry Weber, will be heard at a new time beginning Wednesday on W-G-N and the Mutual network. Formerly broadcast at 9:30 p. m., the show will be presented from 9:15 to 10 p. m. each Wednesday.

Attilio Baggiore, tenor; Kathryn Witwer, lyric soprano; octet, and the women's quartet will be the featured vocalists. Baggiore will sing for his solo, "O Paradiso," by Meyerbeer. Miss Witwer will do "Liebesbriefchen," by Korngold. With the quartet Miss Witwer will sing "Chorus of the Flower Maidens," from Richard Wagner's "Parsifal."

The "Song of India," by Nicolai Rimsky-Korsakow, will be presented by Baggiore, Witwer, and the octet and orchestra. Other numbers will include "March Tannhäuser," by Wagner; "Malaguena," by Moszkowsky; "Le Lac Enchante," by Liadoff, and "Emperor Waltz," by Johann Strauss.

NORTHERNERS TO AIR TANNHAUSER MUSIC TUESDAY

Choral selections from Richard Wagner's opera, "Tannhäuser," will be featured by the Northerners at 9:30 p. m. Tuesday on W-G-N.

The entire Northerners' cast will join in the Wagner selections, which include "Ever I'll Praise Thee," "Pilgrims Chorus," "Was't Magic or Power Divine," "Evening Star," and "Grand March."

The Northerners' soprano soloist, Irene Verner, will sing for her solo number, "A Heart That's Free." The octet will do "Temptation," and "O Filii et Filiae." The ensemble will join in a special arrangement of "Secrets in the Moonlight."

Kay Kyser to Be Guest on NBC Bandwagon Tonight

Kay Kyser, the old professor, will be answering the questions instead of asking them when he and his orchestra are guests of Henry M. Neely, m. c. on the Bandwagon at 6:30 p. m. today over WMAQ-NBC.

W-G-N PERFECTS PLANS TO COVER 2 CONVENTIONS

The major networks are busy completing plans for the most complete coverage of the national conventions in radio history. When the Republicans convene in Philadelphia on June 24 and the Democrats in Chicago on July 15, the broadcasters will be ready with scores of experts—newscasters, political interpreters, analysts, commentators, editorialists, special features men, announcers and engineers—to give listeners thruout the world a complete account of the proceedings.

W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system have arranged the most elaborate coverage of these crucial conventions. More than 130 stations in the United States, Canada and Hawaii will be linked on Mutual for the convention broadcasts. In addition, the convention broadcasts will be short-waved to the world thru the facilities of WRUL, Boston.

Mutual System's Staff.

Mutual's staff will represent the ablest reporters and commentators available from its key stations W-G-N; WOR, New York; WOL, Washington, and WFIL, Philadelphia. Heading the staff will be Quin Ryan, a veteran of national conventions since crystal set days; Arthur Sears Henning, chief of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Washington bureau and W-G-N commentator; Fulton Lewis Jr., Washington newscaster; Gabriel Heatter, veteran newscaster; Wythe Williams, editor of "Greenwich Time" and Dave Driscoll of WOR, New York.

Following a final pre-convention meeting here last week, Mutual officials announced that regular program commitments, commercial and sustaining, would be subject to cancellation so that continuous convention transmissions from Philadelphia and Chicago may be made available to listeners. An announcement of the proposed convention broadcasting schedule will be made shortly.

50 Microphones in Halls.

Elaborate technical set-ups will be installed under the supervision of three Mutual network chief engineers —Carl Meyers, of W-G-N; J. R. Poppele, of WOR; Arnold Nygren, of WFIL, and Andrew L. Poole, traffic manager of the network.

More than 50 microphones of Mutual, CBS and NBC will be placed strategically inside both halls and across the speakers' platforms so that each state chairman will have his own microphone. Specially constructed radio booths will tower over the stages, with auxiliary studios and offices maintained directly beneath the main stages in both halls.

Parabolic microphones, which pick up sounds in a concave bowl and reflect them directly into the microphones, will be used for crowd atmosphere. —L. W.

LILACS' SCENT WAFTS PATIENT BACK TO INDIANA

Others in Hospital Find Cheer.

Springtime means lilac time. And lilac time has come to mean great bouquets of the blooms for patients in hospitals thruout the city. The Share Your Lilacs campaign is sponsored annually by the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild and THE TRIBUNE. On lilac day suburban railroad trains will bring the blooms to Chicago. Fleets of TRIBUNE trucks will deliver the flowers to hospitals.

While the majority of patients will be enjoying lilac day for the first time, there are those patients who have been hospitalized many months and remember other lilac days.

Such a one is Mrs. Josephine Costello, at St. Bernard's hospital, 63d and Harvard street. This will be Mrs. Costello's third lilac day.

Recalls Her Girlhood.

"I look forward to lilac day," she says, "because it reminds me of the first time I went away from home. I lived in Decatur, Ind., when I was a girl, and had never been away until that spring when I went to visit a cousin in Cincinnati. I thought she'd like some lilacs, so I gathered a bouquet and then went to the depot to take the train.

"Well, folks began breaking off my flowers, so I thought 'Guess I may as well give this bouquet away and go home and get another.' I did, and when I arrived at my cousin's, her neighbors wanted flowers, so I still didn't have enough lilacs."

Mrs. Costello came to Chicago as a bride 40 years ago and resided for many years at 6449 Parnell avenue. Her husband, Michael D. Costello, a marble contractor, died at St. Bernard's after his wife entered as a patient more than three years ago. The Costellos had no children of their own, but they often opened their home to children who needed care.

Two Years in Hospital.

Another St. Bernard patient who remembers lilac days is Miss Mary Julia O'Brien, a department store saleswoman for 35 years. Miss O'Brien has been ill the last five years and in the hospital for two years.

"Lilac day? Remember it?" exclaims Miss O'Brien. "How could we forget it here? Really, people don't know how much those flowers mean. We do thank THE TRIBUNE for them, but then THE TRIBUNE does so many things for all of us. Here in the ward we enjoy that new broadcast with the high school boys and girls. 'Citizens of Tomorrow,' I think you call it. And I think the music festival is wonderful, too."

Miss O'Brien's last customer was Ruth Bryan Owen Rohde. Mrs. Rohde was on her way to her post as minister to Norway when she stopped to buy from Miss O'Brien.

Mrs. Nina Daniels is in the same ward with Miss O'Brien. She has been at St. Bernard's "three years the 20th of last month." In that time, she says, "we've had many, many lilacs. I like to have them every year." The St. Bernard nurses fix big bouquets. Patients say the blooms last a week.

Lends Books to Patients.

Over in the Englewood hospital, 61st and Green streets, W. J. Folk has been a patient for six and one-half years. "Lilac day is wonderful for all the patients," he explains, "because every one is remembered then." Mr. Folk is a retired Chicago coal dealer. His son and grandson carry on the business. His room at the hospital is an office and library as well as a bedroom. He started a patients' library, and book shelves cover one wall and part of another in his room.

He celebrated his 80th birthday several days ago with a cake from his family, a visit from his grandson, granddaughter-in-law, and small great-granddaughter. And to complete the days, one of Mr. Folk's books came back after being out an entire year.

The date for the 12th annual lilac day will be announced when guild workers can determine when the flowers will bloom.

PLANT GUILD WORKS ON TRAIN SCHEDULE FOR LILAC SHARING

Officials of the Chicago Plant, Fruit and Flower guild last week completed their organization for lilac day when 150 members, including guild chairmen of garden clubs, held their annual luncheon at Carson, Pirie, Scott tearoom and drafted final plans. The schedule of trains that will furnish free transportation for the lilacs is to be worked out this week.

The ten division chairmen of the guild are keeping in close touch with lilac growers in their territories in order to determine when the blooms will be ready to cut.

Each division chairman will report to the Chicago headquarters of the guild on May 5 and again on May 10, giving detailed information about the opening of the lilac blossoms in the various sections. T. V. Purcell, guild president, said yesterday that the distribution date likely could be determined from the May 10 reports.

In Queen's Court of Honor

JEAN KRAFT.

PRISCILLA COPELAND.

[Marshall Photos.]

Miss Jean Kraft, 8821 South Union street, and Miss Priscilla Copeland, Flossmoor, will be members of the court of honor on May 10, when Miss Anne Eadie, Evanston, is crowned queen of the 15th annual Cathedral May ball at the Congress hotel. Also in the court will be Miss Dorothy Duncan, 8040 Oglesby avenue, who was recently elected southside queen of Gamma Kappa Delta, Episcopal young people's organization. At this year's dance, Morgan Park Military academy cadets will be guards of honor to the queen.

Cheers to Ring for Steinmetz High on Radio

From Chicagoland radios tuned to W-G-N at 7 o'clock Wednesday night will come a rousing cheer, signal that "Citizens of Tomorrow" is on the air again. This half hour high school program sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will feature the Charles P. Steinmetz High school, located at 3030 North Mobile avenue. Six hundred students, accompanied by their principal, Daniel F. O'Hearn, will be present in the new W-G-N audience studio to give this enthusiasm to the occasion.

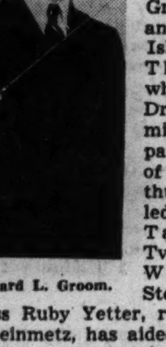
Daniel F. O'Hearn.

It will be the fifth program in a series of 11 Wednesday night weekly broadcasts dedicated to the youth of America. The last program for the school year will be held the night of June 12 when the Wright Junior college students will be guests. Next Wednesday night Waller High school will be represented.

Philip Maxwell, a member of THE TRIBUNE staff, who is the "Principal" on the broadcast, says that he never realized before what talent for song and pep there is in the younger generation.

"The W-G-N engineers have to watch that the volume doesn't wreck the delicate broadcasting instruments," he said, "and as far as the choral singing is concerned, some of the groups being presented would rank favorably with adult professional organizations."

Willard L. Groom will direct the Steinmetz mixed chorus in three numbers, the school loyalty song, a patriotic number entitled "Chicago" by Granville English and the "Happy Isle," by Bantock. Those cheers which the late Dr. Steinmetz might have compared to some of his man-made thunder, will be led by James Taylor, Grace Tveter, Loretta Wagner, and Steve Walker.



Willard L. Groom.

Miss Ruby Yetter, radio chairman at Steinmetz, has aided in preparing the program.

Popular in School.

Altho "Jerry," the 16 year old high school senior, plays the part of one not too scholastic on the program, her principal, Thompson R. Foulkes, at Maine Township High school near her home in Park Ridge, says that she not only is a member of the National Honor society but is one of the most popular students. She is a winning orator, president of the school girls' club and recently was chosen the girl with the happiest smile in the entire school.

To Charlie Jones, the third character in the show, who depicts the part of every school's engineer custodian, will fall the task of relating some of the brief history of Steinmetz which is only six years old, and he'll probably delve into the early history of the community to tell all about the O. A. Thorpe school, the oldest elementary public school in that area.

One of the most popular parts of the show is the weekly Tribune news quiz which is conducted by Mr. Maxwell. Just before going on the air Announcer Pierre Andre picks out six students from the audience and they compete for cash awards totaling from $10 to $15.

Call Honor Roll.

Another highlight of the program is the naming of five Chicagoland boys and girls to the "Honor Roll" of each broadcast. These students have been nominated by their principals for outstanding achievement.

In addition to the radio entertainment, the audience sees "Trees to Tribune," the talking movie showing the vast operation of The Tribune organization and then 100 of the group take an escorted tour thru THE TRIBUNE plant.

JOHNNY IS TOO YOUNG TO ENTER RACE BUT HIS CAR'LL BE THERE

Cars, ranging from specially built machines with balloon tires to home-made vehicles, will be rolling down Lothair avenue hill in Morgan Park Friday morning for the sixth annual soap box Derby.

Johnny Buff.
[Brothers Photo.]

Sponsored by the Beverly Y. M. C. A., the race will begin at 10:30 in the morning. Events are scheduled for special cars, novelty cars, best looking, smallest, homeliest, largest, best decorated.

Boys of 10 to 16 may enter by getting in touch with William Buff of the Beverly Y. M. C. A. Mr. Buff's son, Johnny, is 5 years old, so he is too young to enter as a driver, but he is entering his car, the "Johnny Buff," with an older boy at the wheel.

HOOSIER SALON TO OPEN EXHIBIT WITH TEA FRIDAY

The Hoosier Salon Patrons association will sponsor an exhibition by Glen Mitchell of Minneapolis, Minn., and Charles Reiffel, San Diego, Cal., from Friday thru May 31 in the Hoosier Art gallery, 211 Wacker drive, suite 814. Gallery hours are from 9 to 5 o'clock and on Saturdays until 3 o'clock.

The exhibit will open with a program and tea at 2:30 o'clock Friday. Karl Plath, a Chicago artist connected with the Brookfield zoo, will talk on "Birds That I Paint," and Rudolph Mohr, horticulturist at the Garfield Park conservatory, will discuss "The Distribution of the Orchid."

Hostesses will include Mrs. Charles F Amacker, Mrs. Victor Anderson, Mrs. Delbert K. Baggs, Mrs. H. P. Bruner, Mrs. Chester W. Cleveland, Mrs. Clarence Lee Holtzman, Mrs. Philip Maxwell, Mrs. Harry Mock, Mrs. Paul W. Paver, Mrs. Pearl Power, Mrs. Clifford Rogers, Mrs. G. L. Shideler, Mrs. A. Paul Vignola, and Mrs. T. K. Williamson.

Pastor to Close Marriage School Series Tonight

"The Faith of Christ in Immortal Life" will be the sermon subject at the 11 o'clock service this morning in the Drexel Park Presbyterian church, 64th street and South Marshfield avenue. The final session of the marriage school will take place at 8 o'clock this evening. Discussion topic is "Sunken Rocks in the Sea of Matrimony." Speaking at both services will be the Rev. Clinton C. Cox, pastor.

Taxless Year Is in Store for Calumet Twp.

Folks out in Calumet township are going on a vacation—a 1940 township tax vacation. Reason: There is enough money in the township treasury to meet all obligations in 1940, and maybe in 1941 and 1942 for that matter.

Annual expenses are approximately $7,500, and the township now has $20,000 in the bank. With outstanding relief warrants, the total reaches $26,000, and another $10,000 will be added when the 1939 taxes are collected.

Charles Schwartz, Calumet supervisor for the last 18 years, and his assistants figured they could get along without any 1940 taxes. The residents of the township approved the idea at the annual town meeting held recently.

Blue Island Affected.

Calumet township lies south of Chicago. The eastern portion of Blue Island is in the township. Schwartz is supervisor of that part of Calumet outside the city limits of Chicago.

The present fund represents the eggregate of savings for the last six years. Tax collections were up as high as 75 per cent last year, bringing in more than $10,000, or $2,500 more than required for township appropriations.

The township expenses include salaries for the supervisor, the highway commissioner, town clerk, and five justices of the peace, and payment for rent, fuel, printing, and election expenses.

John Daniels has been town clerk for 12 years, and E. E. Bochman has been highway commissioner for 8 years. Henry Buhring, Ray Baumgartner, William Frey, Rocco Ziccardo, and Henry McDonald are the justices of the peace and have served three years.

Justices Audit Books.

Schwartz says the justices simply audit the books regularly, and everybody knows where every penny is spent.

"That keeps us all straight out here," he explains. "We don't spend money unless we have a good reason. We investigate our relief cases." With his investigating, Schwartz is likely to suggest a place "with a little land for a garden" to Calumet reliefers.

Blue Island is really in four townships—Calumet, Worth, and small sections in Bremen and Thornton. Blue Islanders who live in Worth will pay the usual township tax of 15 mills per $100, according to this year's rate announcement.

The Worth supervisor, Christ Rust, can't present a taxless 1940 to his fellow residents, but he does run their relief office without special salary for the work.

Englewood Lions Provide Iron Lungs for Hospitals

Englewood Lions gave away two infants' iron lungs, one to St. Bernard's hospital and one to Englewood hospital, at their luncheon Friday in the Englewood Y. M. C. A. Representatives of each hospital accepted the lungs. The lungs are combination incubators and respirators, each one equipped with an electric motor and a heating unit.

St. John the Baptist Club Will Give a Penny Social

The Mothers club of St. John the Baptist school will sponsor the 6th annual school benefit penny social a week from today beginning at 3 o'clock in the afternoon in the hall at 933 West 50th place. Heading the committee in charge is Mrs. T. A. Johnson, president of the club.

SUNDAY EVENING CLUB IS FACING ITS FIRST DEFICIT

Drive Under Way to Raise $3,000.

The Chicago Sunday Evening club is facing its first deficit. For 32 years the club has managed to close its books in black ink, and an intensive campaign for supporting members is now under way to avoid closing the present fiscal year, ending May 31, in the red. A threatened deficit estimated at $3,000 was revealed at a recent meeting of the board of trustees.

Clifford W. Barnes.

Increased expenses this season are due partly to the fact that the president and founder of the club, Clifford W. Barnes, has been unable to take part in the administration and give informal Bible talks in Orchestra hall as he did for 25 years. Also, new activities have developed thru the growth of the club, such as the midweek social meetings for young people and a Monday council for the men.

Decline in Income.

On the other side of the ledger, there has been a marked decline in income during the last few years. There has been a loss of funds thru the death of several generous donators, lower interest rates on the club's small investment fund, lower collections in Orchestra hall due to the reduced economic status of the audience, and a falling off in annual subscriptions from business sources.

The budget of approximately $40,000 has been met without great strain in former years. The club was one of the first large nonsectarian religious organizations to meet with success and leaders of all denominations thruout the world have approved its purpose and spoken from its platform.

Back for Another Talk.

Dr. Harold C. Phillips, minister of the First Baptist church, Cleveland, O., is being returned by popular request as speaker for the 8 o'clock meeting this evening in Orchestra hall. His first appearance was on April 7. Tonight he will speak on "Three Truths About God." Mr. Barnes will preside and Edward Foss Wilson will participate in the program.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

KING of De Paul university's senior ball Saturday evening will be Wilfred O'Sullivan of Lemont. A member of Phi Kappa Alpha and Blue Key fraternities, he will reign appropriately in the Louis XVI. room of the Hotel Sherman and will lead the grand march as the escort of Miss Eileen Tiede, arts senior. Mr. O'Sullivan was given the honor as president of the arts senior class.

Wilfred O'Sullivan.
[Doose Photo.]

Among the 27 undergraduates at De Paul who have been elected to membership in Pi Gamma Mu, national social science fraternity, are Marshall Lamore of Kankakee; James Murray, 9630 Longwood drive, and Norman Sullivan, 3440 West 61st place.

R. O. T. C. cadets aren't the only students who stand straight at Hyde Park High school. Thirteen girls were singled out recently by Joseph F. Gonnelly, principal, for posture awards in the annual contest held in the gymnasium. Winner in the senior division is Mary Lawrence, with Rita Huck and Angie Chionis tied for the runner-up position. Estelle Kalleck and Virginia Hirning won the first and second places respectively in the junior division. Sophomore winners were Betty Foote, first, and Donna De Witt and Evelyn Morgan, tied for second. Lillian Gyselinck and Frances Backstorm were first and second respectively in the freshmen division. Helen May Borgia won out over Eva Jane Farrar and Shirley Sorenson in the freshmen contest at the branch school.

Today the most envied boys at the Hyde Park Y. M. C. A. are the eight older fellows who are getting ready for tomorrow's departure to Camp Martin Johnson, 30 miles north of Ludington, Mich., on Big Bass lake. There they will spend a week canoeing, hiking, and cleaning up the camp for the summer season. Glen Rugh, engineer at the "Y," will lead the expedition, accompanied by Dave Frazier, 5440 Cornell avenue; Emerson Sayell, 1407 East 53d street; Bob Rich, 5460 Greenwood avenue; Al and Frank De Somer, 5345 Dorchester avenue; Bob Eckberg, 5438 Kenwood avenue; Bob Glaves, 5450 Kimbark avenue, and Ray Wilke, 1418 East 54th street.

ENGLEWOOD High school's latest honor roll is topped by Lois Gilbert, a sophomore, who was given a mark of superior in all her major subjects. This, however, is nothing unusual for Lois, whose report card has shown nothing but superior grades since she entered high school. Other high ranking students at Englewood are Herman Graff, freshman, and Mildred Lindquist and Jeanette Lubowich, both sophomores.

ARLAN BAILLIE, son of Mrs. John Baillie of 7829 Burnham avenue, will be ordained to the ministry in the Congregational church of Southwest Harbor, Me., on Saturday. A graduate of Bowen High school and the Central Y. M. C. A. college, Mr. Baillie took his B. D. degree at the Chicago Theological seminary in June, 1939. He has been associate pastor and director of music in Southwest Harbor, at the Tremont Larger parish on Mount Desert Island, since last October. His mother and sister, Esther, will be present at the ordination ceremonies.

FIFTEEN year old Arline Brownell of 9201 Marshfield avenue is composer of the music and lyrics of the official Tri-Hi-Y song for all Chicago's Y. M. C. A.'s this year. She was fêted recently at the fourth annual city-wide Tri-Hi-Y banquet, attended by 232 high school girls.

CHURCH HOLDS 4 DEDICATORY SERVICES TODAY

Chatham Fields Evangelical Lutheran church, 8100 St. Lawrence avenue, will hold four dedicatory services today—morning, afternoon, vespers, and evensong—in which speakers, choirs and organists from sister churches will participate. The congregation, which belongs to the Missouri synod, was organized on June 13, 1939, and began with the ordination and installation of the Rev. Laurance A. Boseck as its pastor. The ceremony took place at the mother church in Windsor Park.

The church auditorium will seat 265 persons and the building includes a social room and kitchen. A duplex apartment, to serve as a parsonage, adjoins the main structure. Albert Frederic Heine is the architect, and the construction was done by J. Emil Anderson & Son.

The chapel is of Tudor Gothic, and the 14 windows each present a medallion symbolic of some portion of the Christian faith. The dedication program will conclude with a parish dinner on May 1 arranged by the Women's guild.

Ready for Her Senior Recital

Miss Eleanor Conly, 7120 Princeton avenue, a drama major at Mundelein college, will give her senior recital at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the college theater, 6363 Sheridan road. She will present Susan Glaspell's play, "Trifles." Miss Conly will play the leading role in the Mundelein spring dramatic production, "The High-Brow Young Ladies," which will be presented a week from today at 8 o'clock at the college.

FINDINGS TO AID ENTIRE CITY IN HOME PLANNING

Conservation Major Aim in Study.

BY PAUL HEALY.

Work on the $70,000 Woodlawn Conservation plan, an experimental approach to the problem of saving "borderline" neighborhoods from deterioration, was launched last week when 12 appraisers began a tour of inspection of selected south side residences. The work consisted of examining, photographing, and sketching exteriors and interiors of buildings, and making specific recommendations to an appraisal committee.

The plan is an attempt to find a housing program which will renovate Chicago residential areas which are becoming undesirable, altho they have transportation, parks and industries valuable to the future planned development of the city. Coöperating in backing the plan are neighborhood organizations, large and small Chicago business interests, the Chicago Plan commission, and other city departments, and federal governmental agencies, including the Home Owners Loan corporation and the Federal Housing authority.

Three Main Objectives.

Specific objectives of the project are:

1. Compiling of complete information on each property for the sole use of the interested owner.'

2. A general community plan for future improvements in transportation, recreation and zoning.

3. A series of intensive studies of about 50 typical Woodlawn properties and plans for their modernization.

Total cost of the project, including that contributed by the WPA, is estimated to be about $70,000, of which $23,000 is supplied by sponsors.

Woodlawn was chosen for the experiment "because it is a good example of what is happening in many of the city's communities," Robert B. Mitchell, director of the project, explained.

Mr. Mitchell pointed out that the Woodlawn district has excellent transportation, is near the South Chicago, Clearing and Calumet industrial areas, the airport and the stockyards, and has a large number of churches and schools. It also is represented by nearly all of the building types found in similar city areas.

Will Assemble Facts.

In order to eliminate or suppress conditions which are tending to reduce property values, Mr. Mitchell said the plan requires analysis of the complex neighborhood situation and the isolation of factors which may be treated. The first task of the project is the assembly of pertinent physical and economic information about the community and the individual properties within it.

"A docket is being prepared," he said, "on each of the approximately 2,800 properties in the area, which will include a description of kind and condition of structure, occupancy, rentals, and facilities from the land use survey. To this is added a record of tax delinquency, mortgages, ownership, and assessed values from public records. Photographs are taken of each major structure."

On the basis of this field work, the possibilities for improvement of the property will be studied at three levels:

1. Maintenance, which includes cleaning, painting, and such repair work as is necessary to preserve the structure.

2. Modernization, which means replacement of obsolete details or equipment without structural alterations.

3. Structural changes, either to convert the building to a different number of dwelling units, or to rearrange room in conformance with modern living requirements, or to introduce light and air into dark rooms.

Will Make Recommendations.

Technical committees on appraisal, management, and architecture will then pass on recommendations for each type of structure in the various subneighborhood areas. A committee of persons experienced in real estate finance and representing various private and governmental agencies is now being established under the chairmanship of Horace Russell to explore financing now available for various classes of property in the area thru private or governmental sources.

Finally, Mr. Mitchell explained, "neighborhood planning studies will be expressed in an item-of-work program of community improvement. This will consist of a series of projects with their probable cost, a statement of their necessity and desirability.

SOPHOMORE SPEAKS.

Out here in Englewood we have some brand new rules about letters. A fellow can work hard and earn a letter for himself in the 4B semester, but can't get another letter for the same activity in the 4A semester. And if he takes a letter for some activity as a 4B, he is automatically on his honor to go on being active and helpful in the same activity for the 4A semester.

The faculty letter committee has also decided that no student may receive more than one major and one minor letter in nonathletic activities. If a student gets recommended for letters in more than two activities, he just has to take his choice. What is more, a letter candidate has to have passing grades in all his major subjects at the marking period next preceding the award assembly.

In other words, letters aren't going to be easy to collect and the students will have to go in for some activities just for good old school spirit, because the letter awards are on a quota basis now.

PATROL BOY MAKES SAFETY PLEA.

I am a member of the school safety patrol on the southwest side of Chicago. Every morning, noon and night my captain, the other boys and I see that our schoolmates get across the streets near our school all right.

I thought drivers knew us by our white Sam Brown belts and would slow down when we help the children across, but some of them won't.

The Chicago Motor club which looks after us says we can't really stop traffic, so all we can do is stand on the curb and wait until there is a good clearing.

So I want to ask thru THE TRIBUNE if you drivers won't please slow down when you see us patrol boys and let the children across safely.

A PATROL BOY.

MOTHER IS GRATEFUL.

Our little son is hard of hearing, but we did not realize it until he was given an audiometer test at the local hearing center in Gage Park High school. I am grateful for this service, and I know that many other parents share my feeling.

We used to consider him disobedient, but now we know that he simply didn't hear our requests. Knowing of the handicap has helped greatly in school work. Since the tests were made a short while ago he has had a more pleasant life both at home and at school, simply because his parents and teachers understand.

Ward committeemen are elected, and not merely nominated, in the party primaries every four years. One committeeman is chosen from each ward by each of the two major political parties.

CLOSE CONTESTS ARE REVEALED IN CONGRESS RACES

Complete Official Count in Cook County.

Close contests for both congressman and delegate to the national party conventions were revealed when the results of the official canvass for Cook and Lake county congressional districts were announced.

Districts 1 to 10 are in these two counties. The closest congressional race in these ten districts in the April 9 primary, according to the canvass, was run in the 3d district by two Republicans, Waldemar J. Roehler and Goodwin L. Dosland.

Roehler, a young real estate banker making his maiden try for political office, won the Republican nomination by a margin of only 299 votes over Dosland, who was his party's nominee two years ago. Roehler was credited with 19,807 votes and Dosland with 19,508, Friends of Dosland are discussing the possibility of a recount.

Delegate Race Ends in Tie.

Two candidates for delegate to the Republican national convention from the 6th district ran a dead heat for second place, the canvass revealed. They are Philip E. Gilbert of Chicago and Joseph A. Coyner of Oak Park, each of whom received 19,668 votes. Julius H. Miner of Chicago was first with 31,219 votes and thus was assured one of the two delegate posts.

The tie between Gilbert and Coyner for the second post probably will be decided by the toss of a coin under the supervision of the state canvassing board, as provided by law, according to Daniel A. Carey, head of the Cook county clerk's election department.

Convention Might Decide.

Some observers said such a procedure would not necessarily be conclusive. The loser of the toss, they said, could appeal to the credentials committee of the national convention.

The table below shows the vote for the various candidates for congress and for delegate as determined by the canvass, made by the Chicago election board and the county clerks of Cook and Lake counties. The asterisks denote sitting congressmen, and the names of the primary winners in each district appear in boldface type.

WILL POINT OUT TRAFFIC PERILS TO CYCLE RIDERS

Two safety lectures by George W. Fleming, general secretary of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee, are scheduled for the southwest side this week.

Tomorrow evening he will speak to the boys of West End Junior lodge, No. 18, I. O. O. F., in Odd Fellows hall, 2605 South Karlov avenue. He will point out that in 12 of the 16 bicycle fatalities last year, the victims were between the ages of 5 and 19, and will urge that all bicycle riders obey traffic laws.

Friday afternoon, Mr. Fleming will talk to 700 students at the Academy of Our Lady High school, 95th and Throop streets. Three traffic safety sound films will be shown.

At Printers' Dance

Lois (above) and Jane Lovette will be among the entertainers at the annual spring dance of Chicago Typographical union next Saturday night in the Grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel. The cabaret party will start at 9 o'clock. Thomas Canty is president of the union and Edward L. Herbeck is chairman of the dance.

2 CLUB WOMEN NAMED TO THIRD DISTRICT POSTS

Blue Island Youths Take Essay Awards.

At this year's election of officers of district 3, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, there were just two posts, second vice president and corresponding secretary, to be filled. Mrs. W. J. Dinwiddie, 6933 South Stewart avenue, was selected as second vice president, and Mrs. Reede Foster, 5633 West 64th street, corresponding secretary. Mrs. Dinwiddie is a member of the Hamilton Park Woman's club, where she has served as first vice president and yearbook chairman. Mrs. Foster is past president of the Clearing Woman's club.

Mrs. Fred Bauchhenss, 6137 Champlain avenue, a third district member in the Englewood Woman's club and finance chairman for the state federation, will preside at a finance committee meeting at 1:30 tomorrow in federation headquarters, 30 West Washington street. Mrs. Bauchhenss will be a candidate for state treasurer at the state convention on May 13, 14, 15, and 16 at Hotel Sherman.

Winners in the district American citizenship eighth grade essay contest were all from Blue Island schools. First prize went to Jean Carel of Seymour school; second to Mary Lou Pekin, St. Benedict school, and third, Donald Wierman, Seymour school. The essay subject was, "Why Should We Retain Our Democracy," and 180 themes were entered from 19 schools. Judges were Mrs. Reede Foster, Mrs. Merele McCarney, third district international relations chairman, and Mrs. John Whalen, Chicago Lawn Woman's club.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The new W-G-N Symphonic hour, to be presented by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE as a public service, will make its bow from 9 to 10 o'clock tonight over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. The Symphonic hour will be presented by the W-G-N Concert orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, with Marion Claire, renowned soprano, and Michael Wilkomirski, noted violinist, as the soloists. There will also be an augmented chorus.

An added feature of the Symphonic hour will be a gesture of honor each Sunday evening to one of the great organizations of the community which contribute to the security, prosperity, and welfare of the public. Tonight the tribute will be paid to a specially invited audience of the Chicago Association of Commerce, headed by President Oscar G. Mayer. Frank J. Loesch, Chicago's civic leader and former president of the Chicago Crime commission will speak briefly.

Other Tributes Planned.

In subsequent programs, special tribute will be paid to the police and fire departments, the army, prominent educators and the men who deliver the mail.

The second of the invitation affairs will be given in honor of the army. Officers of the United States army will be studio guests next Sunday when Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, commander of the 6th corps area, is to deliver the talk of the evening.

Miss Claire, beautiful star of opera, screen, and radio, was born in Lake Bluff, Ill. She made her first operatic appearance in "La Bohème" in Rovigo, near Venice. Since then she has starred in many operas and operettas including "The Great Waltz" and "Bittersweet." She is to star in "Bittersweet" in the new W-G-N Theater of the Air next Thursday at 9 p. m. She made her film debut in "Make a Wish." In private life, Miss Claire is the wife of Mr. Weber, who is musical director of W-G-N and artistic director of the Chicago Opera ocmpany.

Concertmeister at W-G-N.

Michael Wilkomirski, concertmaster of the W-G-N Concert orchestra, is rated by critics as one of the nation's finer violinists.

Wilkomirski was born in Moscow of Polish parents. His father, a teacher in the conservatory there, trained him as a very small boy. He made his debut when only six. After a tour of the capitals of Europe he came to the United States and thereupon made a successful tour before joining the W-G-N musical staff.

NORTHERNERS TO AIR TANNHAUSER MUSIC TUESDAY

Choral selections from Richard Wagner's opera, "Tannhäuser," will be featured by the Northerners at 9:30 p. m. Tuesday on W-G-N.

The entire Northerners' cast will join in the Wagner selections, which include "Ever I'll Praise Thee," "Pilgrims Chorus," "Was't Magic or Power Divine," "Evening Star," and "Grand March."

The Northerners' soprano soloist, Irene Verner, will sing for her solo number, "A Heart That's Free." The octet will do "Temptation," and "O Filii et Filiae." The ensemble will join in a special arrangement of "Secrets in the Moonlight."

Dr. Harold C. Phillips Sunday Evening Speaker

Dr. Harold C. Phillips of the First Baptist church, Cleveland, will make a return visit to the Chicago Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall, speaking on "Three Truths About God," over WIND from 8:15 to 9 tonight. Clifford Barnes will introduce him. Edward Foss Wilson, president of Wilson & Co. and a trustee of the club, will take part, and the club's choir of 125 will sing.

Romance in Rhythm to Present Current Favorites

"Romance in Rhythm," a fast moving half hour program featuring the hit tunes of the day, will present the W-G-N dance orchestra, directed by Harold Stokes, Edna O'Dell, Lawrence Salerno, and the Four Shades of Blue, at 9:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Edna O'Dell will sing "You, Your Darlin'." With the chorus she will do "I Walk with Music." Salerno will sing "Make Love with a Guitar," and will join the chorus in "Gwine to Hebbin." The Four Shades of Blue will harmonize in "My My," from the show, "Buck Benny Rides Again."

'BITTERSWEET' IS FIRST SHOW IN THEATER OF AIR

Marion Claire, Melton to Star in W-G-N Series.

The Chicago Theater of the Air—W-G-N-Mutual's new program featuring great operettas—will present as its first offering from 9 to 10 p. m. next Thursday Noel Coward's "Bittersweet." The series will be presented by THE TRIBUNE.

Marion Claire, brilliant soprano of operetta, radio, movie, and concert fame; James Melton, distinguished tenor, and an augmented chorus and concert orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber, and a dramatic cast will give the operetta before an invited audience of 600 persons including 100 officers from the United States naval training station at Great Lakes. The operetta will be aired over the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

William A. Bacher, noted radio producer and director, brought to Chicago from Hollywood, will produce the operettas which have been adapted for broadcasting in 60 minutes by Noel Gerson.

Miss Claire as Sari Linden.

Miss Claire will portray the part of Sari Linden. It is a familiar part for her. She is one of the three outstanding vocalists who have appeared in this part. She appeared in the "Bittersweet" company here with Allan Jones opposite her several seasons ago.

James Melton will sing the rôle of Carl Linden, the young music teacher who elopes with Sari. Melton has had starring rôles in movies, concert successes, and operatic hits in addition to his perfomances on many coast to coast radio programs.

Orchestra to Be Enlarged.

Miss Claire and Melton will be supported by an augmented chorus, a cast of outstanding Chicago radio actors, and an enlarged concert orchestra directed by Mr. Weber, musical director of W-G-N and of the Chicago Opera company.

Among the Coward songs which will be heard are "I'll See You Again," "Tokay," "Zigeuner," "Call of Life," and "Small Café." An original musical theme has been composed by Mr. Weber for use in the series of operettas.

Following "Bittersweet" will be "The Student Prince," by Sigmund Romberg, to be broadcast Thursday, May 16, and "Cyrano de Bergerac," adapted from Edmund Rostand's play by Sam Pokrass, on May 30. As with "Bittersweet," these operettas will be broadcast from 9 to 10 p. m.

Press and Radio in 1940 Election, Broadcast Topic

"Press and Radio in the 1940 Election" will be discussed on the Northwestern University Reviewing Stand over W-G-N and MBS from 10:15 to 10:30 a. m. today. Elmo Scott Watson, professor in the Medill School of Journalism and editor of the Publishers' Auxiliary, and Parker Wheatley, radio director at Northwestern university, will exchange ideas on the broadcast.

Editor's Daughter

JOAN BANKS.

Two popular daytime serials—"Mary Foster, Editor's Daughter" and "Linda's First Love"—will be aired over W-G-N starting tomorrow. They are not new stories to Chicago listeners, but this is their first appearance on W-G-N. "Linda" with Arline Blackburn as star, will be aired at 10:45 a. m., and "Editor's Daughter" with Joan Banks playing the lead at 11 a. m.

Linda Crockett and Mary Foster have much in common. Their lives are aimed toward a sensible, normal married life when they find and win the ideal man, but beyond this the stories differ. Linda's back-breaking duty of caring for an invalid fostermother and father as well as a stepson has made her life a hectic one.

Kay Kyser to Be Guest on NBC Bandwagon Tonight

Kay Kyser, the old professor, will be answering the questions instead of asking them when he and his orchestra are guests of Henry M. Neely, m. c. on the Bandwagon at 6:30 p. m. today over WMAQ-NBC.

LOSE WEIGHT
this amazingly, easy safe way
If you want to take off ugly fat easily and pleasantly all you have to do is—
First ... eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating. Second .. mix ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ of a glass of water and drink before meals and at bedtime. Thus you reduce caloric intake considerably. But you do not suffer a hungry moment. There are no strict diet lists, strenuous exercises or taking drugs. Yet!—in a test conducted by Dr. Damrau of New York, with this method among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, an average weight loss of seven pounds was registered per month. This remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men as it is for overweight women. There is only one thing to watch. Eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating; and be sure to use Welch's Grape Juice—always made from the pick of the grape crop; always full strength; always pure.

Irene Rich, lovely star of the screen and radio, now past 40, weighs the same as she did at 16. She recommends the easy Welch way to reduce.
Try This Amazing Welch's Tomato Juice
If you think all Tomato Juice is alike, try Welch's new, vitamin-rich Tomato Juice. It is so rich and thick you can add ⅓ water or ice and still have a most delicious Tomato Juice.

Pull the Trigger on Lazy Bowels, and Also Pepsin-ize Stomach!
When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

W-G-N PERFECTS PLANS TO COVER 2 CONVENTIONS

Quin Ryan, Henning Head Mutual's Staff.

The major networks are busy completing plans for the most complete coverage of the national conventions in radio history. When the Republicans convene in Philadelphia on June 24 and the Democrats in Chicago on July 15, the broadcasters will be ready with scores of experts—newscasters, political interpreters, analysts, commentators, editorialists, special features men, announcers and engineers—to give listeners thruout the world a complete account of the proceedings.

W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system have arranged the most elaborate coverage of these crucial conventions. More than 130 stations in the United States, Canada and Hawaii will be linked on Mutual for the convention broadcasts. In addition, the convention broadcasts will be short-waved to the world thru the facilities of WRUL, Boston.

Mutual System's Staff.

Mutual's staff will represent the ablest reporters and commentators available from its key stations W-G-N; WOR, New York; WOL, Washington, and WFIL, Philadelphia. Heading the staff will be Quin Ryan, a veteran of national conventions since crystal set days; Arthur Sears Henning, chief of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Washington bureau and W-G-N commentator; Fulton Lewis Jr., Washington newscaster; Gabriel Heatter, veteran newscaster; Wythe Williams, editor of "Greenwich Time" and Dave Driscoll of WOR, New York.

Following a final pre-convention meeting here last week, Mutual officials announced that regular program commitments, commercial and sustaining, would be subject to cancellation so that continuous convention transmissions from Philadelphia and Chicago may be made available to listeners. An announcement of the proposed convention broadcasting schedule will be made shortly.

50 Microphones in Halls.

Elaborate technical set-ups will be installed under the supervision of three Mutual network chief engineers —Carl Meyers, of W-G-N; J. R. Poppele, of WOR; Arnold Nygren, of WFIL, and Andrew L. Poole, traffic manager of the network.

More than 50 microphones of Mutual, CBS and NBC will be placed strategically inside both halls and across the speakers' platforms so that each state chairman will have his own microphone. Specially constructed radio booths will tower over the stages, with auxiliary studios and offices maintained directly beneath the main stages in both halls.

Parabolic microphones, which pick up sounds in a concave bowl and reflect them directly into the microphones, will be used for crowd atmosphere.

Other Networks Reporters.

A. A. Schechter, NBC news editor, has announced the following staff for NBC: For the NBC Red network H. V. Kaltenborn and Earl Godwin will be the chief commentators. On the Blue network H. R. Baukhage, Lowell Thomas and Raymond Clapper will head the staff. Announcers to assist them include Charles Lyon of Chicago; George Hicks, Carleton Smith and Herluf Provenson. Ann Underwood will cover women's activities.

Columbia's staff, as mustered by Paul White, director of public affairs, includes Elmer Davis, Bob Trout, Albert Warner and John Charles Daly. Edwin C. Hill and Paul Sullivan may also assist with the coverage.

MISS BANKHEAD NEXT GUEST ON 5TH ROW CENTER

Noted Actress to Star in "Hurricane."

Tallulah Bankhead, one of the nation's outstanding actresses, will be starred on Fifth Row Center over W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system from 7 to 7:30 p. m. next Friday.

Miss Bankhead will be heard in a special radio play, "Hurricane,"

Miss Bankhead is appearing in Lillian Hellman's play, "The Little Foxes," at the Selwyn theater. The show, which had a run of more than four hundred performances on Broadway, has been hailed as one of Miss Bankhead's greatest triumphs.

In "Hurricane," she will play the rôle of a young wife whose marriage nears a breakup because of indifference and a series of misunderstandings.

Born in Alabama.

A native of Alabama, Tallulah is a daughter of Speaker William B. Bankhead of the house of representatives, and a niece of Senator John Bankhead. She scored her first great stage hit in London in 1922, when she appeared with Sir Gerald du Maurier in "The Dancers." Prior to that she had appeared in several ingenue rôles on Broadway.

She starred in "They Knew What They Wanted," in London. She did numerous other shows across the Atlantic, including "Her Cardboard Lover," "The Green Hat," and "Camille." In the eyes of the British she was the greatest of all American actresses.

After nine years in London, Miss Bankhead returned home, and has appeared in such plays as "Forsaking All Others," "Something Gay," "Reflected Glory," "I Am Different," and revivals of "The Circle" and "Rain." Her biggest hit in the United States has been in "The Little Foxes."

In "Hurricane," Miss Bankhead will be surrounded by a cast of outstanding radio actors.

News and Queries Within and Without the Church
A Religious Voice of the People — Edited by the Rev. John Evans

For more than 100,000 Chicago Christians and for nearly one-third of all the Christians of the world, today is Easter Sunday. "Christ Is Risen," will be salutations on the lips of Chicago Christians of these national descents: Greek, Russian, Armenian, Slovakian, Assyrian, Serbian, Rumanian, Orthodox Polish, and Ukrainian. These are members of the Greek Orthodox communion.

Peter Lambros.

We asked Peter Lambros, editor of our contemporary, the Greek Star, to tell us something about the Greek Easter and why it differs in date from western Christianity as represented by Catholic, Anglican, and Protestant churches. Mr. Lambros, who is celebrating his first half century as a resident and citizen of Chicago, said Easter to the Greek has a double meaning—the resurrection of Christ and the resurrection of the Greek nation in 1821 when it battled successfully for freedom from the Turks.

"Because there is but one resurrection and one Easter, people often wonder why the Greek churches do not celebrate Easter at the same time as the other denominations," Mr. Lambros said. "The difference is between Julian and Gregorian calendars. The Greek Easter date goes by the Julian calendar so as not to impair the integrities of the patriarchates at Constantinople, Jerusalem, and Antioch, altho the Greek church adopted the Gregorian calendar—excepting Easter—two decades ago.

"During earliest Christian centuries Easter was observed at different times, but at the council of Nicaea, 325 A. D., Emperor Constantine decided that Easter should be designated on the first Sunday of spring, or the Sunday after the full moon of the spring equinox, and after the Jewish passover. [The Jewish passover began last Monday night and continues eight days.]

"A point to be emphasized is that altho Greek Easter comes on the Gregorian calendar date, April 28, the real date is April 14 under the Julian calendar. So, you see, the date is not really far apart from the Easter of other religions.

'ROOM SERVICE' IS SCHEDULED AT ARMOUR TECH

"Room Service," a three act farce, will be the next production of the Armour Players, dramatic organization of the Armour Institute of Technology. The play will be given Saturday at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of the Student Union building.

Feminine rôles will be played by Miss Helen Ruoss, Park Ridge, architectural student at the institute, and Miss Rosemary Mulvihill, a junior at Chicago Teachers college.

Rocco DeStefano plays the part of Gordon Miller, the theatrical producer who is adept at thinking of schemes to avoid paying his hotel bill. Phil Roarke is the hotel manager; Clarence McDonald, a young author, and Laurie Donoghue, a Russian career waiter. Mortimer Lowy does the physician's rôle.

Others in the cast are Hugo Geissler, Eugene Kalnin, Albert Sanowskis, James Duncan, Steven Wasilenko, and Zenon Prane. A dancing party will take place after the play.

The Saturday evening program and dance is the official beginning of the festivities which are planned for Junior week, which begins the following Monday.

Junior marshals have been elected to represent each of the major departments. Frank Pfeffer is head marshal, and the others, with the departments they represent, are William Bauch, chemical engineering; Ben R. Cole, electrical engineering; Raymond Dodge, architectural department; Charles McAleer, chemical engineering; James Murray, mechanical engineering, and Rudolph A. Zoellner, fire protection engineering.

UNUSUAL HOUSE HAS LIVING ROOM ON SECOND FLOOR

Dining-Recreation Space Found on First.

[Don't forget that next Saturday, May 4, the fifth annual home show of the National House and Garden exposition opens at the historic Chicago Coliseum. Scores of exhibitors will show the latest things for the 1940 home. An interesting program of entertainment and instruction is being arranged.]

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

What makes a house a home, with roots deep down in treasured soil, instead of just—another house? Money often has precious little to do with it, or size, or style. It is rather a matter of fine taste, excellent planning, and a meticulous attention to detail.

When Mr. and Mrs. Reginald G. Schuler, 337 Oakland avenue, Highland Park, decided to build they discussed many matters with their architect, William N. Alderman, 19 East Pearson street, Chicago. When the house was completed it had a background especially designed for the owners; a house with an unmistakable atmosphere, personal and inviting.

The design is a careful blending of the modern and the traditional. Distinctive details have given it a note of importance, and discreet planning has added materially to its feeling of space.

Stay In Their Budget.

Mr. and Mrs. Schuler had definitely decided how much they wished to spend on their home, and Mr. Alderman kept to their figure. [Always a satisfying accomplishment to all concerned.]

The interesting and unusual layout is partly a result of the decision to keep within a stipulated budget. Here is how it was done.

Mr. Schuler had very much wanted a large recreation room in the basement, but Mr. Alderman pointed out that such a feature would increase estimated costs. So a compromise was reached, and a most unusual combination dining room and recreation room was planned for the first floor. Quite a man's room, and treated in the lively Mexican spirit. Then, on the second floor was a living room with studio ceiling—carried out as Mrs. Schuler wished.

May Be Enlarged.

Informality on the first floor. More formal touches on the second. And possibilities for various entertainment, formal and informal, as the occasion dictates.

As you approach the house, which stands on a beautifully wooded site, a flagstone walk leads to a quaintly walled-in garden and a doorway of stone, and at the right of the entrance doorway is the door which leads to the garage.

The exterior walls are of brick for the first floor, with cream colored stucco panels on front and vertical wide boards of cypress.

Inside you see the intriguing combination recreation-dining room, with beamed wood ceiling and a two story stairwell to the second floor. This large room faces two ways, and opens onto a wide screened porch—thru folding doors and an opening 9 feet wide. When these doors are "folded" open the effect is virtually to bring the porch into the room.

At the far end is a 16 foot wide fireplace which extends across one entire wall, with a red brick hearth 6 feet deep.

The kitchen likewise has a beamed wood ceiling, with planks painted white, and dark brown beams. The cases are white, the floor a handsome red linoleum tile. There are lively touches here in this room, red and yellow splashes of color in the Mexican vein.

From the colonial-keeping room a two story stairwell rises to the second floor.

Here there is a large, studio ceiling room, designed as Mrs. Schuler desired, in delicate pastel shades. The floor is a light oak, and there are stunning white rugs and soft toned gray-blue walls. The entire room is dominated by a fine colonial mantelpiece.

Study Off Living Room.

There is a diminutive, intriguing study opening from the living room. A window on one side overlooks the garden area of the house. Opposite this wall is a honeycombed opening overlooking the stairwell.

In the hall there is a built-in space for a disappearing type of bed. A retreat which offers extra accommodation for the extra guest.

On this second floor there also are two bedrooms and bath. The bedrooms have closets with sliding doors, with cane panels for ventilation.

The living room opens onto a large screened porch. The overall of living room and porch is some 26'x18'. In the warm weather months this living room and porch can be counted as one room a great deal of the time, as the opening is 11 feet wide, with doors which slide into wall recesses.

Improving Aim at Fenger High

Spring, to the Fenger High school R. O. T. C. cadet, means rifle practice. Here Corporal Ralph Skagh (left), Staff Sergeant Charles Anderson, and Cadet Laurence Erickson take part in preliminary exercises, known as "triangularization," before going on the range for actual firing. Next winter the 10 highest scorers from each of the school's six companies and band will participate in an intercompany competition.

9,203 ENROLLED IN CITY'S PUBLIC SCHOOL R. O. T. C.

Record Set with 7,609 Cadets in Uniform.

A new high mark in Chicago public high school R. O. T. C. enrollment has been set by this semester's official figures, released by Col. W. F. Morrison, director of the public schools unit. They show a total of 7,609 uniformed cadets in the 27 high schools which offer R. O. T. C. instruction, as compared with 7,238 for the semester which ended in February.

Besides these, there are 1,594 freshmen enrolled, for whom uniforms are not supplied, thereby giving the public schools a total enrollment of 9,203 cadets. There were 1,514 cadets without uniforms last year.

150 Extra Uniforms.

A yearly average of no more than 7,500 uniforms is allotted to the city schools by the 6th corps area army headquarters, but an extra allotment of 150 uniforms was obtained for this semester last week, and according to Col. Morrison every qualified student who has applied for a uniform has received one.

Lane Technical High school continues to lead the city schools with a total enrollment of 1,059, including 898 cadets with uniforms. Crane jumped from fifth to second place, with an increase in enrollment from 408 to 492. The Lake View unit is third in size, with 476 cadets.

The large increase in enrollment at Crane has taken place since Sergt. James C. Pinneo became instructor there last fall. Sergt. Pinneo, however, ascribes it to the fact that Crane is for boys alone, and that interests spread rapidly among boys.

How Schools Compare.

The total enrollment, both with and without uniforms, in the various school regiments, is as follows: Amundsen, 293; Austin, 451; Bowen, 299; Calumet, 317; Crane, 492; DuSable, 318; Englewood, 284; Fenger, 326; Foreman, 215; Harrison, 260; Harper, 208; Hirsch, 273; Hyde Park, 386; Kelly, 154; Lake View, 476; Lane, 1,059; Lindblom, 380; Marshall, 183; Morgan Park, 301; Roosevelt, 240; Schurz, 422; Senn, 390; Steinmetz, 305; Sullivan, 301; Tilden, 434; Von Steuben, 204, and Waller, 230.

The only other R. O. T. C. unit in the city is at St. Mel Parochial High school, where there are 545 uniformed and 219 freshmen cadets enrolled.

MIDWEST SAFETY CONFERENCE TO ATTRACT 3,500

The 18th annual Midwest Safety conference, sponsored by the Greater Chicago Safety council, will open Tuesday for a three day meeting in the Hotel Sherman. More than 3,500 safety experts from the United States, Canada, and Hawaii are expected to attend. Mannequins will model safety garments for mine and factory workers.

There will be a meeting of experts on the canopy of the hotel overlooking the intersection of Clark and Randolph streets. A discussion of rush hour traffic problems will be broadcast.

There will be 14 sessions, and 76 speakers will lecture. A safety exhibit, in which more than 60 organizations will take part, will be set up.

Safety council officials from the southwest district are G. C. Hodgson, an advisory board member, and W. L. Beaudway, a member of the board of directors.

Sorority Chapters to Have Party at Country Club

Nu and Pi chapters of the Theta Beta Delta sorority will entertain at a cocktail party this afternoon in the clubhouse of the Evergreen Country club, 9140 South Western avenue. Miss Dorothy Boyle and Miss Kay Schrier are co-chairmen in charge of the party. From 4 until 7 o'clock, there will be dancing.

Head Patrolmen's Club

In a ceremony held last week in the presence of the policemen, new officers of the Chicago Patrolmen's club were installed. Policeman John J O'Malley of Hudson avenue station (seated) won the presidency by 11 votes from Daniel M. Andrews of Marquette station, the incumbent. Other officers are, left to right, George Weber, recording secretary; Nicholas J. Reidy, first vice president; Harry Larson, second vice president; Frank J. Brady, third vice president, and John J. Cleary, financial secretary. The club is composed of 3,800 members.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, April 29.

Garden activities open with a rush after the cold weather of spring, and it is necessary that all operations be done at the proper time. Transplant or rearrange perennials early to permit each divided plant to become established as soon as possible. Attention to the shrubbery includes early spading thru the plants. Shrubs need food as much as other plants. Planting may continue as long as the material can be obtained, but early planting is best. Be sure that each shrub has plenty of space, good soil, and that the plant is set only slightly deeper than it grew in the nursery. All broken roots should be cut back, the tops pruned, and old wood removed. Tamp the soil around the roots. Leave a depression around each plant and give it lots of water.

Tuesday, April 30.

When pruning roses remove all the prunings to prevent the spread of disease parts. It is good practice to feed roses when the buds are breaking. Spread a complete commercial food around each plant and hoe it under. Make a second application just before the flowering period, but do not feed after Aug. 1. Roses in this section are best planted in spring.

Wednesday, May 1.

If you have any of the common snowball plants on the grounds, be sure to spray with an oil spray just as the buds start and afterward at intervals of a few days with nicotine sulphate and soap. This should control the aphids that cause the leaves to curl. Spray young peony growths with bordeaux. Sulphur dust is excellent to control mildews, rusts, black spot on roses, red spiders, and mites. Remember that stomach poisons kill leaf eating insects and contact sprays sucking insects.

Thursday, May 2.

Divide hardy chrysanthemums in spring. Transplant the shoots in rich soil about 9 inches apart. Hardy asters and boltonia also should be transplanted now. If a shipment of plants is received and they are dried out, plunge in water or bury in wet soil for a few hours until they have revived, then plant. Most annual flower seed can be sown within a short time. As soon as the tulips have ceased flowering, sow annuals between them, such as phlox drummondi, poppies, California poppies, nasturtiums, and sweet alyssum. Try a few of the strawflowers for cutting and for use as winter bouquets. Why not buy a few small pot chrysanthemums for winter bloom? Line the plants out in the garden, keep well watered and fed, pinch back the young growths, lift before frost, and pot. They will furnish fine material for the house.

Friday, May 3.

Save a lot of time by spraying liquid weed killer in the walks and drives. Try a few strawberries. If you have a coldframe you may enjoy a lot of sweet scented flowers by planting violets. The plants winter well and bloom early in spring. Plants will need watering when the weather gets warm. This is especially true of newly planted material, such as shrubs, evergreens, and perennials. Do not plant tender waterlilies until the end of the month for cold weather will check them.

Saturday, May 4.

Wait until the soil is warm and there is no danger from late frost before planting tender plants outdoors. Gladioli can be planted at intervals of two weeks until about June 15 for a succession of bloom. Wait until May 20 before setting out tomato plants. Pole beans give a better yield and require little more space than the bush varieties. Try a few. Watch currants and gooseberries for mildew and leaf eating worms.

[Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.]

Nu Beta Nu Will Conduct Initiation This Afternoon

Nu Beta Nu, a sorority with a membership of south and southwest side girls, will hold a formal initiation at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Congress casino. A new chapter, Kappa, will be initiated at the same time. Officiating at the ceremonies will be Mary Louise Scanlon, Ruthi Lidster, Mrs. Virginia Paus, Ruth Swanson, and Annamary Kirchhoff.

BACK OF YARDS COUNCIL MARKS YEAR OF SERVICE

Youths Will Celebrate at Party Friday.

Back of the Yards Neighborhood council is one year old this month. Adding to the celebration of the first 12 months of accomplishment by this organization sponsored by church, labor, and recreation leaders, is the announcement of its affiliation with the Town of Lake Chamber of Commerce.

The council, under the leadership of Joseph B. Meegan, executive secretary and Davis Square park director, is dedicated to providing recreation for the young people in the back of the yards area. It functions to help them find employment, and to coordinate efforts of church, labor, and business toward better living in the neighborhood. Problems of housing, juvenile delinquency, and health are all investigated by the council. It serves 80,000 men, women, and children.

Jack Finn, president of the Town of Lake Chamber of Commerce, described the joining with the council as an opportunity to carry on greater community service.

Back New Playground.

Accomplishments of the council in the last year include sponsoring the clearing of a playground at 47th street and Damen avenue; securing jobs for nearly 900 thru the N. Y. A. work of the council; distribution of 300 Christmas baskets, and the opening of a welfare station.

The council represents 121 organizations. One of the first events of the second year will be the Jungle Jamboree on Friday at the Agnes ballroom, Archer avenue and Rockwell street. Agnes Yucus, chairman of the BYNC youth committee, is in charge. The name of the event is taken from the title of Upton Sinclair's book, "The Jungle." Volunteers are on the lists of workers, and coöperating organizations are making contributions.

Bishop Bernard J. Sheil is honorary director of the council. Joseph Haas is vice president. The Rev. Ambrose L. Ondrak is treasurer, and Saul D. Alinsky is technical consultant.

Members of Board.

On the executive board are: The Rev. A. A. Apra, Jacob Arkiss, Peter Barskis, the Very Rev. T. J. Bobal, William Bonnetts, Edward Bushman, Paul P. Dolenak, Rose Frebus, Miss Ann Garnowski, Barney Goldberg, John M. Haffner, Aaron Hurwitz, Sally A. Jesulaitis, Joseph Konieczka, Helen Korewa, William Kosmowski, the Rev. Justinian Kugler, William A. Lewis, Herbert March, William Matha, the Rev. Archimandrite Timon Muliar, Capt. John J. McGinnis, James Phillips, David Rosenberg, the Rev. James J. Rowley, the Rev. Bernard Sokolowski, Walter Skubq, the Rev. Stanley Valuckas, Edward Wach, Mrs. Royal S. Van de Woestyne, Sigmund J. Wlodarczyk, Agnes Yucus, and John Zeglin.

PARK DISTRICT PLAY CONTEST TO END TUESDAY

Final performances in the Chicago park district fourth annual one-act play tournament will take place Tuesday evening at 8:15 o'clock at the Goodman theater. Competing will be the winners of the district meets. V. K. Brown, director of recreation for the park district, will present blank plaques to winning groups. The senior group from Ridge park will take part in the contest. The entry is "Moonset," which has an all male cast.

In School Play

LILLIAN BARRY.

BERNADETTE FITZGERALD.

RUTH DIEMER.

The senior class of St. Thomas the Apostle High school will present "Pride and Prejudice" at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday and Friday evenings in Tighe hall, 5467 Woodlawn avenue. Leading rôles will be portrayed by Miss Lillian Barry, 8345 Dante avenue; Miss Bernadette Fitzgerald, 6826 Laflin street; and Miss Ruth Diemer, 7836 Throop street.

BEVERLY GUILD TO OFFER THREE PLAYS ON FRIDAY

Three one-act plays will be presented by the Beverly Theater guild on Friday at Ridge park fieldhouse. The program is under the auspices of the Southwest Kiwanis club for the benefit of the youth service fund. The plays are: "Road Into the Sun," "Winners All," and "Moonset." In the casts are: Charles Reinbold, Mary Clarke, Ralph Winslow, Leane Fitzpatrick, Dorothy Saunders, Jean Berryman, Harold Hale, Thomas Cleary, Roy A. Graves, Walter J. Wark, Edward D. Hudson, Edward Batty, Lester Kresanek, and Gordon Hepburn.

Isabella Circles to Unite in Initiation Rites Today

LaRabida circle, Daughters of Isabella, will participate in the joint initiation to be held today at the Palmer House. Candidates from Chicago circles and from circles in nearby towns will be inducted. A banquet and program will follow the formal ceremony. Mrs. Laura Maloney, 7947 South Carpenter street, is circle chairman, and Miss Isabel Erxleben, 8624 South May street, is co-chairman. Mrs. Martin McNamara, 7341 South May street, is La Rabida regent.

TWO PULLMAN TECH CASTS TO PRESENT 'TOP O' THE WORLD'

Two casts will present the same operetta, "Top o' the World," on Friday and Saturday evenings. On Friday, the Pullman Tech Glee club will take the rôles, and Saturday the Pullman Tech Alumni Glee club will take the parts. The operetta was written by Estelle Merrymon Clark and Hilda Butler Farr, and the latter is directing the two casts. Each performance will begin at 8:15 o'clock in St. Willibrord's hall, 11407 Edbrooke avenue.

Helen Benicky.
[Manor Studio Photo.]

Alumni players are Evelyn Moore, Jean Vollmar, Madlyn Povlock, Janice Hoekstra, Joanne Gerritsen, Anne Valk, Katherine Goreham, Richard Carlson, Debs Barker [guest player], Bill Moore, Bennie Veronie, Norman Semrau, Bill Mendel, Henry Kruize, Harold Kruize, and Ray Long.

The dancing chorus, made up of school glee club members, will perform both evenings. Shirley Hendriks will do a solo Indian dance and Carol Royster, a guest, also will dance. Eugenia Jendryasek will be the pianist for Friday, and Arthur Muehl for Saturday.

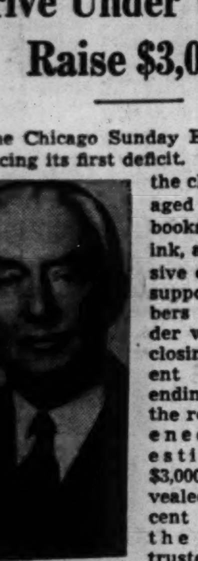
SUNDAY EVENING CLUB IS FACING ITS FIRST DEFICIT

Drive Under Way to Raise $3,000.

The Chicago Sunday Evening club is facing its first deficit. For 32 years the club has managed to close its books in black ink, and an intensive campaign for supporting members is now under way to avoid closing the present fiscal year, ending May 31, in the red. A threatened deficit estimated at $3,000 was revealed at a recent meeting of the board of trustees.



Clifford W. Barnes

Increased expenses this season are due partly to the fact that the president and founder of the club, Clifford W. Barnes, has been unable to take part in the administration and give informal Bible talks in Orchestra hall as he did for 25 years. Also, new activities have developed thru the growth of the club, such as the midweek social meetings for young people and a Monday council for the men.

Decline in Income.

On the other side of the ledger, there has been a marked decline in income during the last few years. There has been a loss of funds thru the death of several generous donators, lower interest rates on the club's small investment fund, lower collections in Orchestra hall due to the reduced economic status of the audience, and a falling off in annual subscriptions from business sources.

The budget of approximately $40,000 has been met without great strain in former years. The club was one of the first large nonsectarian religious organizations to meet with success and leaders of all denominations thruout the world have approved its purpose and spoken from its platform.

It was the first service of worship on the air, over KYW in 1922. Under the club's administration setup, its board of managers is composed of 35 business men, who are members of various church bodies. Among the pioneers on the first board of trustees were John G. Shedd, A. C. Bartlett, Charles L. Hutchinson, and Frank Armstrong.

Back for Another Talk.

Dr. Harold C. Phillips, minister of the First Baptist church, Cleveland, O., is being returned by popular request as speaker for the 8 o'clock meeting this evening in Orchestra hall. His first appearance was on April 7. Tonight he will speak on "Three Truths About God." Mr. Barnes will preside and Edward Foss Wilson will participate in the program.

Dr. Phillips was born in Jamaica and came to the United States in 1912. He preached in small churches while studying at Denison university, Granville, O., and later entered Union Theological seminary. His first important pastorate was the Mount Vernon Baptist church in New York City. Since Dr. Phillips was assigned to his Cleveland church in 1929, the congregation has doubled. His preaching is noted for its humanitarian appeal.

HOOSIER SALON TO OPEN EXHIBIT WITH TEA FRIDAY

The Hoosier Salon Patrons association will sponsor an exhibition by Glen Mitchell of Minneapolis, Minn., and Charles Reiffel, San Diego, Cal., from Friday thru May 31 in the Hoosier Art gallery, 211 Wacker drive, suite 814. Gallery hours are from 9 to 5 o'clock and on Saturdays until 3 o'clock.

The exhibit will open with a program and tea at 2:30 o'clock Friday. Karl Plath, a Chicago artist connected with the Brookfield zoo, will talk on "Birds That I Paint," and Rudolph Mohr, horticulturist at the Garfield Park conservatory, will discuss "The Distribution of the Orchid."

Hostesses will include Mrs. Charles F. Amacker, Mrs. Victor Anderson, Mrs. Delbert K. Baggs, Mrs. H. P. Bruner, Mrs. Chester W. Cleveland, Mrs. Clarence Lee Holtzman, Mrs. Philip Maxwell, Mrs. Harry Mock, Mrs. Paul W. Paver, Mrs. Pearl Power, Mrs. Clifford Rogers, Mrs. G. L. Shideler, Mrs. A. Paul Vignola, and Mrs. T. K. Williamson.

SALEM CHURCH LUTHER LEAGUE TO HAVE RALLY

"Torchbearers" will be the theme of the fellowship service to be given by the Luther league of Salem Lutheran church, 74th street and Calumet avenue, at 7:30 o'clock this evening. Dr. O. A. Bensow, pastor of the congregation, will speak on "Torchbearers, Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow." The remainder of the program will include singing by the Boys' chorus of the league and the reading of 30 Bible verses on "light," one for each year of the Augustana synod Luther league's history. Jack Bauman is in charge of the program and Miss Viola Wackelin is president of the league.

Bring Old Mexico to U. of C.

Ordinarily you must go south of the border to find a scene like this, but it will be repeated often with variations Wednesday evening as part of the "Fiesta Mexicana" to be presented in International house, 1414 East 59th street. Senorita Concepcion Alvarez (left), Senor Eugene Ressencourt, and Senorita Flora McGuire will play important roles in the 24 numbers depicting the life of the Mexican people, including dances typical of Guerrero, Yucatan, Oaxaca, Jalisco, and Coahuila. Mexican dishes will be served in the International house cafeteria and a Mexican orchestra will play. Consuls of the Spanish-American countries have been invited to attend.

CHEERS TO RING FOR STEINMETZ HIGH ON RADIO

600 Young Citizens to Attend W-G-N Show.

From Chicagoland radios tuned to W-G-N at 7 o'clock Wednesday night will come a rousing cheer, signal that "Citizens of Tomorrow" is on the air again. This half hour high school program sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will feature the Charles P. Steinmetz High school, located at 3030 North Mobile avenue. Six hundred students, accompanied by their principal, Daniel F. O'Hearn, will be present in the new W-G-N audience studio to give this enthusiasm to the occasion.

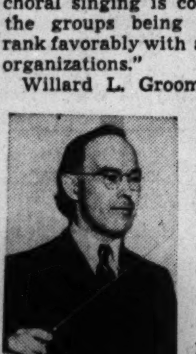
Daniel F. O'Hearn.

It will be the fifth program in a series of 11 Wednesday night weekly broadcasts dedicated to the youth of America. The last program for the school year will be held the night of June 12 when the Wright Junior college students will be guests. Next Wednesday night Waller High school will be represented.

Philip Maxwell, a member of THE TRIBUNE staff, who is the "Principal" on the broadcast, says that he never realized before what talent for song and pep there is in the younger generation.

"The W-G-N engineers have to watch that the volume doesn't wreck the delicate broadcasting instruments," he said, "and as far as the choral singing is concerned, some of the groups being presented would rank favorably with adult professional organizations."

Willard L. Groom will direct the Steinmetz mixed chorus in three numbers, the school loyalty song, a patriotic number entitled "Chicago" by Granville English and the "Happy Isle," by Bantock. Those cheers which the late Dr. Steinmetz might have compared to some of his man-made thunder, will be led by James Taylor, Grace Tveter, Loretta Wagner, and Steve Walker.



Willard L. Groom.

Miss Ruby Yetter, radio chairman at Steinmetz, has aided in preparing the program.

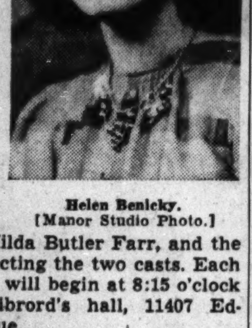
Altho "Jerry," the 16 year old high school senior, plays the part of one not too scholastic on the program, her principal, Thompson R. Foulkes, at Maine Township High school near her home in Park Ridge, says that she not only is a member of the National Honor society but is one of the most popular students. She is a winning orator, president of the school girls' club and recently was chosen the girl with the happiest smile in the entire school.

To Charlie Jones, the third character in the show, who depicts the part of every school's engineer custodian, will fall the task of relating some of the brief history of Steinmetz which is only six years old, and he'll probably delve into the early history of the community to tell all about the O. A. Thorpe school, the oldest elementary public school in that area.

One of the most popular parts of the show is the weekly Tribune news quiz which is conducted by Mr. Maxwell. Just before going on the air Announcer Pierre Andre picks out six students from the audience and they compete for cash awards totaling from $10 to $15.

TWO PULLMAN TECH CASTS TO PRESENT 'TOP O' THE WORLD'

Two casts will present the same operetta, "Top o' the World," on Friday and Saturday evenings. On Friday, the Pullman Tech Glee club will take the rôles, and Saturday the Pullman Tech Alumni Glee club will take the parts. The operetta was written by Estelle Merrymon Clark and Hilda Butler Farr, and the latter is directing the two casts. Each performance will begin at 8:15 o'clock in St. Willibrord's hall, 11407 Edbrooke avenue.



Helen Benicky.

SCHOLARSHIPS AT U. OF C. GO TO 15 SOUTH SIDERS

One of Them Credited to Rhodes Scholar.

Fifteen south siders are among the 143 University of Chicago students who recently received fellowship appointments from the university. The fellowships were awarded, according to George A. Works, dean of students and chairman of the committee on fellowships, on the basis of "proficiency in the student's department of advanced study and for evidences of ability to do original investigational work."

Among the new fellows is Robert Higgins Ebert, Rhodes scholar who returned to the university last fall when the war halted study at Oxford university. Mr. Ebert, who resides at 5462 Cornell avenue, is the son of Dr. Michael H. Ebert, assistant clinical professor of dermatology at the university's school of medicine.

The other fellowship winners are Joseph Axelrod, 6037 St. Lawrence avenue, Romance languages and literatures; James C. Braddock, 5338 Greenwood avenue, zoölogy; Mary S. CLUB BANQUET IS SCHEDULED FOR WOODLAWN

The annual banquet and installation of officers of the Associated Clubs of Woodlawn will take place Monday evening, May 6, at Burton court, 60th street and Ellis avenue. Mrs. J. Scott Matthews is the new president of the clubs.

Other newly elected officers are Leo T. Heid, vice president; M. M. Shaw, treasurer; Miss Ethelyn Ahern, recording secretary; Mrs. Robert Hann, corresponding secretary; John Gorby, publicity; Mrs. Scott V. Eaton, membership; Mrs. A. L. Ray, ways and means, and Mrs. C. I. Palmer, program.

On the committee program are Mrs. J. R. Chitwood, Miss Mary Young, Mrs. Hugh Cordick, Miss Ethelyn Ahern, and Mrs. L. J. Anderson.

HOW LILAC DAY HELPS CRIPPLES ALL YEAR THRU

MakesFlowerLovers of Children.

"Lilac day" means more than the temporary enjoyment of a fresh bouquet to inmates of homes for handicapped children on the south side. It turns them into amateur gardeners and permanent flower lovers, heads of the Martha Washington Home for Dependent Crippled Children, 4448 South Michigan avenue, and the Francis Juvenile Home, 5141 South Michigan avenue, have observed.

The "Share Your Lilacs" campaign is sponsored annually by the Chicago Plant, Flower and Fruit guild and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. The guild gathers the flowers from home gardens, parks and estates in the Chicago area, and THE TRIBUNE'S trucks distribute them to hospitals and charity institutions. The day for this year's shipment will be announced as soon as the lilacs are ready to bloom.

"Two important changes have occurred here since we've been getting lilacs," said Mrs. Sue Keller, superintendent of the Martha Washington home. "We now have a colorful atmosphere in the house and it would appear we're going to have a back yard garden this summer. Where we formerly had a kind of drabness in the big rooms of this home, we now have such things as towels and curtains in cheerful colors. We decided to put some color in the children's lives once we noticed how quickly they responded to the fresh color of the lilacs and other flowers.

Flowers Are Planted.

"And this year we've got petunias, marigolds, and morning glories planted in our back yard and should have something there to look at in a few months. You see, we make it a point to teach the boys and girls how to sort lilacs and put them in vases, because this gives them a personal interest that stays with them.

"One day this spring they told me seeds were being sold at the Christopher school, 51st street and Artesian avenue, where they go every day. So I gave them each two pennies to buy a package and they exulted because they would be able to grow their own flowers."

The home is maintained by the Martha Washington club, of which Mrs. Frank J. O'Brien, 6741 South Euclid avenue, is president. Fifteen years old, it includes 32 boys and girls from poor families who are being rehabilitated—that is, taught how to make the best of their handicaps. Mrs. Lewis J. Wilner of the Ambassador East hotel instructs them in occupational therapy. Mrs. Keller is assisted by Miss Ruth Haven of 2461 North Menard avenue, a social service worker, and four nurses.

Finds "Lilac Day" Helps.

Much the same story was told by Miss Celia Ferguson, superintendent of the Francis Juvenile home, which was begun in 1909 and has 21 girls between the ages of 2 and 14.

"We're very glad about 'Lilac day' because of the change it has wrought in our children," she said. "It's really surprising the interest in flowers that has developed in these children. I never realized children—even those five and six years old—cared so much, but each year the coming of the lilacs brings it forcefully to my mind."

A really active interest is shown, she pointed out, in that each child has a proprietary concern for her bouquet and is frequently seen watering it or arranging it in a vase.

This has led to flower boxes in the rear of the home.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

KING of De Paul university's senior ball Saturday evening will be Wilfred O'Sullivan of Lemont. A member of Phi Kappa Alpha and Blue Key fraternities, he will reign appropriately in the Louis XVI. room of the Hotel Sherman and will lead the grand march as the escort of Miss Eileen Tiede, arts senior. Mr. O'Sullivan was given the honor as president of the arts senior class.

Among the 27 undergraduates at De Paul who have been elected to membership in Pi Gamma Mu, national social science fraternity, are Marshall Lamore of Kankakee; James Murray, 9630 Longwood drive, and Norman Sullivan, 3440 West 61st place.

R. O. T. C. cadets aren't the only students who stand straight at Hyde Park High school. Thirteen girls were singled out recently by Joseph F. Gonnelly, principal, for posture awards in the annual contest held in the gymnasium. Winner in the senior division is Mary Lawrence, with Rita Huck and Angie Chionis tied for the runner-up position. Estelle Kalleck and Virginia Hirning won the first and second places respectively in the junior division. Sophomore winners were Betty Foote, first, and Donna De Witt and Evelyn Morgan, tied for second. Lillian Gyselinck and Frances Backstorm were first and second respectively in the freshmen division. Helen May Borgia won out over Eva Jane Farrar and Shirley Sorenson in the freshmen contest at the branch school.

Today the most envied boys at the Hyde Park Y. M. C. A. are the eight older fellows who are getting ready for tomorrow's departure to Camp Martin Johnson, 30 miles north of Ludington, Mich., on Big Bass lake. There they will spend a week canoeing, hiking, and cleaning up the camp for the summer season. Glen Rugh, engineer at the "Y," will lead the expedition, accompanied by Dave Frazier, 5440 Cornell avenue; Emerson Sayell, 1407 East 53d street; Bob Rich, 5460 Greenwood avenue; Al and Frank De Somer, 5345 Dorchester avenue; Bob Eckberg, 5438 Kenwood avenue; Bob Glaves, 5450 Kimbark avenue, and Ray Wilke, 1418 East 54th street.

ENGLEWOOD High school's latest honor roll is topped by Lois Gilbert, a sophomore, who was given a mark of superior in all her major subjects. This, however, is nothing unusual for Lois, whose report card has shown nothing but superior grades since she entered high school. Other high ranking students at Englewood are Herman Graff, freshman, and Mildred Lindquist and Jeanette Lubowich, both sophomores.

ARLAN BAILLIE, son of Mrs. John Baillie of 7829 Burnham avenue, will be ordained to the ministry in the Congregational church of Southwest Harbor, Me., on Saturday. A graduate of Bowen High school and the Central Y. M. C. A. college, Mr. Baillie took his B. D. degree at the Chicago Theological seminary in June, 1939. He has been associate pastor and director of music in Southwest Harbor, at the Tremont Larger parish on Mount Desert Island, since last October. His mother and sister, Esther, will be present at the ordination ceremonies.

Two Our Towners are helping to arrange the annual college day celebration Tuesday at Rosary college, River Forest. They are Miss Jane Waldron, 10531 Longwood drive, who is issuing invitations to the affair, and Miss Claire McCahey, 4850 Greenwood avenue, who is planning the program. The program will include a dance, sports events, a picnic lunch in the woods, a processional to the Grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes and a formal banquet in the evening.

FIFTEEN year old Arline Brownell of 9201 Marshfield avenue is composer of the music and lyrics of the official Tri-Hi-Y song for all Chicago's Y. M. C. A.'s this year. She was fêted recently at the fourth annual city-wide Tri-Hi-Y banquet, attended by 232 high school girls.

Mrs. Katherine Barbear, 2842 East 80th street, has been appointed health service chairman of the South Shore Red Cross unit. Mrs. Barbear, who has been an instructor in home hygiene and care of the sick for the chapter, will organize classes in home hygiene and for instruction in foods and nutrition. Also recently announced was the awarding of a volunteer service pin to Mrs. Margery Huntress, 4940 East End avenue. The pins are awarded to Red Cross volunteers upon the completion of 144 hours of service.

PLANT GUILD WORKS ON TRAIN SCHEDULE FOR LILAC SHARING

Officials of the Chicago Plant, Fruit and Flower guild last week completed their organization for lilac day when 150 members, including guild chairmen of garden clubs, held their annual luncheon at Carson, Pirie, Scott tearoom and drafted final plans. The schedule of trains that will furnish free transportation for the lilacs is to be worked out this week.

The ten division chairmen of the guild are keeping in close touch with lilac growers in their territories in order to determine when the blooms will be ready to cut.

Each division chairman will report to the Chicago headquarters of the guild on May 5 and again on May 10, giving detailed information about the opening of the lilac blossoms in the various sections. T. V. Purcell, guild president, said yesterday that the distribution date likely could be determined from the May 10 reports.

PANDA MOTHERS CLUB WILL GIVE PLAY SATURDAY

A playlet, "Relax," will be given by the Panda Mothers club, a Hyde Park group, at 8 o'clock Saturday in the Neighborhood club, 56th street and Dorchester avenue. Proceeds will go toward maintaining a free WPA play school at 5638 Harper avenue and a free WPA nursery school at the Neighborhood club.

The nursery cares for little children who are given a hot lunch, supervised play, and instruction, between 9 and 3 p. m. daily. The play school takes children of 4 and 5 years of age and has two sessions daily from 9 to 12 and from 1 to 3 p. m.

The community council of Hyde Park, Kenwood, and Oakland is cosponsor with the Mothers' club. Mrs. Patrick Mulholland, 5474 Harper avenue, is president of the club.

Shooting Toward Championship

It's neither baseball nor flowers nor romance that really matters to American small boys in the spring. It's crouching in the schoolyard or playground, sternly studying the marbles within a crude circle in the dirt, and bagging a dozen flashy knucklers from the local champion with your favorite "aggie." Last week the further incentive of making progress in the park district marble tournament added zest to the contest between (left to right) David Lindblad, 2309 East 69th street; Richard Krinsley, 6723 Oglesby avenue, and Jerry Simon, 2116 East 68th street, pupils at the O'Keefe school. Next Saturday winners of the local parks contests will advance to the district meets at Grand Crossing, Davis Square, Douglas, Hermosa, Wilson, and Welles parks. From each of these parks six boys will be chosen to compete in the city-wide championships at Douglas park on May 11.

FINDINGS TO AID ENTIRE CITY IN HOME PLANNING

Conservation Major Aim in Study.

BY PAUL HEALY.

Work on the $70,000 Woodlawn Conservation plan, an experimental approach to the problem of saving "borderline" neighborhoods from deterioration, was launched last week when 12 appraisers began a tour of inspection of selected south side residences. The work consisted of examining, photographing, and sketching exteriors and interiors of buildings, and making specific recommendations to an appraisal committee.

The plan is an attempt to find a housing program which will renovate Chicago residential areas which are becoming undesirable, altho they have transportation, parks and industries valuable to the future planned development of the city. Coöperating in backing the plan are neighborhood organizations, large and small Chicago business interests, the Chicago Plan commission, and other city departments, and federal governmental agencies, including the Home Owners Loan corporation and the Federal Housing authority.

Three Main Objectives.

Specific objectives of the project are:

1. Compiling of complete information on each property for the sole use of the interested owner.

2. A general community plan for future improvements in transportation, recreation and zoning.

3. A series of intensive studies of about 50 typical Woodlawn properties and plans for their modernization.

Total cost of the project, including that contributed by the WPA, is estimated to be about $70,000, of which $23,000 is supplied by sponsors.

Woodlawn was chosen for the experiment "because it is a good example of what is happening in many of the city's communities," Robert B. Mitchell, director of the project, explained.

Mr. Mitchell pointed out that the Woodlawn district has excellent transportation, is near the South Chicago, Clearing and Calumet industrial areas, the airport and the stockyards, and has a large number of churches and schools. It also is represented by nearly all of the building types found in similar city areas.

Will Assemble Facts.

In order to eliminate or suppress conditions which are tending to reduce property values, Mr. Mitchell said the plan requires analysis of the complex neighborhood situation and the isolation of factors which may be treated. The first task of the project is the assembly of pertinent physical and economic information about the community and the individual properties within it.

"A docket is being prepared," he said, "on each of the approximately 2,800 properties in the area, which will include a description of kind and condition of structure, occupancy, rentals, and facilities from the land use survey. To this is added a record of tax delinquency, mortgages, ownership, and assessed values from public records. Photographs are taken of each major structure."

On the basis of this field work, the possibilities for improvement of the property will be studied at three levels:

1. Maintenance, which includes cleaning, painting, and such repair work as is necessary to preserve the structure.

2. Modernization, which means replacement of obsolete details or equipment without structural alterations.

3. Structural changes, either to convert the building to a different number of dwelling units, or to rearrange room in conformance with modern living requirements, or to introduce light and air into dark rooms.

Will Make Recommendations.

Technical committees on appraisal, management, and architecture will then pass on recommendations for each type of structure in the various subneighborhood areas. A committee of persons experienced in real estate finance and representing various private and governmental agencies is now being established under the chairmanship of Horace Russell to explore financing now available for various classes of property in the area thru private or governmental sources.

Finally, Mr. Mitchell explained, "neighborhood planning studies will be expressed in an item-of-work program of community improvement. This will consist of a series of projects with their probable cost, a statement of their necessity and desirability,

On Advisory Board.

The general advisory board is headed by Frank J. O'Brien, chairman of the East 63d Street council. Members of the board are Graham Aldis, Ward Farnsworth, Newton C. Voice of the South Side

Readers of the Metropolitan Section are invited to contribute to this column on matters of neighborhood interest. Readers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Full names and addresses must be given. No manuscripts will be returned. Address Voice of the South Side, The Tribune.

SOPHOMORE SPEAKS.

Out here in Englewood we have some brand new rules about letters. A fellow can work hard and earn a letter for himself in the 4B semester, but can't get another letter for the same activity in the 4A semester. And if he takes a letter for some activity as a 4B, he is automatically on his honor to go on being active and helpful in the same activity for the 4A semester.

The faculty letter committee has also decided that no student may receive more than one major and one minor letter in nonathletic activities. If a student gets recommended for letters in more than two activities, he just has to take his choice. What is more, a letter candidate has to have passing grades in all his major subjects at the marking period next preceding the award assembly.

In other words, letters aren't going to be easy to collect and the students will have to go in for some activities just for good old school spirit, because the letter awards are on a quota basis now.

SOPHOMORE.

WAITS FOR LILACS.

As a cripple who has been bedridden for 10 years, I think I am qualified to say a sincere word about the "lilac day" plan each year which means so much to us shut-ins. Once again I give thanks to THE TRIBUNE and the fruit, flower, and plant guild for starting and continuing such a fine thing. A flower may seem like an ordinary, simple thing to many persons on the outside, but to me—and others I know, like me—it is indeed a "thing of beauty"—fresh, living, colorful! We don't get many flowers, especially few lilacs [my favorite], where I am, so I almost cry every year when they bring me a bouquet.

Concordia College Glee Club to Be Heard Today

The Glee club of Concordia college at Milwaukee, Wis., which gave a series of concerts last week in the metropolitan area, will conclude with two appearances today. Directed by Karl Mackworth, with Alfred Fremder as accompanist, the club will sing at 4 o'clock this afternoon in Our Redeemer church, 6430 Harvard avenue, and tonight in St. Andrew's parish hall, 3700 South Honore street. Luther Schwartzkop, 948 East Marquette road, is president of the glee club.

CLOSE CONTESTS ARE REVEALED IN CONGRESS RACES

Complete Official Count in Cook County.

Close contests for both congressman and delegate to the national party conventions were revealed when the results of the official canvass for Cook and Lake county congressional districts were announced.

Districts 1 to 10 are in these two counties. The closest congressional race in these ten districts in the April 9 primary, according to the canvass, was run in the 3d district by two Republicans, Waldemar J. Roehler and Goodwin L. Dosland.

Roehler, a young real estate banker making his maiden try for political office, won the Republican nomination by a margin of only 299 votes over Dosland, who was his party's nominee two years ago. Roehler was credited with 19,807 votes and Dosland with 19,508. Friends of Dosland are discussing the possibility of a recount.

Delegate Race Ends in Tie.

Two candidates for delegate to the Republican national convention from the 6th district ran a dead heat for second place, the canvass revealed. They are Philip E. Gilbert of Chicago and Joseph A. Coyner of Oak Park, each of whom received 19,668 votes. Julius H. Miner of Chicago was first with 31,219 votes and thus was assured one of the two delegate posts.

The tie between Gilbert and Coyner for the second post probably will be decided by the toss of a coin under the supervision of the state canvassing board, as provided by law, according to Daniel A. Carey, head of the Cook county clerk's election department.

Convention Might Decide.

Some observers said such a procedure would not necessarily be conclusive. The loser of the toss, they said, could appeal to the credentials committee of the national convention.

The table below shows the vote for the various candidates for congress and for delegate as determined by the canvass, made by the Chicago election board and the county clerks of Cook and Lake counties. The asterisks denote sitting congressmen, and the names of the primary winners in each district appear in boldface type.

CHARITY DANCES ARE PLANNED BY JEWISH GROUPS

Different Organizations Are to Benefit.

The Temple Seniors of Isaiah Israel and the Fort Dearborn A. Z. A., junior order of B'nai B'rith, will hold charity dances next Sunday afternoon. The Temple Seniors will give their third annual "May Swing" in the Shoreland hotel and the B'nai B'rith dance will take place in Temple Isaiah Israel, 51st street and Greenwood avenue.

Proceeds from the former affair will be turned over to the Ruth Frank Memorial fund for charity work. One of the objects of the fund is supplying a scholarship for the religious school of Temple Isaiah Israel. Theodore Decker and Lester Fried are co-chairmen of the dance, assisted by Jane Fried, Florence Decker, Anita Altschul, Elmore Frank, Marge Marienthal, Harry Wertheim, Helen Bleadon, Ethel Frank, Elinore Schwartz, and Elaine Ullman. Martin Bassist is president of the organization.

The junior B'nai B'rith is sponsoring its dance for the benefit of Jerome Safur, member of the fraternity who is suffering from infantile paralysis. Local members of Fort Dearborn in charge of arrangements are Leon Kaplan, 6543 Greenwood avenue, chairman; Stanley Harrison, 829 East 52d street; Myles Friedman, 5228 Ingleside avenue, and Morton Paul, 5308 Hyde Park boulevard.

Rebecca Junior chapter of the Mizrachi Women's organization will give a benefit card party on May 8 in Rodfei Zedek temple, 54th place and Greenwood avenue. Proceeds will be used for a Palestinian home for Jewish refugee girls. Miss Frances Markus, 5334 Greenwood avenue, is chairman of the party, assisted by Eleanor Pavlas, Bessie Marcado, Esther Weiss, Katherine Rauchman, and Esther Young.

Installation of Mrs. Ralph Reis as president of Isaiah Israel Sisterhood will take place at the sisterhood's annual spring luncheon Wednesday in the Shoreland hotel. Other officers to be installed are Mrs. Iddell Davis, first vice president; Mrs. Joseph Rubin, second vice president; Mrs. Alvin Kramer, third vice president; Mrs. Herman Korach, recording secretary; Mrs. Edwin Myers, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Edward I. Singer, financial secretary, and Mrs. Walter Silberman, treasurer. Rabbi Morton M. Berman will conduct the installation.

One of the entertainment features will be a reading of Elmer Rice's play, "Two On an Island," by Miss Olga Rosenova, actress and dramatic reader. Miss Irene Stolofsky will play the violin.

Rabbi Samuel M. Blumenfield, dean of the College of Jewish Studies and national chairman of the board of the Society and Advancement of Hebrew Culture, will give an address on the life and work of Rabbi Solomon Bar Isaac of Troyes, France, on Saturday evening, May 11, in the ballroom of the Covenant club. The occasion will be the communal observance of the 900th anniversary of the birth of the Talmudic commentator.

PROGRESS LODGE OF CROATIANS TO HAVE BIRTHDAY

Progress lodge, No. 9, of the Croatian Fraternal Union of America will celebrate its 45th anniversary with a banquet this evening in the Croatian auditorium, 9622 Commercial avenue. Guest at the dinner will be the union's national vice president, William Boyd-Boich, state senator and Democratic floor leader in the Ohio state legislature.

Other guests will be Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], Dr. Harry E. L. Timm, Republican committeeman of the 10th ward; Victor L. Schlaeger, clerk of the Superior court, and Dr. A. S. Mioduski, state representative [13th]. Presidents of other local lodges of the union also will be present to offer congratulations.

Officers of Progress lodge are Anton Svetlicich, president; George Gugich, secretary; Anton Saric, treasurer, and Matt Saric, recording secretary.

Will Lecture On Art.

"Virtues and Vices in Medieval Art" is the title of the lecture to be given by Prof. Adolf Katzenellenbogen, formerly of the Warburg institute in London, at 4:30 o'clock Thursday in the classics building of the University of Chicago. TWO CONCERTS ARE ARRANGED BY U. OF CHICAGO

The department of music of the University of Chicago will present two special festival concerts featuring the University choir and symphony orchestra, the Fourth Presbyterian church choir and the Collegium Musicum Chamber orchestra next Sunday and on Saturday, May 11.

Next Sunday's concert, which will be given in Rockefeller Memorial chapel, Woodlawn avenue and the Midway, will be played by the combined University choir and the choir of the Fourth Presbyterian church, with the University symphony orchestra accompanying.

Mack Evans of the university, and Barrett Spach of the church, will conduct. Maurine Parzybok, soloist of the church choir, will sing the "Magnificat," by Ralph Vaughan Williams, which has never been heard in Chicago.

Also on the program will be Gustav Holst's dramatic setting of Psalm 86, with Paul Nettings, tenor, and Miss Anne Burmeister, soprano, as soloists, and Psalm 24, with setting by Lili Boulanger. Frederick L. Marriott will be at the organ.

The May 11 concert, in Mandel hall, will be given by the Chamber orchestra of the university's Collegium Musicum, conducted by Siegmund Levarie. The orchestra will play Bach's Brandenburg concertos Nos. 1, 4 and 5. Jean Williams, pianist, and Helen Kotas, horn, will be among the soloists.

Miss Kotas recently received an appointment for next year to a chair in the horn section of the Pittsburgh Symphony orchestra under Fritz Reiner. Miss Williams is the recent winner of a contest to play with the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

LOSE WEIGHT

this amazingly, easy safe way

Irene Rich, lovely star of the screen and radio, now past 40, weighs the same as she did at 16. She recommends the easy Welch way to reduce.

If you want to take off ugly fat easily and pleasantly all you have to do is— First ... eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating. Second .. mix ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ of a glass of water and drink before meals and at bedtime. Thus you reduce caloric intake considerably. But you do not suffer a hungry moment. There are no strict diet lists, strenuous exercises or taking drugs. Yet!—in a test conducted by Dr. Damrau of New York, with this method among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, an average weight loss of seven pounds was registered per month. This remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men as it is for overweight women. There is only one thing to watch. Eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating; and be sure to use Welch's Grape Juice—always made from the pick of the grape crop; always full strength; always pure.

Try This Amazing Welch's Tomato Juice
If you think all Tomato Juice is alike, try Welch's new, vitamin-rich Tomato Juice. It is so rich and thick you can add ⅓ water or ice and still have a most delicious Tomato Juice.

SYMPHONIC HOUR TO MAKE BOW ON W-G-N TONIGHT

Tribute to Association of Commerce Planned.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The new W-G-N Symphonic hour, to be presented by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE as a public service, will make its bow from 9 to 10 o'clock tonight over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. The Symphonic hour will be presented by the W-G-N Concert orchestra, directed by Henry Weber, with Marion Claire, renowned soprano, and Michael Wilkomirski, noted violinist, as the soloists. There will also be an augmented chorus.

An added feature of the Symphonic hour will be a gesture of honor each Sunday evening to one of the great organizations of the community which contribute to the security, prosperity, and welfare of the public. Tonight the tribute will be paid to a specially invited audience of the Chicago Association of Commerce, headed by President Oscar G. Mayer. Frank J. Loesch, Chicago's civic leader and ormer president of the Chicago Crime commission will speak briefly.

Other Tributes Planned.

In subsequent programs, special tribute will be paid to the police and fire departments, the army, prominent educators and the men who deliver the mail.

The second of the invitation affairs will be given in honor of the army. Officers of the United States army will be studio guests next Sunday when Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, commander of the 6th corps area, is to deliver the talk of the evening.

Miss Claire, beautiful star of opera, screen, and radio, was born in Lake Bluff, Ill. She made her first operatic appearance in "La Bohème" in Rovigo, near Venice. Since then she has starred in many operas and operettas including "The Great Waltz" and "Bittersweet." She is to star in "Bittersweet" in the new W-G-N Theater of the Air next Thursday at 9 p. m. She made her film debut in "Make a Wish." In private life, Miss Claire is the wife of Mr. Weber, who is musical director of W-G-N and artistic director of the Chicago Opera ocmpany.

Concertmeister at W-G-N.

Michael Wilkomirski, concertmaster of the W-G-N Concert orchestra, is rated by critics as one of the nation's finer violinists.

Wilkomirski was born in Moscow of Polish parents. His father, a teacher in the conservatory there, trained him as a very small boy. He made his debut when only six.

Steelmakers to Salute Bethany College Today

A musical salute by the Mutual network's coast-to-coast "Musical Steelmakers" to Bethany College's Centennial will be heard on W-G-N from 7:30 to 8 p. m. today.

The Bethany College alma mater song, Ardenne White, singing "Angel in Disguise," and collegiate capers by the entire cast, including Dorothy Ann Crowe, the Steele sisters, the Old Timer, Regina Colbert, and the orchestra will round out this program from Wheeling, W. Va.

Kay Kyser to Be Guest on NBC Bandwagon Tonight

Kay Kyser, the old professor, will be answering the questions instead of asking them when he and his orchestra are guests of Henry M. Neely, m. c. on the Bandwagon at 6:30 p. m. today over WMAQ-NBC.

'BITTERSWEET' IS FIRST SHOW IN THEATER OF AIR

Marion Claire, Melton to Star in W-G-N Series.

The Chicago Theater of the Air—W-G-N-Mutual's new program featuring great operettas—will present as its first offering from 9 to 10 p. m. next Thursday Noel Coward's "Bittersweet." The series will be presented by THE TRIBUNE.

Marion Claire, brilliant soprano of operetta, radio, movie, and concert fame; James Melton, distinguished tenor, and an augmented chorus and concert orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber, and a dramatic cast will give the operetta before an invited audience of 600 persons including 100 officers from the United States naval training station at Great Lakes. The operetta will be aired over the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

William A. Bacher, noted radio producer and director, brought to Chicago from Hollywood, will produce the operettas which have been adapted for broadcasting in 60 minutes by Noel Gerson.

Miss Claire as Sari Linden.

Miss Claire will portray the part of Sari Linden. It is a familiar part for her. She is one of the three outstanding vocalists who have appeared in this part. She appeared in the "Bittersweet" company here with Allan Jones opposite her several seasons ago.

James Melton will sing the rôle of Carl Linden, the young music teacher who elopes with Sari. Melton has had starring rôles in movies, concert successes, and operatic hits in addition to his perfomances on many coast to coast radio programs.

Orchestra to Be Enlarged.

Miss Claire and Melton will be supported by an augmented chorus, a cast of outstanding Chicago radio actors, and an enlarged concert orchestra directed by Mr. Weber, musical director of W-G-N and of the Chicago Opera company.

Among the Coward songs which will be heard are "I'll See You Again," "Tokay," "Zigeuner," "Call of Life," and "Small Café." An original musical theme has been composed by Mr. Weber for use in the series of operettas.

Following "Bittersweet" will be "The Student Prince," by Sigmund Romberg, to be broadcast May 16.

Editor's Daughter

JOAN BANKS.

Two popular daytime serials—"Mary Foster, Editor's Daughter" and "Linda's First Love"—will be aired over W-G-N starting tomorrow. They are not new stories to Chicago listeners, but this is their first appearance on W-G-N. "Linda" with Arline Blackburn as star, will be aired at 10:45 a. m., and "Editor's Daughter" with Joan Banks playing the lead at 11 a. m.

Linda Crockett and Mary Foster have much in common. Their lives are aimed toward a sensible, normal married life when they find and win the ideal man, but beyond this the stories differ. Linda's back-breaking duty of caring for an invalid foster-mother and father as well as a stepson has made her life a hectic one.

Pull the Trigger on Lazy Bowels, and Also Pepsin-ize Stomach!

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

Tallulah Bankhead, one of the nation's outstanding actresses, will be starred on Fifth Row Center over W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system from 7 to 7:30 p. m. next Friday.

Miss Bankhead will be heard in a special radio play, "Hurricane,"

Miss Bankhead is appearing in Lillian Hellman's play, "The Little Foxes," at the Selwyn theater. The show, which had a run of more than four hundred performances on Broadway, has been hailed as one of Miss Bankhead's greatest triumphs.

In "Hurricane," she will play the rôle of a young wife whose marriage nears a breakup because of indifference and a series of misunderstandings.

Born in Alabama.

A native of Alabama, Tallulah is a daughter of Speaker William B. Bankhead of the house of representatives, and a niece of Senator John Bankhead. She scored her first great stage hit in London in 1922, when she appeared with Sir Gerald du Maurier in "The Dancers." Prior to that she had appeared in several ingenue rôles on Broadway.

She starred in "They Knew What They Wanted," in London. She did numerous other shows across the Atlantic, including "Her Cardboard Lover," "The Green Hat," and "Camille." In the eyes of the British she was the greatest of all American actresses.

After nine years in London, Miss Bankhead returned home, and has appeared in such plays as "Forsaking All Others," "Something Gay," "Reflected Glory," "I Am Different," and revivals of "The Circle" and "Rain." Her biggest hit in the United States has been in "The Little Foxes."

In "Hurricane," Miss Bankhead will be surrounded by a cast of outstanding radio actors.

'Faust' to Be Presented on Radio City Music Hall

A portion of Gounod's "Faust," with Tenor Jan Peerce singing the title rôle, will be presented by the Radio City Music Hall of the Air Opera company at 11 a. m. today over WCFL. The cast also will include Charlotte Symon as Marguerite, Lorenzo Alvari as Mephistopheles, Robert Weede as Valentin, Louise Bernhardt as Siebel, and Llopis de Olivares as Wagner. Erno Rapee directs.

Bonnie Baker, Tucker on Mutual Show of Week

Orrin Tucker and brown-eyed Texan, Bonnie Baker, will make their first appearance on W-G-N-Mutual's "Show of the Week" from 5:30 to 6 p. m. today. They will, of course, present for the umptieth time, "Oh, Johnny."

On W-G-N

Tallulah Bankhead, star of the stage play, "The Little Foxes," who will make a guest appearance on the Fifth Row Center program on W-G-N-Mutual at 7 p. m. next Friday.

UNUSUAL HOUSE HAS LIVING ROOM ON SECOND FLOOR

Dining-Recreation Space Found on First.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

What makes a house a home, with roots deep down in treasured soil, instead of just—another house? Money often has precious little to do with it, or size, or style. It is rather a matter of fine taste, excellent planning, and a meticulous attention to detail.

When Mr. and Mrs. Reginald G. Schuler, 337 Oakland avenue, Highland Park, decided to build they discussed many matters with their architect, William N. Alderman, 19 East Pearson street, Chicago. When the house was completed it had a background especially designed for the owners; a house with an unmistakable atmosphere, personal and inviting.

The design is a careful blending of the modern and the traditional. Distinctive details have given it a note of importance, and discreet planning has added materially to its feeling of space.

Stay In Their Budget.

Mr. and Mrs. Schuler had definitely decided how much they wished to spend on their home, and Mr. Alderman kept to their figure. [Always a satisfying accomplishment to all concerned.]

The interesting and unusual layout is partly a result of the decision to keep within a stipulated budget. Here is how it was done.

Mr. Schuler had very much wanted a large recreation room in the basement, but Mr. Alderman pointed out that such a feature would increase estimated costs. So a compromise was reached, and a most unusual combination dining room and recreation room was planned for the first floor. Quite a man's room, and treated in the lively Mexican spirit. Then, on the second floor was a living room with studio ceiling—carried out as Mrs. Schuler wished.

May Be Enlarged.

Informality on the first floor. More formal touches on the second. And possibilities for various entertainment, formal and informal, as the occasion dictates.

As you approach the house, which stands on a beautifully wooded site, a flagstone walk leads to a quaintly walled-in garden and a doorway of stone, and at the right of the entrance doorway is the door which leads to the garage.

The exterior walls are of brick for the first floor, with cream colored stucco panels on front and vertical wide boards of cypress.

Inside you see the intriguing combination recreation-dining room, with beamed wood ceiling and a two story stairwell to the second floor. This large room faces two ways, and opens onto a wide screened porch—thru folding doors and an opening 9 feet wide. When these doors are "folded" open the effect is virtually to bring the porch into the room.

At the far end is a 16 foot wide fireplace which extends across one entire wall, with a red brick hearth 6 feet deep.

The kitchen likewise has a beamed wood ceiling, with planks painted white, and dark brown beams. The cases are white, the floor a handsome red linoleum tile. There are lively touches here in this room, red and yellow splashes of color in the Mexican vein.

From the colonial-keeping room a two story stairwell rises to the second floor.

Here there is a large, studio ceiling room, designed as Mrs. Schuler desired, in delicate pastel shades. The floor is a light oak, and there are stunning white rugs and soft toned gray-blue walls. The entire room is dominated by a fine colonial mantelpiece.

Study Off Living Room.

There is a diminutive, intriguing study opening from the living room. A window on one side overlooks the garden area of the house. Opposite this wall is a honeycombed opening overlooking the stairwell.

In the hall there is a built-in space for a disappearing type of bed. A retreat which offers extra accommodation for the extra guest.

On this second floor there also are two bedrooms and bath. The bedrooms have closets with sliding doors, with cane panels for ventilation.

The living room opens onto a large screened porch. The overall of living room and porch is some 26'x18'. In the warm weather months this living room and porch can be counted as one room a great deal of the time, as the opening is 11 feet wide, with doors which slide into wall recesses.

Improving Aim at Fenger High

Spring, to the Fenger High school R. O. T. C. cadet, means rifle practice. Here Corporal Ralph Skagh (left), Staff Sergeant Charles Anderson, and Cadet Laurence Erickson take part in preliminary exercises, known as "triangularization," before going on the range for actual firing. Next winter the 10 highest scorers from each of the school's six companies and band will participate in an intercompany competition.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, April 29.

Garden activities open with a rush after the cold weather of spring, and it is necessary that all operations be done at the proper time. Transplant or rearrange perennials early to permit each divided plant to become established as soon as possible. Attention to the shrubbery includes early spading thru the plants. Shrubs need food as much as other plants. Planting may continue as long as the material can be obtained, but early planting is best. Be sure that each shrub has plenty of space, good soil, and that the plant is set only slightly deeper than it grew in the nursery. All broken roots should be cut back, the tops pruned, and old wood removed. Tamp the soil around the roots. Leave a depression around each plant and give it lots of water.

Tuesday, April 30.

When pruning roses remove all the prunings to prevent the spread of disease parts. It is good practice to feed roses when the buds are breaking. Spread a complete commercial food around each plant and hoe it under. Make a second application just before the flowering period, but do not feed after Aug. 1. Roses in this section are best planted in spring.

Wednesday, May 1.

If you have any of the common snowball plants on the grounds, be sure to spray with an oil spray just as the buds start and afterward at intervals of a few days with nicotine sulphate and soap. This should control the aphids that cause the leaves to curl. Spray young peony growths with bordeaux. Sulphur dust is excellent to control mildews, rusts, black spot on roses, red spiders, and mites.

Thursday, May 2.

Divide hardy chrysanthemums in spring. Transplant the shoots in rich soil about 9 inches apart. Hardy asters and boltonia also should be transplanted now. If a shipment of plants is received and they are dried out, plunge in water or bury in wet soil for a few hours until they have revived, then plant. Most annual flower seed can be sown within a short time. As soon as the tulips have ceased flowering, sow annuals between them, such as phlox drummondi, poppies, California poppies, nasturtiums, and sweet alyssum.

Friday, May 3.

Save a lot of time by spraying liquid weed killer in the walks and drives. Try a few stra berries If you have a coldframe you may enjoy a lot of sweet scented flowers by planting violets. The plants winter well and bloom early in spring.

Saturday, May 4.

Wait until the soil is warm and there is no danger from late frost before planting tender plants outdoors. Gladioli can be planted at intervals of two weeks until about June 15 for a succession of bloom.

9,203 ENROLLED IN CITY'S PUBLIC SCHOOL R. O. T. C.

Record Set with 7,609 Cadets in Uniform.

A new high mark in Chicago public high school R. O. T. C. enrollment has been set by this semester's official figures, released by Col. W. F. Morrison, director of the public schools unit. They show a total of 7,609 uniformed cadets in the 27 high schools which offer R. O. T. C. instruction, as compared with 7,238 for the semester which ended in February.

Besides these, there are 1,594 freshmen enrolled, for whom uniforms are not supplied, thereby giving the public schools a total enrollment of 9,203 cadets. There were 1,514 cadets without uniforms last year.

150 Extra Uniforms.

A yearly average of no more than 7,500 uniforms is allotted to the city schools by the 6th corps area army headquarters, but an extra allotment of 150 uniforms was obtained for this semester last week, and according to Col. Morrison every qualified student who has applied for a uniform has received one.

Lane Technical High school continues to lead the city schools with a total enrollment of 1,059, including 898 cadets with uniforms. Crane jumped from fifth to second place, with an increase in enrollment from 408 to 492. The Lake View unit is third in size, with 476 cadets.

The large increase in enrollment at Crane has taken place since Sergt. James C. Pinneo became instructor there last fall. Sergt. Pinneo, however, ascribes it to the fact that Crane is for boys alone, and that interests spread rapidly among boys.

How Schools Compare.

The total enrollment, both with and without uniforms, in the various school regiments, is as follows: Amundsen, 293; Austin, 451; Bowen, 299; Calumet, 317; Crane, 492; DuSable, 318; Englewood, 284; Fenger, 326; Foreman, 215; Harrison, 260; Harper, 208; Hirsch, 273; Hyde Park, 386; Kelly, 154; Lake View, 476; Lane, 1,059; Lindblom, 380; Marshall, 183; Morgan Park, 301; Roosevelt, 240; Schurz, 422; Senn, 390; Steinmetz, 305; Sullivan, 301; Tilden, 434; Von Steuben, 204, and Waller, 230.

The only other R. O. T. C. unit in the city is at St. Mel Parochial High school, where there are 545 uniformed and 219 freshmen cadets enrolled.

Austrian Pianist to Lecture at U. of Chicago This Week

A series of public lectures on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday afternoons this week will be given by Artur Schnabel, Austrian pianist, in Leon Mandel hall of the University of Chicago. The programs, which will mark his lecture debut in the United States, will be entitled "Some Aspects of Music." Mr. Schnabel has edited all of the works of Beethoven.

JACKSON PARK CAMERA CLUB TO HOLD EXHIBITION

Fifty prints made by members of the Jackson Park Camera club will be on display this week at the amateur photography exhibit in the Woodlawn branch library, 6247 Kimbark avenue. John Maurer, president of the club, has announced that the exhibit will include many winning prints from recent salons.

The club will hold its weekly meeting at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening in the main assembly hall. Andrew Tau, studio director of the club, will supervise a demonstration of lighting and guests and members will be permitted to take pictures from the audience. A model in Russian dancing costume will be used as the subject.

Among the exhibitors are Ed Rezsel, 7003 Oglesby avenue; R. M. Stevens, 1448 East Marquette road; Andrew Tau, 6730 Jeffery avenue; Marshall Clemeau, 6356 Greenwood avenue; Edmund Coy, 1515 East 63d place; Charles Lindsay, 6557 Ingleside avenue; Earl Christensen, 5336 Drexel avenue; Duke Manthey, 6331 Kimbark avenue; Harry Howe, 7255 Euclid avenue, and John Hodgson, 1640 East 68th street.

Pan-American Tea Given by World Library

By Cousin Eve.

The Library of International Relations in the Crerar building is one of the most going concerns in Chicago. Miss Eloise ReQua is director librarian, the Rockfeller Foundation has contributed, and the board of trustees has the following esteemed citizens: John C. Bay, Frank Breckinridge, Edward Cassells, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Henry Field, Mrs. William B. Hale, Walter H. Laves, Mrs. W. M. McGovern, Bernadotte Schmidt, David Shillinglaw, Edward Byron Smith, Mrs. John Stephan, Adlai Stevenson, George Voevodsky, and Quincy Wright.

The Library of International Relations is growing by leaps and bounds, and in one of its departments are papers and pamphlets giving both sides of any dispute, which sounds a bit dry, but is, after all, interesting and fair. The library had a Pan-American tea on Tuesday, with Latin American printings and an exhibit of books and official documents lining the walls. Present and receiving with Miss ReQua were Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Field, and Mr. and Mrs. George Voevodsky. Also Mrs. Robert Gregory, Mrs. Hambleton Kirk, and Miss Minna Lindsay of Boston. This first cousin of Henry Field has been spending the spring in Chicago doing Red Cross work for France. She is so pretty and so different that plain everyday adjectives don't seem to fit. Boston after all contributes very finished products.

Following this interesting tea a letter came from a trustee and patron of the library. It said, "Stupidity, cupidity, and ignorance are three main causes of the world crisis. There's nothing to do about the first. The second disregards the Golden Rule. The third, ignorance, is a cause which the International library strives to combat, in an effort to make the world a more decent and peaceful place to live in."

It's like bringing coals to Newcastle or culture pearls to Japan to carry a society for appreciation of music to Chicago. Yet that's what is going forward Tuesday night at the Drake. At a dinner given for Chicago's topmost in civics and economics, guest speakers will launch a campaign in our fair city. Among these speakers will be Hendrik W. Van Loon, Mme. Olga Samaroff Stokowski, Fannie Hurst, and Dr. Peter W. Dykema.

Mme. Samaroff's classes in musical appreciation have had vogue in New York. Men went to them, and one found there Marshall Field, Bernard Baruch, Mrs. Charles Mitchell, Mrs. August Belmont, and other devotees of music too numerous to mention. Mme. Samaroff lectured at the piano, illustrating the themes, crashing into great masterpieces and explaining what it was all about. Such classes have been done in the past by Walter Damrosch, and in this town by Mrs. William Crosby, a fascinating character in times before the great war.

The Chicago committee on music appreciation has Mrs. Walter Brewster, Mrs. Walter Cummings, and Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne.

Those beautiful flowering pear trees that bloomed thruout the Racquet club for Carol Bush's and Frederick Emeny's wedding reception were brought from the Hudson river. They were marvelous, and many thought it the finest wedding party ever, and found this newly done wing of the Racquet club perfect for large entertaining.

Randolph Weaver, the poet, younger brother of John, writes from Nice that the slopes are drifted pink and white on the French Riviera, and that apple, plum, pear, and cherry trees are doing their level best. The Mediterranean is bluer than blue and those everlasting rocky hills, les Alpes Maritimes, are purple at dusk as of yore. What wonder, then, that Mrs. Dudley Root, passported and elate, is setting sail on May 5 for her lovely little villa on Cap d'Ail. Or that Mrs. Harry Spencer Brown is willing to fly in order to see the Gramedos in their new Château de Born near Bordeaux. Comte Jean de Gramedo, the young heir, has been mobilisé and is off to defend his country. And Geoffrey Goetz, husband of Consuelo de Gramedo, has been on the Maginot line ever since early September, and, being normally an active business man, finds inaction wearing.

Le Ray Berdeau, who has been taking lessons in aviation at Palm Beach during the winter, has acquired a yen to open Villa Aujourd'hui at Antibes, and do his bit for France. The villa was offered to the French government as a hospital, but up to date has not been needed. Mrs. Berdeau, who was formerly Mrs. Charles Chadwick of Chicago, likes Long Island better, for the moment, and is taking a house there for the spring and summer.

DANCE CHAIRMAN

Miss Willemine Oelerich is general chairman of the annual charity dance which will be given on Friday by the Rosary guild of Rosary college. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Oelerich of Wilmette.

The hat parade Tuesday at the Esquire theater was clever and beautifully done. As entertainment it cost nothing, and the ladies of the Children's Memorial hospital seated in the lobby had 605 presents handed in by friends of the White Elephant. The theater was glorified by scores of patrons in new spring oddities, ready to compete for the award, a divine hat creation in a chic cellophane box. Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, and Mrs. Walter B. Wolf awarded the prize to Mrs. Eugene Howard. Her hat was a tiny white lid with widespread, gauzy, sail-like wings at the back, poised on smoothly coiffed dark hair. The chic of Mrs. Charles Glore and Mrs. John Winterbotham is definite, and both were stunning in hats that were largely vegetable compounds, rhubarb, parsley, spinach, and lettuce leaves, with a few carved turnips for good measure.

Mrs. William B. Greenlee's hat, which was a garden of fresh, purple pansies with wise little faces, made me think of a story current these days concerning a lady en route to a funeral. Her hat was a gay one covered with bright flowers, so she stopped at her milliner's and bought one more suitable. The floral hat was carried in a box which she left in the last pew during the service. And later, alas! the box was there, but the hat was gone, and a quick search discovered it en route to the cemetery with other flower wreaths and sprays.

When our friend arrived at the cemetery, her flower hat had disappeared forever and ever. She was too late.

"Adventure in Diamonds," the movie given to entertain the smart crowd, was one of the snappiest of plays with wonderful views of South Africa. Maybe they were taken in California, but somehow the diamond mines and the British subjects seemed very real. Mrs. Frank Hibbard and Mrs. Philip Swift, in delectable white hats, were moving spirits as announcers at the mike during the hat events.

One knows as to these large happenings, if they entertain or if they bore, and this was distinctly on the side of pleasure.

Tomorrow night at the Mayflower in Washington a fine dinner will be set in the ballroom. It is the annual get together with speeches of the American section of the International Chamber of Commerce, Eliot Wadsworth of Boston will preside, inasmuch as he is chairman of the section, and will speak on "The World Situation."

Other speakers will be Winthrop W. Aldrich, Thomas J. Watson, and Paul Van Zeeland, former premier of Belgium.

This banquet opens a four day convention and annual meeting of the chamber of commerce, and as delegates are accompanied by their wives, charming in spring array, it is far from being a dull affair of commerce. It's as gay and social a period from April 29 thru May 2 as exists in this world of ours today.

Going down from Chicago are Mr. and Mrs. Silas Strawn, Gen. and Mrs. Thomas Hammond, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hastings, Mr. and Mrs. David Crawford, Charles S. Dewey, the James Cunningham, A. H. Mellingers, George Eastwood, Guy Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wynne, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Sidley, Mr. and Mrs. John O. Black, Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Morton, Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Heacock, the T. A. Potters, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Affleck, Oscar Mayer, and Mr. and Mrs. James S. Kemper.

They decide at this time on the foreign country wherein the international chamber will hold its biennial convention in 1941. Last year the junket was to have been to Tokio, but the war put that off in favor of Copenhagen, one of the charming capitals of Europe, where food and drink are ample and good, and where there are no poor and no rich.

The king and queen of Denmark gave an elaborate garden party for 1,500 delegates from 41 countries at Fredensborg castle, with the entire Danish royal family in the receiving line. The queen was a royal German princess of Wurtemburg and is popular with the Danes, who love the democratic simplicity of their rulers. Even in early July the idea of a German invasion was not new in Denmark. Among the delegates to Copenhagen were Clark H. Minor of New York and Mrs. Minor, who came in from Russia. Clark Minor is a colonel of industry with a byline of sculpture, going in for portraits of the great and the near great.

In Moscow he was allowed to enter Lenin's tomb at off hours and make a study of his features, preserved under glass. Mr. Minor made several of these eerie, not to say uncanny, visits in the small hours, and came away well satisfied. He felt he had got something, and that is everything to an artist.

They take a calm view in Denmark of the lovely Barbara Haugwitz-Reventlow, young and blonde wraith of an heiress whose second husband was a noble Dane. Kurt Haugwitz-Reventlow is the second son of this high born family, and it is his older brother who bears the title of Count Reventlow and is lord of the ancestral castle. When Kurt Haugwitz-Reventlow came home to Denmark with his wealthy bride, he asked his brother, the count, who was a bachelor, if he would betake himself to the small dower house on the estate and give them the occupancy of the castle. Count Reventlow refused to give up his domicile to his new sister-in-law, and inasmuch as Kurt was not the titled head of the great family, domestic troubles began which have now grown into a separation. In several European countries courtesy titles are used by younger branches of great houses. On their visiting cards under their given name is a phrase: "Belonging to the Princes of Ostia" or "Of the Dukes of Clermont-Tonnerre." Countess Sybille Reventlow, a slim Nordic beauty who came here last year as lady in waiting to the crown princess of Denmark, is a sister-in-law of Barbara Hutton. Young Robert Sweeney, who was in the spotlight at Palm Beach as a favored suitor of the lovely heiress, is a good looking man with an ample income. Tall, dark, and athletic, he goes in for golf and tennis.

Another bachelor who cut a wide trail in Palm Beach during the season just ending was Arthur Bradley Campbell, only son and heir of the late marchioness of Huntly of London. He was a guest during the whole period of Mr. and Mrs. Le Ray Berdeau at "Today," who liked no end having a popular celibataire in the house. Lady Huntly adopted two young orphan nieces ten years ago, the Meuser girls, Lucile and Helen. And she was ready to present them at a spring court two years ago when she died, leaving them to the care of their bachelor uncle.

Arthur Campbell is now about to introduce the young nieces to Washington society at a dance, inasmuch as his Grosvenor square house in London is for sale and Washington is his home town. The Misses Meuser are to be launched with much éclat, and the ball will possibly equal in splendor the magnificent party given this winter by "Buzzy" Hewes, another bachelor, for his little niece, a lovely young thing from New Orleans. The Hewes dance given at the Sulgrave club was the best, they say, given in Washington for yeahs and yeahs. Clarence Hewes is a most delightful host, also a former pal of the duke of Windsor in his bachelor days. Also he is a former career man in our state department.

The last seven days were Youth week, and one has to hand it to the younger generation. At least one can hand it to Betty Borden Pirie for putting over a financial success where oldsters saw, if anything, not much. Out of a midnight preview of some arty glassware, champagne and a little ballyhoo, she came forth with $3,000 for the Illinois Children's Home and Aid. On her young shoulders has dropped the presidency of that important charity. For seven years her mother, Mrs. John A. Carpenter, steered it forward, but now has the success of the newly organized Chicago Opera on her mind.

It was an interested and comprehensive group at Mrs. Carpenter's house for tea last Friday. Tea came first, as is the style nowadays. Then brass tacks. Mrs. Carpenter presided from a tabouret on the hearth rug, with her usual grace and informality, calling upon the new executives. Walter Kirk, president, had amusing whimsicalities on his new job. Then Henry Weber, maestro, outlined the coming season, with a first night of good old "Aida" with John Charles Thomas and Martinelli. So much was said for our new chorus, now in the making, that expectations are running high.

Chauncey McCormick, who is the new chairman of the board of the opera, said he was looking forward to the next season. Chicago has a past of the greatest opera tradition, he said, and by coöperation with the Metropolitan in New York can easily have exchange of operas and artists, instead of costly competition. Mr. McCormick has already conferred with the New York group, including Mrs. August Belmont and Mme. Lucrezia Bori, and prepared the way for allied action between the two cities.

Dr. Frederick Stock was present with Mrs. Charles Swift, who sang an aria at the last symphony concert, and Mrs. Carpenter called upon the noted conductor to give his views. Dr. Stock said among many other interesting things that it was not enough to give opera in Chicago: "It must be good opera; otherwise it were better not to give it at all."

In the audience were Dr. Marshall Fabyan of Boston, brother-in-law of Chauncey McCormick; Mr. and Mrs. Clark J. Lawrence, Mme. Rosa Raisa, Mrs. A. H. Patterson, Mrs. Loyal Davis, Miss Elsie McCormick, Mrs. George T. Langhorne, Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris, Mrs. Walter Kirk, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mme. Marion Claire, and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey.

Maxine Siegel Bride of Dr. B. Schwartz March 10

The marriage of Miss Maxine Siegel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Siegel of 5045 Drexel boulevard, to Dr. Ben C. Schwartz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Schwartz of 6042 Champlain avenue, took place on March 10 at the Shoreland hotel.

Lynne Thiesen Betrothed to Kenneth L. Strachan

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas J. Thiesen of Evanston announce the engagement of their daughter, Lynne, to Kenneth L. Strachan, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Strachan of Oak Park.

The Diary of Art Critic on Week's Travels

By Eleanor Jewett.

If an art critic kept a diary it might run something like this:

Monday—Did get two bits of good news in the morning mail: Oskar Gross, Chicago portrait and figure painter, won the $200 Municipal Art League Purchase Prize in the Chicago Artists show at the Art institute which closed recently and Anna Lynch, portrait and miniature painter, was awarded the Association of Chicago Painters and Sculptors medal for her portrait of Franklin Miller in the exhibition at the Chicago Galleries, 215 North Michigan avenue, a good show.

Then did go around the town to see what was new in the galleries and found the harvest was great. The Northwest Art league, the Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker, president, has hung its spring exhibit at St. Paul's House, 3830 North California, and a gay exhibit it is. Richard Chase does show his prowess in portrait painting and Jessie Field in the painting of flowers. Did find much to like in pictures by Josephine Eastman, Julia Sulzer Griffith, Mary Lowell, Ella Perl, Elling Tronnes, Florence Wyman Whitson, and Ted Vognild.

Downtown by way of the Drake hotel where Theodore Glass is showing water colors and pencil drawings sponsored by the All Illinois Society of Fine Arts; did find the show not so pleasing.

Then to the O'Brien galleries at 820 Tower Court where a refreshing exhibit of water colors of trees by Eliot O'Hara is hanging. This a truly fine exhibition; the pictures well handled; pattern and structure emphasized.

Tuesday—Did look further into the art situation in Chicago and did find two superb exhibits quite out of the ordinary. At the Tretyakov Galleries, 673 North Michigan avenue, is sculpture by Boris Lovet-Lorski. He is a man who has lived an adventurous life and has made a success of a difficult art. His sculpture is very beautiful, being in different stones and of different kinds. There are imaginative pieces and portraits. Great delicacy and feeling distinguish much of it. Line and composition are important to him, and beauty. This is a superb show to be marked with many stars.

A little north is still another different and fine exhibit. At Steuben Glass, Inc., 900 North Michigan avenue, John M. Gates has assembled a fascinating exhibit which he calls "Twenty-Seven Artists in Crystal." Peter Hurd, John Steuart Curry, Grant Wood, Thomas Benton, Georgia O'Keeffe, and Isamu Noguchi are among the noted artists represented in the designs that decorate these pieces of flawless crystal. A most unusual and delightful exhibition. No one should miss it.

Wednesday—Did find more galleries in which new exhibits had been installed. Carl Austen has an amazingly good show of recent ballet studies, "The Ballet at Rehearsal," at the Leo Buntman gallery, 17 North Wabash avenue. Mr. Austen does portray his dancers with finesse. His show is fresh and full of charm. Note the poses. Has he not a keen perception of line and color? Mr. Austen is one of a slowly increasing group of fine painters among the younger men.

Did find at Albin Polasek's studio, Tree Studio building, the stunning model of this great sculptor's Masaryk memorial, an equestrian figure, inspired and impressive. The statue is to be erected in Chicago to become one of Chicago's great assets. It will rank with St. Gaudens' Lincoln and Lorado Taft's Fountain of Time. Gives thought—what of St. Gaudens' "Puritan"? Has he been restored to his place of guard of American democracy at the door of the Art institute? Sculpture needs spokesmen and cherishing in Chicago.

Thursday—A swift impression of the etchings which make up the exhibit at the Hoosier Art gallery, 211 West Wacker drive, the Indiana Society of Print Makers' Traveling exhibition. Ione Hirsch and Chester Leich do both employ donkeys to good advantage. Ella Fillmore Lillie does please in "Mountain Church," L. O. Griffith in "Swinging Bridge," Doel Reed in "Silence," George Jo Mess in "Two Stars," and Frederick Polley in "Doric Temple, Charleston, S. C."

Did find Paul Theobald showing in his gallery, 104 South Michigan avenue, pastels of cacti blossoms by a Tucson woman and color woodcuts by Edith Jane Bacon of Winnetka. An exhibit whose charm commends it.

In the Tudor gallery, Chicago Woman's club 72 East 11th street, an exhibit of recent paintings by Mrs. John O'Connor, a member of the club and a past president. The exhibit is pleasing.

On Thursday, too, a quick survey of the interesting exhibit of pictures by Nan Rice, Tunis Ponsen, May Gilruth, Florence White Williams, and others at the Woman's University Club of Chicago, 410 South Michigan avenue. The pictures are colorful and in keeping with the season.

Friday—News from C. Curry Bohm of an exhibition of his landscapes at the Laura Davidson Sears Academy of Fine Arts of Elgin academy. Mr. Bohm's landscapes are a high spot in any exhibit; a one man show is an event.

By mail: "Venus in Orvieto" by Paul Trebilcock and "Grains of Wheat" by Dale Nichols have been chosen for inclusion in the All-American exhibition of contemporary art to go on view in the International Business Machines Corporation Gallery of Science and Art at the New York World's Fair and the Golden Gate Exposition. This collection was assembled and purchased by the company from each of the 48 states, the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands. It represents the first art venture of its kind ever undertaken by a business organization.

In selecting their paintings the local juries everywhere were motivated by one idea: to choose that canvas which best represented the artistic development and character of that state. The Illinois choice is greatly to the credit of Illinois. Dale Nichols and Paul Trebilcock are two outstanding American painters uninfluenced by modernist vagaries.

P. Winthrop Sheffers drops the announcement of his one man show at the Pere Marquette hotel, Peoria, Ill., to April 30. The paintings are marines and landscapes, a good group.

On Friday to the American Academy of Art, 25 East Jackson boulevard, where J. Allen St. John is exhibiting a group of original illustrations and paintings in the school lobby. The brilliant self-portrait, just completed, one of the outstanding events of the show.

To the America Fore gallery, 830 Rush street, where the Chicago Society of Artists is holding an exhibit of graphic art. Many of the prints and drawings are most pleasing.

Saturday—The North Shore Art guild opens its annual spring exhibit at the Club Woman's Bureau, Mandel Brothers. There, too, is an exhibit of paintings by John Hanny and C. A. Nicolai, these pictures hang in the tea room. The exhibition is gay, colorful, vivacious. It will continue to May 18.

Sacred Heart Alumnae Will Recall Past

The days when students at the Sacred Heart convents wore black serge school uniforms, lost a "très bien" if a spot appeared on the tablecloth, carried their apples and notebooks in large, black sateen reticules tied to their waists, and had to wear black gloves when they received visitors in the parlor, will be recalled Saturday by members of the Alumnæ Association of the Sacred Heart of Chicago and Lake Forest. The occasion will be their 50th annual luncheon at Barat college in Lake Forest.

A program, "Convent Styles of Yesteryear," will be presented, with slides showing early classes and their costumes. Among those who will have the most interesting recollections will be Mrs. John P. Byrne and Mrs. John P. Boyton, both of whom were graduated from the old Taylor street convent in the class of 1876.

The Taylor street convent, first Sacred Heart convent in Chicago, was founded in 1858, only a few years after the death of Mother Phillipine Duchesne, founder of the order in America, who will be beatified on May 12. After less than a year in a rented house on Wabash avenue, the school was moved to a home on the corner of Rush street and Illinois avenue, and a year later, was moved again into a new building on Taylor street. A parochial school, attended by about 1,000 children, was maintained here in addition to the convent school.

In 1904 the Taylor street convent was moved to Lake Forest, where both the Academy of the Sacred Heart and Barat College of the Sacred Heart now are located.

A second school, opened in 1876, for years was housed in a building adjoining the cathedral, and now is situated on North Sheridan road.

The 10th anniversary of the Jugo-Slav Club of Chicago will be celebrated with a reception, dinner, and ball Saturday evening at the Congress Casino. Native music will be presented by a string tamburitza orchestra, and a modern dance orchestra also will play. Former presidents will be special guests.

Miss Smilya Poupitch.

Dr. John Ruzich was the first president of the organization. Miss Smilya Poupitch and Miss Anne Marie Kapov will be among the hostesses at the party.

The Illinois Woman's Press association will have Cary Ashton Johnson of Rockford, Ill., a member for 50 years, as special guest at its annual dinner Thursday at the Woman's University club.

Awards will be made for the best editorial, feature article, poem, book, and play produced by members during the year. Dorothy Moulding Brown, president of the Wisconsin Woman's Press club, will speak on "Folklore as Source Material for Writers," and Mrs. D. J. Bless Jr., former president of the Missouri Woman's Press association, also will speak. Helen Miller Malloch, president of the Illinois association and founder of the National Federation of Press Women, will conduct the meeting.

The Independent German American Woman's club will have Mrs. Anna M. Schaedler, founder, among its special guests at the officers' spring luncheon Wednesday at the Auditorium hotel. A gypsy music ensemble will be presented. Mrs. Harry E. Hoff is president.

A spring fiesta will be presented following the annual spring luncheon of the Catholic Woman's league Saturday at the Stevens hotel. The Singing Ladies will be featured. Mrs. Harry L. Starkey has arranged the luncheon and the bridge party following.

Pi Omicron national sorority will hold its ninth annual Mothers' day breakfast next Sunday at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Dr. Hudson H. Pittman will speak on "Keeping the Ups and Downs in Balance," and Miss Ruth Castle of Fort Wayne, Ind., national president, and Mrs. Marie Cottrell of Chicago Heights, state president, will be guests. The sorority glee club will sing. Mrs. Sylvia Bender will be in charge.

The Chicago Women's auxiliary to the Railway Mail association will hold its annual installation of officers Wednesday noon at the Garrick building. Mrs. Clive J. Pettis succeeds Mrs. Glen E. Walker as president.

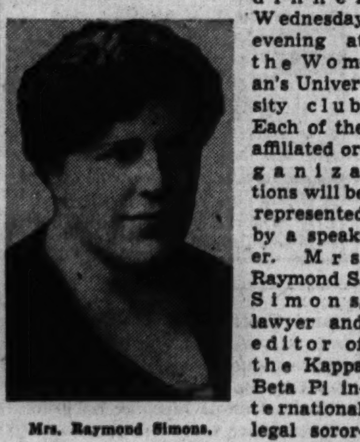
The Women's Professional Panhellenic association will give its annual dinner Wednesday evening at the Woman's University club. Each of the affiliated organizations will be represented by a speaker. Mrs. Raymond S. Simons, lawyer and editor of the Kappa Beta Pi international legal sorority official magazine, and vice president of the League of Women Voters, will be among the speakers.



Mrs. Raymond Simons.

Miss Georgia Veatch of Delta Psi Kappa physical education sorority; Miss Jessie M. Cleveland, past president of Phi Chi Theta, and Mrs. Marguerite K. Ullman of Sigma Alpha Iota will be among others presented.

The Employed Church Women of Greater Chicago will hold their second spring luncheon Saturday at the Central Eleanor club. Those present will be asked to consider the possibility of organizing permanently Helen Lee, a Chinese student, will sing, accompanied by Masuko Suda, Japanese kindergarten teacher now studying at the National College of Education, and Maria A. Palm Beach Set Relaxing with Rural Pursuits

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

Palm Beach relaxes with rural pursuits. Picnics and beach parties—all in super de luxe surroundings—take the place of teas, lectures, and more formal dinners. Folded away with memories and moth balls are evening frocks and dinner coats. Pajamas or slack suits are in order. Especially popular are Hawaiian silk shirts and shorts which transform sunbrowned socialites into Waikiki beach boys.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Johnson of New York gave a barbecue on the terrace of the Bath and Tennis club Tuesday night. Chickens were broiled over charcoal braziers. An accommodating moon gave 100 per cent service. There were 60 in the party, including many of the smart Chicago colony.

Miss Beth Coleman of Chicago had a group of the younger set in for a gay buffet supper at her home on Pendleton avenue. After supper guests gathered in the patio where some one played a miniature piano and everybody sang. Not only were the newest songs sung, but they even dipped the old oaken bucket down into the well of memory and brought up tunes that Mrs. John Coleman, the hostess' mother, declared she hadn't heard in years.

Mrs. Chauncey Olcott, widow of the famous Irish tenor, who is writing her reminiscences, gave a luncheon for 24 at the Bath and Tennis club on Wednesday. Mrs. Olcott wore a flowered print in green and orchid with a large picture hat in pink. The Archduchess Franz Joseph, one of the handsomest women in Palm Beach, wore a Palm Beach suit with fitted coat and open shirt collar. Mrs. Frederick Johnson was in chartreuse, while Mrs. George Stevenson Fenton wore a lavender sport dress. Mrs. Charles S. Davis of Chicago was in white with blue and white crownless sun hat. Mrs. Clegg Monroe wore a navy and red slack suit with matching hood.

Mrs. Paula Uihlein of Milwaukee gave a cocktail party Wednesday afternoon at her home on Queen's Lane, where she has as her house guests Mr. and Mrs. Matson Holbrooke of Milwaukee. Many Chicagoans were present.

The Chicago set was also largely represented at the luncheon which Mr. and Mrs. Ernest G. Howes of Boston gave at the Bath and Tennis club on Tuesday in honor of the Archduke and Archduchess Franz Joseph. On this occasion the archduchess, a stunning blonde, wore a white ensemble with an immense blue umbrella sized beach hat edged with woven fringe.

Pink begonias bloom in lonely solitude around the Beach club. The marigolds that border the walk no longer are swished by filmy skirts and malacca canes. The club is closed. The curtains are drawn and even the policeman's kiosk, from which traffic was directed, has been folded up and put away until next season. A wanderer on Worth avenue also feels like one who more or less treads alone. Bougainvillias drop their blossoms unheeded on the sidewalks and a crew of workmen is busy tearing up part of the pavement with a screeching air hammer. One workman was seen to look longingly in at a window displaying a powder blue dinner jacket dolled up with accessories in dubonnet. The material of the dinner jacket was blended worsted, and it was a very tempting sartorial tidbit.

Real estate men in Palm Beach are preparing for a Roman holiday this summer. Three large estates have been laid out for subdivision. There is talk of a new beach club in the north end of the island, and builders predict an active summer. Houses, it seems, will be somewhat smaller. The day when the domicile had to be as large as the Chicago Union station seems to be definitely over. New home builders are also shopping for furniture to make the 18th century drawing room as charming as the music by that name.

Many are here who have never before lingered so late in Palm Beach and many who thought to scoff at a late season are remaining to play—and to vote. The weather is ideal for fishing and every one, it seems, is taking a cruise to the keys.

Something New for Spring.

For something new for spring serving, top cooked asparagus with sliced, hard-cooked eggs, very lightly sprinkled with nutmeg. The colors give a gay effect.

ENGAGED

Miss Leona Elsie Becker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reinhold A. Becker of 3619 South Honore street, whose engagement to Emil E. Moltzan is announced today. Mr. Moltzan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Moltzan of 3551 South Hermitage avenue. Miss Becker is a graduate of Luther institute.

"And Pursuit of Happiness" P.-T. A. Theme

By Betty Browning.

The general course of action which the 27,000 member associations of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers will follow during the year ahead will be charted at the 43d annual convention next week at Omaha, Neb. "And the Pursuit of Happiness" will be the theme of the four day meeting, which rounds out Mrs. J. K. Pettengill's three year administration. The previous conventions during her presidency have dealt with "Life" and "Liberty."

Mrs. J. K. Pettengill.

There is a story behind this choice of theme. The story illustrates what the parent-teacher movement has meant to thousands of men and women—two-fifths of the 2,400,000 members are men—who have found thru it the means to become better parents.

Mrs. Pettengill chose the theme on her way back from a meeting of the World Federation of Education Associations in Japan, just a few weeks after her election as president of the national congress. Dark eyed, gentle voiced Mrs. Pettengill had entered parent-teacher work in 1924, wholly a novice, because she wanted to learn more about the rearing of her young son and daughter. Now, a scant 13 years later, she not only had been made leader of the national parent-teacher movement, but had headed the home and community section of this world meeting of educators.

On the leisurely voyage home from Japan, Mrs. Pettengill contemplated the parent-teacher movement which she now was to head. She had known it as a lay member who had been elected president of a newly formed association almost as soon as she had become interested in the work. She had won leadership in various fields, partly thru her talent as a public speaker, first cultivated at Wellesley; she had been president of the Michigan state organization; then fourth and first vice president of the national congress.

She had known parent-teacher work, too, as a student of parent education, for she is, in her own words, "an inveterate attender of courses," and had studied at the Michigan State college at Lansing, where she lived; at the University of Michigan; at Columbia university, and at Wellesley's summer school. Finally, with her appointment to the faculty of Wayne university at Detroit, had come a professional approach to the subject.

Looking back, it seemed to Mrs. Pettengill that the parent-teacher organization had "majored in trying to do something for children in the immediate present," without sufficient regard for the future.

"'To cure is the voice of the past,'" Mrs. Pettengill quoted in explanation. "'To prevent is the divine whisper of today.' We had concentrated on helping children to overcome their handicaps. Now the time had come when it seemed that we should be working to prevent these handicaps.

"It seemed that our goal should be to set up an environment in which handicaps cannot happen; that we should prevent handicaps by increasing the effectiveness of community resources. This, inevitably, would lead to our studying the type of environment that now exists, the resources that now are available, the kind of homes and schools actually provided.

"This, in turn, raises the question, 'what has the child a right to expect?' Which leads back to the constitution and 'life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.' Hence the theme which we have developed in the last three years."

The first year, Mrs. Pettengill explained, the national congress studied "Life," including under this topic health, education, safety, and other factors in a well rounded life. Under "Liberty," freedom of the child for growth and self-realization were studied in the second year, with emphasis on human relationships, civic responsibility, and economic efficiency.

"And the Pursuit of Happiness," the theme for this convention and for the following year, will summarize the previous two years, since, as Mrs. Pettengill put it, "happiness lies in the acceptance and use of our life and liberty."

The convention keynote will be sounded by Dean William F. Russell of Teachers college, Columbia university, Monday evening, May 6. Mrs. Pettengill herself will open the meeting with an address that morning.

"Foundations for Happiness" will be discussed Tuesday. In the morning Willard C. Olson, professor of education of the University of Michigan, will speak on "Beginnings with Children," and Dean Malcolm MacLean of the University of Minnesota junior college, on "As Children Grow Older."

In a panel discussion Tuesday afternoon, Grace Langdon, president of the National Association for Nursery Education, and Prof. Paul A. Witty of Northwestern university will be among the participants. Tuesday evening Prof. G. W. Rosenlof of the University of Nebraska will discuss "This Is Our World."

"Achievement of Happiness" will be the theme of Wednesday's sessions. G. L. Maxwell, assistant secretary of the Educational Policies commission of Washington, D. C., will speak in the morning on "Citizens in the Making," and Hugh S. Bonar will show a film illustrating how Manitowoc, Wis., where he is superintendent of schools, inducts persons into citizenship.

Robert K. Speer, chairman of the elementary education department of the New York University School of Education, will lead the afternoon's panel discussion. Wednesday evening Carleton Washburne, superintendent of schools of Winnetka and president of the Progressive Education association, will speak on "A Living Philosophy of Happiness."

"Safeguards for Happiness" will be Thursday's theme. Philip Klein, research director of the New York School of Social Work, and Bess Goodykoontz, assistant commissioner of the United States office of education, will speak in the morning.

Mrs. Pettengill, who was a member of the planning committee of the 1940 White House conference, will lead the afternoon discussion, in which Coleman Woodbury, director of the National Association of Housing Officials, and Dr. Edwin F. Daily of the federal children's bureau, will be among the participants. The final banquet session will be held Thursday evening.

Two proposals to be brought before the convention are that the national congress' name be changed and that its objects be restated. The National Parent-Teacher association is the new name proposed. The present name has been in use for 16 years. It is proposed to restate the objects in terms of present day trends "which permit more freedom of action for the local P.-T. A."

Mrs. William Kletzer of Portland, Ore., has been nominated to succeed Mrs. Pettengill as president. The candidate has made a notable record in educational and social service work in her state; was chairman of a state survey of public welfare facilities; has served on the state child welfare commission and has been an officer in the Council of Social Agencies. Besides varied services to the parent-teacher organization, which include the state presidency and the regional vice presidency, Mrs. Kletzer has been Americanism chairman of the state American Legion auxiliary and editor of the Oregon Federation of Women's Clubs magazine.

Mrs. William A. Hastings of Madison, Wis., has been nominated for first vice president; Howard V. Funk of Bronxville, N. Y., for vice president of the north Atlantic region; Mrs. Charles D. Center of College Park, Ga., for secretary; and Mrs. James K. Lytle of Los Angeles, Cal., for treasurer.

After her retirement as president, Mrs. Pettengill will go this summer to Hawaii to teach at the University of Hawaii. Until last June she continued to lecture at Wayne university. In addition to visiting parent-teacher organizations in almost every state and American possession, Mrs. Pettengill also has found time to edit the National Congress' monthly magazine, with a circulation of 75,000, for most of the time that she has been president.

Besides serving on the planning committee for the 1940 White House conference, she likewise was chairman of the planning committee which recently set up the National Council for Mothers and Babies, in which some 58 organizations are interested. She also has taken part in numerous conferences on child welfare and allied topics.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

The result of much of my preaching is all too often sad rather than salutary. Every time I write an article extoling a certain type of bid or play, I am sure to get letters bitterly pointing out that my advice, "when absolutely correctly applied," had proved a boomerang in such and such a hand; had even put my luckless correspondents in the position of being bawled out to the queen's taste by their infuriated partners. Strange to say, these reproachful letters never set forth the hand or specific situation in which the complainers were trapped, so I am always denied the constitutional right of defending myself. It is a little difficult—and futile besides—to suggest that perhaps my suggested bid or play was used under slightly different conditions from those I had in mind. A rebuttal as specious and vapid as this would, I am sure, be swept aside with a few grunts of contempt. Just because my experience along these lines has been so disappointing, I give the greater and more sincere welcome to such a letter as the following:

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: The bridge we play down here is likely a little substandard—certainly mine is. In one of your newspaper articles a year or so ago, you made the point that defensive play involved more skill or resourcefulness than the declarer's play. This seems to me to have been vividly illustrated in the following hand which the breezes of chance distributed at one of our recent stag sessions:

NORTH

"East and West were vulnerable, one of them being a noted geologist, the other a drilling contractor, both being tough babies who try to hit the jackpot with great regularity and little provocation. The geologist is a Ph. D. with card sense, if you get me.

"I was sitting South, dealing, and mildly nominated one heart. West thought one spade was in order; my partner, a railway rate expert who never took a chance in his life, passed. East thought his short clubs justified two spades; I figured I had stuck my neck out too far originally and passed. West decided the core showed signs of oil and went up to four spades. We were not vulnerable, so when it got around to me I doubled. I'll spare your chaste ears the invectives following that sally of mine, but our game begins with 'you louse,' and works up from there.

"My partner, with childish faith in my double, led a heart. I covered East's jack, dubiously as the card went down, but with a great feeling of thankfulness when West's ten spot fell. Then, without thinking much, I led the diamond ace.

"At this point I went into a huddle with myself and, honestly, thought of more things than it's possible to put down readily on paper. I had to think about West's original bid, laying it up against his previous long and sinful life—then I had to think about what my partner would lead thru that dummy if, by some miracle, the club king was in his hand. In the end the answer was that the opposition would make an overtrick if West had that king—we had a chance to set them if my partner had it. So I led the six-spot of clubs.

"Back from my old and trusted partner came the deuce of diamonds—and West's scream could have been heard over in the Osage nation.

"My lecture to the defeated parties, after the moaning had subsided, was to the effect that a defending player must always make a play which has a chance to defeat the contract—even tho, if the play fails, it permits overtricks. Had I led the sure trick in my hand, the club ace, that would have definitely assured the opponents a game and rubber. Hence, I simply had to take the play that had a slim chance to succeed. This line of reasoning, I vaguely remember, was the thesis of one of your articles some years ago—and my purpose in writing this is to ask if that is not a sound principle of defensive bridge.

"Of course, I know partner should have led that king, but having known him and his disinclination to take a chance for a good many years, I was certain such a lead would never have occurred to him. Oddly enough, the original lead of the king would have guaranteed contract for our opponents. Shooting for it exactly when I did carried out the principle of "timing" on which you wrote interestingly about a year or two ago. G. B., Oklahoma."

Well, all I can say is that I am duly grateful to fate, or the goddess of chance, or whatever agency it is that distributes the aces and kings! Because, while I congratulate the declarer unreservedly on the telling line of defense he chose, I cannot help shuddering at what would have happened if West's holding had been as follows:

♠A K 10 8 7 ♥10 ♦Q 7 3 2 ♣K Q 9

My blood runs cold at what North would have had to say if this had been the situation! Obviously, South's underplay of the club ace, far from having such a salubrious result, would have handed West his contract on a platinum platter, whereas, by merely cashing his three aces, South could have insured West's defeat, since North, holding the diamond king, would later have to get a diamond trick.

I do not understand my correspondent's remark, "Of course, I know partner should have led that [club] king, but . . . I was certain such a lead would never have occurred to him." Are we to infer that South thinks his double of the final contract required North to lay down a king if he held one? This is a new theory to me! The proper lead for North on the bidding and regardless of the double was the fourth best heart, the three spot. Then, South having won with the heart ace, the diamond ace was unquestionably the correct second play, but at this point, I must emphasise, the subsequent defense should have rested squarely on North's follow-suit card. If North played a high diamond on the ace, South should take it for granted that North had a high honor in diamonds and hence that it was very unlikely he held the club king. In that case, South's proper defense would be to lay down the club ace and then merely exit, preferably with a trump. Only if North's follow-suit card to the diamond ace was a low diamond should South have gambled on North's holding the club king.

My correspondent has not detailed whether this sort of signalling took place, so of course we shall have to give him the benefit of the doubt.

An article by Mr. Culbertson appears in the feature section of The Tribune each weekday.

The bidding [North-South vulnerable]:

North	East	South	West
1 club	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 clubs	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

West makes a wonderful guess on the opening lead, selecting the diamond seven. Can the contract be fulfilled? If so, how?

Answer: The contract can be fulfilled if declarer can read West's opening lead as "the top of nothing" and makes the winning play at the very first trick. This play is to put up dummy's diamond queen! Now if East wins he cannot return a diamond without giving North-South two diamond tricks and stoppers; if he lets the diamond queen hold, the same condition results. Thus declarer has plenty of time to establish dummy's club suit without losing control of diamonds.

If declarer plays the deuce or 10 of diamonds from dummy at the first trick, East will play the eight or jack respectively and now it is "all over." If declarer wins with the king immediately and knocks out the club ace, West leads another diamond and East runs three tricks in the suit, then cashes the heart ace. Or if, on the play of the deuce or 10 of diamonds from dummy, East's eight or jack is permitted to hold the trick, East will lay down the ace and another diamond, clearing the suit, and when West gets in with the club ace, he will lead a heart. Thus the only way to fulfill the contract is to put up the diamond queen on the first trick.

Aged and Adult Charities Will "Tag" May 6

For the 23d year the Chicago Federation of Aged and Adult Charities will appeal to Chicagoans for aid thru a tag day next Monday, May 6. Some 9,000 women volunteers, representing 38 homes and institutions caring for the aged, will sell tags at 4,000 street corners. "If you have anything, give something" is the slogan for the day.

Mrs. N. A. Nelson is president of the executive committee for the federation. Mrs. A. Cosmas Garvy, Mrs. Joanna Lama, Mrs. R. A. Gustafson, Miss H. Grace Newman, Miss Mary Bell Mainland, Charles W. Bensen, and Mrs. Carl A. Warner are other officers.

Others working on plans for the tag day are Mrs. C. L. Holtzman, Mrs. O. Osterholm and Miss H. Schill. Mrs. A. H. Brumback, who retired last year after 17 years as president of the federation, now is honorary president.

Leaders in city-wide campaign of the Chicago Young Women's Christian association to raise $225,000 will hold a progress report meeting Tuesday evening at the Harriet Hammond McCormick Y. W. C. A. residence, 1001 North Dearborn street. A dinner for 250 key workers will precede the meeting. More than 1,000 volunteers, including teams of business men, are engaged in the drive, as are "constituency groups" of young women residents at the Y. W. C. A. branches. Miss Lilace Reid Barnes is president of the Chicago association, and Mrs. Charles W. Gilkey is chairman of the district campaign organization.

Plans for a summer sewing project to make school outfits for needy children will be completed at a city-wide rally of the Salvation Army Home leagues Thursday afternoon and evening at the Chicago Temple corps headquarters, 1512 West Madison street.

Instead of disbanding as usual during the summer months, the Home leagues have decided to continue their weekly meetings and to make clothes for children of families cared for by the Army's family service department. The department will supply material and instructors to help league members cut and fit the garments.

At Thursday's meeting Mrs. Commissioner Ernest I. Pugmire, wife of the Army's commander of Chicago and the middle west, and herself territorial president of the Home league, will be among the speakers. At a dinner between afternoon and evening sessions recognition will be accorded to Mrs. Col. John Fynn, retired Salvation Army officer who headed the Austin Home league, the first in Chicago, and to the oldest member of each of the eight leagues in Chicago.

A number of philanthropic organizations will have exhibits at the Chicagoland exposition and charity drive to be held tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Morrison hotel.

Among the organizations which will have booths demonstrating their work will be the State Industrial Home for the Blind; the Woman's Field Army of the American Society for the Control of Cancer; the Veterans' Craft shop of the American Legion auxiliary; the Good Will Industries; the Protestant Child Haven; the Grandmothers' Club of Chicago, and the Illinois Masonic hospital. A dinner dance will close the exposition Wednesday evening.

The Jesuit Family club will sponsor a card party Friday evening at the Damen hall, 1080 West Roosevelt road. Mrs. Edward O'Brien is chairman in charge. Mrs. Thomas Condon heads the club.

The Gall-Marks Memorial Foundation has launched a drive to raise funds for a respirator to be donated to the Michael Reese hospital. Herman T. Gall is president.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey.

Every co-ed's wardrobe especially has need of a variety of casual, take-plenty-of-punishment frocks that can be worn all day to classes and keep their self-respect. I recommend this particular style as an example of what I mean, and it goes for business girls' clothes collections and budgets, too!

There's nothing especially new or exciting about this model. Its success rests with the fact that it's thoroly wearable under a wide range of conditions, and that almost every figure type can wear it, from the well proportioned to the painfully thin. I made my own version of this pattern in a gabardine, that coat and suit material that is making first-class records in the dress department. The color of mine is medium brown with green accents. Notice the yoke at the shoulders, the rather loose fit of the blouse itself, and the paneled skirt.

Style No. T-8670 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material.

Contrasts of Arizona Lure Visitors There

By Lolita Linn.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.

There is a certain Marco Polo air about the returned visitor to Arizona which is at the same time infuriating and intriguing to his uninitiated friends. After all, they say, the blood-and-thunder days of Arizona are long since past. No longer does the traveler find his heart in his throat every time he comes around a sharp turn of a mountain grade, for both the vengeful Apache and the renegade cowboy have gone to their appropriate rewards. And the "bare, cheerless hotel rooms," which drove a Boston visitor on the cold Thanksgiving eve of 1906 to a saloon just in time to dodge some fancy shooting aimed at Jack the Ripper, have given way to luxurious desert resorts and guest ranches which are as proud of their modern plumbing and good eating as they are of their dude-wise cow ponies and their old corrals.

Arizona does not depend on the fading glamor of the old west, but rather on contrast to transform her visitors into starry-eyed adventurers and proselyters. Her contrasts are not with life in the east, for there she has little more to offer than many another faraway place. The contrasts exist within her own borders. The youngest state in the union, Arizona has all the zeal and some of the gaucherie of youth, but on every hand are the relics of ancient races long since vanished from this continent. Only an irrigation ditch separates the orange trees and the roses from the giant sahuaros and other cacti of the desert. Christmas may be celebrated in tropic heat among waving palms, or, only a half a day away, among snow-frosted pines before an open fire.

Amid the sophistications and luxuries of modern towns and resorts, the cowboys move in unconcerned fashion, their clothes a perfect balance of usefulness and decoration; their verities the eternal ones of the range—a good horse, a good saddle, and the right of a man to choose his way of life.

The cowboy dude-wrangler is not only the perfect host. He is also the perfect enigma, and visitors never tire of trying to puzzle him out. One well meaning eastern lady will never forget the shock she received when she attempted to fit the ranch wranglers into a Christmas pageant, medieval costumes and all. She was visited by a very polite but very determined cowboy who assured her that he spoke for all his fellows when he said that nothing—not even the loss of their jobs in the middle of the season—could persuade them to doff their boots. In apology, he did the one thing a cowboy seldom attempts: he tried to explain himself. "You see," he said, "we don't wrangle dudes because we have to. We do it because we like horses and people." [His voice capitalized the word "horses."]

Refusal to "dress up" is just one manifestation of the wrangler's disdain for pretense. And the dude who boasts about his prowess at polo can be sure that the first time he approaches his mount he will be watched skeptically by every hand at the corral. But just let the newcomer say that she has done no riding lately, or that she is timid about horses, and she will find the wrangler the most sympathetic and patient of teachers.

A large part of the adventure of Arizona lies in the contrast between the ranches and resorts. Each one is a personality, and as such arouses the ardent devotion and partisanship of its guests. A Chicagoan's impression of Arizona will greatly depend on the ranch or resort which he claims as his own.

If "his" ranch lies somewhere just north of the border, he is likely to think of Arizona in terms of the old Spanish atmosphere which still hangs over Rancho de la Osa, whose main ranch house was built 140 years ago by a Spanish grandee . . . the fawns playing on the great grass patio of the Circle Z . . . the three western gates which guard the long approach to El Rancho del Quivari . . . the unexpectedly British air of Hacienda Los Encinas . . . the curious mixture of modernity with ancient Mexican architecture of the Kenyon ranch at Tubac . . . the mountain lion hunt at El Coronado.

Members of this Chicago group have been the Edward L. Hickses at La Osa; the Nelson L. Bucks and the Walter Cohrs at the Circle Z, and the Frank McCullochs at the Kenyon ranch.

If the visitor winters in old Tucson among the encircling Catalina mountains, his impression of Arizona may be colored by the world treasures brought to the Arizona inn by Isabella Greenway . . . the triumphantly waving palms which line the approach to El Conquistador . . . the colorfully clad visitors and cowboys who throng the lobby of the Pioneer hotel at rodeo time . . . the Hollywood invasion of the Santa Rita for the filming of "Arizona" . . . the horseback riding, bulldogging, and other western sports of the University of Arizona . . . the colonial pillars of the Pepper Tree inn . . . the Mexican farmhouse style of the Lodge on the Desert . . . or the luxury and charm—in the hacienda manner—of Rancho Nezhone [Navaho for "beautiful"].

Chicagoans who claim Tucson as their winter home include Gen. and Mrs. Charles G. Dawes at the Conquistador; the Lewis Barkers at the Arizona inn and their daughter, Joyce, who attends the University of Arizona; Henri de Jonghes at the Santa Rita; the Edwin G. Fishers at the Pioneer, and the William Smalls in the Isabella Greenway home at the Arizona inn.

Pack trips to the mountains, cattle roundups, ranch rodeos, and hunting of quail and deer will be among the vivid recollections of those who visited Arizona at the Diamond W, the Flying V, the Tanque Verde, all outside Tucson; Rancho Linda Vista or El Rancho Robles at Oracle in the foothills of the Catalinas.

Muriel McCormick Dyer and her two children wintered at El Rancho Robles. The Robert McKennas and Edgar A. Hills were at the Linda Vista. Marjorie Elizabeth Whelan was married at the Flying V to Theodore Patton, and her new home is on the ranch.

Say "Phoenix" and your Arizona visitor's eye will light up as he recalls the luxurious perfection of the Arizona Biltmore with the many-viewed home of Mrs. William Wrigley set high on a hill above it . . . the cream colored adobe buildings of Camelback inn, nestling on the desert between Mummy and Camelback mountains . . . the stables designed by Frank Lloyd Wright at Kiami lodge . . . the deep green of the olive trees at the Ingleside inn . . . the intimacy of the pink-tinted, vine-covered buildings of the Jokake inn . . . the dining patio of the Arcadia lodge . . . the San Marcos at Chandler with its orange tree vista and manicured golf course stretching off toward the mountains and the sunset . . . the stagecoach and the blimp vying with each other at the Wigwam . . . the top rail of the corral fence at Sahuaro Lake ranch . . . the lofty tower of the Westward Ho dominating the northern skyline of downtown Phoenix . . . the picturesque lobby of the Adams hotel, center of Arizona's political and ranch activity.

Any list of winter visitors in Phoenix reads like a Chicago "Who's Who." Among those who made long stays this winter were Mrs. J. Ogden Armour at the Biltmore; former Gov. Frank O. Lowden at the San Marcos; Mrs. James A. Winston at the Wigwam; Mrs. Wirt Morton at Arcadia lodge; the Ward Willets at the Westward Ho; Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine at Camelback, and the Walter Johnsons at Jokake.

The magic name of Castle Hot Springs brings to mind a desert oasis created by hot mineral water gushing from the rocks. The Charles B. Goodspeeds and Harry Williams are among those of Chicago who have preferred this bit of Arizona for many years.

Spirit of Old West Recreated at Miami Party

By Clarissa Greene.

MIAMI, FLA.

Gun play, hot tamales, enchiladas, a variety of chuck wagon chows, lariats, chaps, bandanas, 10 gallon hats, spurs, and other proper equipment were in evidence as cowboys, ranch hands, and cowgirls swarmed over the "ranch" of the Roy Pages in Coconut Grove Thursday night for one of the largest parties of the week.

The Pages took over the Theater of Fifteen in Coral Gables for the evening. Convincingly turned out ranch hands saw the old western extravaganza, "A Texas Ranger." Old time dances to old fashioned tunes followed the "melerdramer." All hands returned to the ranch and a chuck wagon supper was served in the patio.

Among Chicagoans attending were Mrs. George A. Hughes and her daughter, Mary Hughes Call.

Last Sunday Mrs. Hughes had invited some 60 friends for a tea party, from 5 to 7, honoring birthdays of Mr. Hughes and Mrs. Call. Guests found they also were attending one of the most delightful dinner parties of the season. It was a surprise ending which lasted long after the appointed hour.

The Albert H. Gleasons entertained Monday night for the Hugheses, and their house guests, Mrs. Call and the Giovanni Salterinnis, who came from New York for Mrs. Call's piano concert. Following the Gleasons' dinner party the 40 or 50 guests repaired to the Hughes home where the large living room had been transformed into an ideal cinema auditorium. The cathedral ceiling was admirably adapted to the success of sound pictures shown. The Lloyd Williamses showed color films they had taken last summer in Switzerland, Norway, Sweden, and England.

Mrs. Hughes will return to Chicago early in May. In June she will go to New York with Mr. Hughes.

Mrs. Call will return to New York in a day or two.

Tomorrow Coral Gables will celebrate its 15th birthday. George E. Merrick, founder, will be honor guest. The day begins at 9 when golfers tee off in exciting competition. It will close when the last couple leaves the dance floor. Tennis matches, swimming exhibitions, games, races, a parade with university and high school marchers in "kid" costumes, bridge, and a birthday dinner will be included.

For the second year women gave a good account of themselves in the $10,000 99-day fifth annual metropolitan Miami fishing tournament. Awards, certificates, and citations were presented at the Rod and Reel club on Hibiscus Island Wednesday night, with J. Harvey Robillard, former Chicago attorney, president of the club, presiding.

Women fishing for big game fish have proven their skill, ask no quarter and take coveted trophies each year in competition which requires endurance, skill and strength beyond demands of any other feminine sport. Last year they took more than one-third of the rich prize list.

Breaking all records established in the five years of tournament fishing, Miss W. J. Gray of Chicago took first prize with a 19½ pound albacore. Her trophy is a silver urn set. Miss Ann Fay, Chicago, was given a citation for a 68½ pound amberjack. Mrs. John F. Ashton of Cincinnati has first prize, a set of sterling goblets, in recognition of her catch, a 49 pound barracuda, the tiger of the sea. In the same class, Mrs. Irma M. Patejdl of Chicago and Mrs. Oscar Ludwig of Indianapolis were given certificates.

Miss Martha van Dyk, Chicago, has a citation for her 35 pound kingfish. Mrs. Maud Phelps Hutchins [Mrs. Robert M.] and Miss Frances Dunlop, both of Chicago, received certificates in the sailfish class, the most coveted of prizes. Miss Esther Wilhelmi was given a citation for her 35 pound wahoo.

Mrs. Hutchins, Mrs. Patejdl, and Miss Gray were given daily awards. It remained for Mrs. A. S. Johnston of Gross Pointe Woods to become the envy of the 160,000 competitors when she was awarded first prize, the Howard Johnson trophy, a silver cocktail set, in recognition of her 122 pound white marlin.

Forty-seven Illinois men, most of them from Chicago, also fished successfully enough to win a listing for prizes, certificates or citations. But Chicagoland women took most of the glory.

Clotilde Children's Patterns

Altho we adults have come to consider play attire indispensable to our summer wardrobes, it's the youngsters who really can't do without it. Your rough-and-tumble girls and boys who are outdoors all summer, soaking up the sunshine, need plenty of practical outfits for their playtime. Little girls, particularly, are especially critical of such ensembles. They must be smart as well as sturdy.

The pattern illustrated creates a one-piece play suit which may or may not have a button-on skirt to keep it company. There is a shirtmaker top with buttoned or open rever neckline, typical shirt front and a pocket if daughter wishes one. The shorts part of the costume has inverted plaits for the comfort of active legs. The skirt has a snug waistband and buttons down the front.

Both plain colors and stripes make up well in this outfit, which should be created of washable and inexpensive fabrics.

Style No. 3226 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 8 requires 2 yards of 35 inch material for short-sleeved play suit; 3⅛ yards for play suit and skirt.

Address orders for Clotilde Children's Fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred — wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Washing Upholstery.

Before washing upholstery [and that is an easy way to clean it when slightly soiled], remove all dust with a stiff brush or vacuum cleaner. Take off any stains or spots with a commercial spot remover or gasoline. Then wash a small area at a time with warm water and mild soap suds. Rinse well with water and pat as dry as possible with a soft, dry cloth. Keep in a well aired room until perfectly dry.

Furniture on View at Spring Markets Here

"What's Wrong with Your Rooms," a booklet by Edith Weigle, discusses the best methods of furniture arrangement and answers many puzzles concerning decoration. Price, 5 cents by mail; 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Edith Weigle.

Two spring home furnishings markets will open here tomorrow and continue to May 4. One will be held at the American Furniture Mart, the other at the Merchandise Mart.

While not ranked as major events, these spring and fall shows are interesting and fill the gap between the two large markets of January and midsummer. They are attended by a great number of buyers from retail stores thruout the country.

A report from the American Furniture Mart prophesies an added impetus to the current trend for simplifying and adapting period furniture styles and sees a revival of interest in the "golden age" of walnut, pieces of the eras of William and Mary and Queen Anne, added to those of the later Georgian, which have already been "adapted" with great success.

"Expected to climb to new heights in volume as well as high style lines, contemporary adaptations of both Early American and Colonial pieces will show a refinement of line and scaling which will suit them to present day setting," continues the report, "the inherent charm of both periods remaining, enhanced by the simplification and new balance of line and improved form."

The popularity of interchangeable pieces of furniture continues at this exhibit, as it did at the winter shows. Tables for the dinette that later may be used in a breakfast room or, if of the drop leaf type, in the living room, are examples. Others are the chests that can be used in the small dining room now and later in the entrance hall or bedroom of a larger home. The add-one-when-you-wish bookcases and shelves are in the market to stay, also, as are new drawer arrangements on chests, dressers, and vanities to provide extra storage space.

In the higher priced furniture a good idea of Regency will be shown at both the American Furniture Mart and the Merchandise Mart. This graceful but formal style, popular in England and the United States in the early part of the 19th century, is still appealing generally to the carriage trade rather than to the great mass of people.

Modern, however, in some form or other has invaded every price range and is liked by Mrs. Croesus as well as by Mrs. Nip N. Tuck. Its designers deserve a round of thanks for what they have done in a field formerly occupied by the ugly, out sized furniture known as "borax" to the trade.

The emphasis on natural wood finishes will be felt again at this market, as it was in January.

Rubber upholstery will go on making news in the manufacture of chairs and couches. Already accepted in mattresses, it has been used for some time in living room pieces and serves to make your fireside seat as comfortable as the one you enjoy on the newest streamlined train and airplane.

In the field of floor coverings to be shown at the markets the trend is toward more and more flowers under foot. The roses scattered in lavish profusion over living room rugs, nowadays, take us right back to the time of the civil war and the later years of the 19th century. The chief difference between these 20th century beauties and those is that we no longer love red backgrounds so ardently. Instead we use delicate beige tones, subtle greens, and soft, charming blues.

Women's Part in Home Safety Is to Be Discussed

Women's part in promoting home safety will be among the topics discussed at the 18th annual midwest safety conference, to be held Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday at the Hotel Sherman. The Greater Chicago Safety council and numerous coöperating agencies are sponsoring the meeting, which more than 3,500 delegates from 20 states, Canada and Hawaii are expected to attend.

Mrs. James E. Sime, chairman of the American home department of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, will preside at a session on home safety Tuesday morning and at a conference luncheon following in the Bal Tabarin. Rosamund Losh, director of the Kansas City Children's bureau, will be among the speakers at the home safety session. Her topic will be conducting a "County Safety Campaign."

Twin Prints Add Interest to a New French Creation

By Bettina Bedwell.

Twin prints are adding a new note of interest to French spring frocks. I particularly admired one recent arrival in this country from the salons abroad. Its lines are classically simple but its color treatment is modern. In the first place, the waistline is high and is created of the same silk print as the skirt. Above it is a softly draped blouse of the same print in a reversal of the skirt material scheme. Shirring originates in the shoulder seams and in the waistline, creating soft bodice contours. Sleeves that are puffed also are short and draped. There's a self fabric belt snugly fitted to the waistline, and it may be equipped with a buckle if you like, as was the original.

The French frock from which this pattern was adapted employed a soft surfaced silk with the color scheme of dark blue and beige. The top was of the lighter shade, with the delicate motif in the dark blue. The skirt reversed the idea.

With this dress the mannequin who modeled it wore a large breton hat in mulberry and beige, and mulberry shoes.

Style No. 5345 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 2⅛ yards of 39 inch material for skirt and belt; 1½ yards for short sleeved waist.

Address orders to Chicago Tribune Paris Patterns, 119 West 19th Street, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred — wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Richard Wilson Burnham Weds in Pasadena

By Ruth Billheimer.

Richard Wilson Burnham, second son of the Ralph French Burnhams to bear the maternal family name, which is one well known in Chicago, claimed as his bride here, yesterday afternoon, Miss Georgiana Covert Williams, popular member of Spinsters and the Junior league. Like his brother, John, Mr. Burnham's middle name carries on that of their grandfather, the late Frank Wilson of Chicago.

PASADENA, CAL.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Benjamin Oliver Williams, comes of a New Haven, Conn., family. She was given in marriage by her grandfather, Frederick W. Austin of this city.

A reception followed in the gardens of Mr. and Mrs. Parker Hale Cunningham, on Mira Vista terrace. After their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs Burnham will reside in Linda Vista avenue, a block or two from Mr. Burnham's family home. He is a graduate of the Cate school, Santa Barbara, Cal.; his bride, of Westridge School for Girls, in Pasadena.

Coming as a surprise was the announcement made at a supper party last week-end by Mrs. Charles Spencer Williamson of her daughter's engagement. Mrs. Spencer Hammond is to become the bride of William David Behnke of Los Angeles, Cal., son of the Alfred R. Behnkes. He is a Yale man and studied law at Kings college, Cambridge. Mrs. Hammond is an alumna of the Chicago Latin school and University of Chicago. Her father was the late Dr. Williamson of that city.

Goings and comings include the recent visit of Richard Hageman, renowned composer and conductor, who is particularly well known in Chicago, together with Mrs. Hageman, at Casa Solana, the home of the D. M. Rentons at Catalina.

Chicago friends of Lady Tennyson, who is again wintering on the Pacific coast, will be interested to know she has been the guest of Mrs. Alexander Pickering in Burlingame and has now returned to Montecito where she is established this season.

At one of the spring's most festive pool luncheons—that one which the Huntington always devotes to its out-of-doors fashion show—Mrs. Eugene Andrews of Chicago gave one of the larger parties. Her guests included Miss Katherine Lefens and her niece, Mrs. W. D. Dunning, who is visiting her; Mrs. Frederick Ridgway, Mrs. Curtis McWhinney, Mrs. David Davis, Mrs. Harlan B. Eldred, Mrs. Sally Kayser, Mrs. George Dunbaugh, Mrs. Floyd Turner, Mrs. Harry Wyeth, Mrs. William Taverner, Mrs. Porter Hovey, Mrs. Henry Stevenson, and Mrs. Louis J. Pfau Jr.

Announce Engagement of Miss Dee McIntosh

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. McIntosh of Wilmette announce the engagement of their daughter, Dee, to Paul E. P. White, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. White of Philadelphia, Pa. Miss McIntosh attended New Trier High school and was graduated from Stevens college. Mr. White, a graduate of Lehigh university, is at present in England. He will return early this summer for the wedding, which is planned for July.

INDEPENDENT TRAVEL

Savoy Is Not a Hotel, but a Playground

The French territory that was once a part of the old, independent duchy of Savoy is divided into two provinces, Haute Savoie and Savoie, extending together about ninety miles from Lake Geneva, southward along the Italian border, says the National Geographical society. It is a mountainous region, approximately sixty miles wide, with its valleys given to agriculture and cattle raising, tho some industrial development has followed the introduction of hydro-electric power. It has strategic value because it controls the western end of Alpine passes, now guarded by the French Chasseurs, including many Savoyards.

Some of the favorite playgrounds of France lie in the Savoy area, including Aix-les-Bains and surrounding resorts in the French Alps. Aix-les Bains, in Savoie province, with a normal population of 6,000 residents, is visited annually by more than 50,000 pleasure seekers during the summer months.

From old Savoy sprang a ruling dynasty, nine centuries old, to which the present king of Italy belongs. Piedmont, which adjoins the Savoy area across the Italian frontier; Nice, southward on the Mediterranean coast, and the Island of Sardinia, in the Mediterranean, were at times ruled over by this dynasty.

Surviving attacks by Huns, Ostrogoths, Burgundians, Lombards, and Saracens, Savoy finally passed into French possession in 1792, following prolonged struggles of two centuries. France ceded Savoy, together with Nice, to Victor Emmanuel I., king of Sardinia, with the collapse of Napoleon, by the treaty of Paris in 1814. Both territories, however, were ceded back to France in 1860 in return for the aid Napoleon III. had given in unifying the Italian states and freeing them from the power of Austria, then controling many of the petty princes.

To millions of Americans the name "Savoy" means a hotel or motion picture house. The theatrical association of the name comes from the Savoy theater in London's Strand, which in turn traces its origin to the provençal people. Henry III. of England, in 1236, had married a niece of Peter of Savoy, to whom the English king gave a palace on the banks of the Thames. The palace was burned more than a century later, and in 1505 Henry VII. built the Savoy hospital on the site.

Life in Spain Is Not What it Used to Be

By Alex Small.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, SPAIN. "Life in this city is not what it used to be. It is doubtful if it will ever again be as it was before the war."

That is the opinion I have heard expressed by some Spaniards here, and by some Americans who, for business reasons, have lived here for years. They deplore the disappearance of a facile and leisurely life, where some people were very rich—and displayed it ostentatiously—and where almost every one could "get along" on a modest basis.

What has happened to Madrid has been, of course, the civil war and the consequent economic distress. The problems to be solved are fundamental, for the city and the whole country. Even the warmest partisans of the new régime admit that this is a time of difficulties.

Outwardly the observer is likely to see few signs of these difficulties. During the war Madrid was damaged, but it was not blown to bits, nor was even a third of it destroyed, as some reports would have it. Where Franco's army in the long siege [29 months] lay on the edge of the city, coiled like a whip along its western edge, with advance posts in suburbs at the northern and southern extremities, there was naturally plenty of destruction.

Today University City, in northwest Madrid, where Franco's troops advanced farthest and even had a foothold over the line of the Manzanares river, is little more than a mass of ruins. In the streets sloping down the hills toward the river you can see houses partly destroyed; others with all windows gone, and unoccupied. Heaps of rubbish lie in open spaces, and shell holes are still visible. By the river you still see the zigzag trenches held by the defenders of Madrid. Gangs of laborers are busy here, clearing up the wreckage, but they are doing it in a leisurely Spanish way.

The rest of the city obviously escaped comparatively untouched. Along the main avenues you can see marks of shell fragments on some walls, and a few buildings have been abandoned or are being rebuilt. But Franco's artillery seems rarely to have shot much past a line marked by the high buildings on the hilltop. The shells also were, I judge, nearly all of light caliber from the 75s [field guns].

The highest building here, the telephone company's 18-story skyscraper [at least it is so for Europe], was an observation post and got a pounding. An American official of the company [also American] told me the building got 168 direct hits. Some shells sailed in thru windows and blew out whole suites of offices. The total damage, however, has been estimated at about 2 per cent of the original cost of construction.

The city is not tumbling down, and its inhabitants do not appear to be doing so, either. The main avenues are crowded with persons who accumulate in shoals at street crossings, waiting for the traffic lights and the policeman's whistle. In no other European city have I seen traffic so strictly regulated as here. Jay-walkers are immediately fined 2 pesetas. Only in Prague have I seen people in such masses.

Among them there is certainly no impression of deep or widespread distress. Only the rather large number of pathetic women peddling fractions of lottery tickets, the beggars, and a few obvious vagabonds, seem undernourished and shabbily clad. The great majority appear adequately fed and decently clothed.

Leaving the main wide avenues and going up the narrow side streets, the impression is somewhat different. Here are rows of sordid tenements. The children playing in the street are passably dirty and ragged. Yet it is doubtful if this condition is anything peculiar to this time. Madrid apparently has always been a city with plenty of poverty—plenty of people just existing beside a flashy and opulent minority.

That minority is still to be seen around the two hotels which have pretensions to luxury on an international basis. Every room in these hotels is taken, and not by the few foreigners who have the courage and perseverance to travel in Spain despite the obstacles put in their way.

The Spaniards who saved their money out of the deluge appear, many of them, to have given up housekeeping. They find it is too difficult. There is trouble getting servants; there is still more trouble getting food in the open market, in getting household necessities of all sorts. They prefer to pay the high prices asked by the luxury inns and be rid of their worries.

Result: The traveler coming to Madrid will be lucky if he can walk into one of these "international" hotels and get a room. He should telegraph beforehand; maybe even two or three days' notice will be necessary.

If you keep to these haunts of the idle rich [what's left of it in Spain], you will get the impression the country is rolling in abundance. In the dining and grill rooms great sideboards are loaded with a wide variety of substantial food and of delicacies. Wines are to be had, both Spanish and foreign, and, for the young bloods who want to be very cosmopolitan, there are effective potions made with native gin and whisky.

Occasionally there is a reminder that this is all show. There is the "day of the single plate," when lunch or dinner is cut to one course, even tho you pay the price of a whole meal. There is a meatless day when you have to confine your carnivorous activities to chicken or other fowl. There is the grayish bread, made, I am told, with whole wheat, but I suspect something else is mixed with it. Finally there is the coffee with its pronounced aftertaste of varnish.

Still I got little light on the difficulties which, I had heard, beset the average citizen and average family in Madrid. I had to have conversations with those who know and who explained how and why life here is hard. That is the subject of another article.

Within a few miles of Montreal these survivals of an almost forgotten rural architecture still decorate the rolling landscape.

Blossom Week Starts May 6

ST. JOSEPH, Mich.—Miss Patricia Donnelly, Detroit girl who won the Miss America title at Atlantic City in 1939, will open Blossom week in Benton Harbor and St. Joseph on May 6, when she introduces the winning contestant in the fial selection of the 1940 "Queen of the Blossoms."

Coronation ceremonies are scheduled for the evening of May 7. It will be the first time the coronation has been attempted out of doors. The event is to take place in Benton Harbor's Filstrup field.

Other high spots on the program include the children's parade and ball on May 9, and the floral parade on May 11.

Audubon Stamps Have Heavy Sale

ST. FRANCISVILLE, La.—The little postoffice of this village of 800 on the bluffs of the Mississippi river last Tuesday sold in one block 100,000 one-cent stamps of the John James Audubon issue in the Famous Americans series.

Phil Roach made the purchase from Postmaster Rosa Shipes. She said it was the biggest single stamp deal in the history of the office.

Audubon painted most of his "Birds of America" along the Mississippi river. On the claim of St. Francisville that it was here he "found himself," first-day sales of the stamp were held here April 8.

New Entrance to Old Mexico

MONTERREY, Mexico.—The national highway department, coöperating with the state highway departments of Nuevo Leon and Tamaulips, has announced that all paving and other necessary work on the Monterrey-Reynosa road will be completed before the end of this year. The route will connect with the Pan American highway at Monterrey to form a new entrance to Mexico via the southern Rio Grande valley.

Mystery of Quebec 'Weeping Cove' Is Solved by Priest

QUEBEC.—"Weeping Cove"—Anse Pleureuse to the Quebec fishermen—has a strange history. Located on the north shore of the Gaspe peninsula, the port was for many years a source of terror to the local fisher folk who on certain nights heard terrifying sobs coming from the nearby woods.

Finally, in 1814, the Rev. Father Painchaud, who was visiting in the vicinity, took pity on the terrors of his flock and determined to find the cause of the disturbance.

Armed with a hatchet, he disappeared into the woods and, after a long search, heard the howlings and sobs very near him. Finding that the sounds were made by two trees whose branches rubbed together in the wind, he cut one of them down—and returned a hero.

Reveals a Rich Lode of Gold in Panama Jungle

NEW YORK.—Griswold A. Thompson, New York financier and sportsman, heard recently while in Panama City of a perfect paradise in an interior place for hunting and fishing, and where gold could be picked up at will.

He set out with a party of friends and sixty Indians for the foothills of the Darien mountains to hunt wild boar and turkeys. After pushing through dense jungles, traveling by canoe and mules, he reached a clearing above the jungle line by the shores of the Maria river, where stood a primitive Indian village.

The people of this village, said Thompson on his return here, live an ideal life. Fishing and hunting were as profitable as predicted, while from the black sands of the river the natives could pan in one day $10 worth of gold. That amount seemed to be their limit, Thompson said, for after getting that much gold the Indians would travel down river, sell it, and live on the proceeds of that one day's work for about six weeks.

In that district Thompson found a few white men, mostly English, and the Indians told him the Englishmen had discovered an enormously rich lode in the Darien peaks. They believed that it is from this lode that the gold found in the black sands of the river is washed down, and that it is the mother lode of all the gold once abounding in Panama and which helped to fill the fabulous coffers of the Spanish galleons in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries.

As proof of this story Thompson showed reporters two vials he brought back with him, one filled with gold ore, the other with black sand from the Maria river.

Panama, Thompson believes, once was one of the world's richest storehouses. The gold and silver taken from Inca palaces and temples in Peru was taken there and stored until it could be shipped to Spain. At that time the metal was so plentiful in Panama that churches and cathedrals were adorned with the precious metal. In fact, a traveler still can see the famed solid gold altar of the Church of San José which the clergy saved from falling into the hands of the pirate Morgan by camouflaging it with white paint.

Mexican Earrings.

The well dressed woman of Mexico seldom neglects her earrings. Several days after birth her ears are subjected to the age old custom of "piercing," and from that time she learns to appreciate this personal adornment as one of the essential attributes of feminine charm.

The Voice of the Traveler

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Please keep them brief. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

DOWN MEXICO WAY.

Villa Park, Ill., April 21.—To the Travel Editor: We, too, have just returned from a most enjoyable trip to Mexico City and surrounding towns and sites. We think most tourists are misguided as to the people, food, and water down there.

In last Sunday's Voice of the Traveler, we glanced over the statement in Percy Wilson's letter: "The food there was good, as compared to the Mexican standard which is never too good for the American stomach as a sustained diet."

We disagree with this statement. While down there we had the best of food. There was plenty of it; it was reasonable, good, and clean. What more could one ask for?

We found a guide indispensable. We met him at Valles and he drove us over the mountains to Mexico City. Within this stretch there is a 100 mile section in which you go around many curves and you are climbing all the time. We discovered that there are good guides and still better guides. We had a young man, who is an old timer in this service, and is one of those who was trained and schooled for four years in this field of work.

See a bull fight by all means! We took our guide's advice and got seats on the sunny side. That's where all the spirit is. The real enthusiast sits there. Lot's of excitement! See for yourself!

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

Findlay, O., April 21.—To the Travel Editor: Please place the name of my wife, Ethel L. Brown, 1208 Washington avenue, Findlay, on your list to receive cards and letters from travelers. She would like particularly to hear from those who go on vacations this summer. She traveled while she could, and thoroly enjoyed "seeing America." Letters and pictures telling of others' trips would help her relive her delightful experiences in the west and south.

ROY W. BROWN.

Chicago, April 16.—To the Travel Editor: My aunt has not walked in 15 years. She would enjoy hearing from your readers, as she is keen about travel and faraway places. Her name and address: A. M. Richter, Saukville, Wis. A. N.

Chicago, April 21.—To the Travel Editor: My mother has been a shut-in for many years. She is a "young" 70 year old woman and has a delightful outlook on life. She would get a big thrill out of receiving mail from persons who are so generous in remembering invalids. Address: Mrs. Fay Sacks, 2912 Commonwealth avenue, Chicago. May your grand work continue! MRS. R. HARRIS.

Mount Carmel, Ill., April 21.—To the Travel Editor: Please place the name of Mrs. Gladys Tucker, 407 East 9th street, Mount Carmel, on your list. She loved to travel, but has been bedfast for the last seven months, and the time hangs heavy on her hands. She would appreciate cards and letters. A FRIEND.

Evanston, Ill., April 23.—To the Travel Editor: Mrs. F. M. Conby, formerly of North Judson, Ind., is now in the Eastern Star hospital of the Masonic home at Franklin, Ind. She is 84 years old. She cannot write, but I know she would be grateful for cards and letters and would share them with other patients.

MRS. C. H. BRUBAKER.

Chicago, April 22.—To the Travel Editor: Kindly include the name of Miss Catherine Bersac, 7755 Sheridan road, Chicago, in the list of shut-ins who would like to hear from your readers.

HELEN MURPHY.

Brookfield, Ill., April 22.—To the Travel Editor: We would deeply appreciate it if some of your readers who are fortunate enough to be able to travel would send us cards and letters.

[Miss] Katherine Eral, 4026 South Oak avenue, Brookfield; [Miss] Lee Geissler, 2803½ Lawrence avenue, Chicago.

Evanston, Ill., April 21.—To the Travel Editor: Please place the name of my 11 year old nephew on the list to receive mail from travelers. He has been very ill with pneumonia. His name and address: Robert Hoagland, care of Ed Hoagland, R. F. D. 1, Iron Mountain, Mich. [MISS] BEDA HOAGLAND.

THANK YOU DEPARTMENT.

Highway Highlands, Cal., April 22.—To the Travel Editor: If you and your readers only knew how much happiness has come to me in the way of cards, letters, and greetings since my name was published in your shut-in column you would realize how grateful I am to every one who helped me forget my loneliness. I never knew there were so many kind hearts in this little old world. I have been dismissed from the Olive View sanitarium, but am confined to bed until I grow a little stronger. God bless all my new found friends!

[MISS] JACKIE SLATE.

Chicago, April 19.—To the Travel Editor: We wish to thank all those who sent cards and letters to Eugene Price, Tinley Park, Ill. He is too ill to write his own letter of appreciation.

Banks of Carib Pool Boast of Eerie Carvings

By Anson Brown.

ST. JOHN, VIRGIN ISLANDS.

In looking for the unexpected in the commonplace, if the eyes aren't kept open and the curiosity whetted, much will be missed. Thus it was in St. John. Quite by accident I heard of a hidden valley pool where, five or six centuries ago, the Carib Indians had carved strange inscriptions on the rocks. It was on the far side of the island, almost impossible to reach, and no one, as far as I could ascertain, had ever taken movies of the spot. Few white men had ever seen it. Here was an opportunity not to be missed.

My companion for the day—we will call her Polly—was a postdeb from New York who was wont to refer to her sect as "débris-tants." How such a lovely orchid and champagne lady ever found this out-of-the-way spot was not explained. She begged to go along, vowing that she was a throwback to the Gaul stable boy who helped feed Hannibal's elephants while crossing the Alps. I gave in.

Even on a donkey Polly looked lovely.

We started out at 7 in the morning, loaded with a scribbled map, sandwiches, and film. Large butterflies hovered over the trail before us, a trail that more than a hundred years ago had been a busy road. The coolness of the green vegetation stretched above us; the hermit crabs dotting the path clambered back into their shells as they heard us approach.

We ambled past many ruined walls and crumbling estates, remnants of the glorious era of prosperity before the slave revolt. Many of them were so well covered with the bush and vines that it was almost impossible to get a view without spreading apart the shrubbery.

After three hours we mounted the steepest mountain to a height of 1,300 feet. It was Bordeaux hill. I gasped. There ahead of us, stretching in perfect panorama, were the English Tortula Islands. They dotted the calm sea like small, floating turtles. In the distance they faded into the horizon, dissolving themselves in tumbling masses of white clouds.

Below that was Coral bay, sparkling sands that twined on the shores of a lagoon. The waters changed color even as we watched from the height; pale greens rippling into blues and orchids. Around us were a few shacks and some Negro women hoeing a garden.

"You'd think," vouched Polly, "that the people up here would have souls as pure as rain. Imagine being able to look out from your kitchen window to such a sight!"

We lingered on the spot for many minutes, munching our sandwiches and soaking in the magnificance of the sight. A drab bird on the topmost branches of a tree sang a song like a nightingale. Tho the day was not yet half gone, we must be on our way.

Two hours later we were on the heavy trail to Reef bay. It had rained, but what's a little water to a pair of dirty duck trousers and a polo shirt? Polly's hair looked like the business end of a mop, and she was enjoying it. It was real work to push on ahead. The trail was so steep that we had to lead the two mules; so wet that we skidded over the stones and moss.

We must have been the first trespassers in weeks, for the cobwebs and giant spiders were constantly in the way. The donkeys got the stuff tangled in their jackrabbit ears. My own hair turned a dull gray from the strong, silklike threads.

Many more minutes passed as we stumbled down into the valley. Then we came to the ruined Durloo estate, which was an important clew on our map. We followed a dry wash up thru another canyon. Finally we were there.

A glorious, placid pool it was, sparkling in the afternoon sun, and resting undisturbed. On the side of the smooth stone just above the water line were the strange figures indented in the rock. They were funny, childish interpretations such as you and I probably learned to do in kindergarten—round faces with crescent mouths and button eyes.

On another side of the pool was something rather amazing. It was a cross, like that of the Crucifix, larger than the other carvings and more deeply indented. Why? The Caribs came before the influence of Christianity had reached the islands. Then what does it mean? Archeologists have not solved that question. Yet whatever this evidence is, it remains today lost in the wilderness. How fortunate were these early people, living in a land comparable to the South Sea Isles, bathing on the beaches, sleeping beneath the palms! Who were they? Where are they gone?

While speculating on such mysteries I had a field day with the movie camera. Polly almost fell in the pool in trying to pose with the inscriptions.

But the sun was dropping in the sky and we had a long, hard trail ahead of us. It would take us three hours to get back to the Ridge road, then one more hour of easy, downhill path to the inn.

It was the same all over again: cobwebs, an occasional shower, and the "Donkey Serenade." From the ridge we could see the sun melt away into the Caribbean, and we could listen to the lizards as they began their night chirping in the trees.

In those last minutes before we came wearily back to the inn I heard a male voice boom out into the night:

"Coming, dear!" Polly yelled back.

"Who's that?" I asked.

"That?" questioned Polly, "O, that is my husband. He's just come back from St. Thomas."

"Well," I answered, "all I can say is, I hope he isn't a throw-back to Othello!"

Havana Street Cries.

Street calls of the flower, candy, and lottery ticket venders are a haunting feature of Havana life which tourists never forget. The shrill cry of the "manicero" or peanut-vender has already been immortalized.

TIPS TO TOURISTS

What's your travel problem? Address queries regarding where to go, how to get there, costs and accommodations to the Travelers' Guide, Chicago Tribune, inclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

We have been having an argument as to which is the highest peak in that part of the United States lying east of the Mississippi river. Can you tell us?—F. L. S.

The experts usually agree on North Carolina's Mount Mitchell, with an elevation of 6,635 feet.

When is the new Columbia Icefield highway in the Canadian Rockies scheduled to be opened?—B. J. M.

July 1.

Please give me a brief description of the Cape Breton Highlands National park in Nova Scotia.—C. J. McD.

The park has an area of approximately 390 square miles. The western shore rises precipitously from the waters in some sections; in others, the steep timber-clad slopes rise higher than the crags. The playground takes in the northern part of Royal Island. The Cape Breton hills are the highest in the Maritimes, and the western part of the island is noted for its change of scenery. The Cabot trail, mounting Cap Rouge and clinging to the higher lands until it reaches Pleasant bay, provides breath taking views. There are sudden hills like fortress bulwarks, sheer upthrust rock, and dark gorges lined with forest growth. The scenery is reminiscent of the Highlands of Scotland.

European Spas Have Rivals in South America

Many long-favored vacation lands across the Atlantic are barred from cruise routes just now, yet their counterparts are found right here in our own half of the world, where it still is safe to travel. To those who prefer ocean travel and foreign objectives, the cruises in American flag ships across waters within the safety zone to neutral ports in South America offer all the attractions that are found across the world.

Chile, entered thru Valparaiso, the "Southampton" of the west coast, presents a medley of old world sights. It has its Biarritz, the lido known as Vina del Mar near Valparaiso, which has a casino outrivaling that of Monte Carlo. The southern lake district, as one artist describes it, "is like the English countryside, the Rocky Mountains and the Swiss lakes rolled into one." Here are found some of the highest and most majestic mountains in the world—including the Volcan Osorno which is a perfect "Fujiyama." These mountains provide ski runs as excellent as those in Switzerland. Scattered thruout the republic are health spas and hot springs with therapeutic properties as varied and beneficial as the better known ones in Europe. Still farther south the coast is cut by fjords suggestive of the famous ones in Norway.

Peru, north of Chile, has a capital city, Lima, almost as Spanish as Madrid. Near Lima are seaside and mountain resorts as charming as many in Europe. Arequipa, in the highlands of Peru, is as popular a rendezvous for artists and writers as the villages in southern France. Cuzco, ancient Inca capital high in the Andes, and Lake Titicaca are surrounded with pre-Inca ruins as ancient and mysterious as those found along the Nile. On the other side of the Andes in eastern Peru are jungles as wild, and Indian tribes as primitive, as those in Africa. And strung along Peru's coast are deserts which present as strange sights as the Sahara.

Ecuador, still farther north, also has its old world attractions. The chief port, Guayaquil, is located on the Guayas—a river which with its jungle-choked shores and strange watercraft, is suggestive of the Congo. Quito, the oldest capital city in the western hemisphere, presents relics untold centuries old along with many modern features, yet it is as truly Spanish as old Seville. In the region known as the Oriente in the jungles at the headwaters of the Amazon are aboriginal tribes as primitive as those of the South Sea isles. Ecuador also has a lake district as spectacular as that of Switzerland—and thermal baths comparable to those in Europe.

Panama, not to be outdone by her neighbors, does her part to bring the old world almost to our very doors. The terminal cities lying as they do at the crossroads of the world present a perfect pageant of races—sailors of every nationality on shore-leave from ships flying the flags of all nations; shopkeepers from India, Turkey, Arabia, China and many European countries. The bazaars are filled with the sights, sounds, scents, and characteristics of the bazars in Algiers, Constantinople and the orient. The proprietors entreat visitors to buy Irish linens; laces from Belgium; slippers, pajamas, and kimonos, ivories, silks and jade from the far east; lingerie, perfumes and cosmetics from France. The isthmus even has its own Bali—jungles crammed with tropical plants and trees inhabited by Indians who have seen but few white men. Scattered along the coast not far from Colon are scores of little palm-covered isles studded with the thatched huts of the San Blas Indians—one of the most primitive races in existence.

To round out the picture, around Panama and down along the entire west coast are deep sea fishing grounds unexcelled by any of the faraway fields frequented by the big time anglers.

Cuba an Eden Minus Poisonous Reptiles

HAVANA—With its palms, vari-colored flowers, and fruits growing in profusion under a tropical sun, Cuba may resemble the biblical description of Eden, but something is wrong with the picture. There are no poisonous snakes or reptiles on the island. Only a few varieties of snakes are found in the interior, and the commonest, the Maja, is harmless despite its 10-foot length.

Berry May Make 2d Mexican Film

MEXICO CITY.—Wallace Beery, who once played the rôle of Pancho Villa in a movie filmed with the assistance of the Mexican government, may soon make another film with a Mexican background. He is considering a film based on the life of Zapata, agrarian leader and revolutionary figure.

If he undertakes the Zapata rôle, it will be a distinctly different characterization from the Villa portrayal. Villa was roistering, exhuberant, and dynamic; Zapata was brooding, dignified, and taciturn.

Nature Supplies Uruapan's Big Drawing Cards

By Frederic Babcock.

URUAPAN, MEXICO.

This city is one of Mexico's two leading centers of lacquer ware manufacture. It has a factory that gives the world a widely known brand of charanda brandy, and a factory that produces chocolate. But its chief attractions are not man-made. They are, rather, two masterpieces of nature—a national park of 545 acres and the Falls of La Tzararacua.

Forty-five acres of the park that was formerly a private estate are a mass of tropical vegetation. It is an oasis of everything from flame flowers to wild fig trees, and thru it plunges the Cupatitzio [Singing] river, as wild and entrancing a stream as one might expect to find in a far more spectacular region.

In America, it seems, every park or scenic spot must have a Devil's Slide or a Lover's Leap. In this playground the bit of fantasy is supplied by the Devil's Knee. And thereby hangs a legend.

The Blue Bath, in a rocky setting not far from the Singing river, was once the favorite swimming pool of Princess Erendira of the Tarascan tribe. But, for reasons of his own, the devil dried up the nearby spring, and the pool was empty. Friar Juan de Miguel came along, put holy water in the spring, and the enraged and outwitted devil leaped out. He was in such a hurry to get away that he stumbled as he leaped. The imprint of his knee, marking the scene of his downfall, is still to be seen in a rock on the pool's bank. And ever since then there has been a bountiful flow of water.

Ruben Diaz, who knows his Uruapan, told us the legend, without vouching for its authenticity. It didn't need to be true to be credible. Anything could be believed in such an unearthly setting.

Señor Diaz also conducted the two of us, on horseback and burro-back, to La Tzararacua, with its eerie, lacey waters springing out of the rocks and falling into a pool 225 feet below; with its rainbow effects, and its air of being at peace with the world and far removed from the center of things. If anything were needed to heighten the effect, it was furnished by our conductor when he reached up to what appeared to be a hair mattress, hanging in a crevice above us, and pulled out a tuft. The black "hairs" proved to be the legs of uncountable daddy-long-legs.

The city itself is, of course, much more worldly. Everywhere are the lacquer workers, doing everything by hand, just as their forefathers did, but bringing out the freehand designs with remarkable fidelity. On Sunday, which is market day, the streets are thronged with persons intent on buying such articles as maguey roots, machete knives, and handmade toys. The venders squat on the straw mats, between rows of produce, and appear content to take in a few pennies at a time. Stop at any one of a dozen booths and you can get, for 1 cent [Mexican], a stick of shaved ice flavored with any fruit juice known to American soda fountains. There are roulette wheels in miniature, and posters advertising baseball games, and, in the street in front of the Hotel Mirador, a roped off area for basketball practice.

Every transaction is carried out according to ancient methods. Burros still bring in the supplies from the hills. Indian women still enter the hotel lobby and haggle over the price of the live chickens they are carrying head downward. In the more primitive homes, with a hole in the roof for a chimney, the housewives still kneel on the floor to knead their bread.

Uruapan isn't the most modern city in Mexico; neither is it the most backward. It's worth a visit, if only for its tropical park and its waterfalls.

Clifford Gessler has painted this word picture of the landscape here:

"Rain slants down into the gardens, where the mangoes hang heavy on the stem.

"Pools in the plaza reflect the tall fresnos in mirrors shattered by whirling drops.

"The Singing river chatters over its stones; the mountain wears a rebozo of blue-white mist.

"Don Simplicio wraps his serape closer about him as the chill strikes down from the dove-gray leaning sky."

A Change of Colors.

At a point where the Gulf stream sweeps in toward the coast of North Carolina, 12 miles off Cape Hatteras, the division is so sharp that the bow of a boat can be seen in blue water and the stern in green.

MEXICAN HANDICRAFT

More or Less Personal

The fifth annual dinner of all the railroad passenger representatives of Chicago will be held tomorrow evening at the Stevens hotel. D. Leo Dolan, chief of the Canadian Travel bureau, is to be the main speaker.

After 15 years at Monroe and Clark streets, the Marnell Travel bureau has moved to the bank floor of the Palmer House.

At a luncheon and meeting of the Lena Barr Morse Travel club, at the Graymont hotel, 1032 East 46th street, at 1 p. m. Saturday, Miss Nellie Johnson will talk of her work among the Chinese.

A Chicago visitor last week, Alex McD. McBain, chief of the intelligence section of the Canadian foreign exchange control board, related that Canadians spend about four times as much per capita in the United States as Americans spend in the dominion. He reasoned it this way: There are around 130 million people in this country, and the amount spent by American tourists in Canada last year was figured at $262,000,000, or about $2 per capita. There are only 12 million people in the dominion, but last year they spent about $95,000,000—or approximately $8 per capita—in this country.

Zulu Rickshaw Boys' Dress Is a Trifle Gaudy

By Mason Warner.

DURBAN, NATAL, SOUTH AFRICA.

The Zulu rickshaw boys of Durban are appareled like none others in the world. The word "grotesque" cannot be applied to their costumes, for their headpieces and garments are too symmetrical to lack grace completely, and the variety of colors does not seem incongruous. Perhaps "picturesque" is the word to describe them.

No two headpieces are alike, but all have a pair of gigantic horns as a foundation upon which to build. Zulu cattle have horns like those of Texas longhorns, with a spread of four or five feet from point to point. The boy takes a pair of these horns, the bigger the better, and forms a crown of shells and beads to which he attaches the brightest feathers of birds procurable, tall splits of colored reeds, and dried flowers and shoots. With these he achieves a gorgeous top piece, sometimes four feet wide, five feet high, and weighing twenty pounds.

The boys' shirts are brilliant in coloring, tho conservative in cut. The Zulus aim at distinction in gait as well as in dress. One will pull his rickshaw with short, mincing steps; another trots as doggedly as a distance runner. One will take long, undulating strides; an outstanding star goes at a slow motion gallop, stepping high while he struts his stuff. His rickshaw teeters up and down in an obstreperous manner, quite unnerving to his passenger. Some of the boys make more money posing for tourists' photographs than they do pulling rickshaws.

Tourists seeking colorful scenes visit the native and the Indian markets of Durban. Articles of native craftsmanship displayed for sale are disappointing. They consist chiefly of sticks and canes, beadwork in women's belts and necklaces, and carved gourds designed for various uses. The pottery is fragile and black. The hammered copper and brass pieces looked as if they would break if packed in your luggage. We bought nothing.

The high spot of the native market was the Kaffir beer hall, a wired-off section requiring a pass for entry, and with all sales under government supervision. Sales to each person were limited to two quarts, served in beakers holding about a pint, priced at about 3 cents each. There were about 500 noisy persons in the crowded enclosure, and every one was busy drinking.

The section of the market devoted to eating was as interesting as the beer hall. There was a platform at one end, with huge cauldrons of steaming food hanging over open fires, and some waist-high stands with sheet metal tops and fires below for frying. The portions of food, served in enamel soup dishes of double capacity, were amazing in quantity. Rice, with various sauces, was a favorite; in demand were beans of various kinds; "mealies," corn, also was served to many. The hunks and chunks of meat did not look appetizing. Fritters and dumplings filled with chopped meat were on every table. Men and women were eating, but the men predominated. The natives were of all sizes and ages, from lively tots to the aged and infirm, clad in all types and colors of bizarre costumes, but most of the clothing was drab, dirty, and patched.

Besides food, drink, and native handicraft, the market offered fruits, vegetables, meats, shoes, clothing, and household utensils.

The Indian market was more attractive, because the crowds were much better dressed and there was more variety in the merchandise on sale. The Indian women were in spotless pink and blue growns; the majority of the men were in white.

Both markets are controled by the city of Durban, which rents the stalls to merchants. The Indian mart had more fruit than the native. Fruit is plentiful in the Durban district, which produces oranges, mangoes, pineapples, bananas, custard apples, papayas, guava, grenadillas, loquats, grapefruit, and avocado pears.

One could spend real money in the Indian market. There were rich showings of pearls, diamonds, and gold and silver jewelry. There was an abundance of ivory and of ebony elephants, carved in singles, pairs, and in long files ranging from a small leader to a big fellow bringing up the rear. Of course, the ivory carvings were not limited to elephants; there were tigers, water buffalo, human figures, temples, and pagodas. Here and there an Indian merchant sold walrus ivory figures carved by the Japanese, but elephant ivory had the call. I bought an ebony cane, trimmed with ivory, for 2 shillings [50 cents].

Bronze metal vases of all sizes and shapes, with intricate inlaid designs, were displayed in profusion, but many of the patterns are on sale in art stores in the United States. There was much basket work, along with plenty of woven mats and small rugs, like those on sale in 5 and 10c stores in America.

In neither market could one buy knives or spears. The law prohibits the native from carrying his original weapon, the assagai. Up until a few years ago, he was permitted to carry two walking sticks, one for defense and one for offense, but that privilege has been withdrawn and now he must depend upon only one.

PROUD OF HIS TRADE

have you ever had a French Canadian vacation?

THE Laurentians! That massive escarpment which towers towards the Northern skies beyond the St. Lawrence, creates one of Nature's greatest playgrounds. Here, a thousand lakes teem with sporting fish. Every year, from all over America, come tens of thousands, for golf, tennis, riding, all the relaxations you seek when holidays come your way. Yet . . .

Here is an atmosphere which can't be compared to any you've met before in North America. As you drive North from Montréal or Québec, or East from Ottawa into the Gatineau, the tang of a way of living, not to be found anywhere else on our continent, comes to the traveller. Here, in a setting of Old Normandy, yet of America too, French Canadian and English Canadian live side by side in neighbourly concord, fashioning a life that is a delight to the beholder who seeks out something new as he travels. They wait to welcome you.

Old Québec Province, from the Laurentians to Québec City, will delight you and send you home completely refreshed from the best vacation you ever had. Yet it makes no strain on your purse. City District of Music Federation Faces Busy Week

The Chicago district of the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs has a busy week in prospect, with its annual meeting tomorrow morning at the Chicago Woman's club, and a musical for Mrs. Royden J. Keith, the federation's new president, planned for Friday morning at the Arts club.

Mrs. Eleanor Everest Freer. [Moffett-Russell Photo.]

Mrs. Eleanor Everest Freer, composer and honorary life member of the federation, will be hostess Friday morning, when her one-act opera, "The Brownings Go to Italy," will be presented by Freda Draper, Vernon Gerhardt, Helen Ryerson, and David Johnson, with Leo Heim at the piano.

Mrs. Keith will attend the district's annual meeting tomorrow and, with Mrs. Florence Grandland Galajikian and Mrs. Radie Britain, will be a special guest at the luncheon afterward.

Mrs. Frank P. Whitmore, Chicago district president, will conduct the meeting. Mrs. John A. Cooke of Evanston will be a candidate for election as first vice president; Mrs. M. B. Kennedy of Evanston, as third vice president; Mrs. Merritt M. Ranstead, as treasurer; and Mrs. William B. Wait as auditor.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, March 17, 1892.

Dear Julia: Martha and Sandy and the four children have just departed, after a short call, in which the twins were the central figures. Little Alec and Sandra, tho I haven't written much of them recently, I believe, are the most remarkable infants in the world, to their adoring family. Their Scotch nurse is chief high priestess and if passers-by fail to do homage, in the shape of admiring glances, as she wheels them in their double perambulator along the street she regards it as a personal affront.

Last night we all attended an entertainment at Central Music hall, in which we heard a new entertainer, Ben King, who seems to be rising into favor, and on a par with Bill Nye and Riley, with whom he appeared. He is a young fellow, only 35, but has a great future, Sandy thinks. His imitation of Paderewski is certainly mirth-provoking enough. He roughs up his hair, falls on the keyboard, executes the most remarkable trills and "runs," and then stiffens out and has to be carried off the stage.

Ben King.

Besides making the piano talk, as Will calls his performance, this droll fellow, mimic and humorist, recites his own verses, making the audience laugh immoderately, with his parody "If I Should Die Tonight" and again with his surprising "The Pessimist," in which he complains that there is "nowhere to go but out, nowhere to come but back," a satire on the man who looks on the dark side of life.

Maj. Moses P. Handy, southern newspaper man who has charge of publicity of the Columbian Exposition, is his friend, and in a verse addressed to him Ben King says:

"Excuse me, Mr. Handy, for a-droppin' you a line,
But the fact is, I've arrived in town an' feelin' mighty fine;
I'm stoppin' at the Press club, er that's where I take my meals,
An' I must say I'm agitatin' some colossal deals."

Riley, Nye, Ben King, A. P. Burbank, and Thomas Nast [famous New York cartoonist] were guests of honor at the Union League club luncheon given by Eugene Field one day this week. To meet these celebrities he invited a diverse gathering of friends . . . Slason Thompson, one of his intimates; Victor F. Lawson, H. H. Kohlsaat, Will J. Davis [theater manager]; the Rev. Dr. Collyer, Melville Stone, and others.

It was called a corned-beef-hash luncheon, for that dish was the chief item on the menu. Other delicacies were filet of beef, boiled potatoes with jackets on; cornbread; saleratus biscuits; apple pie; coffee and cigars. O, yes, buttermilk was served, Will reports. He says the Union League club waiters were sore put to it to fill the beakers rapidly enough.

After luncheon, the crowd, many of whom are collectors, visited the beautiful home of J. W. Ellsworth, who has a gallery full of priceless paintings and collectors' items, among them being the only original papal bull in the country. Eugene Field implored Maj. Handy to veil his bushy red whiskers, so as not to excite the Ellsworth bull.

The antique which Dr. Collyer found most interesting, Will says, was a fine writing desk on which Byron wrote "Don Juan." Bill Nye buried himself in a Gutenberg Bible. The others examined the wonderful paintings of which Mr. Ellsworth is so proud.

I believe Ben King is soon to be in New York, and I hope you'll try to hear him.

Lovingly,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Ben King [1857-1894] was born in St. Joseph, Mich. Opie Read calls him a humorist of the highest order. "There was about him," says Read, "a droll, a charming irresponsibility . . . a Thomas Hood from Michigan." The widow of Ben King lives at 5000 Harper avenue, Chicago.

A Chicago friend of Tuskegee institute and of Dr. George W. Carver, famous Negro scientist recently mentioned in this column, sends us the following Scripture verses, called by Dr. Carver his "slogans, by which he lives." "Try these," writes Dr. Carver, "and see what a marvelous vision will come to you."

George W. Carver's Slogans.

1. Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free. [John, 8:32].

2. In all thy ways acknowledge Him and He shall direct Thy path. [Prov., 3:6.]

3. For the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord as the waters cover the sea. [Hab. 2:14.]

4. Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth. [II. Tim. 2.15.]

5. I can do all things thru Christ who strengtheneth me. [Phil. 4:13.]

"The Philadelphia Story" Is Literature of Fine Grade

Lines in Barry Play Contain Color and Wit

By Cecil Smith.

Sometimes I wonder whether the theatergoing public has lost all interest in the theater as a place where expert and cultivated literary expression may find its way to an audience. Take, for instance, the case of "The Philadelphia Story," Philip Barry's comedy now at the Erlanger theater. I have read, here and elsewhere, paragraphs and columns on the success—or, as a minority will have it, the unsuccess—of Katharine Hepburn's return to the stage. I have heard her patrons exclaim over her aristocracy and charm, or complain of her habit of shouting and exploding her lines. I have heard the supporting cast praised, and I have heard some of its members condemned. I have been told that the play is funny and that it is unfunny. In all these matters I am quite content to let you take your choice.

But the odd feature of the visit to Chicago of "The Philadelphia Story" is that nobody has thought to comment that it is literature of an uncommonly fine grade, good enough to tremble on the brink of the belles lettres classification. Admittedly Mr. Barry's subject matter is not deep, and his approach to his theme is tinged with frivolity. Admittedly also, and fortunately, he always remembers that his first task is the skilful technical construction of an effective stage piece.

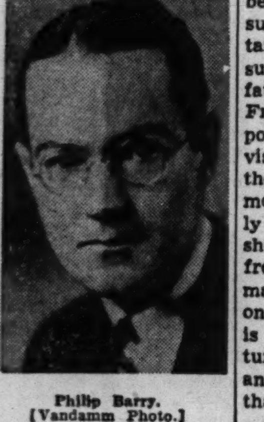
Beyond these superficial observations, however, a rounded evaluation of "The Philadelphia Story" must recognize that the English language, in a modern style, is seldom employed with greater discrimination, color and wit than are constantly in evidence in Mr. Barry's dialog. In "No Time for Comedy" S. N. Behrman perhaps surpasses him in the acuteness with which he can perceive precisely the most exact and trenchant verbal dress for an idea. Maxwell Anderson in "Key Largo," of course, strives for a poetic use of language, but his thinking is too diffuse and turgid to permit of consistently clear literary expression.

Mr. Barry exceeds both these other playwrights in his flair for a light, gay touch. Where Mr. Behrman frequently abandons frankly all pretense at comic mood when the development of a thesis overcomes him by his seriousness, and where Mr. Anderson, for all his serious-mindedness, is simply not good at thinking an issue thru, Mr. Barry is seldom impelled to sacrifice whimsicality and surface lightness.



Philip Barry.
[Vandamm Photo.]

I suppose this refusal to wear a serious literary mien in "The Philadelphia Story" is what has caused some observers to accuse Mr. Barry of writing constantly too much like a gentleman. If his writing were merely the effortless result of the good station and breeding thrust on him by accident of birth, this criticism would seem more trenchant. But he has actually passed thru a trial by fire, a period in which, apparently fearing that his original advantages might keep his writing superficial, he has experimented with attempts at wholly serious and experimental drama. These were almost uniformly unsuccessful, and it became apparent that the playwright was striving to work against his essential nature and temperament.

With "The Philadelphia Story" he has emerged from this difficult period, evidently convinced, like Gaylord Easterbrook in "No Time for Comedy," that the world of the theater has ample room for a playwright of comedy, if only his mood is charming and his skill is sufficient. Accordingly "The Philadelphia Story" is an important play, for in it one of our preëminent authors of high comedy has rediscovered his own true metier.

Laurence Olivier's production of "Romeo and Juliet" at the Auditorium theater has received more than its share, perhaps, of adverse criticism. Granting that the play might better have been conceived in more intimate terms in the first place, there remains nothing else amiss with the production that could not be cured by more effective direction.

Mr. Olivier originally undertook the multiple task of acting the part of Romeo, directing himself and all the other players, coöperating in the designing of scenes and costumes, supervising the construction of the revolving stage, and casting a critical eye over the lighting. In addition, he personally selected the members of his company, some of them in Hollywood and others in New York. At the time of all these preparations he was also putting the finishing touches on a moving picture.

This is patently more than any one man can do and have everything come out right. In Mr. Olivier's behalf I think it should be plainly stated that he never dreamed that everything would prove to be perfect, or that in so tradition-coated a work as "Romeo and Juliet" he could hope for unanimous critical commendation. He was frankly trying his wings as an actor-producer, and he was willing to take all the risks entailed in so ambitious a venture.

I should gladly concede to Mr. Olivier his right to all the rest of his share in the production if only he had not felt it necessary to assume quite so much responsibility for its stage direction. In a performance packed with fresh ideas of interpretation and movement, he is and has been too busy as Romeo to obtain sufficient detachment from the details of staging. The best portions, such as the street scene with its two fatal duels, the banishment scene in Friar Laurence's cell, and Juliet's potion scene, come off with beautiful visual clarity. In general, however, there is an attempt at choreographic movement which is only intermittently achieved satisfactorily. Somebody should have been able to stand apart from the performance to pass ultimate judgment on its visual aspects, on its tempo, on its audibility [which is now excellent]—on all those features of a performance toward which an audience has a better perspective than an actor.

An authoritative director who stood apart from the process of acting could have drawn together more fully some of the diverse personal styles of the actors. Wesley Addy, Halliwell Hobbes, Alexander Knox, and Dame May Whitty are above reproach, for they fit excellently into the total picture. Mr. Olivier is in danger of slipping out of the picture in the early scenes thru sheer nervous exuberance, or perhaps thru a realization that as static a play as "Romeo and Juliet" needs artificial aids to movement. Vivien Leigh's Juliet, not yet wholly realized visually, could probably have been developed further in the direction of plasticity and lyric continuity without sacrificing its fresh youthfulness.

Nevertheless, I still belong in the group of observers who think it was all worth doing, and who think it is eminently worth seeing as it stands. It is a courageous and daring venture, impressive both for its positive accomplishment and for its tantalizing implications.

For their final subscription play of the 1939-'40 season, Theater Guild and American Theater society subscribers will receive Clare Boothe's "Margin for Error." This play, one company of which is still running successfully in New York, will come to the Grand Opera house on Monday evening, May 6. The first two weeks are the Guild subscription period, but the engagement is not limited to that span.

"Margin for Error" is the first anti-Nazi drama to establish itself successfully on the American stage. Deserting her vein of gag comedy, so thoroly exploited in "The Women" and "Kiss the Boys Goodbye," Miss Boothe has concerned herself with a frank exposition of her views upon Nazi ideals, employing the murder of the German consul in an American city as the melodramatic incident around which her play is developed.

The company that will appear here has already played in Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and Detroit. The cast includes Sheldon Leonard, Josephine Dunn, Morgan Farley, Don Terry, Alexander Clark, Kurt Katch, John McKee, Cyrilla Dorne, and Edward Nannary. Aldrich and Myers, who produced John Barrymore's celebrated vehicle, "My Dear Children," also sponsor "Margin for Error." The director is Otto L. Preminger, who also directed "My Dear Children."

Maurice Schwartz and his celebrated Yiddish Art Theater troupe will come to the Civic Opera house Thursday, May 9, for five performances of "Salvation," by Sholom Asch, the well known author of "The Nazarene." Mr. Schwartz portrays the rôle of a humble and pious rabbi. Performances will be given each evening from Thursday, May 9, thru Sunday, May 12, with a single matinée on Sunday afternoon.

It may be that callow members of the younger generation are not informed as to the first great success achieved by Patricia Collinge, who now may be seen with Tallulah Bankhead in "The Little Foxes" at the Selwyn theater. As Pollyanna, the "Glad Girl," she won a tremendous following at the Blackstone theater here, and later went to New York to repeat her triumph in the play. She has appeared in many significant plays, including distinguished revivals of "Becky Sharp," "She Stoops to Conquer," "The Importance of Being Earnest," "Hedda Gabler," and "The Rivals." Tho she has spent nearly her entire time in this country, she was born in Dublin, Ireland.

Beginning on May 6, Monday evening performances will be omitted from the schedule of "The Man Who Came to Dinner" at the Harris theater. There will be a performance tomorrow evening.

Lillian Gish, of "Life with Father," resigned from the D. A. R., along with her mother and sister, when Marian Anderson, the great Negro contralto, was not permitted to appear in Constitution hall, the D. A. R. auditorium in Washington, D. C. Miss Gish explains her resignation with a beautifully characteristic turn: "I don't quite know what we were doing in the organization in the first place."

A last-minute reminder: Tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday Maurice Evans will make his only appearance in this region in "Richard II." at the Davidson theater in Milwaukee. The company will work westward, reaching San Francisco in mid-May.

The Goodman theater student company gives its final performance of J. B. Priestley's "Laburnum Grove" tonight. The season's last production, from May 13 to 25, will be "Goodbye Again," by Allan Scott and George Haight.

PLAYS ROLE OF MURDERESS

The oldest play in town is the Harris theater's tenant, "The Man Who Came to Dinner." Among other oddities the comedy introduces a famous hatchet murderess, played by Gillian Willis.

New Allegory Takes Hobos to Spirit World

By Burns Mantle.

New York [Special].—"Heavenly Express" has been a long time arriving at a Broadway station, but it pulled in last week. Albert Bein—sometime author of "Little Ol' Boy" and "Let Freedom Ring," sometime recipient of a Guggenheim fellowship, a fairly youthful dramatist whose promise continues greater than his achievement, but is still important as a promise—is the author.

"Heavenly Express" is a kind of fantasy, a drama touched with allegorical significance. It tells of a young hobo who was chased over the icy top of a freight train until he slipped and fell and rolled down an embankment. He was dead when found. All hobos know that.

And yet, one night 19 years later, when three of the boys are hovering over a fire under a trestle on the Santa Fe near Ash Fork, Ariz., The Overland Kid appears suddenly among them. He is the same gay and irresponsible kid, but he carries a fancy mandolin and tells tall tales of the Heavenly Express that is on its way. Overland Kid is an advance ticket taker representing the Almighty Vagabond, and he has come for the Melancholy Bo, who is one of the three gathered around the fire.

Rushing thru an impressive assortment of offstage huffings and puffings, screechings and whistlings, racing with shooting stars and the like, the Heavenly Express comes within hailing distance, and that is the last we see of Melancholy Bo.

On, then, to the railroad boarding house of Betsy Graham. Betsy was the mother of Melancholy Bo, and, because she felt guilty for having told him once in anger that either he had to behave himself or find another home, she has always been kind to tramps. She never had seen her son after he left her, but her Mulligan pies are raved about in all the hobo jungles from end to end of the line.

And now Betsy is kind to the Overland Kid, and fascinated by his stories of Melancholy Bo and the other boys. And presently the Heavenly Express is reported tearing over the whole Santa Fe system, violating all the schedules, starting out of snowbound canyons and running into rich valleys with grass on its wheels. When it stops, Granny Graham folds her arms across her chest, smiles a tired smile and, we imagine, is relieved to have her spirit clamber aboard.

In between these major errands, the Overland Kid jollies the railroaders and there is a touch or two of comedy in the mystification of the old-timers. But "Heavenly Express" remains even more vague and unclarified as to theme than did "On Borrowed Time." It is less satisfying allegorically than either "Outward Bound" or "Death Takes a Holiday." Yet, like all fantasies, it has as much charm as your imagination gives it.

John Garfield [who used to be Jules] is back from Hollywood to play the Overland Kid with vast enthusiasm. He bounds about a good deal like Puck, and a little like Peter Pan, and is generally a likable lad on a kind of stage holiday, for all he is never very convincing as a messenger of death.

John Garfield.
[Acme Photo.]

I have an idea that Albert Bein approves of the performance, and Mr. Bein knows a hobo when he meets one. It was while he was trying to steal a ride on a Santa Fe freight 20 years ago that Bein fell between two box cars and lost a leg. And that accident occurred near Ash Fork, Ariz.

Aline MacMahon plays Granny Graham with fine sympathy, Harry Carey of the movies is an old-time engineer, and the support includes Russell Collins and Philip Loeb.

An item of the week was the appearance of Molly Picon, for many years the pride of the east side and the Yiddish theater, as the heroine of a comedy written and played in English and called "Morning Star." Why? Because, silly, "The morning star always shines brightest after the darkest night."

Miss Picon's advent as a Broadway star in English has been threatened for many years, and heralded a score of times. But she is a wise little person and has waited until she was satisfied with the play they offered her. "Molly," they tell me, means "queen" in Yiddish. Whether it does or not, Molly has been a queen in second avenue for 20 years or more, and such a little queen! She stands 5 feet in sizable heels and weighs 100 pounds dressed for the street.

She was born in the 2d avenue neighborhood, but was brought up for the most part in Philadelphia. She learned her Yiddish, of all places, in Europe, and it was in Bucharest and such capitals that she gained her first fame as a soubrette—a singer of popular songs and a dancer of popular dances.

She came back to America in the early nineteen-twenties and began her theater reign almost as soon as she landed. She has left 2d avenue from time to time; made cross-country tours in vaudeville; made many European tours; boasts of command performances before Marie and Carol in Rumania and before Al Capone in Cicero, Ill., in Al's pre-jail days. But always she has come back to 2d avenue to find the loyalists of her youth more devoted than ever.

Experimental Plays

Committees from Actors Equity and the Dramatists guild have reached an agreement on a plan that will permit the operation of experimental theaters in New York. The plan would provide for waiving of fees, royalties and wages, while all concerned worked on a coöperative basis and shared in a percentage arrangement. The governing councils of Actors Equity and the Dramatists guild have not yet considered the plan. If and when they agree to them, there still remains the problem of arranging details for the execution of the proposal. However, the present agreement represents an important step forward in the complicated matter of making the experimental theater feasible.

Current Music News

A symphony orchestra sprung from the ranks of a church congregation will make its appearance in concert on Wednesday night. It is the ensemble of the First Methodist church of Evanston, and it will present a full symphonic program, complete with soloists, in the church's great hall, starting at 8:15 o'clock.

No less than eight different instruments will be played by Earle H. Roberts in a lecture-recital in Kimball hall on Wednesday night. This versatile performer will demonstrate his abilities on the banjo, vibra harp, marimba-phone, cello, guitar, steel guitar, mandolin, and string bass. Elsie Quattrochi, assisting soprano soloist, will sing the "Addio" aria from "La Bohème" and a group of songs.

The Chicago Committee for Music Appreciation, in initiating its Chicago Music Appreciation program, is giving a banquet in the Drake hotel on Tuesday night. Members of the national committee who will be present include Lucrezia Bori and Olga Samaroff Stokowski.

Vaudeville News

Hattie McDaniel, the colored actress who for her work in "Gone With the Wind" became the first member of her race to win a Motion Picture Academy award, is making a personal appearance at the Chicago theater this week. Cofeatured with her on the stage show are the famous Andrews Sisters and "Red" Skelton, rising young comedian. Edna Stillwell, the Juvellys, and the Debonairs complete the bill of performers. On the screen is "Buck Benny Rides Again," with Jack Benny and "Rochester."

Hattie McDaniel.

At the State-Lake theater Arturo Godoy, Chilean contender for Joe Louis' heavyweight championship, heads the vaudeville bill with his wife, Ledda. Stanley Fields, screen "gangster" actor, Freddy Fisher's "Schnickelfritz" comedy band, George Downey, George Moore, and the Gale Sextet are also in evidence in the show. The film is "Castle on the Hudson," with John Garfield, Ann Sheridan, and Pat O'Brien.

Myrna Dean is the particular new star at the Rialto theater. "Assassins of Youth" is the current motion picture.

Anderson Play.

The latest play to come from the pen of Maxwell Anderson is called "Journey to Jerusalem." It is concerned with a Passover pilgrimage from Nazareth to the Holy City in the year 8 A. D. Among the pilgrims are the Child Jesus and His family. The play will probably be the first production of the Playwrights' company next season.

600 Children to Sing in Chorus Festival Next Sunday

Folk Songs of Many Nations Will Be Heard

By Edward Barry.

For 600 Chicago children next Sunday is the day of days. It brings the annual Civic Music association festival and the chance to sing from the stage of Orchestra hall to the accompaniment of the Civic orchestra.

These children, who range in age from 5 to 15, have been rehearsing all year in settlements, community centers, and orphanages thruout Chicago. Their leaders have been specially selected teachers who have visited the various institutions weekly. The work has been financed by the Civic Music association, a nonprofit organization which depends for its financial stability on ticket sales for the annual downtown festival and on voluntary contributions from public minded individuals. Most if not all these children have no other opportunities for musical training and few other opportunities to acquire the group spirit and the sense of responsibility which choral singing so powerfully stimulates.

So much for the sociological implications of this Civic Music association festival. The truth is that no one need buy a ticket simply to help support a worthy work, for the festival is quite able to stand on its own feet. It is a genuinely exhilarating musical event, and constitutes one of the best bargains which a concert-goer can find.

For prices ranging from 15 cents to $1 the public is offered a program of simple songs—mostly folk songs—and light orchestral music. No one who has ever heard these 600 dewy child voices raised in such a song as "All Through the Night" or "Panis Angelicus" need be urged to come to next Sunday's concert. The singing is astonishingly precise—but more than that it has a fresh, naïve tone quality which is like a wind off a fjord to any one who has become jaded with too much adult music making.

The children's chorus will be conducted by Marx E. Oberndorfer [who also has made the orchestrations for the songs], the Civic orchestra by Hans Lange.

The program promises folk songs from Canada, Armenia, Bohemia, Wales, China, Japan, Rumania, Portugal, Italy, and the United States. Also simple art songs like Mendelssohn's "On Wings of Song." The orchestra will play excerpts from Schubert's "Rosamunde" ballet music, the scherzo from Mendelssohn's music to "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and Mozart's concertante for oboe, clarinet, horn, and bassoon.

Tickets may be obtained at the box office of Orchestra hall and at the Civic Music association's office, Room 637 in the Fine Arts building, 410 South Michigan avenue, or may be reserved by calling Harrison 5862. The concert next Sunday starts at 3:30.

The association was founded in 1913 to promote the development of musical talent and to encourage the appreciation and study of music among Chicago children. Mr. Oberndorfer is musical director. Officers of the association are Frederick Stock, honorary president; Henry B. Vanzwoll, president; G. T. Hellmuth, first vice president; Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, second vice president; Priscilla Carver, secretary; Edwin S. Fetcher, treasurer, and Werra Schuette, executive secretary.

Also on May 5, but in the evening, are the dinner and concert to be given at the Arts club in honor of Frederick Stock, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra since 1905. Claire Dux, soprano, will present several of Mr. Stock's songs, some of which are dedicated to her. The Philharmonic String quartet is to play his first quartet. A chamber orchestra drawn from the ranks of the Chicago Symphony orchestra and directed by Mr. Stock will present a first performance of a prelude and scherzo infinito which the conductor has dedicated to the president and members of the Arts club.

A concert designed to stress the fact that Mr. Stock is a composer as well as a conductor represents a brilliant idea on somebody's part. Chicago is so used to seeing him at the head of the orchestra that all of his other activities have been lost sight of. True, a few Stock works have appeared from time to time on the orchestra's programs, but only the Little Symphonic Waltz has been heard with any regularity during the last decade. A conductor-composer is in a difficult position, for there will always be people ready to assert that he is using his authority to promote his own works. Mr. Stock is so sensitive on this point that he leans over backward in an effort to keep his compositions off the Chicago Symphony orchestra's programs.

It will come as a surprise, therefore, to many persons to learn that his list of works is a long one. There are two symphonies, a violin concerto, a cello concerto, three overtures, a symphonic poem, sets of symphonic variations and symphonic sketches, an improvisation and wedding march, a psalmodic rhapsody for solo, chorus, and orchestra, a festival march and hymn to liberty, a festival prologue, a waltz, a string quartet, quintet and sextet, pieces for violin and piano, and songs.

In addition to these original works, there are, of course, many arrangements and transcriptions for orchestra of works written for other instruments or combinations of instruments.

CONDUCTS PAULIST CHORUS

This afternoon Father O'Malley will conduct the Paulist choristers in their annual spring concert in Orchestra hall. The group numbers 100 men and boys among its members. [De Gueldre Photo.]

Grand "Young Lady" Sophie Star at Chez

Trading is brisk in the Chicago entertainment mart, with futures holding their own in a rush of buying and selling.

Chez Paree enters the dealing for the second time in two weeks, announcing the appearance of a performer who in almost any other field would be referred to as a "grand old lady." One glance at Sophie Tucker and one brief listen to her current version of her first hit song—the classic "Some of These Days"—makes such a soubriquet an obvious anacronism. The "grand" is okeh. But no old lady could do the things Sophie does to her adoring audiences.

Another new singer on the Chez bill is Everett West. One of the few single acts that has been held over for two seven-week show periods, West returns with a new répertoire and new appeal. His "Mighty Like a Rose" is the sort of vocal magic that quiets even a 3 a. m. crowd, toughest in the business.

Mimi Kellerman, the interpretive dancer, has injected new fire into her original routines, with the result that she assumes greater and more pleasing stature in the Chez lineup. Georges and Jalna, of course, continue to dance with all the grace and charm that is such a generous part of their makeup.

Opera's one time spectacular star, Mary McCormic, has made her night club debut at the Hi-Hat. It is something for her public to chatter about, for Miss McCormic brings to her new career a voice of depth and range that night club patrons are seldom privileged to hear. Add to that a personality that has always been electric, and you have the reason for her reception on Rush street. In deference to her surroundings Miss McCormic confines her selection to the lighter numbers, ranging precipitately up from "Oh, Johnny."

Willie Shore continues to be the second most permanent feature of the Hi-Hat. The first is the front door.

Ray Kinney's Hawaiian orchestra, with a troupe of dancing and singing native girls, make a one day appearance today at the Aragon ballroom. They co-star with Dick Jurgens and company.

Jack McLean returns to the Trianon May 11, and Ted Weems will move into the Aragon three days later.

Popular hit of the current show in the Bismarck hotel's Walnut room is the old fashioned minstrel parade. Headed by Art Kassel, the company produces a fast moving revue that in its nostalgic appeal is something fresh in café entertainment. Frank Payne, impersonator; Marion Holmes, Kassel's lovely singer; Colette and Barry, dance team, and the Jane Hadley dancers provide the variety numbers.

Bill Russell, handsome baritone, is the master of dinner show ceremonies in the Panther room of Hotel Sherman these nights. Meriting a star rôle for his version of "Night and Day," Russell neatly hands the laurels to his fellow workers—Ben Pollack's band with singing Armide, Alice Kavan, a dancer of variety and verve, and Alexander and Santos and company, dance satirists.

Boswelling the Bistros:

The Fiddlers Three, ace strolling trio, will leave L'Aiglon restaurant the latter part of this week. Ted Kromelow, Ronnie Saunders, and Don Sprietzer make up the versatile unit. . . . Lon Sax and his Saxonaires, with a cute vocalist named Nonie Wynn, are the current attraction in the Buttery of the Ambassador West. . . . Fabian Andre has started another four week stretch across the street in the Pump room. . . . George Tapps has danced another act out of the Empire room show, Roy Benson, magician, giving way to the Tapps encores. Signed to a long term contract by the Palmer House, Tapps now has been promised a modest billing of "Mr. George Tapps." . . . Bill Schneider, appendix gone and health returned, is again giving Joe Buckley the kind of piano accompaniment Piccadilly Circle patrons prefer for Joe's fiddling. . . . Riverview rink patrons have an answer to the Conga craze. It is a bouncing step called the Riverview Romp. . . . Griff Williams was saved for Stevens hotel dancers by a cynical audience in San Francisco some years ago. Turned producer-composer at the behest of a Broadway promoter, Griff hastened back to the band field after the show caught the wrong kind of audience response. . . . Freddie Daw comes up from Florida to open May 4 at the Merry Garden ballroom. He has a singing beauty named Mary Jane Dodd. . . . Bernie Cummins brings his band back to the Marine room of the Edgewater Beach hotel Saturday after an absence of two years.

Paulist Choir, Apollo Club to Sing This Week

By Cecil Smith.

The last two major choral events of the downtown season are scheduled to take place this week. This afternoon in Orchestra hall the renowned Paulist choristers will present their 36th consecutive annual concert. On Tuesday evening in the same hall the Apollo club, a choral institution of even longer history, will present Mendelssohn's "Elijah."

Since 1928 the Paulist choristers have been directed by the Rev. Eugene O'Malley, C. S. P., who took over the choir from its founder, the Rev. William Joseph Finn. There are about 100 men and boys in the choir. From all parts of the city and from all stations in life they come to St. Mary's church on South Wabash avenue for their rehearsals and services. One chorister regularly travels 60 miles for the privilege of belonging to the group. The boys who sing soprano and alto range in age from 9 to 15 years. The tenor and bass parts are sung by adult men.

Of course the choir experiences changes in its personnel every year. Some of the members, however, remain for a good many years, sometimes dropping out during the period when their voices are in process of changing, and returning when the process is complete. The boys of the choir profit from an opportunity to spend a summer vacation at the Paulist Choir Summer school at Land o' Lakes, Wis., where musical training and recreation are combined. The proceeds of today's concert will go toward the support of the camp.

Father O'Malley whimsically confesses that he "cannot sing a note of music." This admission is not really a damaging one, for a musician need not be a professional singer to accomplish excellent results from a choir. For a choral director, discriminating ears are more important than vocal cords, and so is dependable musical knowledge.

Discriminating ears and dependable musical knowledge Father O'Malley possesses in good measure. His choir is well balanced, tonally good, and technically precise to the point of clear rhythm and true pitch. His musical taste is wide. In the performance of sixteenth century religious music he is both a scholar and a connoisseur. He understands the mysteries of rhythmic accentuation and interweaving polyphony, and consequently presents highly authoritative interpretations of ancient church music.

Such sixteenth century masters as Palestrina, Vittoria and Di Lasso are represented in today's concert. Among more modern works will be motets by Gretchaninoff and Rachmaninoff, Tschaikowsky's "A Legend" [sung in honor of the centenary of the composer's birth], a new work by Felix Borowski, noted Chicago musical scholar and composer, entitled "O, Softly Singing Lute," and a diversity of folk songs.

While the "Elijah" is scarcely a novel choice of music for the Apollo club's final program of the year, yet the Mendelssohn oratorio has not been performed frequently in recent seasons. Once upon a time it was almost as hardy a choral perennial as Handel's "Messiah."

Edgar Nelson, the club's regular conductor, will direct the Apollo club and members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra in Tuesday's performance. The title rôle will be sung by Mark Love, well known bass of the Chicago Opera company and station W-G-N. While Mr. Love's musical répertoire is enormous and his versatility is great, he has found time to identify himself particularly with the music of Elijah. He has sung the part in cities large and small across the country, and now often presents it in dramatized form with his own settings and professional stage director. In vocal range and texture and in musical understanding he is excellently qualified for the part.

Naomi Cullen Cook, who will sing the solo soprano music, may be described without hesitation as the possessor of one of the most beautiful lyric dramatic soprano voices in this part of the country. She has not yet been awarded many big opportunities in Chicago. Her other colleagues among the soloists are Ruth Heizer, contralto; Robert Kessler, tenor, and Vincent Almquist, boy soprano. Robert Birch is the club's organist.

Notes of Music and Musicians

One of the famous husband and wife teams in the musical world, André Kostelanetz and Lily Pons, will appear together in concert in the Civic Opera house this afternoon. Miss Pons will sing numbers from her répertoire of familiar coloratura arias, and Mr. Kostelanetz will conduct an orchestra in accompaniments and other items. The program follows:

Overture to "Der Freischütz" .... Weber
"Lo, here the gentle lark" .... Bishop
Miss Pons.
"Una voce poco fa," from "The Barber of Seville" .... Rossini
Miss Pons.
Prelude to "The Afternoon of a Faun" .... Debussy
Bell Song from "Lakmé" .... Delibes
Miss Pons.
Overture—Fantasia, "Romeo and Juliet" .... Tschaikowsky
Mad scene from "Lucia di Lammermoor" .... Donizetti
Miss Pons.

A joint recital by Mildred Dilling, harpist, and her sister, Charlene Dilling Brewer, violinist, will take place in the Woman's Club theater this afternoon. Miss Dilling, whose eminence in her field recently earned her a "profile" in The New Yorker magazine, is not only well known as a harpist but also as a harp collector. In her studio, designated as "The Angels' Cloak Room," she has gathered over 30 such instruments of all types, ages and nationalities. On today's concert she will play Samuel-Rousseau's Pastorale Variations on an Old Noël, an Impromptu by Fauré, Ravel's Introduction and Allegro as arranged for harp and piano, and other pieces. Mrs. Brewer will be heard in a solo group and will join her sister and their distinguished accompanist, Arpad Sandor, to present two movements from a Mozart concerto.

Mildred Dilling. [Seymour photo.]

The Fine Art Opera company's series of four performances of "Carmen" will begin today in the Auditorium recital hall. A performance this afternoon will offer Allegra Varon as Carmen, Pearl Adams as Micaela, Ray Nordbye as Don José, Robert Ladoff as Escamillo, and Nina Baker, Tiby Kaplan, Otto Pabst, Richard Champley, John Eels, and Arthur Nordheim in the other rôles. A second performance tonight will present Helen Manitoff as Carmen, Jean Carol as Micaela, Mr. Nordhem as Don José, Lionel Godow as Escamillo, and Dorothy Chimi, Jane Nelson, Mr. Ladoff, Mr. Pabst, Daniel Mendelsohn, and Robert Olsen in the supporting parts. Later performances will be given on Sunday, May 19, and Sunday, May 26. Zerline Muhlman Metzger will direct them all.

Cleo Messner, pianist, will play in Kimball hall tomorrow night. On her program are listed a Bach-Busoni Chorale-Prelude, Brahms' Rhapsody in G minor, the first movement of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata," four pieces by Chopin, and numbers by Godowsky, Henriques, Strauss-Schutt, Debussy, and De Falla.

Circle 25 of the Oak Park and River Forest Infant Welfare society will present John Carter, tenor, in concert on Wednesday night in the Oak Park High school auditorium at 8:30 o'clock.

At International house, Dorchester avenue and 59th street, Lucy Nielsen, violinist, and Elmer Tolsted, cellist, will give a joint recital on Monday evening starting at 8:15. Miss Nielsen will be heard in Glazunoff's Concerto in A minor as well as shorter items; Mr. Tolsted will offer Saint-Saëns' Cello Concerto in the same key, and other numbers. Lillian Smith and Jean Williams will be the accompanists.

An all Tschaikowsky program will be given in Orchestra hall on the night of May 7, the hundredth anniversary of the composer's birth. Maria Kurenko, soprano, and the Chicago Symphonic choir, directed by Walter Aschenbrenner, will present songs, arias from the operas, and sacred and secular choral works from the pen of the great Russian.

Gamma chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota will give its annual MacDowell musical and tea in the Woman's University club in the Fine Arts building today at 4 o'clock. Proceeds will go to work done by the fraternity in the MacDowell colony, Peterboro, N. H. The performers will include Dorothy Froelich, soprano, and John Toskey, pianist.

Zinka Milanov, young Croatian dramatic soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company, will make her first appearance in Chicago today at the Auditorium, 2659 South Lawndale avenue, at 2 o'clock. Her appearance is sponsored by the Chicago Federation of lodges of the Slovene National Benefit society. Jasna Bjankini, pianist, will be the assisting artist.

Izler Solomon will conduct the Illinois Symphony orchestra in four compositions at the weekly concert in the Studebaker theater tomorrow night. After opening the program with Mozart's "Haffner" Symphony in D major [Köchel No. 385], he will present the first Chicago performance of the newly revised Concerto for Two Pianos by Arthur Bliss. The English composer, who now teaches at the University of California in Berkeley, has this to say of his work:

"This concerto was written in 1923 while the composer was in America and received its first performance at a Boston Symphony concert conducted by Koussevitzky. The players were Maier and Pattison. It was originally scored for brass and woodwind orchestra without strings. Later the composer revised and rescored the work for full orchestra, and it was first performed in its present form by Ethel Bartlett and Rae Robertson at a London Promenade concert conducted by Sir Henry Wood. The concerto is in one continuous movement, but is divided into three contrasting sections, a fast and dynamic opening, a slow and meditative middle section, and a fast and brilliant conclusion. A rhythmic 'motto' theme binds the concerto together, and is heard in the opening measures played in octaves on both pianos. This figure is present in many guises thruout the whole of this 12 minute concerto."

Maier and Pattison played the original version with the Chicago Symphony in 1925. The first American performance of the revision was given by Bartlett and Robertson with the New York Philharmonic-Symphony on Feb. 23 in Cincinnati.

Tomorrow night's performance will introduce as soloists in the concerto the team of Mary McAuliff and Georga Orwig. Both are students of Mischa Levitzki. Miss McAuliff, a resident of Oak Park, made her debut earlier in the season at the Studebaker theater. Miss Orwig is making her first appearance in Chicago on this occasion.

Following the concerto the pianists will take part in Saint-Saëns' bit of musical fun, "The Carnival of Animals." Richard Strauss' magnificent tone poem, "Death and Transfiguration," will bring the program to a close.

Directed by George Dasch the Northwestern University Symphony orchestra will give a concert in the National College of Education, 2770 Sheridan road, Evanston, this afternoon at 4 o'clock. The program will include Richard Strauss' Serenade for Wind Instruments, Tschaikowsky's Serenade for String Orchestra and "Romeo and Juliet" overture, fantasia. Melvin Baddin, violinist, and Alice Lawrence, cellist, will be soloists in Brahms' Double Concerto.

The annual May festival of the Chicago Dance council will be held next Thursday and not Friday night as originally announced. It will take place in the Goodman theater and will display the abilities of soloists and groups, both professional and amateur, in ballet, modern, and Spanish dances. Since so few Chicago dancers made local appearances this season the festival takes on an added importance in offering this cross-section of the city's talents in this field.

Two of the soloists will be Walter Camryn, presenting two new numbers, and Diana Huebert, who has not appeared here for some time. Fay Friedman and Posy Flowers will dance with their respective groups. Student organizations from Northwestern university, Marshall High school, and Morton High school will take part. Other soloists, some of them drawn from the Graff and Palette ballets, will include Belden Starr, Marian Scott, Louise Feckheimer, Mary Ann Goetz, Lucian Kosinski, Shirley Gottlieb, Ida Galler, Beatrice Stronstorff, Ethel Sarasohn, Beatrice Betts, and Gene Aquino.

Walter Camryn. [Nelidoff Photo.]

"Some Aspects of Music" will be the subject of three public lectures by Artur Schnabel, eminent pianist, in the University of Chicago's Mandel hall on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. Admission is without charge.

Two special festival concerts will be given under the auspices of the music department of the University of Chicago the week after next. On Sunday, May 5, the university choir and symphony orchestra and the Fourth Presbyterian church choir will give a program of choral music in the Rockefeller Memorial chapel. The following Saturday night, May 11, the Collegium Musicum chamber orchestra of the university will play a program of three of Bach's Brandenburg concertos in Mandel hall.

Popular Records

The new Artie Shaw is here. Victor has seen to that. Escorted by an entourage of 31 of the flossiest musicians the world of swing has produced, the lately abdicated King of the Cats makes his bid for the throne of a new kingdom, entirely unexplored but fed by the rivers of rhythm that flow from the rugged, snowcapped lands of academic music and from the blazing plains of swingland.

Shaw's vehicle is primarily Mexican. Two ditties picked up during his exile from booking agents carry the weight of his new musical venture—"Frenesi" and "Adios, Mariquita Linda" [Victor 26542-A, B]. They definitely are not symphonic orchestrations of swing numbers. Nor are they symphony in swing. Shaw has used the basic dance arrangement and added tonal richness and variety to the propulsive rhythm inherent in the swing technique. His clarinet is much in evidence.

Columbia bids for attention most successfully with a Benny Goodman sextet recording that is orthodox and understandable swing—"Gone with 'What' Wind" and "Till Tom Special" [35404]. Another straight Goodman disc, "How High the Moon" and "The Fable of the Rose," is less impressive.

Columbia gives the Conga-gationalists a treat with its album "La Conga," by Desi Arnaz, latest high priest of the Latin tempos, and his La Conga orchestra. The eight sides range from the soft but impelling "Africa Canta" to the exciting "Echa Un Pie" [Step Out]. Arnaz does most of the vocals.

Due for popularity: Larry Clinton's "Bread and Butter" [Victor 26521-B] and "Limehouse Blues" [26523-A]. . . . Ted Straeter's jingly "A House with a Little Red Barn," Dorothy Rochelle singing [Columbia 35406] . . . a slightly terrific "All Star Strut" and "King Porter Stomp," by the Metronome All Star band [Spivak, James, Ellman, Teagarden, Jenney, Mondello, Carter, Miller, Barnett, Goodman, Krupa, Christian, Stacy, and Haggart—Columbia 35389] . . . the Bonnie Baker-Orrin Tucker version of "If I Could Be the Dummy on Your Knee" [Columbia 35390] . . . a typical Krupa version of "Marcheta" [Columbia 35387] . . . Tommy Dorsey's "My! My!" and "Say It" [Victor 26535-A, B] . . . Glenn Miller's "Sierra Sue" and "Moments in the Moonlight" [Bluebird B-10638-A, B] . . . the collegiate "Washington and Lee Swing," and "V. M. I. Spirit," by Hal Kemp [Victor 26524-A, B] . . . Duke Ellington's smart "Jack the Bear," backed by "Morning Glory" [Victor 26536-A, B] . . . a somnolent Wayne King waltz, "Castle of Dreams" [Victor 26538-A].

SONGS IN THE MARION MANNER

Back in the Blackhawk with Bob Crosby's orchestra, Marion Mann is again singing her sultry tunes with the same throaty technique that made her the favorite swing and ballad singer of the loop a year ago.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

That lovely youngster, Linda Darnell, who's been making so very good in Hollywood, goes to town again in "Star Dust."

She proves perfectly capable of sparkling out brightly on her own from a shining circlet of such supporting players as Charlotte Greenwood, Roland Young, William Gargan, Jessie Ralph, etc., and she is so earnest and sincere about the whole thing that you can't help loving the child.

There's nothing particularly new about the story of "Star Dust" . . . Carolyn Sayres is discovered by a talent scout who had once loved her mother. . . . She lands in Hollywood. Jealousy and intrigue rear ugly heads and rattle at her. . . . Scared she is, but the stuff of heroes is in her and there comes a time when Mr. Grauman fits her foot into the wet cement in front of his famous theater.

Romance enters her life in the person of a one time football star also "discovered" and brought to Hollywood by Scout Brooke. Nice young fellow, but not very heavy, this John Payne. Great BIG smile! . . . Mary Beth Hughes plays well enough the catty blonde who, in cahoots with her elderly and influential admirer, attempts to wreck our heroine's career. Donald Meek is a pesky little snake as the admirer. . . . William Gargan is surprisingly effective as a delicately temperamental producer—a new sort of rôle for him. Roland Young's a lamb as the scout and Charlotte Greenwood swell as drama coach. . . . What long legs that gal HAS got!

The film is nicely staged and directed and should make the grade at the box office.

See you tomorrow.

Guest Lecturer.

Paul Hindemith, German compos[er] is acting as visiting lecturer at Cornell university during the current term. His series of public talks is devoted to the general subject, "An Introduction to the Technique of Composition."

"Three After Three."

"Three After Three," the musical comedy which Chicago saw earlier this year and which closed before it reached New York, will try it again.

Robin Hood Series

Philadelphia's Robin Hood Dell summer concert series will be held this year in spite of last season's financial difficulties. As usual a large portion of the Philadelphia orchestra will be used. Eugene Ormandy, the ensemble's conductor, will open the series on June 18. Guest conductors during the following weeks will be, as arrangements now stand, George Sebastian, Alexander Hilsberg, José Iturbi, Efrem Kurtz, Sylvan Levin, and Hans Wilhelm Steinberg. Soloists will include Lily Pons, for whom her husband, Andre Kostelanetz, will conduct, Vladimir Horowitz, Lawrence Tibbett, Grace Moore, and Mischa Elman. Iturbi will be piano soloist as well as conductor. Two evenings of Gilbert and Sullivan will be given.

Taste-Teasing Canapes Are Easy to Make

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1940: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Canapés are those dainty, sharp-flavored, open "sandwiches," every one of which tastes like more. They're just the kind of teasing bites to serve with coffee, tea, or cocktails.

There are thousands of ways to make them. Canapé bases may be anything from toast to pie crust or potato chips. Favorite spreads include cheese, sardines, and anchovies. Garnishes often are olive, pickle, parsley, pimiento, pickled onion.

Most canapés should be freshly made to be good, altho there are certain ones which won't suffer if made in the morning for an evening party. Canapés should be quite small and attractive to look upon. They need not be elaborate.

CANAPE BASES.

[Bread for canapés should be very thinly sliced.]

1. Plain bread, white, whole wheat, or brown bread, cut into circles, triangles, strips, or fancy shapes.

2. Toasted bread. It may be oven toasted, sautéed in butter, or deep-fat-fried. It may be brushed with butter and baked. One side or both may be toasted.

3. Nut bread, orange bread, date bread. Spreads for such bases should be simple and bland-flavored, not sharp.

4. All kinds of small crackers, cheese, celery seed, whole wheat, shredded wheat, plain and butter crackers.

5. Packaged, ready-to-use canapé bases of assorted shapes and sizes.

6. Pastry. Bake plain or cheese pastry in small rounds, strips, and other shapes.

7. Biscuit. Split tiny baking powder biscuits and use as canapé bases.

8. By a stretch of imagination these may be called canapé bases: Potato chips, slices of salami, bologna or other cold meat, sliced apple.

SOME CANAPE SUGGESTIONS.

1. AVOCADO SPREAD—Mash the pulp of a ripe avocado and season with lemon juice, salt, paprika, and minced chives. Spread thickly on canapé base, preferably toast, and garnish by sprinkling bits of crisp bacon over the top of each.

2. ANCHOVY FILLET — Spread canapé bases with soft butter mixed with minced parsley and top each with an anchovy fillet.

3. BACON AND PEANUT BUTTER SPREAD—Mix finely chopped bacon and minced chives or onion into peanut butter.

4. CHEESE AND OLIVE—Mix cream cheese and Roquefort in equal parts and season with Worcestershire sauce. Spread on canapés and sprinkle with chopped ripe olives or chopped stuffed olives.

5. CHEESE, TOMATO, MUSHROOM — Spread canapé base with a soft, sharp cheese, add a thin tomato slice, sprinkle with chopped mushrooms, a little salt, and dot with butter. Place in a hot oven for several minutes. Serve hot.

6. CREAM CHEESE AND CAVIAR—Soften cream cheese with cream, mix with caviar and onion juice and use as canapé spread. Or spread cream cheese on base first, top with caviar, and sprinkle with onion juice.

7. DEVILED HAM SPREAD—Mix canned deviled ham with hard cooked egg yolk, mashed, and season with mayonnaise and horseradish.

8. LIVER SAUSAGE SPREAD—Mash liver sausage and add onion juice and minced parsley. This is particularly good on pastry canapés.

9. SMOKED SALMON OR TURKEY—Spread canapé base with soft cream cheese mixed with a little onion juice or chopped chives. Top with very thin slice of smoked salmon or smoked turkey.

10. SARDINE CANAPES—Mash sardines and mix with minced parsley and hard cooked egg yolk. Spread on fingers of toast and decorate each end with a rosette of cream cheese seasoned with salt, cayenne pepper, and Worcestershire sauce.

11. TOMATO CANAPE, BROILED — Cut rounds of toast the size of tomato slices. Place a tomato slice [use slightly underripe tomatoes] on each round, after spreading the toast with mayonnaise. Grate cheese over the top, sprinkle ever so lightly with cayenne, and place under the broiler until the cheese melts. Serve hot.

12. COLD TOMATO CANAPE — Spread rounds of toast with mayonnaise, add thin slices of tomato and spread the tomato with Roquefort cheese mixed to a paste with cream or mayonnaise. Top with a small sardine, a rolled anchovy fillet, a slice of pickle, or a slice of stuffed olive.

Youth Is Not Carefree; It Has Problems

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Ah, youth!" do you say wistfully, "what a carefree time!"

Do you look at your boys and girls in high school or the first years of college or a job, and think that life is for them just a bowl of cherries? That if there's any worrying tied up with their adolescence, you and their father are the ones who do it?

Of course youth, under favorable conditions, is joyous, buoyant, rich with hope and anticipation, but there's more to it than that for the boys and girls who are living it. For many young people it has its small worries, its larger anxieties, its puzzles, its problems, and even its tragedies.

One reason why so often we don't sense these things is because young people don't usually talk about them. Also, frequently, they don't analyze, even to themselves, why they are troubled, or why they may act in a way that seems to us grownups to be indifferent or selfish, irritable, or antagonistic.

Another reason why we don't sense or take seriously the worries and problems that our sons and daughters are trying to cope with is because those things would not be worries or problems to us. So, even if we notice them, we discount them.

But that doesn't make them any the less real or painful to the young people themselves. While I will admit that adolescence is often hard on parents, the process of growing up is hard for many boys and girls. Mothers and fathers who know what they are about, ease their children into this phase of their growth. The less you have looked ahead and prepared both them and yourself for it, the harder they will find the years of their middle and late teens.

And now you are, I am sure, wondering just what I have in mind as the problems young people, even under favorable conditions, find as they go along. Here are some of them:

There is the matter of a youth's work or profession. "He can't get a job, any sort of a job," said the relative of a young high school graduate. "He's in such a despondent state he's beginning to think there's no place in the world for him." Young people in high school or college worry about the possibility of experiences like this. A young college man tells me that many of the students haven't the faintest notion of what they are going to do or be after they graduate, and that it is on their minds a great deal of the time.

Next, there is the social life of boys and girls. This often presents problems that are vital to them and that too often they have no help from their parents in solving. They may long for congenial friends of their own or the opposite sex. They may fret over not being popular. They don't know what stand to take about smoking and drinking. Their ideas on sex are vague and their information inadequate. They like petting and yet they don't like it, and they don't know what to do about that.

Then, of course, there is what seems to us, in the face of all these large matters, rather small: The physical changes which the adolescent must go thru and to which he must accustom himself. Off and on, over a number of childhood years, boys and girls can be prepared for many of these changes, so that when they come along they accept them on the whole, quite naturally. But, even so, there may be much self-consciousness, which is torture for young persons to bear. This happens especially when a boy shoots, too young, to a great height and becomes, perhaps, excessively clumsy, or when his skin breaks out, or when a girl's figure matures earlier than that of her companions.

You see, don't you, that if your child's adolescence is hard for you, it may also be hard for your son or daughter, altho in quite a different way? Many of them recognize that it is, and are looking for help. For instance, they ask outsiders, if they can't get it at home, for adult guidance in their social relationships and in preparing for love and marriage. Many young people, feeling their ignorance, seek to gain their sex education at home, but are blocked by their parents' embarrassment or lack of information.

Adolescence is, indeed, often hard for boys and girls. You can make it easier in a number of ways: By treating them, as much as possible, as adults; by giving them their independence as far as it is safe and they are fitted to have it; by explaining your necessary restraints in matters important to them, instead of expecting unquestioning obedience; by expecting their coöperation in the life of the family and that they have consideration for you; by giving serious consideration to what is serious to them; by helping them to a workable set of values, and, above all, by keeping their confidence and remaining their friend.

"Understanding the Adolescent" and "Sex Education" are booklets of interest to parents and teachers. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for each booklet. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, the Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

The 3 cent and 5 cent values of the composers' group of the Famous Americans series of commemorative postage stamps will be offered to collectors and to the public on May 13. The 3 cent value honors Victor Herbert and this stamp will have its first day sale at New York City. The 5 cent stamp honors Edward A. MacDowell and will be placed on first days sale at Peterborough, N. H.

Collectors who desire first day postmarks on these stamps may send not to exceed 10 addressed envelopes to the postmaster at each of the designated cities; each lot of covers to be accompanied by a cash or postal money order remittance to cover the exact cost of stamps to be affixed. Mark each envelope in the upper right hand corner with a notation stating how many stamps are to be affixed. All envelopes should be sealed or have the flaps turned in, and better impressions of the postmark will be obtained if the envelope contains a piece of cardboard or other filler.

Mail each lot of addressed envelopes and the corresponding remittance to the postmaster at the proper city. Endorse this envelope prominently, "For first day cover service, Famous Americans series." Requests for uncanceled stamps for collections must not be included with orders for first day cover service. Such stamps of selected quality may be obtained at the Philatelic Agency, Postoffice department, Washington, D. C., on May 14.

New postage stamps always come in for criticism from certain collectors. It appears that the most certain method for obtaining publicity in the newspapers is to go over a stamp, pick flaws in minor details, and file the results with the press associations. The recent pony express stamp came in for its share of this criticism, much of which was childish. It is very seldom that any one connected with philately criticises a stamp from the standpoint of art, or design, beyond stating that it appears crowded or something of the sort. It may be instructive for collectors to learn what effect our stamps have on people who understand the principles of design and who endeavor to keep abreast of the times in matters of this kind.

Talbot F. Hamlin, a national authority on art and architecture, has an article in the March issue of Pencil Points, entitled "Design Above and Under Ground." The article was written as a protest against the attitude of officials who published a fine book on "Public Buildings" but purposely omitted all architects' names on the ground it would be giving free advertising if their names were placed below the pictures of their brain children. Mr. Hamlin calls this an outstanding example of official ignorance of the principles of artistic decency, and as another example he cites postage stamps.

Mr. Hamlin writes: "Mr. Farley announced, long since, the issuance of a series of specially designed commemorative stamps to celebrate great American authors, thereby contributing official sanction to the idea that art, after all, is important. How the stamps were designed, I do not know; but unfortunately the examples and reproductions of this series which I have seen show clearly that, if the existence of the stamps show a respect for art, the stamps themselves evidence an almost total neglect of art. It is useless perhaps to cry over spilt milk or issued stamps, but one may regret the lost opportunity; one may even wonder how such stupidly conventional designs—dolled up with a kind of Victorian ornament that most of us thought had happily passed away from the scene 40 years ago, with lettering hardly legible, and printed in vile colors—came to pass."

"Postage stamps are perhaps the products of governmental manufacture which universally affect the greatest number of people. Here if anywhere a government may show its ideals, establish its standards of taste; here if anywhere is a magnificent opportunity to educate a country's population as a whole to higher types of artistic appreciation. It is not impossible to design beautiful stamps, particularly beautiful commemorative stamps, as the merest tyro of stamp collecting knows. How is it then that this latest series, despite the perfection of the engraving, despite the fact that the portraits are easily recognizable, is such a woeful disappointment, violating so many of the simplest principles of the graphic arts, and sure not to raise popular taste but perhaps even to debase it still further? Should there not be machinery in government so arranged that, by competition or otherwise, in matters of public design as important as the issuance of paper money and stamps, the highest type of creative design which America possesses can be utilized?"

Mr. Hamlin, the author, is a member of the American Institute of Architects, a lecturer and instructor at Columbia University School of Architecture, Librarian of the Avery library and of the Fine Arts library of Columbia, author of various books on art and architecture, and editor of architectural magazines. This final article was written while the authors group of the Famous Americans series was appearing, but it is doubtful if succeeding groups have changed his views on the subject.

Scott Publications, Inc., No. 1 West 47th street, New York City, has issued a 32 page price list of albums and accessories. Each album is illustrated and described and there is a special section which will assist a beginner in selecting an album suitable to his needs. A copy of this 32 page price list will be sent to any one who writes to Scott Publications, Inc.

Cuba will issue a 2 cent red stamp to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Pan-American union. This stamp will show a portrait of Gonzalo de Quesada y Arostegui, who was secretary to the Argentine delegate at the first meeting of the Pan-American union, and who later became identified with the Cuban revolution. He was the first Cuban ambassador to the United States and in 1910 was sent to Germany in the same capacity. He died in Berlin in 1915.

The postoffice department reports that 629,576 copies of the 1 cent Horace Mann stamp were sold in Boston at the first day sale on March 14, and 186,854 first day covers were serviced. On the same day 370,605 copies of the 2 cent Mark Hopkins stamp were sold and 140,286 covers serviced at Williamstown, Mass.

On April 3, the 3 cent Pony Express stamp was placed on sale at St. Joseph, Mo., and at Sacramento, Cal. At the former city 585,411 copies were sold and 194,589 covers were serviced, while at the latter the figures were, 346,879 stamps and 160,849 covers.

In connection with the worldwide celebration of the centenary of postage stamps, Austin Philatelic club will hold its 7th inter-club exhibition at Austin Town Hall, Central avenue at Lake street, May 2 to 4. The postoffice department will provide a philatelic window at the show and United States stamps of many issues will be available.

Mrs. Ellen May, Chicago: Here's how I put my old apple corer to work. I use it to remove light weeds from my lawn and garden. It has a nice sharp point which doesn't disturb too much soil.

Judith Cass, Detroit, Mich.: I gave a nice cake-and-pie shower for one of my friends this spring who was being married. Each guest brought her favorite cake or pie recipe, inside some kitchen utensil which one uses for making pies and cakes. Every one voted the shower a BIG success. So if you're giving a shower ——!

Harriet Haynes, St. Louis, Mo.: It has always been a puzzle to me WHY they won't make the handles of all water faucets turn one way—as a help to guests and strangers alike.

Mrs. Carrie Wood, Joliet, Ill.: Every time I buy my children nickel cups of ice cream I wonder WHY they don't make spoons of candy instead of wood. Would the children love 'em!

Mrs. Mary Lane, Chicago: I tried for six months to be very modern and not say "Don't" to my children. It may be a fine idea, but I found my youngsters running away with the place. Now when any of the children need correcting I say: "We don't do that." I find this works.

Helen Kirby, Kenosha, Wis.: Why don't they design Venetian blinds for bathrooms of mirrors: a sort of mirror blind which should be a great novelty? If there are such blinds I haven't heard of them.

Mrs. Hannah King, New York City: How to solve the problem of overdue library books was a big one in our family. Last Christmas time I hung a brand new calendar in the kitchen, and each week one of the boys or girls takes on the task of marking down books due that week, and the date. We use bright blue crayons for the marking—and our fines dropped!

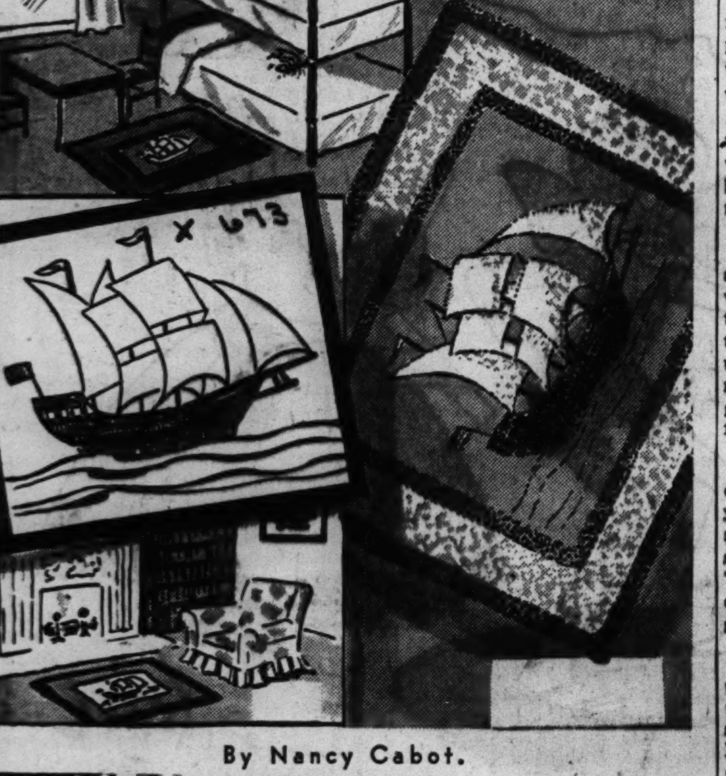
Versatile Sailboat Design



By Nancy Cabot.

A hooked rug, a wall hanging, a sampler, and a design for a bedspread are only a few of the innumerable purposes for which this hot iron transfer pattern may be used. This good looking sailing ship is sufficiently romantic for the feminine members of the household and definitely to the masculine taste. The pattern includes the paneled ship which measures 15 inches by 20 inches, and includes full directions for hooking a rug or a sampler, as well as detailed instructions for embroidery.

For the hot iron transfer pattern of the sailing ship, No. X-673, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

For those with a yen for paneled wood walls in a basement recreation room there's a specially manufactured plywood which you can apply even to basement walls—which aren't always the dryest walls in the world! Also there are special paints and treatment which you can give to plywood boards so they will stand up handsomely in lower basement game rooms.

Want to go blonde for spring? New available bleaches will help you. They will turn your dark woodwork back to its natural state or bleach it even to a whiter color. These new bleaches used in conjunction with paint removers and sandpaper and elbow grease and resolution, can do a beautiful piece of work.

If you are shopping for sinks and counter tops and ways of making your kitchen a brighter, finer place, see what the market offers now in sinks of shimmering stainless steel. These sinks have the bowl sound-deadened and the steel splasher back gives excellent wall protection.

Quite new is an electric light switch that's very obliging! It will keep the light on for you for 20 to 60 seconds after you've switched it off. Nice for some bedroom or basement or hallway or porch or garage, if your switch isn't next to an exit, and you need a margin of light for convenience and safety after you've turned the switch.

STUBBORN RHEUMATC PAIN

When Irritated by Excess Uric Acid

Thousands take ALLENRU for the pains caused by the gouty phases of rheumatism, neuritis, lumbago or rheumatic backache when irritated by excess uric acid or similar circulating poisons. Such excess acid and poisons should soon start to leave your body, and thus the terrible agony is often relieved — no opiates.

Ask any live druggist in America for an 8 ounce bottle of ALLENRU—a liquid —costs about 85 cents—save this notice.

[ADVERTISMENT]

Explains Cause of Stomach Pains

In simple language, the cause of most acid stomach pains is the passage of food through the stomach, irritating the exposed nerves on the sensitive surfaces, thus frequently causing burning, tearing or dull aching pains. Udga Tablets contain bismuth, which medical science has found coats and protects the sensitive parts, also other valuable ingredients in a balanced formula. They have been praised by thousands. Try a 25c box of Udga for relief of stomach pains, indigestion, gas pains, for heartburn, burning sensation, bloat and other conditions caused by excess acid. Udga Tablets are safe to use and must help or your money refunded. At good drug stores everywhere.

You Can Bleach Your Skin to a Lighter, Prettier Hue with Mercolized Wax Cream

FASHION indicates the return to favor of fairer, softer skin. Ever in stride with the latest mode, Mercolized Wax Cream lends its subtle bleaching and beautifying action to help you win a fashionable, lighter, lovelier complexion. Mercolized Wax Cream hastens the natural shedding of the dull, surface skin and uncovers the fairer, softer, smoother underskin. The action takes place so gradually that the actual flaking process is not visible. But soon you become aware of the improved appearance of your complexion. Start bleaching your skin tonight using Mercolized Wax Cream according to directions.

REMOVE FACIAL HAIR with PHELACTINE DEPILATORY—Phelactine not only takes off the surface hair, but actually extracts the portion embedded under the skin, leaving no fuzz or stubble. It can be applied quickly and easily in a few seconds. Not a cream or powder. Has no obnoxious odor. You will like Phelactine.

TRY SAXOLITE ASTRINGENT, the DELIGHTFUL SKIN FRESHENER. It is a quick acting, refreshing aid for daily care of the skin. Saxolite reduces excess oil on the surface skin; and its contracting action temporarily tightens the skin tissue. Simply dissolve Saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel and pat this lotion briskly on the skin several times daily.

Her self-assurance was invincible by the time they reached their farthest point from civilization, the empty, rocky country of the Thlou tribe. Thus she saw no danger when, one day, their road thru a narrow gulley was blocked by a strangely large herd of cattle. Seeing the impossibility of pushing thru the solid mass of heads and horns jammed between the gulley walls, she cried:

"We'd better back and let them by. I'll signal to the lorries behind." She stood up to do this and cried: "Why, there's as many cows coming up from behind. What's the matter with the fools, they can't have a market day in two directions?"

But Neil Mallock, remembering that cows ranked among the oldest military weapons in the world, had guessed what was the matter. He jammed on his brakes and reached for his pistol. As he did so Chi-Chi, driving the second lorry, rammed him and threw him against his steering wheel—just as the Thlou struck.

Swarms of wiry men appeared from under the bellies of the cattle and in a flash the lorries were a maggot swarm of fighting, clawing blacks. A quite unchivalrous club laid Carol Lothian unconscious.

She came to hours later in the smelly darkness of a big native hut, with the agony of tight rawhide bonds competing with the anguish of her head. She groaned and heard Neil Mallock whisper:

"Quiet. . . . They'll come in if they think you're conscious. Are you badly hurt, my dear?"

"No, but aching in every muscle. . . . What happened?"

"They've got the lot of us—none killed."

"No kill yet—that spoil the fun," Pedro Lobelia's mutter came from the darkness and Neil's voice said quickly:

"They've even got the lorries—except Chi-Chi's. That was so damaged by ramming mine that they had to leave it among the huts at the end of the village. The others are in the palaver place; they forced Chi-Chi and Pedro to drive them there."

"But why? What's the reason . . .?" she began.

"Izansi" Pedro Lobelia groaned. "They send for him. When he come there is big muti—we die."

"As Saravan said!" she gasped, then to save her face. "How can you know?"

"Chi-Chi understands their drum talk," Neil told her. "They sent messages to Izansi at once—apparently it's all as he ordered. Chi-Chi heard the replies, too, and the guards talking. Izansi is on his way——"

She nearly cried again, "As Savaran foresaw," but she bit that back and said with an effort of courage, "That should give us some time; it'll take him four days from Vitoko . . ." but at that there was a silence so ominous that she cried, "He is in Vitoko. . . .?"

"He was, I suppose." Neil's voice was strained. "Anyhow, the first drum signals said so, only——"

"He be here two, three hour," Pedro Lobelia muttered.

"But he can't, if he was in Vitoko. It is four days away, isn't it, Neil?"

"It's rather queer," Neil muttered. "Two hours after the first drum signals had stopped, presumably because Izansi had already started from Vitoko, there was another drum message telling this village to be ready to receive him within four hours."

"But it's impossible," Carol protested.

"Not with Izansi," Pedro Lobelia said. "He is one who can travel thru air by a wish."

"A what? Surely he can't mean an airplane, Neil?"

"No want airplane, Gracious Lady of Much Knowledge and Little Understanding," Pedro said. "Ju-ju mens have such power. They go lonely spot, dig hole in ground, say into it, 'I will now be at such a place,' and lo, they are there—no matter if that place be many days' march away."

"But that's rank rubbish," Dr. Carol Lothian protested.

"I don't know," Neil said uncomfortably. "These witch doctors do darn rummy things."

Dr. Carol Lothian, refusing to countenance such unscientific nonsense, turned her mind to the more practical considerations. But the unanimity with which Pedro, Chi-Chi, and even Neil demonstrated that they were beyond all hope of rescue, and the grisly gusto in which the first two dwelt upon the ceremonial tortures that must be their lot made her drop that topic like a hot brick in favor of urging them all to try and escape from their bonds.

But these had been tied by masters, who had also pegged them to the ground so that they could not help each other. The more they struggled the more painfully the rawhide cut, so that, growing frantic in her helplessness, Carol fainted under the agony. When she recovered the inside of the hut was even darker, for evening was settling on the village—also there was a strange uproar of drumming and yelling from the villagers. She cried to Neil in alarm, but it was Pedro who answered:

"Izansi is here!"

But now she did not challenge the truth of this impossibility, only shuddered. The ugly frenzy of the noise, the sense of something diabolical in the air, was too heavy upon her. She had a frightful feeling that anything might happen in these awful wilds. She did not even protest when Neil said lamely:

"It's darn queer. . . . He came dead on time, just as his drums said. One can't believe in magic, only . . ." He was interrupted by a bull voice roaring outside, a voice of horror. . . . Chi-Chi, listening to their guards, began to babble, Pedro translating thru chattering teeth:

"He look at our sacrifice posts in palaver place—he like 'em. . . . He no like fires before posts. Wood too dry; kill us too quick. He order wet cow dung put on 'em." His voice quavered in terror. "Now he come here."

They heard the bull voice approaching, even the bony clatter of the witch doctor's amulets, but he went by. Chi-Chi and Pedro took up the tale again.

"He looks at lorries in palaver place. He climb over them. He much pleased. . . . Now he walk away to end of village."

"Where the conked lorry is," Neil said. There was a long silence, broken by a high, wild chanting drawing nearer. "What now?"

"It is strange," Pedro mumbled. "They sing as when they pour drink on ground before a god, yet they come back. Chi-Chi no understand—unless it begins our ceremony." The voice of both men rose to a screech. "It is. He comes. He calls for torches. The Prophet protect us—Izansi is here!"

Captives Discover They Have a Friend Indeed

There was a blaze of smoky light in the hut as men entered with torches and stood against the walls—and, made more ghastly by the flickering, they saw a monstrous and horrible figure.

A wooden devil mask set about with rays of feathers gave Izansi an unnatural height. It covered most of his torso, too, down to where a hideous skirt of bones and amulets concealed his legs. The frightful creature carried in his left hand a staff crowned by a bleached skull; in his right a terrible half moon knife that could sever a head or limb at a stroke or slice no more than a shaving of flesh from a human body. He jugged and mowed in exultance as he saw them, his eyes shining thru the slits in his mask with so wolfish a glitter that it froze their blood.

With menacing gestures of the great knife he began to howl at them a long incantation of threats. It seemed the wildest ju-ju gibberish to Carol, for even the Thlou round the wall stared and shivered blankly at what was to them no doubt a spirit language it would be death to understand. . . . And then startlingly the girl caught sentences that were not gibberish. . . .

"Show no surprise. . . ." Izansi the witchman boomed in the middle of incomprehensible mouthings. "Listen well and obey. . . . Presently you'll be taken to the sacrificial stakes. . . . Pretend to be limp and weak. . . . Make these Sons of Middens think you so helpless that they must carry you. Give yelps of fear. Neil—you, Pedro . . . Chi-Chi . . . even my pretty Carol, to show that you understand."

He leapt high in ritual gusto, stamping and shouting at them—and they screamed as he had asked. It was unthinkable, incredible—but undoubtedly it was Savaran!

His acting was amazing. It was Izansi the witch doctor who exulted horribly over their fear, if it was Savaran who spoke, mingling English with native curses and gibberish.

"Splendid. I'll be angry because they've tied you so tightly that you may die before I carve you. . . . They'll tie you less firmly to the stakes. . . . Fires will be lit before you. . . . I've arranged for a good supply of smoke. . . . It'll cover my cutting you loose with this natty butcher's cleaver." His voice rose and he shook the frightful half moon knife so viciously that the Thlou round the walls uttered ecstatic clucks of joy, sure he was threatening them with complicated death.

"Lovely dispositions, haven't they, Carol?" Savaran chanted on. "But they'll mince you—and me—at the slightest suspicion, so curb the irresponsibility of gallant youth and play up. Remain rigid at your stakes after I've cut you free. I've poured a train of petrol from the damaged lorry to the palaver place. I'll invent some ritual to touch it off . . . when the fireworks start and these Sons of Worms panic, rush for the lorries in the palaver place . . . they're all ready—even the rifles are still aboard. Start 'em up and get away at top speed . . . and no heroics about me . . . I'm quite good at looking after myself . . . now for the sacrificial altars. . . ."

With the frenzied whoops of a ju-ju man he leapt into the air again, turned and led the Thlou screaming out of the hut. They heard his bull voice bellowing commands, the torrent of shouts as the whole village flocked to enjoy a happy evening's slaughter.

Men rushed in, pulled up the pegs, began dragging them out. Obeying Savaran's command they acted as half dead, sagging limp as they were carried. But that wasn't so hard; the pain of the thongs had made it difficult to use their limbs. Savaran made the most of it. His ferocity at the villagers for endangering his victims was so terrible that, in utter fear of his power and magic, they blindly obeyed his orders to cut all the bonds and tie them to the stakes with a single spiraled rope.

Savaran was magnificent. He stood in the center of the great palaver place with massed ranks of bloodlusting savages hemming him in, and he not merely looked the part of Izansi but exulted in it. And Carol Lothian staring at him with wide eyes knew it—and was no longer disgusted.

She knew it was essential to the man. Only his extravagant and entirely reckless genius could carry such a ruse thru. For she realized in terror that one slip, one suspicion—and this bizarre creature, as well as they, would be torn to pieces by the infuriated savages.

And she knew he knew it and, being Savaran, merely regarded it as one more opportunity of proving his wonder. . . . His lean arms flashed out in a dramatic gesture and the tom-toms crashed to the heavens in ritual frenzy, and leaping high he began the dance of death.

He pranced and capered round the packed ring of spearmen with a fury that made every ebony body glistening under the light of the torches swing to his rhythm. He whirled and snatched a torch; charged with a great cry at Carol Lothian. For a minute, so real was his acting, that she thought it was death. But pulling up with a thundering stamp, he cursed her with knife and fire, thrusting his torch in the woodpile before her. Then, dancing again, he repeated the process before Neil, Pedro, and Chi-Chi.

It was an amazing, a brilliant performance. He flashed in and out of the now thick smoke with so demoniac a fervor that he had the whole mass of the Thlou baying like blood-excited wolves, yet so carried away that they had no minds to notice anything but him. Thus, when he darted thru the smoke, the great half moon knife slashing and whistling about the bodies of the victims, they only saw him giving the first cuts of a torture that was to last for days, and failed to note that with uncanny dexterity he had done no more than to slice thru the ropes that spiraled their bodies.

"Snake" of Fire Puts Savages to Flight

Back into the center of the palaver place the wild, devil-masked figure swirled, mowing, stamping, and shouting; raising the sweating Thlou to a blind intoxication of frenzy. With another yell he proclaimed that he was about to send his familiar spirit, his ju-ju fire snake, thru the village to "smell out" any witchcraft these accursed whites may have brought. He snatched another torch, danced the length of the palaver place, and abruptly thrust it against the bare sun baked soil. A great howl of wonder and fear arose. Flame had leapt up from the bare ground and gone writhing and curling away like a veritable snake of fire across the palaver place and among the huts.

Saravan, in fact, had touched off the train of petrol he had poured out to the libation chants. But the Thlou did not know that. To them it was a real serpent of fire. They watched its snakelike undulations across the ground with terror and awe. Izansi, they knew, was a great witchman, but this was almost too much for them. Only fear of his presence saved them from panic at so uncanny a manifestation.

And in a moment not even his presence was strong enough—that was when the fiery snake reached the tin of petrol Savaran had set open beneath the damaged lorry. It blazed up like the fires of hell, the lorry tank caught and exploded while quite a number of packets of rifle ammunition placed handy went up. Under the shock of that utterly unexpected blaze, the explosions that followed and the sky-rocketing flames and sparks they caused, primitive fear broke loose. . . . And Izansi helped magnificently.

Shrinking back as tho overwhelmed by terror, he bawled in his vast voice: "Woe! Woe! The lightning of the Whites strikes. . . . A greater than Izansi is here. . . . Fly! Fly! Zavarani is on us! Zavarani conquers. . . !"

Whether the terror of that name of dread put the finishing touch, as, of course, Savaran himself insisted, there was no mistaking the reaction of the Thlou. They stampeded as one man. They turned and, racing from the village as tho devils were at their heels, raced for the bush. They fled in such herd panic that their victims at the stake were, for the moment, in danger of being trampled rather than burned to death.

But they reached the lorries at last thru a litter of castaway spears and shields, to find Savaran standing by the one he knew Carol Lothian used. He had shed his witch mask and was thus half naked, but not even that could rob him of his strange, bizarre magnificence. The very strut of his figure testified to his own high opinion of his extraordinary exploit. Moreover, he considered it plainly in order that Dr. Carol Lothian should stumble into his arms and cling to him with a most unscientific abandon.

"Chi-Chi! Do as I order! The crowbar . . ."

"Savaran," she choked. "You were amazing!"

"But when am I not?" he said with cheerful assurance.

"You saved my—all our lives."

"Twice," he corrected largely. "But let us get away at once, or I will have to do it a third time. Even the Thlou might get over the terror of Savaran's name. . . . Tho I doubt it."

As the lorries sprang to life and they rushed out of the village and into the night under the lean adventurer's skilled direction, Neil Mallock, who had become rather grim at Carol Lothian's unconditional surrender to this mountebank, said shortly:

"You turned up pretty pat."

"I am always pretty pat . . . to seize the psychological moment is the essence of genius."

"But how could you?" Carol Lothian asked puzzled. "I mean, you arrived on the nick of time. . . ."

"O, I heard the Thlou drums sending the message of your capture—one of my minor accomplishments is that I can read the drums. I heard Izansi's drums reply from Vitoko. . . . Then, having given him time to start out so that he wouldn't be able to hear or use drums, I used one myself—another of my minor attributes is that I can. I sent a message that I—as Izansi—would arrive on the wind in four hours' time, knowing that they would believe anything of Izansi's magic . . . and the rest is as you know."

"And Izansi——?"

"He is undoubtedly still on his way full of an old man's simple eagerness for blood and warfare. . . . But he's due for a shock."

"But you had his witch mask—and—and everything."

"Haven't I been studying Izansi and his methods for some time?"

"That's why you were pretending to be a witch man in Mbam'ala village?"

"O, that was only the end of months of intensive study," he chuckled. "I've even had that witch mask made and in store, so to speak, waiting for some such opportunity. And when it came, naturally, I was not the man to miss it."

"You must have been close to be so quick," she breathed.

"Say ten miles as the drum message flew," he told her with such satisfaction that Neil Mallock broke in savagely.

"So you expected that we—Miss Lothian would be taken by the Thlou?"

"I didn't have to expect—only wait. The Pekizili or the Thlou or that tribe you managed to overawe with your guns—one of them was bound to get you. Izansi ordered it."

"You mean expecting this you followed me?" Carol Lothian said in a small, startled voice.

"What else—you were asking for trouble, and Izansi was greedy for it."

"And you?" Neil asked harshly.

"And I, being Savaran, meant to make the most of it."

"A bit swinish," Neil said hotly. "You deliberately let her risk her life among those hell hounds. . . ."

"Not so bright, Neil," the strange man said airily. "Didn't I do my best to warn her?"

"And he did risk his life, Neil," Carol Lothian said with unexpected humility.

"Undoubtedly," Savaran agreed superbly. "And more than my life, my ambitions. . . ."

"And you enjoyed it," Neil said shortly. "And gained a darned lot out of it, I'll bet, even for your ambitions."

"Not so dull after all," the gypsy fellow grinned. "Yes, that is Savaran's way, love and policy go hand in hand."

"But I don't understand," Carol quavered.

"Didn't you hear him bawling to the Thlou that Savaran was the cause of their terror—and the defeat of Izansi—as they thought? He was serving his own ends."

"Is that true?" Carol whispered.

"In essense one might say—yes. Izansi is a nuisance. While he had power over the border tribes there was always the risk of your precious Mandate government sending an expedition against him, and I've already explained how unpleasant that might be to me—and my Karishimbi people. . . . So, I improved the shining hour, so to speak, and shattered Izansi's reputation among the tribes as well as rescued beauty."

"Used her as a bait, you mean, to break Izansi and straighten yourself in your potty kingdom," Neil Mallock said furiously. "I think it's damnable of you."

"And you, my pretty Carol?" Savaran chuckled.

"So do I—and magnificent, too, Savaran," she said softly. "I think I see what you meant when you said the master mind knows no limits."

"I knew from the first we were as one in mind," Savaran said superbly. "You aren't so beautiful for nothing."

THE LILAC JADE

An Exciting New Serial by ACHMED ABDULLAH

(Copyright: 1940: By Achmed Abdullah)

> FOREWORD
>
> A crypic message on a bit of jade . . . two lives linked by love and bound upon a great adventure . . . exciting action that swings from a New York night club to a Calcutta jail . . . these are some of the elements woven into this dramatic new serial by a master of enthralling fiction.

INSTALMENT I.

DOWNTOWN the braggart skyscrapers and narrow, twisting stone lanes of the Wall street district formed dark tunnels for the chill April wind to whistle its dismal tune. There the stretch of asphalt called Broadway was melancholy and gloomy; deserted save for a few cars hurrying to or from the ferries and the tunnel with gleaming brasses and hooting horns, and, occasionally, the rhythmic tramp-tramp-tramp of a patrolman walking his beat.

But uptown, beyond the Forties, Broadway as well as 7th avenue, glittered with hectic carnival tinsel. Here everything dripped and oozed light—light that stained the rolling tons of sky with brassy orange and intolerable crimson—as great signs hiccoughed thru the night, throwing their motley, arrogant challenge up to a far, sentimental sickle moon, and advertising all manner of things, from chewing gum to Florida real estate, from California oranges to Chicago pork products. Here New York was thronged with men and women, slow moving of necessity, humming and zumming like an angry beehive. Brimmed with traffic it was, with the beastlike nosing of hundreds of automobiles.

For it was the hour when the theaters were closing and the escape-seeking, pleasure mad people of Manhattan, Brooklyn, New Jersey, and points north, south, west, were debouching, a little dazed, a little beglamored, out of the lobby doors; still half wrapped in the enchantment of the make believe world of which, for a few hours, they had been a coughing, feet-shuffling, yet listening and integral part—still keyed up to a nervous pitch, unwilling to go home and prosily to bed—still, many of them, questing for excitement and thrills. And no trouble about it, no dearth, on Broadway and 7th and the side streets. A chance for every taste and lack of taste.

Mehmet and Friend Discover a Dancer

Night clubs here and cabarets where swing music brayed today what jazz had stammered yesterday and ragtime the day before; where money was less object than subject; where the martially drilled waiters, black and white as penguins and quite as rapacious, bustled about, setting "Reserved" cards on tables not yet reserved, making it difficult and expensive, therefore worthwhile, for the poor sucker, more often from Park avenue than from Oshkosh, to find a place where he might sit and drink his synthetic champagne for a price yet more synthetic.

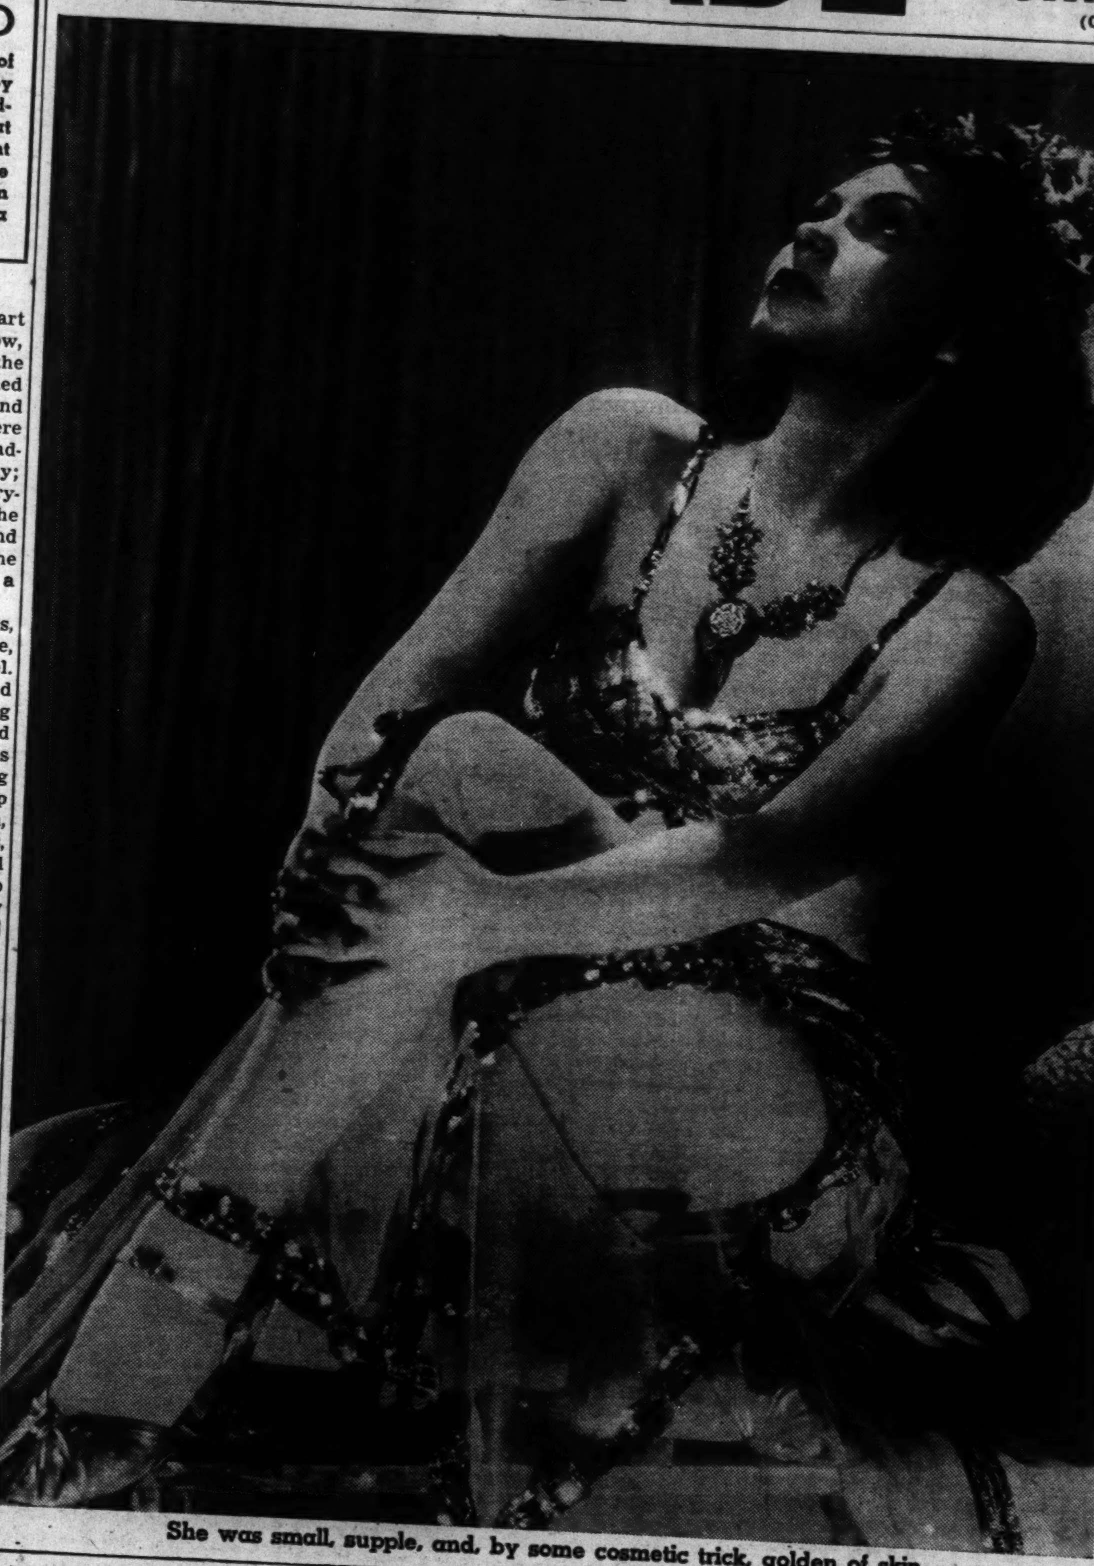
In the West Fifties a great neon sign flashed, intermittent scarlet and venomous magenta. "Club Bombay" it announced, illuminating spasmodically a squat, over ornate building—India, it seemed, as interpreted by Hollywood; a garish, unsuccessful mating of orient and occident.

Beneath it a smaller legend stuttered its fainter, more reticent allure:

PARAVATI.

A taxicab drew up. Two men got out. They were meticulously dressed; the younger—whose flat brimmed silk topper and thickly monogrammed muffler added a frivolous Paris overtone to an otherwise Bond street ensemble—even a little foppishly. There was no doubt, by every token of olive skin, hooded, opaque eyes and hawkish features, that he was an Asiatic. Nor doubt that his companion, lean, weather-beaten, white-mustached, monocled, was as British as the Tower of London.

"Here we are, Mehmet," said the latter. "Let's go in and take a look at her—and, incidentally, open a bottle of the best."



She was small, supple, and, by some cosmetic trick, golden of skin.

"I need it. I can still feel my sea legs." For he had landed that afternoon. "I suppose you pumped the fellow who owns this place?"

"Jim Abrams? Pumped him plenty. I fancy he has an idea my intentions are strictly dishonorable."

Mehmet smiled.

"Aren't they, Bradford?"

"Not the way he figures. Anyway, he couldn't tell me much. Nor could the theatrical agents. She blew into their office. They took a chance. So did Jim. She made superlatively good. That's all he knows. That—and her name and address. Paravati is, of course, local color, since she does oriental dances. She makes no bones about being an American. Lois Winters is her real name—the same as——"

"So you said before. Possibly a coincidence."

"So you said before. I assure you that the resemblance—in spite of the years that have passed and her heavy stage makeup—is startling."

"Still, tonight, we didn't find that——"

"What does that prove? We were just taking a long shot. After all, she wouldn't necessarily leave it around. Certainly not if she realizes its value."

"Which I doubt. Or else, before this——"

"Precisely," agreed the Englishman.

"On the other hand," Mehmet went on pessimistically, "if she does not realize its value, she might have lost it or given it to somebody."

"Perhaps," sighed Bradford. "We have to make sure—somehow."

"What about asking her direct?"

"And give the show away? Don't be an ass!"

"Indirect then. Thru friends of hers."

"She hasn't any in New York. Doesn't seem to know a soul except a young chap who plays the fiddle in the orchestra here and escorts her home night after night."

Mehmet looked up sharply, suspiciously.

"Bodyguard?"

"Nothing so melodramatic. The lad—to quote Jim Abrams—is nuts about her. Well—we'll take care of him if he cuts up rough."

They turned toward the door, which was flung open by a tall and wide shouldered man gaudily impressive in his high-waisted, plaited cherry-silk tunic that came down to the tops of his patent leather riding boots, a silver sheathed dagger in his belt. A Tartar Cossack costume, and Tartar, too, his beady, black eyes and prominent cheekbones.

Inside, they surrendered hats and overcoats to the wardrobe girl; were met by Jim Abrams in person, who, tho the owner, was not above accepting the yellowback slipped into his palm and took them to a ringside table, whence they had a view not only of the waxed floor cleared for dancing and the show, but also of the narrow hall which led from the back entrance to the artists' dressing rooms—a view, even, of some of the dressing rooms themselves.

A choice table, therefore. An intimate, slightly naughty table, well worth the money.

They were amongst the first comers. A Negro orchestra, on a low platform, was tuning up. The oblong place was decorated in misty shades of elfin-green and Chinese red. Moorish lanterns, hanging from the groined, gilt ceiling, diffused a dim glow. From huge incense burners rose coiled long, slow streamers of many colored, cloyingly sweet smoke. The whole atmosphere was oriental—"at least," was the Englishman's sardonic comment, "to those who've never been east of Budapest. . . ."

He interrupted himself as the doorman, who had come in and crossed the cabaret, hurried down the hall, a box under his arm, knocked at one of the dressing rooms and called:

"Miss Winters!"

Bradford swung in his chair. He stared, tense, alert. So did Mehmet. They saw the door open at a slant; caught a glimpse of a soft, oval face.

"Without her makeup," whispered Bradford. "Now are you convinced?"

"Does look like her," admitted the other.

They were both silent; listened as the Cossack held out the box and begged the girl in halting English to accept it.

"No!" she replied. "How often must I tell you, Murat?" Then, suddenly, as the man insisted, she broke into a torrent of speech in a guttural language, winding up with explosive words: "Ishak-ga-tagharni ebarmang!"

"Hear that?" he asked his friend, while the girl slammed the door shut and while Jim Abrams approached on a fattish, lumbering run to see what the row was about. "Spoke in Tartar."

"Yes."

"Need any more proof? Looks like her. Has the same name. Knows the lingo. Three coincidences, I suppose?"

"Just two too many. I believe you're right."

Just then Jim Abrams came from back stage and stopped at their table.

"Seen what happened?" he said to Bradford. "Hoity-toity—that dame. Same thing every few nights. Some sport slips Murat a bunch o' dough, sends him to her with flowers or perfume or a bit o' jewelry—and an invitation for after the show. And always she gives my patrons the icy mitt. Say—I'd kick her from here right to the middle of Flatbush if it wasn't for her dancin'. For she sure can sling a wicked hip—can't she, Mister?"

"None better," agreed Bradford; and, when Jim Abrams had walked away, said to Mehmet: "Really—she's wonderful." He sipped at his champagne. "Why—she could dance even as a child, back in Kashgar, in Chinese Turkestan—I remember."

"I hope to Allah she won't remember you!"

"Not a chance. She was so young then, and children don't notice grown ups. Besides, I wore a beard in those days."

"How did you trace her?"

"Toward the end of the revolution, when I heard that Jim Winters had died, I returned to Kashgar——"

"Safe for you to return with Jim dead—wasn't it?"

"Don't be unpleasant!" Bradford refilled his glass. "Anyway, I heard that the girl had gone back to America, taking along the few things her father had left. I followed. Couldn't locate her, tho God knows I tried. Detectives. Newspaper ads. Everything. But no go. She had disappeared. Then, when I was just about to take ship for England, I happened to drop in here—and cabled you immediately. . . ."

In the meantime, the cabaret had filled.

"Paravati" Makes Her Dramatic Entrance

Men in evening dress. Most of them, strangely, cast in the same mould. Youngish-old or oldish-young, slender, oddly white faced men with perfectly cut trousers that bulged from tightly compressed waists. Men different from the days when great gentlemen had great passions and sinned great sins. Men of thin, carefully cultivated vices, proud to belong to that latest, columnistically engendered species called Café society; and the women after their kind.

An elderly man, who seemed curiously out of place was sitting alone at a small table near the Englishman's and defied the headwaiter by drinking a glass of beer.

Heavy set he was, white haired, with amazingly youthful, strikingly blue eyes. He seemed anxious; seemed to be watching and waiting keenly.

"For what?" Bradford vaguely wondered. . . .

"Tara-a-a-a!" the saxophones' triumphant fortissimo cut into his thoughts as the orchestra started its crazy, syncopated, alcoholic Congo belch and people began to dance, faces glued together, bodies weaving and shivering neurotically.

Twisting. Turning. Gyrating. More and more people joining in, until the men and women, unable to budge and step, remained stationary, only the shoulders and thighs heaving convulsively, as if in a delirium of the senses.

Minute after minute. Then again: "Tara-a-a-a!"

This time with finality. And, in spite of clapping, urging hands, the jazz stopped; people returned to their tables; the musicians left; and, presently, three others came on the platform, drummer, clarinet player, and violinist. The first two seemed Russian Jews; the violinist was unmistakably an American—very tall, young, strongly built, not bad looking with his determined chin, his shock of tawny, unruly hair.

Bradford pointed at him.

"That's the lad I told you about," he said to Mehmet. "The boy friend. . . ."

A moment later the violin throbbed a dreamy melody, the clarinet war-

NEXT SUNDAY—FANNIE HURST'S NEW SHORT STORY, "LORA MADE A LITTLE MISTAKE"

bled birdlike notes, the drum thudded a soft, wiped-over tattoo. The room darkened. A spotlight painted an amber circle; and into this circle stepped Paravati.

She was small, supple and, by some cosmetic trick, golden of skin. Her hair was midnight black, her dark eyes enormous, her lips a scarlet dagger thrust. She wore a short, wide, circular skirt and a sari—the shawl which an oriental woman drapes about herself with a deft art unknown to 5th avenue—of pale rose silk shot with violet. Her feet and legs were bare but for her jingling silver anklets; and of silver also was the large square ornament that depended from a heavy chain about her neck.

The music wailed up. She began her dance with a sideways movement, her outstretched hands keeping time with her feet, then gliding down the curve of pointed breasts and narrow hips, sometimes beckoning, wavering, bent back until they almost touched her arms.

It was a dance of temptation, perfectly carried out in every gesture, frankly carried out. And, clear above drum and clarinet and violin, rose the breathing of the onlookers—breathing that became sharp, labored, as the music wailed more wildly, more ecstatically, while Paravati jerked into a whirl, her eyes half closed, a queer smile curling her lips.

Gradually her whirling increased in speed. Her short skirt swept around and around like a wheel. Her little sweat-drenched heels made a hissing noise as they tapped the ground. Her sari, skilfully tossed from side to side, up and down, then forward with a sweep of her whole body, assumed fantastic ever changing shapes—soaring in a foamy cloud, waving like a palm tree in the meeting of the winds, standing up straight and brave like a lance at rest.

The silver ornament about her neck shimmered and glistened. The anklets tinkled. There was a glimpse of bare, golden flesh. Everything was barbaric, sensuous—and the onlookers leaned forward, staring, completely carried away, while the music became louder, the drummer beating the tightly stretched pigskin in a very thunder of hollow sound, the clarinet shrieking, the violin sobbing in a gulpy, shuddering frenzy.

Bradford Recovers a Dropped Calling Card

This was more than a mere dance. Life itself it was, nature, an immense, cosmic pulsing and vibrating. The soul of all the east it was, with its cruelty and its grace, its lust and jasmine sweetness. All Asia it was, whirling in mad circles—here in a New York cabaret—and, in the distance, incongruously, ironically, the elevated roaring its dissonant counterpoint.

Faster! Faster!

Then, suddenly, she gave a throaty, high pitched yell:

"Hai!"

At once, abruptly, the music broke off. The next moment she salaamed, touching the floor with the tips of her henna-stained fingers, and was gone.

Came heavy silence, followed by insistent, clamorous applause, hectic demands of: "Encore! Encore!" But Paravati—it was her rule—did not repeat her performance, nor came back to take a bow. And, after a while, the Negro musicians returned, and there was again the strident cacophony of saxophone and banjo, once more men and women in jungly neurotic abandon. . . .

Mehmet had paid the waiter. He half rose.

"Let's go to the hotel," he suggested, "and talk things over."

But Bradford said, "Wait!" as the elderly man at the next table stopped Jim Abrams who was passing and told him he wanted a word with the violinist.

"Who'll I say?" Jim demanded aggressively.

The other opened his pocketbook and gave a visiting card to the proprietor. He did not notice that a second card had fluttered to the ground and that, quickly, almost automatically, the Englishman's foot, sliding sideways, had covered it, was pushing it to where he would presently be able to reach it.

Jim Abrams was studying the pasteboard in his hand.

He bowed obsequiously, was off; and, a minute or two later, the violinist came and approached the older man who said gruffly:

"Sit down, Tom!"

The latter obeyed, while Bradford, who had picked up the card and read it, whispered to Mehmet:

"Know who that is?"

"Well . . . ?"

"Freeman D. Ferguson."

"The Freeman D. Ferguson?"

"Yes. Detroit. Automobiles. Second only to Henry Ford. And the boy . . ."

"Must be his son. I remember reading something in the papers. Hard-hearted father threatening to disinherit only child who insists on being a musician." He smiled superciliously. "So amusingly American . . ."

"Shut up!" interrupted the other. "I want to listen."

He moved his chair a little; strained his ears to catch the drift of the low voiced conversation at the next table. . . .

The older man was speaking with measured bitterness:

"You and your highfalutin' talk about making your own career, Tom! Call it a career to fiddle a cheap accompaniment to a cheap, half-naked . . ."

"Leave her out of it, dad!"

"Oh, is that the way the wind is blowing? Stuck on this . . . ?"

"I asked you to leave her out of it!"

Freeman Ferguson smiled. It was not an unkindly smile.

"You're a young fool," he announced, "who needs looking after. I swore I'd never ask you again. But I shall—this once. That's why I came to New York. I'm going back to Detroit in a couple of days. Come home with me. I'm mighty fond of you. Mighty fond. It makes my heart ache to find you in such a place. If your dead mother could see you . . ."

"She would understand! You don't. My—my ambition——"

"Ambition—hell!" the other flared up. "It isn't your ambition that is keeping you here. It's this dancing girl . . ."

"Right!" defiantly. "I love her!"

"Expensive taste. I didn't know you earned enough to keep her in the style to which she isn't accustomed."

The boy gave a choked cry, half pain and half rage; and, at once, his father was sorry.

"Maybe," he added, "my last remark was a little unjust."

"It was beastly! She—" so tritely—"she's a nice girl!"

Freeman Ferguson frowned. He wouldn't have minded so much his son having a mistress. But—good heavens!—had Tom got it that bad? Was he really in love . . . ? Well—it was up to him to fix it.

"Son," he said, "I want to talk to this nice girl—tonight."

"What about?" was the wary question.

"To find out if, perhaps, she has more horse sense than you."

"Nothing doing, dad. I won't introduce you."

"Very well," calmly. "I'll introduce myself."

Father and son stared at each other. Finally the latter gave in.

"Okay," he said and went backstage.

Lois Winters opened the door to him. She had just finished taking off her makeup. He looked at her. She was one of those rare human beings who will always be lovely; with a beauty not dependent upon the color of hair and eyes and texture of skin, but beauty in the very structure of her head and features; a chiseled, sculptured beauty that would outlive the assaults of middle age and the ravages of old age—of stringy, gray hair, of short sighted, bespectacled eyes, of deeply etched wrinkles and folds of flabby flesh.

There was something classic about that face. Something noble—chiefly in its courage.

Hungrily, Tom's eyes rested on her red lips. He loved her; had often told her so.

"My father's here!" he announced dramatically.

"Has he come to . . . ?"

"Kill the fatted calf? Not he! Badgering me, as usual. And—wants to meet you."

"Meet me?" she faltered, her hand playing nervously with the square silver ornament at her throat. "What for?"

"To talk horse sense to you—so he says. I told him I loved you."

"You shouldn't have!"

"Why not? It's God's own truth. Can I bring him here?"

"Oh, yes . . ."

"Look out for him. He's a clever old son-of-a-gun! Liable to give you the old fraternity grip with the right hand, while he frisks your pockets with his left."

Tom left and Lois Winters sat down, a little frightened.

She had known Tom for several months now; had loved him almost from the first; had never admitted it to him. For marriage seemed out of the question, with Tom earning nothing save his weekly night club pittance, and his father refusing to give him a single cent, indeed, threatening to disinherit him unless he gave up his musical ambition, toed the mark instead and went into the automobile business.

Lois Has Talk with Tom's Shrewd Father

Not that she cared how poor Tom was. Nor was she afraid of poverty—for herself. She knew about it. But she did not want to stand in Tom's way; did not consider it fair.

His talent was genuine. He had a brilliant future as a composer. Only, like many an artist, he was the opposite of practical. He needed financial help, at least in the beginning. And while Freeman Ferguson, in spite of his threat, might ultimately come to his son's rescue, he would—she was convinced—make this same threat good, once and for all, if Tom married her, a dancer in a New York cabaret.

Of course, she would gladly—so very gladly—share with him whatever she earned. But he would not accept. Not he. She knew it. Too, she was not secure in her work at the Club Bombay. The day was bound to arrive when the next Broadway sensation would come along and snuff out her little flame of fame. Her one hope—where she herself was concerned—was to interest some big theatrical producer in her dancing. She was convinced she'd be able to make good . . .

She cut off her thoughts as there was a knock at the door; rose to admit Tom who introduced his father, then said, a little unsteadily:

"Dad wants to talk to you alone. See you later, Lois . . ."

He closed the door behind him; and Lois looked at Freeman Ferguson. He reminded her of Tom. Heavier, immeasurably shrewder than the latter. A man who had fought life, had won thru. Still—so very much like his son.

The next moment she reflected that, surely, from what she knew, this man was not her friend; and she stiffened to meet any attack that might come.

"You do a mighty good dance turn," he began bluntly. "Looks like the real thing, young lady."

"Is the real thing," was her quiet reply.

"Where did you learn it? In a Broadway dance shop?"

"In the country where I was born."

"Chicago's loop?"

"Central Asia. Kashgar."

"Tell that to my son. Not to me."

"I——" she was getting angry—"I assure you. . . ."

"Forget it—and let's talk turkey. My son informs me he's in love with you. Know that I'm going to disinherit him, unless he minds his p's and q's?"

"Yes."

"Well—you're one of the p's and q's. And it's no good your counting on your looks and charm to win the old man over . . ."

"I didn't come to see you!" she interrupted. "You came to see me!"

"You'd have come sooner or later—asking for a handout!"

"O," indignantly, "I would not!"

"Listen! I've no personal grudge against you, Miss Winters. I might have fallen for you, too, if I had been my kid's age—and with as little sense as he has. He's crazy enough as it is, with his damned music and his damned temperament. I won't have him made crazier by a silly marriage with some fake oriental dancer who earns her living by . . ."

"I'm not ashamed of the way I earn my living. And," for, typically, it was the other accusation which she minded most, "my dancing is not a fake. No more than—O—your—your tin cans!"

"Bully for you!" he laughed. "I deserved that. And for argument's sake, I admit your dancing is genuine—you learned it wherever you told me you did."

"Kashgar. That's in Chinese Turkestan."

"Yes, yes, Miss School Teacher." Again he laughed. "I know one or two things, besides making—ah—the best car in the country. Fact is, I've quite a collection of antiques from Chinese Turkestan. And that's where I'm wiser than my son. For antiques, dead things, can't hurt—while living things, adventuresses who fasten themselves like leeches to young fools because of the money which they think . . ."

"You've said enough!" Lois was white with rage. "Now I'll say something." She walked up close to him. "I love your son. I've never told him so. But I love him—I do—with all my heart . . ."

"Forget it! I don't fall for that sort of . . ."

"O—" violently—"will you let me finish! I," snappping her fingers, "don't care that much for your money! And I'd marry him tomorrow—if he'd never have a red cent! but"—crescendo—"I won't!"

He looked at her. He was interested as well as astonished.

"May I inquire the reason?"

"Just because I love him!"

"Doubtless clear to you. But not to me." He spoke quite gently, "Won't you explain?"

She stared at him with the dark candor of her eyes.

"It's hard to explain certain things, fine, vital things, to people who know nothing except—except money and automobiles and business success and . . ." she stopped for breath—to—O—" scorntully, rather childishly—"prejudiced old fossils who . . ."

"I won't deny the money," he interjected, "nor the success. Still," with a grin, "maybe I'm not so hopeless an old fossil as you think. So won't you let me into the secret?"

"All right." She spoke slowly. "I won't marry him until he has made good. Good on his own account. Without help from you. I——" and there was the suspicion of a break in her voice "I want to be proud of him."

She ended in a sob, and Freeman Ferguson said:

"I'll be damned! I'll be double-damned!"

He walked up and down—turned to her after a while.

"I don't know," he went on, "if you're straight—or as crooked as a pig's tail—and I'm a big enough business man to believe in hunches—that you're straight."

She half-curtsied.

"Thank you so much, kind sir!"

"Now—about Tom—he may have talent . . ."

"He has! Great talent!"

"Maybe. I know all about engines and nothing about music. 'Home, Sweet Home' is my limit. But I do know that, heretofore, he has been—not exactly lazy—but he has drifted, has needed incentive . . ."

"He has incentive now!" she declared.

"Guess you're right." He put both his hands on her shoulders. "Promise me something?"

"What?"

"That you'll marry him—as soon as he has made good."

"B-but . . ." she stammered, taken aback.

"That," he continued, lying shamelessly, "was the real reason why I wanted to see you. To put in a good word for my boy." He gave a little laugh. "Going to give me that promise?"

"Yes," she replied, her eyes misty.

"That's fine. You know, Lois—I like you."

"And—you know, Tom's father—I like you, too . . ."

That's what she told Tom, ten minutes later, as they were leaving the cabaret.

"He's a peach," she said. "I like him lots."

"I'm glad you do. What did he have to say for himself?"

She related the conversation; and Tom was amused.

"Clever old boy," he commented. "No wonder he's made millions. It took him to find out that you love me. You never told me." He drew her closer. "I love you much, dear. I want you for my own—in some quiet little place where you'll dance just for me—where I can write music—great music of the orient as it has never been written before. And I could do it—with you to inspire me."

"You will—some day. These arrangements you made—after the central Asian themes I hummed for you—are wonderful, amazing—and you don't even know the country, the people . . ."

"I love you, Lois! Marry me—tomorrow!"

"I promised your father . . ."

"That you'll marry me as soon as I've made good. Not that you wouldn't marry me before I've made good."

"The same thing."

"It isn't."

"It is—and you know it is. Don't let's begin life by cheating."

"O," growled Tom, "very well."

They Discover House Has Been Ransacked

By this time they had reached her house, an old-fashioned brownstone residence in the West Forties, cut into small apartments and boasting no marble lobby, no haughty attendants, no elevator, but a combination janitor-engineer.

"May I come in for a moment, Lois?"

"Glad to have you."

They went up three flights of stairs and entered her small flat, consisting of parlor, bedroom, kitchenette, and tiny entrance hall. She dropped off her inexpensive, fur-trimmed coat and cast her plain felt hat aside.

"Ouf!" she sighed. "I'm tired."

She opened the parlor door—and, at once, clutched Tom's arm.

"O!" she cried.

"What's the matter, darling?"

"This place—why—thieves have been here—burglars . . ."

He looked about. Everything was in disorder. Desk drawers had been pulled open; couch cover and pillows had been flung on the floor; the books and papers on the library table were pell-mell.

She ran into the bedroom. He followed. There, too, the bureau drawers had been taken out. Trunk and closet had been ransacked. Lingerie trailed on the ground.

"What a mess!" commented Tom. "Amateurs—or I lose my guess. See what they took."

She went over her things.

"Nothing is missing," she said presently. "Not," with a nervous laugh, "that I have anything worth stealing."

"How about your jades?" asked Tom, pointing to a narrow cabinet that housed half a dozen white and green pieces.

She counted them.

"All there—and fifty dollars would buy the lot. I just brought them along for sentimental reasons when I left Turkestan. They belonged to father." She sat down. "I've only one valuable possession. At least father said it was."

She lifted the heavy chain with the square silver ornament from her throat and showed it to Tom.

"That . . . ?" he asked incredulously.

"Yes. I never told you. It sounds so—O—so unreal. But come closer. Look!"

And she fumbled a moment or two with the pieces; pushed a little catch . . .

"Wait till you see her, Mehmet."

UNDOUBTEDLY IT WAS SAVARAN

By DOUGLAS NEWTON

(Copyright: 1940: By Wilfred Douglas Newton)

. . . and leaping high, he began the dance of death.

FOREWORD When two strong natures meet and clash, drama is the inevitable result. Strange superstitions, deadly greed, haughty pride, all combine to make the drama exciting and colorful in this gripping story of the dark jungle.

DR. CAROL LOTHIAN of the Bitter Water Belt Clinical survey stood in the sun-gold dusk of the Mbam'ala medicine hut before the seven foot image of Nxwalu, ju-ju of tribal might and full cooking pots. Her young but handsome nose wrinkled not only at the stench of offerings, mingling as it did with the bouquet of massed, butter anointed tribesmen, but even more severely at Nxwalu himself.

"Degrading!" she said coldly. "No wonder barbarism and lack of elementary hygiene still prevail. Chi-Chi, you brought that crowbar from the lorries? Good! Throw down that monstrosity."

The knock-kneed Jlango boy positively goggled at the order. His glance fled over the Mbam'ala crowded round the walls and he decided that he could not have heard aright. Carol Lothian said again:

"Chi-Chi, it is an order. Throw the horror over! Smash it!"

Chi-Chi's "K" knees clapped together with a thud and continued to clap. With his coke tinted skin turning greenish he gave tongue with such panic rapidity that Carol Lothian's beginner's Sesuto was quickly lost in a fog of clicks. Pedro Lobelia, the quarter Portuguese, translated the less painfully anatomical portions of his warning:

"He say, No Can! He say this much strong muti; belong Izansi their No. 1 Top witchman. If touch, lightning smite us dead dam sharp. Also these black scums be quite annoyed. They stab our bellies full of spears, cut out our livers, hack off——"

"That's enough," Carol Lothian snapped. "I don't believe a word of it. Chi-Chi, do as I order. The crowbar——"

Neil Mallock, her Transport rider, so far forget his dumbness before imperious good looks to mutter: "I wouldn't, Miss Lothian. He's probably right, you know. These blokes might get really shirty."

The Mbam'ala understood enough of what was going on to realize that this white missy had not come to offer blood sacrifices to Nxwalu as a token of friendship, as they had politely assumed. She was, indeed, actually bent on shaming their fetish for some obscure white reason.

Therefore quietly and with a courtesy calculated not to jar the finer feelings of a guest, they reached for the brass backed hacking knives in their gee strings and the spears they had reverently parked against the hut walls.

Yet their faces were so cowlike, their company manners so gentlemanly, that even Neil Mallock did not grasp how close they were to massacre.

As for Carol Lothian, she was too young, assured, and lovely to have had real experience of any one daring to deny her wishes. Her lofty glance surveyed the stolid tribesmen and she said even more finally:

"Rubbish, Mr. Mallock. A mere mob of rickety savages—it's high time civilization took them in hand. One has only to be firm, to show them we'll stand no nonsense. . . . Very well, Chi-Chi, if you're too scared I'll do it myself. Give me the crowbar. . . ."

As her hand reached for the tool, lean brown fingers closed upon her wrist in a clasp of iron, while, with startling dexterity, another plucked the gay silk scarf from her throat and tossed it among the offerings on Nxwalu's altar. Worse, before her shocked wits could react a steel arm slid round her waist forcing her to bow—bow to the abominable ju-ju!

"How dare you!" she gasped, thinking it was Neil Mallock. "My scarf to that vile heathen thing . . . and bowing! How dare——"

She stopped with a gasp. Not Neil's mild face, but eyes as bright as a bird of prey's, features thin, dark, aquiline, and filthy were very close to hers, while a strange voice said with genial savagery:

"For looks like yours, O Lotus among women, I'd risk a kingdom—as in fact I do. It's my habit. Smile sweetly on the pretty people and their little god, my Pearl of Delight—and back out damn quick!"

There was a timbre in the sardonic voice that forced a mechanical smile from her, but as she backed away the enclosing arm actually squeezed her. That and a full sight of the man set her blazing: He was tall, spidery, and horrid with the festooning of amulets, bones, and unmentionable trinkets proper to a minor witch doctor.

"You!" she exploded. "Neil! Neil!"

Teeth flared like white fire in the saturnine face.

"How anger suits your type—if this were only the moment to enjoy it." Then as she again cried, "Neil!" he pushed her into Mallock's arms with: "Get her outside sharp! Take her by the scruff of her pretty neck and run her away before she starts us all to the chopping block. Another ten seconds of her and not even I can save you."

The iron power in the command swept away Neil's anger, even his weakness before beauty. He had Carol Lothian out of the hut and across the sun baked palaver place before he realized he was rough-necking a goddess; was driving their boys to load the lorries for a quick getaway with a grimness that simply refused to listen to Carol, whose blazing, outraged pride was determined to show the entire black creation that white women could not be intimidated. In the midst of the war of wills a well known voice said:

"No need for undignified flight now, I've made you almost popular with them."

Witch Doctor Revealed as Notorious Savaran

The spindly stranger was squatting on their chop boxes, calmly breaking open a carton of Carol Lothian's special cigarets. He had shed his ju-ju man's regalia, yet still looked far too raffish, dirty, and native for white tastes, so that Neil Mallock wondered just how to treat him. Dr. Carol Lothian had no doubts, she said in cold fury:

"You made them think that I—a white woman, a scientist, worshipped their filthy idol!"

"Preserver of fair women. Haven't you grasped yet that, but for me, those most attractive lips would be uttering plaints of quite different intensity at this moment? The Mbam'ala are as skilled as they are lingering over the pleasures of torture. Listen!"

He held up his hand; in the thick, still heat they heard sounds from the medicine hut that made even Dr. Carol Lothian shudder and reach for the pistol at her belt.

"Only a goat," the strange man was actually enjoying the dramatic reaction of his gesture.

"Even that's abominable."

"Possibly. But it had to be something. You started a blood-craving, and the Mbam'ala are inclined to get peeved when their pet instincts are thwarted."

"And you played up to their beastly instincts."

"O, promptly," he mocked. "You may be headstrong but you are very handsome, and I, Savaran, have a weakness for women as well as war."

"Savaran!" Neil Mallock cried. "The adventurer—the chap who had just made himself king of the Karishimbi over the border?"

"Prime minister, commander in chief, and foreign secretary only—as yet," the strange creature corrected magnificently.

"Savaran!" Carol Lothian's anger flared anew. "I've heard of you. A filibuster; a man who goes native in order to stir up savages. It is you who are the cause of all the trouble in the Bitter Water belt."

"That—after I've just prevented an interfering, if charming, official of the Mandatory government from starting a local outbreak."

"A lie. It's you and men like you who check the spread of progress and civilization among these backward peoples——"

"Meaning white rule, swarms of inspectors and tax gatherers, hygiene and trousers for all?"

"It would be better for them."

"An arguable point," he shrugged. "But it certainly would not be better for me."

"No, your sort fatten on the ignorance, superstition, and misplaced love of fighting of these poor creatures. You live by war."

"Not this month," he said genially. "Haven't I just prevented a nasty one? Your Mandate government would be only too ready to use your death as an excuse for sending an army of vengeance to impose the blessings of progress on the local benighted. In fact, that's a reason I suggest that you confine your clinical passion to the coastal belt, where they've learned to suffer civilization with patience. On this border fringe it means personal danger and public war, Dr. Lothian."

"You know me?" she cried, startled.

"What in Africa is hidden from Savaran, especially when it is so beautiful?"

His extravagant flattery stung her. She snapped: "What do you mean by danger? It is my duty to survey and report on the benefits modern medical science can bring to the tribes of this area."

"It is the nature of tribes of this area to fear and hate the benefits of modern medical science. Primitive of them, of course, but that's their angle. Also their feelings are so powerful that it will cost you your life if you go on, and I don't want punitive expeditions butting in, they'll upset my plans."

"Plans for an empire—didn't I say you were the cause of the trouble in this area?"

"You did. But even repetition and your good looks don't make you accurate. The real source of unrest, the canker spot, the germ culture of white hate, so to speak, is a cunning old gentleman of your own persuasion, named Izansi. He has considerable scientific attainments on his own lines: psychology and the uses of magic and mass fear as instruments of power, for instance. It makes him the mind that rules the Mbam'ala and other tribes between your Bitter Water belt and my Karishimbi.

"Like me, he doesn't want any white interference, but, unlike me, he thinks he can stop it by terror. That's where your—and my danger lie. The rabid old monomaniac's hate and self-sufficiency have reached the stage where he's actually anxious to sacrifice some one like you to prove to his tribes that his might is stronger than the white man's."

"I suppose you degraded yourself to the level of one of his ju-ju men to share his aims and secrets," she said cuttingly.

"His secrets, anyhow," the bizarre creature grinned. "I am head and best agent of my own intelligence staff."

"Are you saying we should go no further among the border tribes?" Neil Mallock put in.

"If you do you're as good as dead," the eagle eyes narrowed. "Izansi is waiting for just such an object lesson as you. His tribes know it. . . . They will take you, their drums will send word to Izansi in Votoko. He will come on the wind——"

"From four days inland?" she sneered.

"And on his arrival there will be great muti for which your nice white bodies will be the instruments."

"You may fool savages with your bogey stories, Mr. Savaran, but not me. Mr. Mallock, finish the loading of the lorries, we continue our survey—as planned."

"But really, Miss Lothian, Savaran's reputation——" began Neil.

"It is an order, Mr. Mallock. I expect to be moving in half an hour," she said and walked toward her tent.

Dramatic large hat of white pique, cut in squared-off outline at back, with flattering face-framing outline completely round over headline. ● D . . . Dache's sensational turban for summertime wear, made of fine tissue gauze in new color called martini gold. Yards of gauze have been intricately woven for the unusual bag, too. ● E . . . Summer duet of white leather bag and sunshade hat. Scoop-shaped brim is cool blue dotted with white, the crown open. Lining of bag matches. ● F . . . Eye-catching red hat cross-barred in lines of white. All hats are Dache originals for Chicago.

New Hats for Summer Offer Face Flattery

By Rea Seeger.

No matter how laggard the first continuous wave of warm weather, late spring and early summer millinery creations never fail to crowd the fashion spotlight. Wide brims to flatter the eyeline, to contrive mysterious shadows for the face under the brim, arrive each late spring, each season lovelier than ever. Smooth and rough straws are smart for casual cottons, for daytime dresses for town or country, but the sophisticated affairs are of smoother stuff, piqué, linen, soft fabrics, and combinations of smooth straw and fabric.

Off-the-face hats are as numerous and beguiling in the nunlike coifs of piqué. Exotic, far eastern, swathed turbans are made of fine gauzelike materials, as well as of clinging crêpes and jerseys. These are the intricately intertwined or swathed models that only a nimble fingered expert can contrive. Less artfully twisted turbans seem dull and hopelessly ordinary compared to such masterpieces.

Come any spring or summer and the wave of white piqué hats covers the fashionable headlines like white mountain cream frosting on a cupcake. Nothing equals the crisp chic of a sleekly cut white piqué. There's a starchy smartness that only this piqué can manage. Whether it is used in the dramatic big hats reminiscent of the Gay Nineties, or the angelic halos of off-the-forehead models, jaunty pillboxes, tams, or Bretons, the annual white hopes of any street or daytime costume are the piqués, with stiffened linens, coarse lace, or eyelet embroidery coming along in second place.

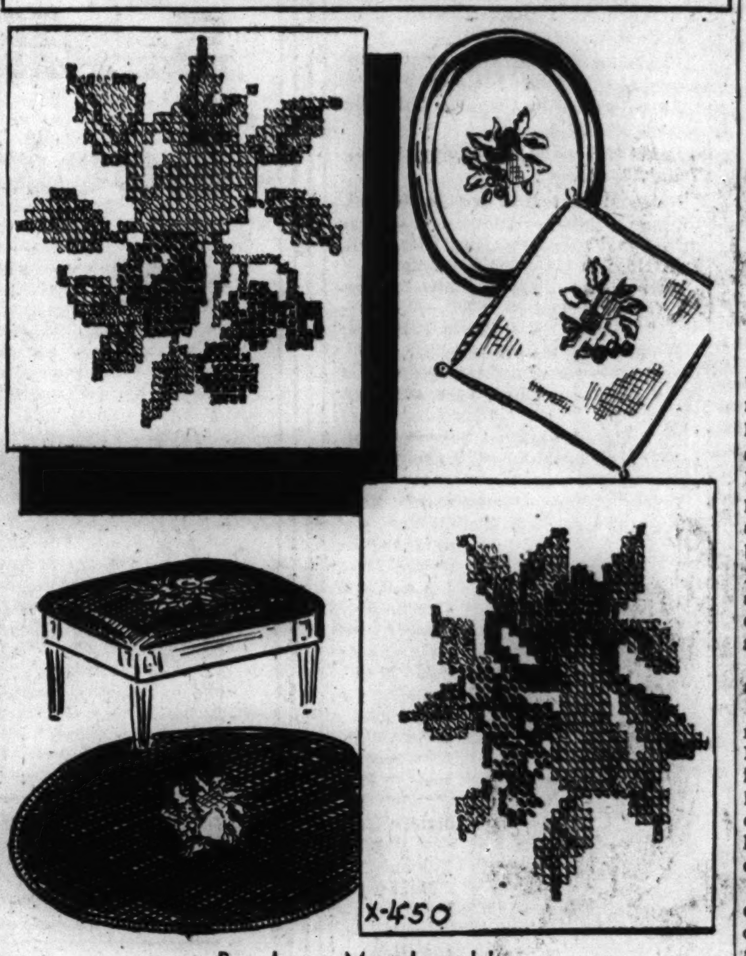
New this spring are the feather trims or quills that swoop skyward, that define a crease in a sharply upturned brim, that slash thru a neat folded crown, or that cut thru a wide brim at unexpected places. These quills are in gay colors or made of piqué, of dotted silk, or anything else that falls under the fingers of an ingenious hat designer. Tailored flowers—that is, prim, clean cut blossoms such as carnations, daisies, and clover—are made of piqué, then tied in small bunches for trim. White and high-colored veils are other accents, while crisp bows, large and small, made of bands of the pique, are a never failing decorative trim.

White and colored cotton fabric hats will play an important part in the summer wardrobes. Green, brown, navy, and black linen especially are scheduled for summer toppers with wide, eye shade brims, with "follow me lad" streamers down the back. Some have the entire top of the crown open for air cooling. Tie silk material, thin summer woolen or thicker silk crêpe, or stitched material in smooth cottons is used for summertime cartwheels ready for color accent duty with all-white clothes or colored costumes. Suits and dresses are topped by these wide-brimmed beauties.

Sketched are six brand new headlines for late spring and early summer; efficient shields against a too ardent sun, or eyebrow flattery in town.

Simple Needlepoint Design



By Jean Macdonald.

A simple but attractive needlepoint design, the fruit motif, is an ideal choice for a wall plaque, to be used on a footstool or for a checkerboard rug. In making the latter, alternating squares are made with the fruit motif, while the others are plain blocks. The directions for doing needlepoint are extremely simple and any one may attempt it. Illustrations accompanying the pattern show clearly all the details involved. For the person who has never done any type of needlework and is anxious to begin, this pattern is suggested as one of the simplest and most fascinating of all types of needlework.

For the needlepoint design of a fruit motif, No. X-450, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Home Owners' Queries

Chicago.—[To the Home Building Editor.]—What can be done to guard against clogged up gutters and downspouts? Last fall we had a lot of trouble with them.—H. K. LONG.

Answer: Check on available wire screen protectors which can be obtained in either galvanized steel or solid copper.

Kenosha, Wis. [To the Home Building Editor].—Can a built-in tub be converted into a water tight shower compartment? I would like to have such an arrangement for spring.—JESSIE M.

Answer: Very possibly it can. Check on glass enclosures.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

By Sally Joy Brown.

Many unemployed men are utterly unable, thru their own efforts, to meet one of the prime requisites for locating work—a presentable appearance. The majority of men who have been without steady work for a period of a year or more are shabby and down-at-the-heel, in spite of their best efforts to be neat and clean. Many of them do their own laundry and patch their own clothes, but several years' hard wear is bound to show on coats and trousers.

Mr. T. is much in need of clothing, and sent the following appeal:

"Dear Miss Brown: I am a married man, unemployed at present. My wife has been ill and under clinical care for the last two years. We have girls 10 and two years old to care for, and we were just able to keep up with bills before I was laid off my job in February.

"I wonder if any reader has a suit of clothing, about size 38, which I could have, as I need it badly in my search for work. I am 5 feet [illegible] inches tall and weigh 142 pounds. I would appreciate it."

This address is on the south side, and Mr. T. will be glad to call for available clothing.

Mrs. M., who is a widow endeavoring to support a young daughter, has been without work for some time. She has requested aid for her father, since she is unable to help him. He is 61 years old and is at present working as a dishwasher for long hours every day in the week, earning $5 per week. He pays for room rent and other absolute necessities out of that salary, and altho he is badly in need of clothing, he is unable to afford it. His needs include shoes, size 7½; a suit, size 38; shirts, size 15 and, if possible, a hat, size 7½.

• • •

Mr. R. writes: "May I ask your aid in obtaining some clothing for me? I am a man 50 years old and never knew what it was to ask for anything until illness befell me. I have been laid up for three years, after a nervous breakdown and severe rheumatism prevented my working or even getting around very much. I am badly in need of a suit, size 38 or 40; shoes, 9½, and shirts, 14½ or 15."

Since Mr. R. is unable to call for any offers, the address will be supplied to any reader interested in helping him.

Thru the Looking Glass

It's carnival time in fashion land, when colors are termed "delicious." To the queen's taste, no less, are two new colors ready to tempt your color palate. Presented in the form of nail enamels with lipsticks to match, they promise to be as important to wardrobes as soft drinks are to a circus, and who ever heard of a circus without pink lemonade and red punch?

The strongest color is the punch shade, and if a nail polish can have "it," this one can go to the head of the class. It's a rosy red, a rich rosy red, with a slight raspberry cast. It's bright, but has a mysterious softness to it that is almost startling. You can't realize all this until you wear it, and the longer you wear it, the better you like it.

To wear it is as exciting as watching the man on the flying trapeze, or the sprite of a girl balancing herself on one toe on the back of a fast-trotting horse in a circus ring. And to wear it is so flattering to your hands that we'd make a bet that you'll cast secret glances at them from time to time and think, not out loud, of course, that your hands are beautiful, quite beautiful. We were so intrigued we made a personal survey which revealed the fact that we are not alone in our enthusiasm.

This is the color you'll select to quench your thirst for the dramatic accent to your wardrobe. You'll wear it with black and white, with dark blue or gray, and with the sharp yellows. There's a harmonizing lipstick with the same live appeal.

Equally delicious, for the more conservative palate, is the lemonade shade. It's light enough to be "imbibed" freely, and is a rose pink with a glow that achieves an accent in a different way when worn with soft pinks and pastels, and with the neutral grays and beiges. There's a lipstick blended to wear with this polish. It looks light, but it has plenty of depth, and don't let it fool you.

These polishes are fine in quality and their long wearing reputation now has been stepped up another notch, and we were satisfied before. The lipsticks can claim fame in their own right, being creamy and smooth, and cleverly shaped for lipline application. If you like, you can get both in silk drawstring pouches, dyed to match.

So, step this way! Quench your fashion thirst.

FLORENCE MURDOCH.

Read Antoinette Donnelly's article today in the Graphic section. It concerns the matter of leaving youthful styles to youth, advising matrons to keep faith with dignity.

It's a circus time and two new "soft drink" colors have been concocted to quench your fashion thirst. You can imbibe pink lemonade or red punch by wearing a fine nail polish matched with a harmonizing lipstick. They'll probably go to your head.

Crocheted Pillbox Chapeau

By Ellen Bruce.

A crocheted hat with flowers scattered across the crown, centered in a bunch at the front, or topped with a group of fancy feathers immediately will put its wearer at the head of the style class. Crocheted of guimpe, the hat requires only three spools of material. The directions for the flowers indicate boucle, and only one skein is needed to make all the flowers required.

For instructions in crocheting the pillbox hat, No. X-501, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

"Lou dashed out for a can of Drāno! We just poured a little Drāno into the drain and, while we were having a grand time, Drāno did the work. I found Drāno really does get right down to the stoppage and digs right through the grease and muck—cleans the drain thoroughly. BACK AGAIN COMES CHICKEN NOODLE SOUP —MADE BY CAMPBELL'S THE OLD-TIME WAY

IN THE DAYS when the thirteen states were young, and our frontiers not so wide, stout tables bore a glorious dish. This was chicken noodle soup, pride of those patient wives who made it; joy of stalwart men who ate it. And down through the years, to this very day, has come a national liking for chicken noodle soup!

Fast waning, however, is the patient custom of making this soup at home. For Campbell's have brought it back in all its old-time glory. With skillful cooking and the best ingredients, they have matched the most tempting kettleful ever brewed by a Colonial mother. Its rich chicken broth has the same proud glisten; its egg noodles are as abundant and hearty. And through the soup are morsels of chicken—inviting, and tender, and good!

And so today, in millions of homes, an old American scene is being reënacted. The settings and costumes have changed a good bit, but the soup and the smiles are the same. Perhaps because it is so essentially American; perhaps because it is so downright good, Campbell's Chicken Noodle Soup makes more friends every day. Indeed, this is true: It's growing faster in popularity than any other soup in the country! When will it be on your table in delicious, golden platefuls?

Whitney Bourne's luxurious New York apartment is the meeting place of society and the arts. She spends a great deal of time in Hollywood where she follows a career in the movies. (At right) Miss Bourne arriving for première at Carthay Circle Theatre.

QUESTION TO MISS BOURNE: With a busy social life and a demanding career like yours, Miss Bourne, how do you keep your complexion so vibrant and fresh looking?

ANSWER: "It's a matter of regular skin care with Pond's 2 grand Creams. To keep my skin clear and glowing, I cleanse it thoroughly with Pond's Cold Cream night and morning. And, of course, before fresh make-up."

QUESTION TO MISS BOURNE: Aren't the sudden changes from California sun to New York weather hard on your skin?

ANSWER: "No, because my powder base—Pond's Vanishing Cream—also serves as a marvelous protection against sun and wind and weather. I always use it before make-up!"

BUT BOTH GIVE THEIR SKIN THIS SAME THOROUGH CARE

Off to Work. (Upper right) Bette Miller of Kansas City on her way to the Gulf, Mobile and Northern Railroad freight office, where she got a secretarial job after her high-school graduation. (At left) Bette enjoys a dance given by the Kansas City chapter of Railway Business Women.

QUESTION TO MISS MILLER: When a girl works all day, Bette, is it hard for her to find time to take good care of her skin?

ANSWER: "Not if she follows my system. It's quick, thorough—and economical! I just use the 2 Pond's Creams. First Pond's Cold Cream to get my skin really clean—help give it the clear, 'glowy' look that I like. And then I never fail to smooth on Pond's Vanishing Cream for powder foundation—it seems to make make-up so much more attractive."

QUESTION TO MISS MILLER: When you're outdoors for hours at a time, don't you worry about sun and wind roughening your skin?

ANSWER: "No—why should I? Pond's Vanishing Cream smooths away little skin roughnesses in only one application. I usually spread on a light film of Vanishing Cream before I go outdoors, too. Just for protection."

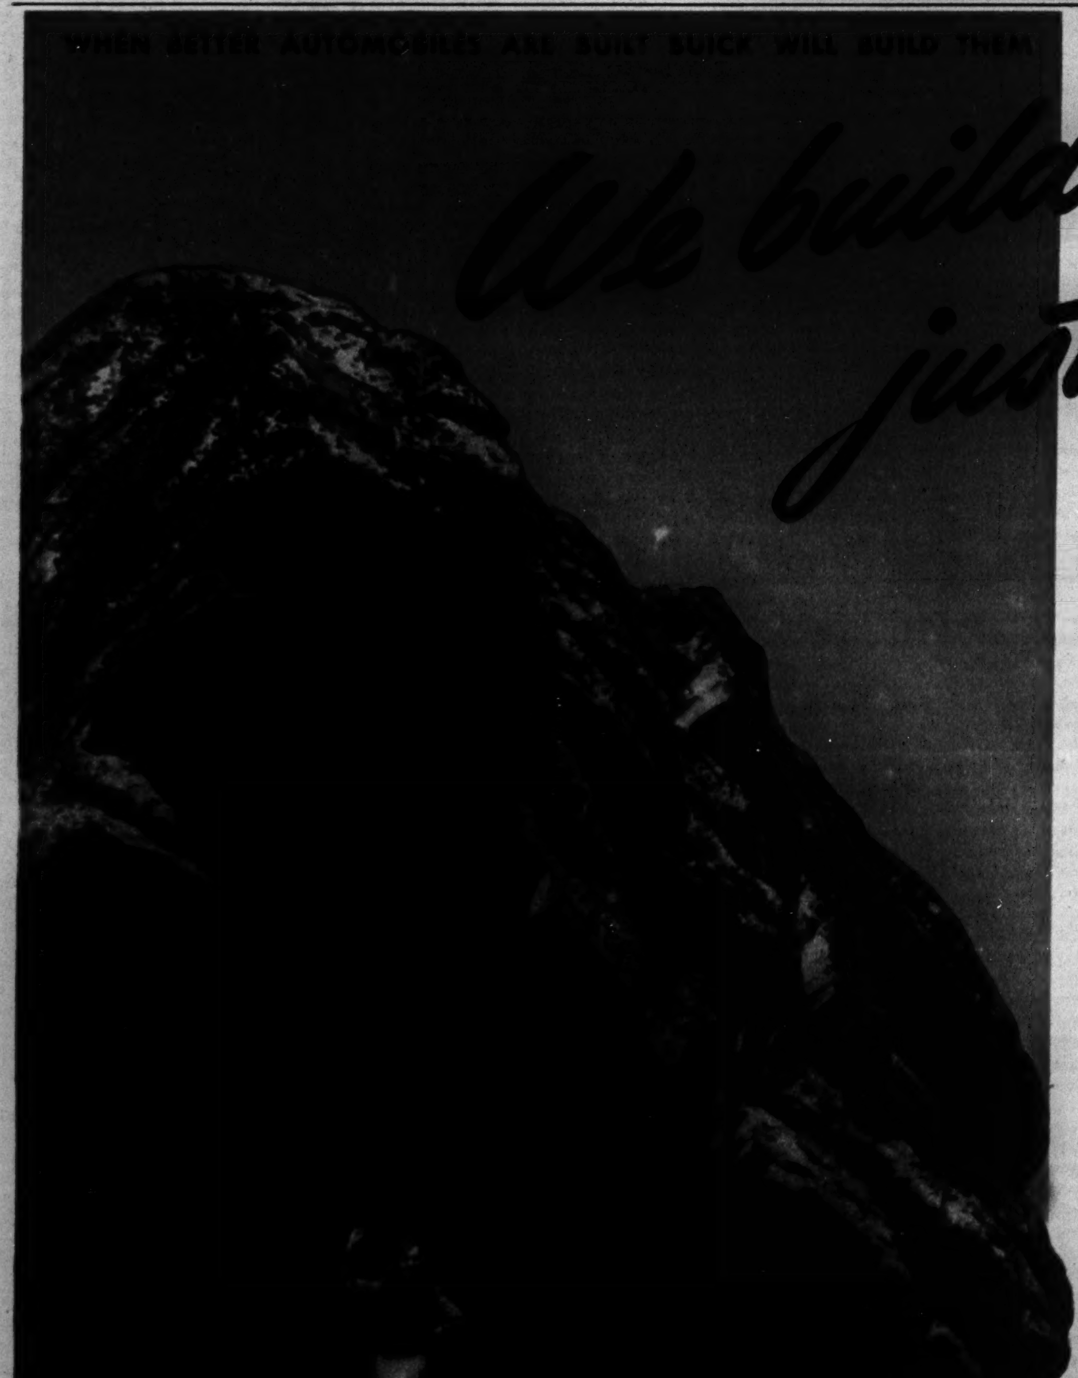
WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT BUICK WILL BUILD THEM



We build this one just for fun!

YOU can tell by the rakish lines and swift look of this Buick Convertible ROADMASTER that it's built for active service.

We make it for people who want to go places, and have fun doing it. So it's long and low and lithe. Its top is a good two inches closer to the road than in sedan models.

THE PRESS-A-BUTTON TOP of the ROADMASTER or SUPER Convertible Coupe goes up or down when you press or pull a handy control. Full-weight top fabric and safety slat irons that won't pinch fingers.

There's more zip and zing in its 141-horsepower Dynaflash engine than you'll ever have pressing need for—and it all smooths out to micropoise-balanced silkiness that is sheer luxury in action.

There's five feet of room in its Foamtex-cushioned front seat and the ride is a thing to wonder at. With BuiCoil Springing silently disposing of every road ripple, you never knew a convertible as comfortable, or one that handles so easily or holds the road so surely.

Smart? Well, you can see for yourself what a figure you'll cut. And with three top materials, nine body colors and a wide variety of upholstery materials to choose from, you can virtually name your own color scheme. You can choose also between a coupe or phaeton—on either ROADMASTER or SUPER chassis.

White sidewall tires are standard. So are wheel shields on the ROADMASTER. Which all means, naturally, that the price isn't one of our lowest.

But if you'll take a guess now at what you think it's worth, then get the actual figures from the nearest Buick dealer—we're ready to wager you'll guess hundreds of dollars too high!

How about it? Is it a bet—just for fun?

THE BUICK ROADMASTER CONVERTIBLE COUPE, with full width rear seat. White sidewall tires and wheel shields at no extra cost.

"You mean The Prudential would pay my wife $75.65 a month for six years?"

PRUDENTIAL AGENT: That's right, Mr. Mullen. You have a Prudential Ordinary policy for $5,000. And, instead of leaving this money to your wife in one cash sum, you can arrange to have The Prudential send her a check for $75.65 each month for 6 years after your death. In this way she will receive $446.80 more than the $5,000 —the extra money being due to interest.

MR. MULLEN: What are the advantages of this arrangement in my case, Mr. Stoerger?

PRUDENTIAL AGENT: If you should die tomorrow, this plan would assure your wife a monthly income for 6 full years and thus help replace the loss of your salary until your son is grown up and earning money. Besides, under this plan, your wife would not have the problem of handling a large sum of money at your death.

PRUDENTIAL AGENT: If your circumstances change, Mr. Mullen, you'll find your Prudential Ordinary policy gives you a choice of many other ways of leaving your insurance money to your beneficiary, and the privilege of changing the arrangement at any time during your life.

MR. MULLEN: Well, I certainly am glad you showed me how The Prudential helps its policyholders make the best possible use of their life insurance money.

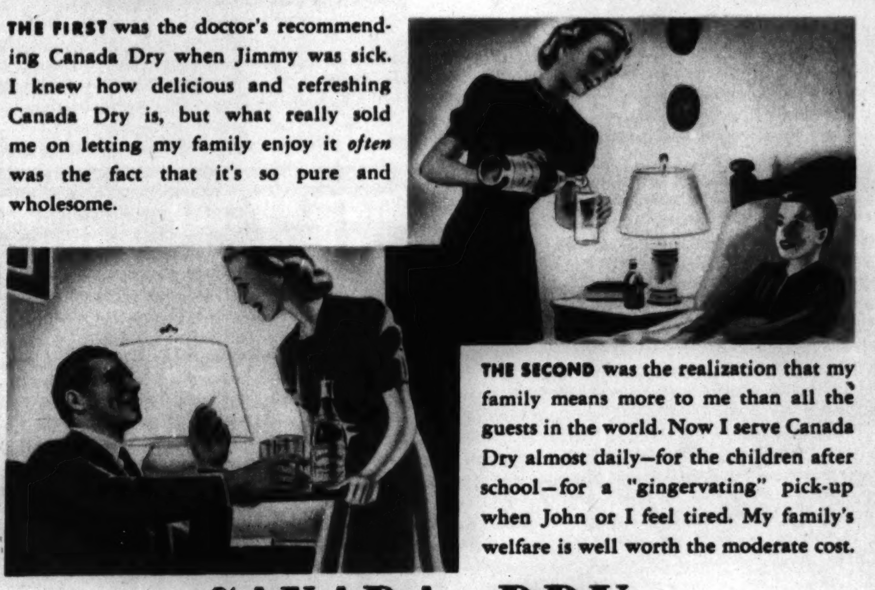
HOW I BECAME A

SOCIAL SUCCESS

...WITH MY OWN FAMILY!

I formerly served ginger ale only when guests dropped in. Canada Dry, of course—for I found out long ago that no other ginger ale tastes as good—or makes a hostess so popular! Then—two things happened that made me a "social success" in my own family!

THE FIRST was the doctor's recommending Canada Dry when Jimmy was sick. I knew how delicious and refreshing Canada Dry is, but what really sold me on letting my family enjoy it often was the fact that it's so pure and wholesome.



THE SECOND was the realization that my family means more to me than all the guests in the world. Now I serve Canada Dry almost daily—for the children after school—for a "gingervating" pick-up when John or I feel tired. My family's welfare is well worth the moderate cost.

Around the Horn to Glory!

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

CAPT. DAVID PORTER of the United States frigate Essex was more than merely chivalrous to Capt. James Hillyar of the British frigate Phoebe. His refusal to attack the British vessel when he was in position to destroy it was not only a noble gesture but, indeed, an act of mercy. But what did it avail him? Nothing. Captain Hillyar slyly waited his opportunity and cracked down on Captain Porter in ruthless fashion. Which tends to show that in war there is no point in being a gentleman.

This was more than 126 years ago. It was on March 28, 1814, that Captain Hillyar's frigate, assisted by the British ship-sloop Cherub, Capt. Thomas Tudor Tucker, hammered the Essex into submission when the last-named craft was trapped at great disadvantage off Valparaiso, Chile. How the American vessel and its adversaries happened to fight a battle in the far Pacific in that early day is a story that reflects considerable credit upon the enterprise of America's infant navy of the War of 1812. The battle was the climax of one of the most remarkable cruises in the history of maritime exploits—the first cruise of an American war vessel in Pacific waters. (Continued on page eight.)

At left: The frigate Essex under full canvas, after a painting by E. L. Bloomster. Below: Route of the Essex's famous cruise that ended with its defeat off Valparaiso. Inset: Capt. David Porter, after a portrait by Charles Willson Peale.

The Murder of Rothstein

The Man Who Financed Gang Rule in New York Is Paid Off

By CRAIG THOMPSON and ALLEN RAYMOND

(Copyright: 1940: By Craig Thompson and Allen Raymond.)

● This is the shocking story of the unholy alliance of crime and politics in New York—the story of a group of gunmen who dominated the controlling political party, whose murders and illicit traffic finally gave them a strangle hold on legitimate businesses until District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey laid them low. These chapters are taken from the book "Gang Rule in New York." Last week the authors described the careers of Jimmy Hines and Legs Diamond.

A SCANDAL of the early 1920s that outraged all the United States was the revelation that one of the greatest professional baseball teams ever assembled had been corrupted by gamblers. The White Sox of Chicago, who were to become known thereafter as the "Black Sox," had been induced for money, in 1919, to throw the World's series to the Cincinnati Reds.

Arnold Rothstein, financier of the New York underworld, was seriously suspected of being the engineering genius behind this bribery of national heroes, but that suspicion never came to proof in a court. Rothstein was the corrupter, nevertheless.

The proof was found in his own stuffed files after his murder in November, 1928. In a file marked "William Kelly" the delving authorities found papers showing that a Boston lawyer of that name had come into possession of four affidavits dealing with the Black Sox affair, and promptly filed a bill with Rothstein for $53,000. The four affidavits were by Abe Attell, Rothstein's agent in the deal; William J. Fallon—"the Great Mouthpiece"; Eugene McGee, Fallon's partner, and a Joseph Sullivan. Lawyer Kelly asked Rothstein for $53,000 for "legal services rendered." Rothstein paid him off, and got an unconditional release from Kelly, who later was indicted in Boston for blackmail in some other enterprise. Rothstein also regained the affidavits which told of his bribing the "Black Sox," and left them in his files. The bribery was only one incident in his long life of crime.

Here was as strange a figure as Broadway, a street of strange men, has ever produced. There seemed, to those who knew him not too well, nothing sinister about him at all. He liked gay places, late hours, horses, cards, dice, women, and conversation, and he had them all. He had a wife and several mistresses, but he was also one of the best customers of several of the city's more lavish call flats. Women seemed to find his flashing black eyes, his pale skin, chin dimple and courtly manners irresistible. He had a reputation as a wit, but the samples of it that have been preserved seem none too sparkling. One flash of it occurred in a dispute with a woman guest at his Hotel Fairfield, in which she shrieked angrily, "You never heard my good name questioned." Rothstein replied with a suave voice and a low bow, "Madam, I never even heard it mentioned."

One of his sweethearts, Inez Norton, whom he remembered in his will, thought of him as a "sentimental and tender lover, a genial and humorous companion."

Lindy's restaurant on Broadway was his favorite hangout, and it was from there that a telephone call summoned him to his death. Frequently he sat all night at Lindy's, drinking cup after cup of coffee and swapping gossip and wisecracks with such figures as Damon Runyon, the reporter; T. A. "Tad" Dorgan, the cartoonist; Jack Lait, Con Conrad, and Harry Hershfield.

"In art," as Miss Norton once remarked, "he leaned toward etchings," and among his possessions was a Whistler. He liked fine furniture and fine rugs much as he liked pretty women and good cards, adjuncts to his conception of good living.

Rothstein was a Broadway personage. People pointed him out to their companions at shows, fights, and the race track. They stared at him and told each other stray bits of shocking gossip about him, unsavory scraps which none of them knew to be factual and yet all of them somehow believed to be true. For no one but Rothstein ever knew the full truth about Rothstein.

Successful men in business and in the theatrical, political, and newspaper fields sought his company because they felt they could profit from his tips on races, fights, ball games, and elections. They knew him for what he was—a sure thing bettor.

Rothstein did not have a slum background. He was the son of a well to do and thoroly respectable wholesale clothing man. He had been, at one time, a salesman for his father's firm, but he gave that up for a career at gambling. Tho, as his fortune piled up, he did gamble prodigiously and for enormous stakes, his gambling came in time to be a sort of front behind which he carried on a multitude of activities, very few of which were legal. This man was a master criminal.

As a fence for stolen goods, particularly jewelry, he made many deals. As the financier of a far flung narcotics trade he became the short term commercial banker for half the underworld of the United States. He was as well known in Chicago, San Francisco, and New Orleans as he was in New York. Politicians, including political lawyers who wanted to be judges, solicited him for support and campaign contributions, and he gave both to some of them. He never gave a thing in his life without a quid pro quo.

As the owner of gambling joints he had no equal in New York. As the banker who helped bring the hoodlum gangsters of pre-prohibition Manhattan into big business stature by helping them start their rum and beer businesses he had practically no important competitor. As a purchaser of insurance on other men's lives he probably held more policies than any other man of his time. And no catalog of this man's accomplishments would be complete without adding that he bought judges and owned hotels and race horses and kept a retinue of skilled shyster lawyers.

The eminence of this unusual man has been both minimized and overemphasized, but his files seized after his death, and also after they had been robbed of some of their more dangerous contents, when it appeared likely that he might die, remained so full of dynamite for a community of 7,000,000 persons that one responsible custodian after another came to the conclusion they were better suppressed. Suppressed the major part of their content has been, tho they still exist.

When Eugene Moran, gunman, perpetrated the Schoelkopf jewel robbery, and turned the jewels over to John Mahan, who operated the New York Diamond Trades association at 1540 Broadway, as a fence, the stolen gems found their way thru Mahan to Rothstein and thru Rothstein to dealers in widely separate parts of the world. That was what actually accounted for the fact that after Mahan was arrested in the Schoelkopf case it took him many months to assemble all the stolen stuff. It was assembled thru Rothstein, but this superfence, tho up to his ears in crime, was never even cited before a magistrate.

In this period also Rothstein was found to be writing to John McGraw, manager of the Giants, who owed him money, demanding a season pass to the Polo grounds for Jimmy Hines and his sons. There were three of these, James Jr., Philip, and Eugene.

The rôle that Rothstein played on the New York scene in that gaudy era is one of the most fantastic affairs in the city's modern history. Rothstein's wife was a former actress whose name before marriage had been Carolyn Green. He held insurance policies totaling $1,500,000 on the lives of three theatrical producers. He backed many shows, among them "Keep Shufflin'!" At the Hotel Fairfield, which he owned, Mrs. James J. Hines, the wife of the district leader, entertained her friends at Rothstein's expense and wrote him warm notes of thanks about it. Most of these facts have never before been told and were taken from Rothstein's files.

It was Rothstein's gambling that gave him a false front in the community. In an era when it was illegal to sell a drink, a gambler seemed to most people just a harmless fellow who made or lost a lot of money at bets. Rothstein, as sinister a rogue as ever lived, moved in a stratum of society of considerable respectability. He was known as a man with infinite resources. The wives of prominent and wealthy men pawned their jewelry with him on occasion. The sons of prominent and powerful families sold him their inheritances at a large discount, too impatient to await the passage of years necessary for their direct collection.

At one time Sailing W. Baruch placed a $10,000 bet with Rothstein on the outcome of the race for governor between Alfred E. Smith and Nathan I. Miller, his Republican opponent.

During that same season, Rothstein advised Harry S. Glemby, wealthy hair goods manufacturer, whom he addressed as "My Dear Harry," that "Val O'Farrell (with whom the gambler had many dealings) is a very loyal friend and incidentally a very influential man." O'Farrell at that time was one of the city's leading private detectives, and cropped up continually in cases with obvious political complications. He was a good man to hire to get back stolen jewelry without publicity, but his fees were often high.

Rothstein also acknowledged with thanks a loan of $20,000 in 1922, from Irving Berlin, the song-writer, who years later married Ellin Mackay. Rothstein paid back shortly after. In the same year he kept in touch by mail with William (Billy) Gibson, who later emerged as the manager of Gene Tunney, the heavyweight champion, but was then complaining that the sports writers of the New York newspapers were ready to start a scandal about the fight business such as they had about the "Black Sox."

Such was the man's range of activity.

Aside from his readiness to buy stolen goods—and he could do this because his bankroll made it possible for him to hold them for long periods until the "heat was off," which meant that the search by the police and agents of the insurance companies had slowed up—Rothstein's major interest was financing the smuggling of narcotics and liquor.

That narcotics business is an intricate and tricky one, but is one with a hierarchy like any other. The little dope peddler who carries a few ounces of heroin around, to be peddled at $2 for a few doses, holds relatively the same position in this vast industry as does the man who sells a few motor cars in some town for the great automobile industry. All salesmen are, of course, of importance to industry, but their importance is a matter of degree. The average auto salesman has neither the money to finance the construction of a factory nor to finance the purchasers of cars. So with the drug peddler. From the humble salesman one goes up the next step to a wholesale distributor, and from him up another step, in the narcotics trade, to the importer.

The importer—the man who actually brings illegal narcotics into the country—usually must have financial backing. That was where Rothstein came in.

One Sidney Stajer for example, was a large scale narcotics dealer who was in and out of the courts of New York a number of times for a number of years. He was most often represented by Frederick Kaplan, a lawyer who also was a master at the game of bridge, and became widely known in bridge circles. Kaplan lived in Rothstein's hotel and Rothstein sent him clients. In 1928, the year in which Rothstein was murdered, he had been paying the premiums to the Union Central Life Insurance company covering the policies on Stajer's life, and Stajer owed him $28,868.51. Rothstein always kept his accounts down to the last penny.

Inez Norton, Rothstein's mistress.

On Jan. 23, 1923, George Uffner, who was also known as George Hoffman, took out two insurance policies in the Union Central Insurance company. One was for $3,000 and the other for $25,000. Rothstein held both.

Now there are very few ways by which a man who lends money to criminals to finance their business can indemnify himself against loss. Such deals are not suited for writing on paper, because the paper, if it falls into the wrong hands, can be made very damning evidence. Nor does the man who wants money for an unlawful undertaking generally have the collateral that would get him a loan at a bank. Nor is there any certainty, the calling of crime being what it is, that sudden death will not make the verbal pledge of the borrower worthless. So life insurance becomes the very best security. It binds the criminal because if he gets killed at work his debt will still be paid off. If he decides not to pay, he puts a collectible price on his own head. Rothstein had gunmen on his pay roll, Legs Diamond for one, as well as drug peddlers. Criminals backed by Rothstein usually paid. Some others got killed. Either way, Rothstein collected.

The story of Rothstein, thus, is a story of money, and of financing the big gangsters in their various businesses. After all, these gangsters went into crime to make money, and Arnold Rothstein, essentially a banker and an aid to other bankers, was in business for the same reason. All went for the money with their wits and their guns, and those politicians who were similarly after the money were their natural allies. They too were working with wits and guns. Some of the district politicians ran gambling clubs. So did Rothstein, and he ran them in partnership with those politicians who had influence enough to help protect him against police and courts. That has been part of the pattern of gangster rule in New York.

Arnold Rothstein was shot on Nov. 4, 1928, at the Park Central hotel, and died two days later at the Polyclinic hospital. The widely accepted version of his death was that George McManus, a gambler and an intimate friend of Jimmy Hines, had been his murderer.

The murder, actually, is subject to many interpretations, and the one that makes the least sense is that McManus did it because Rothstein had welshed on some gambling debts—which was what the police said at the time. Rothstein, dead, was certainly never as likely to pay up as he was alive, and McManus was as much aware of that as any one else.

When the police, including several very knowing detectives, arrived on the scene and learned the identity of the victim they fell all over themselves backing away from whatever evidence there might have been to indicate the slayer. Not only was Rothstein a very powerful man, but he had many dealings with many other very powerful men. Whatever a detective might have found out about the murder was likely to be the wrong thing for him to know. The officers of the law were at the mercy of persons so much more powerful than they were themselves, and so ready and able to see that objectionable policemen were demoted and transferred and, perhaps, even fired from their jobs, if they did the wrong thing, that these did a resourceful job of bungling. The police in 1928 were at the mercy of big shot criminals, as the trial of Hines revealed in 1939. The gangs were ruling New York.

It was while Rothstein was taking two days to die in the hospital that his files were rifled. The things that were left were just as dangerous for many persons as the things that were taken; which made it a pretty selective rifling job. Among the things left, for example, were bills that Maurice Cantor, a lawmaker popularly known for some years as "Hines' Assemblyman," had on two occasions at least, submitted to Rothstein. These were bills for legal services rendered to men charged with crime.

Cantor, as Rothstein's attorney, was very busy while Rothstein was dying, getting him in shape for that final event. The work involved the preparation of a will. Cantor had drawn one on March 1, 1928, but now some one decided there should be another one. Only a short few hours before Rothstein died, Cantor entered the hospital with the prepared testament. The scene has been described by Elizabeth F. Love and Margaret E. Goerdel, who were nurses and signed the will that Cantor took into court as Rothstein's last one.

Miss Love's description follows:

"Cantor said, 'Arnold, this is your will—you know—your will.'

"Rothstein's eyes were closed at this time and after Cantor explained over and over again, Rothstein said in a weak voice, 'Will.'

"Then Cantor said, 'This is your will, Arnold. I made it this morning, just as you told me to.'

"Rothstein's hand remained stationary with the pen in his hand on the paper. He never moved his hand. His hand remained on the bed. Cantor took hold of the hand and made the marks on the paper. Rothstein was very sleepy. He did not say anything at all. He was just languid. Cantor then took the pen away from Rothstein and Rothstein's hand remained on the bed."

Rothstein died on election day, 1928. It was not until two days later, when the election of

Gems of American Eloquence

● American eloquence has played an important part in the history of our country. From a long list of famous speeches The Tribune is selecting gems of American eloquence which are being presented in this, the Graphic Section, every Sunday. The content of these speeches is important both historically and politically. Persons learning to speak in public will find in them helpful lessons. Speakers and writers can learn a great deal from studying their style. This is the forty-seventh of the series.

PROMINENT among those who opposed the United States constitution in the Philadelphia convention of 1787 was John Lansing (1754-1829), New York jurist. Lansing served his state long and brilliantly; in 1798 he was chosen chief justice of the Supreme court of New York; in 1801 he became state chancellor. In the New York ratifying convention in 1788 Lansing renewed his battle against the constitution and also against one of its champions, Alexander Hamilton. The following passages are from his answer to Hamilton:

"An honorable gentleman from New York [Hamilton] has remarked that the idea of danger to state governments can only originate in a disordered fancy; he stated that they were necessary components of the system, and informed us how the President and senators were to be elected; his conclusion is that the liberties of the people cannot be endangered . . .

"I believe the gentleman cannot point out an instance of the rights of a people long remaining inviolate. The history of Europe has afforded remarkable examples of the loss of liberty by the usurpations of rulers.

"In the early days of the government of the United Netherlands, the magistrates were elected by the people; but now they have become hereditary. The Venetians are, at this day, governed by an aristocracy. The senators, once the representatives of the people, were enabled, by gradual encroachments, at last to declare themselves perpetual. The office has since become hereditary, and the government entirely despotic.

"The gentleman has adduced one historical example to prove that the members of a government, in the contests with the head, generally prevail. He observed that in the struggles between the federal sovereigns of Europe and their barons the latter were usually victorious.

"If this were true, I believe the operations of such a system as the feudal will not warrant the general inference he draws.

"The feudal barons were obliged to assist the monarch in his wars with their persons and those of their vassals. This, in the early periods, was the sovereign's sole dependence. Not possessed of pecuniary revenues, or a standing military force, he was, whenever the barons withdrew their aid, or revolted against his authority, reduced to a very feeble situation.

"While he possessed not the means of carrying on his wars, independently of his nobles, his power was insignificant, and he was unsuccessful. But, sir, the moment he gained command of revenues and an army, as soon as he obtained the sword and the purse, the current of success was turned, and his superiority over his barons was regularly augmented, and at last established. . . .

"Sir, wherever the revenues and the military force are, there will rest the power; the members or the head will prevail, as one or the other possesses these advantages. . . .

"Sir, if you do not give the state governments a power to protect themselves, if you leave them no other check upon congress than the power of appointing senators, they will certainly be overcome, like the barons of whom this gentleman has spoken."

Lansing used plain language to make his straightforward, hard-hitting rebuttal to Mr. Hamilton's speech. It is an excellent job of refuting analogical reasoning.

Lansing struck at Hamilton's analogy, which was that in feudal times the barons retained their power over their sovereigns, by showing first that the example was poorly chosen because the sovereigns did usurp power in those times. He also cited cases from history of the usurpation of power by those who held the revenues and controled the army. This led him to his conclusion that unless the states were given the power to protect themselves they, too, would be overcome. The application of this speech to our modern times is apparent.—Comment by Stanley T. Donner of the school of speech, Northwestern university.

Racket Buster's Wife

Mrs. Thomas E. Dewey Lets Husband Do Campaigning

● This is the second of a series of biographical sketches of the wives of the candidates for President. The first was about Mrs. Robert A. Taft.

By WILLIAM FULTON

PEOPLE who turn out these days to listen to Thomas E. Dewey campaigning for the Republican presidential nomination will oftentimes see on the platform a dark-eyed young woman, of slight build and unusually pretty. Her head will be cocked to one side in an attitude of complete absorption, her eyes fixed and sparkling on the young district attorney as he hammers his points home, her whole face lighted and glowing with pride.

Some time during the program she will be escorted to the front of the platform. Then the audience learns, if it hasn't known already, that this is Mrs. Thomas E. Dewey. Smilingly she will acknowledge the applause. But she will not say a word. Mrs. Dewey lets her husband do the talking in public and thinks he does a good job of it.

"I am not the speaker of the house," she tells interviewers. "I have never made a public speech, and I never intend to make one."

This is simply a decision to be herself. It does not necessarily mean she couldn't speak if she wanted to, because Mrs. Dewey is a lively conversationalist over the teacups in the parlor or over the soup plates at dinner. Moreover, her voice—she is a former singer—is most pleasing to the ear.

She will make appearances at banquets and rallies when there is public interest in what the candidate's wife looks like. She will accompany her husband on campaign trips when they do not carry her away from her two growing boys for too long periods of time.

Mrs. Dewey helps in other ways. She reads newspapers and magazines, pores over hefty books on economics and social problems, calling to her husband's attention any results of her research which appear to be interesting or instructive. In the evening Dewey will read to her the rough draft of some forthcoming speech to get her reaction and intuitive wifely advice. Having a smooth-running home also helps.

To family friends who know her best there is really no difference between the Frances Hutt Dewey of yesterday and the wife of today of a leading candidate for President of the United States. The fact that her husband is aspiring to the highest office in the land hasn't altered Frances Dewey's outlook on life, her management of home and children, her sense of humor. She just takes it all in her stride.

"We manage to have a fairly normal existence in spite of the fact my husband is the busiest man I've ever known," she said recently when asked about the effect of the campaign on the home.

How does she do it?

Perhaps the most important reason is that Mrs. Dewey is quite willing to make sacrifices and adjustments as her husband goes forging along on his career. That was the way she felt about marriage after they had met each other thru a mutual love of music and were married 11 years ago. She had that feeling about it in his early practice of law when they lived in a two-room kitchenette. That was her view when Dewey was achieving national fame as a special rackets prosecutor, and is the same today when he holds the post of district attorney of New York county. Without doubt it would be that way in the White House.

"My interest is in what he is doing, and always has been," says Mrs. Dewey.

The Deweys make their home in New York City in an apartment overlooking Central park. Furniture consists of about half and half antiques and reproductions. A grand piano in the living room stands out as the pièce de résistance. But the piano is there more for use than decoration, because Tom Dewey and his wife still like to sing on occasion. And the two boys, Thomas Edmund Jr., 7 years old, and John Martin, 4, are starting to pick out tunes.

These sons of the famous racket buster are at the moment unconcerned about taking up the law. In fact, according to their mother, they are currently ambitious to become farmers.

MRS. THOMAS E. DEWEY (Acme photo.)

This is the effect of the old colonial farmhouse at Pawling, N. Y., which Dewey recently acquired and is remodeling. The boys much prefer the cows and chickens to Central park.

Mrs. Dewey is conscientious about the bringing up of these two boys and does not turn them over to servants. When it was proposed she accompany Dewey on his trip thru the New England states she agreed only when it was certain that Mrs. George Dewey, Dewey's widowed mother, would be free to come to New York and be with the children during their mother's absence.

She runs the home. Dewey may be the budget balancer at the district attorney's office, but his wife manages all the household finances. She casts a somewhat reluctant eye after every nickel or dime that goes out, a habit acquired in the two-room kitchenette.

"I pay all the bills and keep the budget balanced," says Mrs. Dewey, "and I have since we were married."

Every detail of home management is attended to by Mrs. Dewey. She orders the meals, does her own marketing, and supervises work in the apartment. Her linen and clothes closets are entirely her responsibility. She checks outgoing and incoming laundry. For the present at any rate Mrs. Dewey is her own secretary, partly because she subscribes to the old-fashioned idea that letters of a personal nature should be written in longhand.

Mrs. Dewey was born Feb. 7, 1903, in Sherman, Tex. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orla Thomas Hutt, named her Frances Eileen. Mr. Hutt as a boy was a printer on the Sherman Daily Democrat and later became a railroad engineer with the Frisco line. At the age of 64 years he is still active.

Her mother's brother, William Davis, was mayor of Fort Worth for 15 years. This is about all of Mrs. Dewey's political heritage, altho thruout her schooling she was an active participant in student government, interested in civics, current events, and "saving the world."

Lee Davis, Mrs. Dewey's mother, grew up in Sherman and studied to be a pianist. It was from her the daughter acquired her interest in antiques and love of all things musical. Frances Hutt began studying the C scale when other girls were playing with dolls. It wasn't long before she was playing and singing for private musicals or entertainments at the Travis Street Methodist church of Sherman.

At the same time the girl swam, ran races, high-jumped, and played forward on a girls' basketball team. She was the envy of her neighborhood girl friends at the age of 9 because she was the only girl allowed to play on the boys' baseball team of which her elder brother, now Dr. Harold Davis Hutt of Holley, Mich., was a member.

Even today Mrs. Dewey prefers a baseball game to any other athletic exhibition.

At the age of 11 Frances moved with her parents to Sapulpa, Okla. There she studied singing under Bess McLennan Hughes, a former pupil of Percy Rector Stephens, well known eastern voice teacher. Soon her clear mezzo-soprano voice was heard from the choir loft of the Sapulpa Methodist Episcopal Church South. She was often the soloist and from time to time played the pipe organ in the church.

Singing was emerging as her principal interest from artistic impulses which had been pulling her in several directions. Frances tried her hand at painting and verse writing. None of her efforts along these lines is extant, which she regards as fortunate for herself as well as the public. In her senior year at high school she took a leading part in the class play. She was graduated from high school in 1920 and was valedictorian.

About this time Frances won a medal for singing at the annual high schools meet at the University of Oklahoma. She could not accept it because she was planning to study music in New York.

Mrs. Hughes, her singing teacher, brought Frances to New York in 1922 and presented her to Percy Rector Stephens. He liked her voice and took her on as a pupil. Later she also became his secretary and general studio manager. To stay on in New York and augment her slender funds Frances Hutt sang in church choirs in the city and at Plainfield, N. J.

During this period she lived at the Studio club, a branch of the Y. W. C. A. maintained as a residence house for art students.

It was in the summer of 1923 that Frances Hutt first set eyes on Tom Dewey. The meeting was in Chicago, where Stephens was giving courses at Chicago Musical college. Frances was there to do his secretarial work. Tom Dewey's rich baritone had just won him first prize in the Michigan state singing contest and third prize in national competition. He was awarded a Stephens scholarship.

That summer Dewey clerked in the law offices of his mother's cousin, Leonard Reid, a well known Chicago attorney. The future racket buster was preparing for Columbia university in New York, where he planned to go that fall to study law.

Dewey went to law school and continued singing for one year, after which he abandoned voice training and devoted all his time to the law. Meanwhile Frances Hutt was studying languages, harmony, composition, and oratorio work, futhering her ambition for a concert career.

By 1925 Frances Hutt was going places on the stage. Under the stage name of Eileen Hoyt she sang in the first John Murray Anderson road company traveling around the Paramount-Publix circuit of moving picture theaters. This included appearances on New York's Broadway and Chicago's Randolph street. She sang in vocal adaptations of a nocturne or two and a waltz from Chopin's piano works. This lasted for about a year. She also appeared for a few months as the prima donna with George White's "Scandals." Somehow she managed to sandwich in several appearances with a Brahms quartet.

Finally in the summer of 1938 Dewey persuaded the girl he had courted for five years to give up her career and become Mrs. Dewey. They were married June 16, 1928. Her husband was just starting practice in the big city, where young lawyers come a dime a dozen, and their income was modest. The first year Mrs. Dewey did all her own housework and all the cooking. She kept a daily account of the household spending.

When they had more leisure time of evenings, and could afford it, the Deweys went to the theater and opera. But in 1935, when his law practice was booming, Dewey was called upon to break up the rings of racketeers preying on New York City. He accepted and since then has been a public figure. Evenings at the theater or opera are not so frequent for the Deweys these days.

One of the first impressions Frances Hutt had of the young singer and law neophyte she met in Chicago was that his clothing was too somber and drab. During the years she has sought to correct this, as most wives would, but his suits are still far from being on the gay side, in her opinion.

Meanwhile, for herself, Mrs. Dewey is practicing the reverse in the matter of wardrobe. Her clothes are all on the conservative side. She likes and wears tailored suits and dresses with fall colors like greens and browns predominating. In hats she is likewise inclined to the conservative. From a man's point of view there is a breath of sanity about her hats, altho they still are smart and fashionable. She wears little jewelry.

Her hair-do is in keeping with the rest of her appearance. There is nothing of glamor or "oomph" in her coiffure. The light chestnut hair, wavy and fine in texture, is parted simply in the middle of the head.

As the wife of an energetic young man Mrs. Dewey has cooked in some odd places. He likes to sail, and her worst test was aboard a small yawl which had sprung a leak in a blow off the eastern tip of Long Island several summers ago. She spent three tempestuous days in the galley cooking a sort of vegetable soup from the available cans.

Mrs. Dewey says her husband likes apples cooked in any style. "I think I can fry apples better than any woman in the world," she says with a smile but with unmistakable pride. Mr. Dewey thinks so, too.

OLD TIME SUGAR COOKIES—MADE THE TASTY NEW SPRY WAY

OLD-TIME SUGAR COOKIES

½ cup Spry	2 eggs, beaten
½ teaspoon salt	2 tablespoons milk
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind	2 cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon nutmeg	1 teaspoon baking powder
1 cup sugar	½ teaspoon soda

Blend Spry, salt, lemon rind and nutmeg. Add sugar gradually and cream well. (So quick and easy with triple-creamed Spry.) Add eggs and milk and mix well.

Sift flour with baking powder and soda. Add to creamed mixture, blending well. Drop from teaspoon on Spry-greased baking sheets. Let stand a few minutes, then flatten cookies by stamping with a glass covered with a damp cloth. Sprinkle some cookies with sugar, others with coconut or chopped nuts. Decorate some with nut halves or halved maraschino cherries.

Bake in moderate oven (375° F.) 10 minutes. Makes 3½ dozen cookies, so crisp, tender and full of flavor! Spry gives wonderful cakes, too, and such flaky pastry and crispy fried foods.

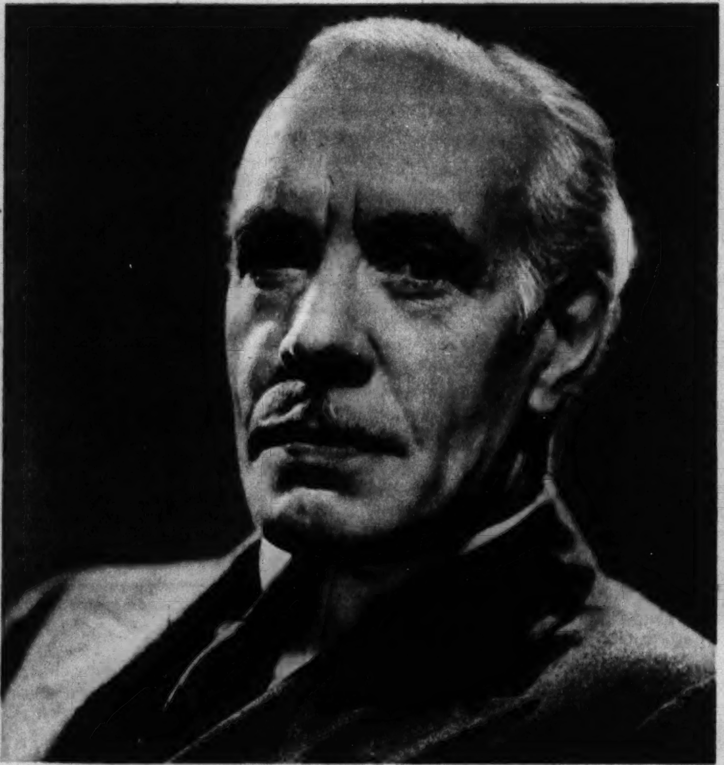
Judge Hardy Takes a Bow!

Lewis Stone Reviews a Career

By ED SULLIVAN

Hollywood

THEY WOULD have you believe that a rolling stone gathers no moss, but Lewis Stone is one stone who has rolled along for 40 years collecting prestige and the appreciation of audiences who are assured that he never will let them down. No doubt at all that the veteran has contributed mightily to the credibility and success of the "Judge Hardy" series of flickers which have been built around the adventures of ebullient Mickey Rooney, just as there is no possible doubt that Rooney has learned a lot about the more subdued phase of acting from Stone.



(Clarence Bull photo.)
Lewis Stone, the Judge Hardy of today.

Stone drifted into the theater because his aunts and uncles were professional singers with the Bostonians, a company of light opera performers. So the youngster had no parental objections to overcome when he went into vaudeville, graduated to stock companies, and then finally arrived on Broadway in 1900 with a bit part in "Sidetracked." He was playing on Broadway in "Sidetracked" when "Florodora" opened at the Casino and knocked New York off its feet with the sextet. Then Clyde Fitch shocked them plenty with "Sapho," played by Olga Nethersole. Song hits of the day were "When You Were Sweet Sixteen," "She Made Them Goo-goo Eyes," and Victor Herbert's first efforts. Later on came "Pony Boy," "Under the Bamboo Tree," "Hiawatha," and "Anona," and jazz began to develop with "Oceana Roll."

Between theater engagements Stone began to dabble in pictures. He was with the first camera that ever went into the Hopi country to film the snake dance.

Stone has had a number of adventures like that. On his tour of Alaska in 1918 he met an old prospector who showed him rich samples of thorium, then used extensively for Welsbach lamp burners. The miner needed financing, and Stone arranged it, being given half the claim. But the prospector wouldn't tell where the claim was until he'd staked it out. He was frozen to death en route to do his staking. So Stone owns a half interest in a mine that was never found. When he returned to Alaska on his own yacht, the Serena, some seven years ago he had another chance at a half interest that he passed up. He found a former Hollywood makeup man, with a beauty parlor on a scow, traveling from island to island along the coast dispensing permanents to squaws at $15 each. The makeup man wanted Stone to take a half interest in the business so they could operate several more scows, but Stone backed out.

Bayard Veiller, former Seattle newspaper man, was getting his start as a playwright with "Within the Law." Vaudeville was starring Eva Tanguay, Vesta Victoria, Nat Wills, Harry Houdini, Joe Jackson, San Francisco-born Gertrude Hoffman, Bert Williams, Annette Kellerman, and Eddie Leonard. Fred Astaire and Helen Hayes were being mentioned among promising young folk, and George Cohan was producing "Officer 666."

Stone as he appeared on stage in 1914.

As to important affairs of the day, Stone remembers the Boxer rebellion of 1900, and also reading that the total automobile production of the country was 4,100. He remembers the excitement when Marconi's first wireless signal crossed the Atlantic in 1901, the first Hague court in 1902, the Wright brothers' first flight at Kitty Hawk in 1903, the Iroquois theater fire; New York's first subway, opened in 1904; the Baltimore fire, and the Russo-Japanese war.

He was playing in "Bunny" when Pershing started chasing Pancho Villa in Mexico and the law began hunting Tom Mooney in San Francisco. When America entered the World war he was playing in "The Brat." In 1919 the peace conference was on, and he started in pictures in "Honor's Altar" with Bessie Barriscale in Los Angeles, after having played with her in stock at the Morosco in Los Angeles.

"There used to be a group of actors called coast defenders in those days," he relates. "They went from one theater to another up and down the Pacific coast—San Diego, Los Angeles, San José, Oakland, San Francisco, Portland, and Seattle. None of them ever wanted to go east. Landers Stevens and George Cooper used to play leads. Their son, George Stevens, is an important picture director today. Frank Bacon played in the coast stock companies and always begged to be allowed to produce a play of his, 'Lightnin' Bill Jones.' When an actor in 'The Fortune Hunter' became ill on the coast Bacon was induced to go east with it, and took his play along. John Golden changed the title to 'Lightnin',' and Bacon played it. What happened then is history."

Stone is married, father of two daughters, as straight-backed as in the days when he served in the American army in Cuba; trains by riding, cavalry style; is organizer of a militia cavalry unit in southern California. He is also a talented trap drummer and plays with an orchestra composed of Freddie Fralick, his manager, and a couple of doctors and their wives in the San Fernando valley. They play in the privacy of their own parties, with the exception of a local church benefit once in a while.

When he started his Broadway career in "Sidetracked" in New York his uncle and aunts of the memorable Bostonians assured him that he'd never get anywhere on the stage unless he bought himself a red vest.

But he's never had one on in his life.

Gang Rule in New York

Herbert Hoover had ceased to make the newspapers bulge, that they had the space to take up the Rothstein case in the way they would have liked from the start. The town began to hum. The office of District Attorney Banton and the police made scurrying motions and issued many statements. The mayor, James J. Walker, shouted loudly for action and then again for more action. Columns were filled with biographies of the great gambler, columns which made him a cheat, a small fry gambler, a big fry gambler, a no account who didn't amount to much, and a real power whose influence extended everywhere.

The police picked up George Uffner, Lucky Luciano, and Thomas Walsh together, and, charging them with a robbery—a phony charge that did not stick—they questioned them about the Rothstein killing. All three were turned loose.

On Nov. 21, Banton, the Tammany district attorney, announced that Rothstein's files had been found thru the assistance of Nathan Burkan, a lawyer and a Tammany leader too, but five days before that, federal agents, acting under Assistant United States Attorneys John M. Blake and Alvin McK. Sylvester, had begun to open Rothstein's safe boxes with startling results.

On Nov. 22, after announcing that the Rothstein records showed he had rented gangsters to the communists in garment industry disputes, Banton suddenly countermanded the order for a search of the Rothstein files and said he had no interest in them. Thereupon the United States attorney's office promptly demanded them.

William J. Fallon, "the Great Mouthpiece."

On Nov. 27 McManus gave himself up, and on Dec. 4 was indicted for first degree murder.

On Dec. 7 the federal agents, acting on information from the files which Banton said he did not want, seized $2,000,000 worth of drugs and arrested a man named Joseph Unger with several others, in connection with it.

On Dec. 18 a ton of narcotics was seized on a Jersey City pier by federal agents who were still chasing down the leads they found in Rothstein's papers, in which Tammany's district attorney had no interest, and several months later the federal men arrested Little Itch Halper and three others for narcotic dealings as a result of those same papers. All four were represented by Joseph Shalleck, Hines' man Friday, who the previous November had been a grand jury witness in the murder case, testifying that he had lent McManus $20,000 and taken for security 20 checks for $1,000 each, dated ahead over as many months.

On March 7, 1929, Thomas Walsh, he who had been arrested with Uffner and Luciano, was killed in the Miami Biltmore hotel, a swank place to be killed in, and four days later Stajer, Abe Stein, and another man were indicted for narcotics dealing by a federal grand jury.

On March 27, Mr. Justice A. J. Levy of the Supreme court released McManus in $50,000 bail, altho the crime charged against him was first degree murder and bail of any amount in such a case is contrary to custom.

On April 15, the deathbed will of Rothstein was declared void and the earlier one probated. Under the deathbed will, Lawyer Cantor, who drew that document, would have received a one-third control of the estate. As it was, he received about $90,000. Rothstein's mistress, Inez Norton, whom Cantor had served in a divorce case, received about half as much.

By degrees the furor over the Rothstein case died down, but its memory lingered on. The ghost of the master mind of crime walked the town sporadically, as one item after another from his seized or rifled files was disclosed in part to public view. Those files were, for example, instrumental in bringing about the downfall of one city magistrate, Albert H. Vitale. The case itself caused the dismissal of Police Commissioner Joseph Warren by Walker, and the appointment in his place of Grover A. Whalen.

Long after, McManus was brought to trial and a directed verdict of acquittal was entered, because the evidence against him was so weak. Of course it was weak. Years later Jimmy Hines confided to J. Richard Davis, Dutch Schultz's mouthpiece, that he had done everything in his power to save McManus. He undoubtedly had.

THE TRUTH ABOUT CORNS

Their cause and how to get rid of them

A corn is a mass of dead cells packed into a hard plug (A) whose base presses on sensitive nerves (B)—causes intense pain.

Felt pad (C) relieves pain by removing pressure. Special medication (D) acts on corn, gently loosens it so it can be lifted out.

● Science has long known the cause of corns and clinical tests have proved that corns can be effectively removed the Blue-Jay way. Corns are caused by pressure and friction, become a hard mass as shown at left. Home paring only gives temporary relief—means risk of infection. But it's easy to remove corns the Blue-Jay way. Just fit a Blue-Jay pad over the corn. It acts quickly and surely as shown in diagram. You get wonderful relief. Stubborn corns may require a second application. Then simply by avoiding the pressure and friction which caused your corns you can prevent their return. Get Blue-Jay Corn Plasters today—only 25¢ for 6.

Because now for the first time you can do it with a remarkable new kind of enamel just perfected by the makers of Johnson's Wax!

It's called Wax-O-Namel—and it comes in the loveliest selection of colors a famous interior decorator could devise. Some are gloriously vivid—some are dainty pastels—but all of them are fresh and exciting.

And how these colors glow! Johnson's Wax-O-Namel contains wax—it dries with the soft, mellow sheen that only wax can give.

Even if you've never painted anything before, you'll discover this new kind of enamel is wonderfully easy to use. It flows smoothly off your brush—dries quickly—gives you a lovelier, lustrous finish you'll be proud of for years.

Go shopping for Johnson's Wax-O-Namel tomorrow—and be original in planning your color schemes.

Check the dealer listing at left and select the dealer you want to buy from.

COPR. 1940, S. C. JOHNSON & SON, INC.

A Lovelier, Smoother Finish—Slide your fingers over a Wax-O-Nameled surface and you'll find it smooth as a china plate. That's because this new kind of enamel contains wax. And wax also gives the beautiful new Wax-O-Namel colors a mellow, rich polish!

It's Hard to Scratch or Mar—Tests show that Wax-O-Namel stays new-looking far longer than ordinary enamels. It's remarkably scratch-resistant—doesn't scar or mar easily because of the extra protection wax gives to any surface.

Cleaning is Oh, So Easy! Dust doesn't cling to a Wax-O-Nameled surface because it is so smooth. Fingerprints and dirt wipe off quickly with a moist cloth. Even after repeated washings, Wax-O-Namel loses neither its colorful beauty nor its lovely satiny sheen.

TWO-REEF BREEZE

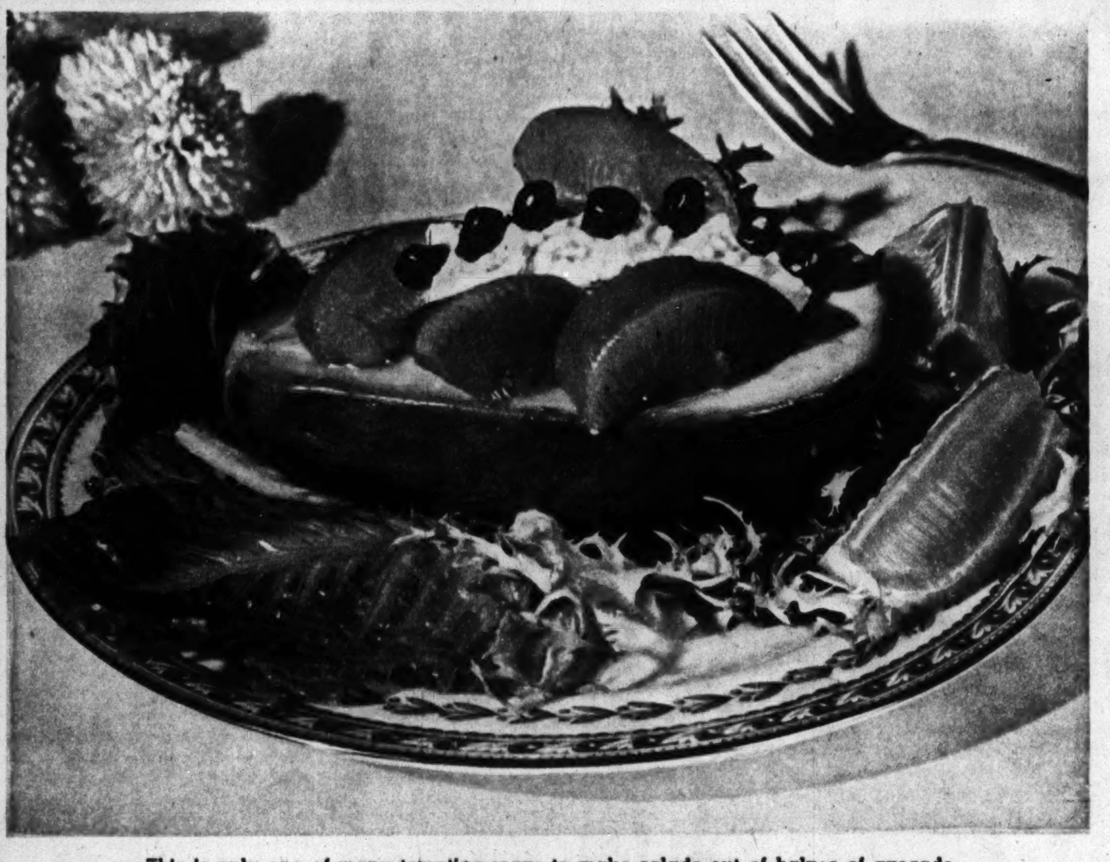
The Adaptable Avocado

By MARY MEADE

I CAN'T THINK of a more appetizing salad than a half avocado served with lemon juice or French dressing, or stuffed with fruit and served with cream cheese dressing.

Served unpeeled, "on the half-shell," avocados require a spoon, whether served as a salad or not. If they are peeled the salad fork is correct.

To make the salad in the picture, cut avocados in two and remove skins and seeds. Sprinkle inside and out with lemon juice and salt. The lemon juice prevents discoloration and also adds that sharpness of flavor so pleasant with the buttery richness of this fruit. Place each avocado half on a plate of salad greens and fill with slices of canned peach or chunks of pineapple. Serve with cheese dressing and garnish the dressing with pomegranate seeds in season or with chopped maraschino cherries, fresh blueberries, or sliced strawberries.



This is only one of many tempting ways to make salads out of halves of avocado.

CHEESE DRESSING FOR AVOCADO SALAD

1 3-oz. package cream cheese
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
¼ teaspoon garlic salt

Cream the ingredients together until well blended. Serve wedges or slices of lemon with the salad and dressing.

Here are several other suggestions for avocado salads, using the half fruit:

1. Fill with shrimp salad or with whole shrimp and serve a sharp dressing separately. This makes a main dish salad, of course.

2. Fill with thin slices of tomato and pineapple and add a lemon French dressing.

3. Fill with salmon, tuna, or chicken salad made with celery and chopped olives and a Thousand Island dressing.

4. Serve alone, with French dressing poured into the hollow left by the seed.

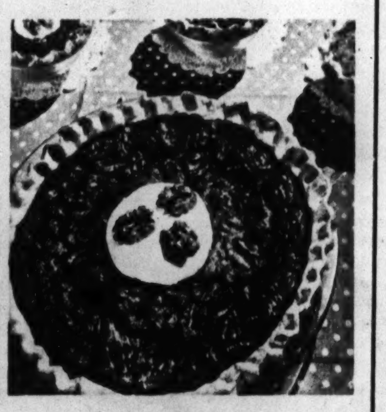
In the other picture we have a first cousin to the old-fashioned, rich pecan pie—an English walnut pie. Serve with unsweetened whipped cream over the top, for the pie itself is sweet enough.

WALNUT PIE

1 nine-inch pie shell (unbaked)
¼ cup butter
⅔ cup firmly packed brown sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
¾ cup maple sirup or corn sirup
3 eggs, beaten until light
1 cup broken walnut meats
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream butter, brown sugar, and salt and stir in other ingredients. Turn into pastry-lined pie plate. Bake for 10 minutes at 450 degrees and turn down heat to moderate, 350 degrees. Bake 30 to 35 minutes longer, or until a silver knife inserted comes out clean. Cool and top with unsweetened whipped cream. Garnish with walnut halves.

Serve such a pie as this only after a light meal, preferably one consisting mostly of salads and vegetables.



A cousin to the old-fashioned pecan pie, walnut pie is quite as rich and sweet.

SPICY BANANA CAKE

½ cup Crisco
1⅓ cups sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
2½ cups cake flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
⅛ teaspoon cloves
¼ cup milk
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1¼ cups mashed ripe bananas (3 to 4 bananas)

Blend Crisco, sugar, salt and eggs. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk, lemon juice and bananas. (To mash bananas, beat with an egg beater till creamy.) Use two "Criscoed" square or round 8-in. pans; bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 40 minutes.

DOUBLE-BOILER ICING: Cook over boiling water—1½ cups sugar, ¼ cup water, 2 egg whites and 1 teaspoon lemon juice; beat constantly until frosting holds its shape. Remove from heat; beat until stiff. Use between layers and over top. Decorate with halveu banana slices dipped in lemon juice to prevent discoloring.

The Cruise of the Essex

The Essex was the smallest frigate of our navy at that time. It was a vessel of only 860 tons. Altho rated as a 32-gun craft, it was armed originally with 42 pieces of ordnance—26 long 12-pounders mounted on the main deck and 16 24-pound carronades on the spar deck. When it fought its engagement with the Phoebe and Cherub it was armed with 46 guns—6 long 12-pounders and 40 32-pound carronades.

The vessel was built at Salem, Mass., at a cost of $136,362. Completed in 1799, it was presented to the government for the purpose of protecting United States commerce on the seas and "to chastise French insolence and piracy." It will be recalled that at that time the United States was engaged in a pseudo-war with France. Restricted to actions at sea, this war was terminated in a treaty ratified by the United States senate on Feb. 3, 1801.

Under the command of Capt. Edward Preble, the Essex sailed for the Indian ocean in December, 1799, while the difficulties with France still were at their height. The Essex on this cruise was the first United States naval vessel to round the Cape of Good Hope, as in 1813 it was the first to sail around Cape Horn.

Congress declared war against Great Britain on June 18, 1812. Exactly two weeks later the Essex, under the command of Captain Porter, sailed from New York in search of the 36-gun British frigate Thetis, reported bound for South America.

This is as good a place as any to identify our Capt. David Porter. He was the son of David Porter the elder, a naval captain of Revolutionary war fame, and the nephew of Capt. Samuel Porter, another naval hero of the Revolution. On the day he sailed from New York to hunt for the frigate Thetis he left back home in Chester, Pa., a 24-day-old son, David Dixon Porter, who eventually grew up to become Admiral Porter of Civil war fame. On board the Essex was young David Glasgow Farragut, a midshipman, the son by adoption of the commander of the vessel.

The Essex failed to find the Thetis, but it did happen upon a fleet of British army transports under the convoy of the 32-gun frigate Minerva. Porter cut one of the transports out from under the very nose of the British frigate and sent it away as a prize when the enemy war vessel refused to fight. On Aug. 13 the Essex outfought and captured the British sloop-ship Alert, mounting 16 guns. Chased by two British men-of-war on Sept. 4, the Essex put in three days later at the mouth of the Delaware river. On this cruise of 67 days it had captured nine prizes and recaptured five American craft.

On Oct. 28, 1812, began the last cruise of the Essex as an American war vessel—the cruise that was to end so disastrously at Valparaiso. Porter had planned to join the frigate Constitution and the sloop-of-war Hornet at Porto Praya, in the Cape Verde Islands, or at Fernando de Noronha, an island off Brazil, for a cruise of the Indian ocean, but he failed to find either of the vessels. At Fernando de Noronha, however, he found a letter from Capt. William Bainbridge of the Constitution telling him to seek the Constitution off Cape Frio.

The Essex arrived off Cape Frio on Christmas day. A few days later it captured the British sloop Elizabeth. Falsely informed that a blockade of the port of Bahia by the Constitution and the Hornet had been raised by the British line-of-battle ship Montague, Porter determined to strike a blow at British commerce in the Pacific, and on Jan. 26, 1813, the Essex set sail from the island of St. Catherine. Cape Horn was reached Feb. 14, and after a desperate battle with storms the plucky craft finally sailed out onto the smooth waters of the Pacific.

On March 15 Porter put in at Valparaiso, where he learned for the first time that Chile had declared its independence of Spain. Departing five days later, the Essex, with its guns concealed to give it the appearance of a merchant ship, set its course for Coquimbo. On the way to this port it was stopped by the Nereyda, a 15-gun Peruvian craft. Porter ran out his guns, showed his colors, and took the other vessel without a fight. He disarmed it and set it free with a warning.

The Essex about this time was repainted at sea to resemble a Spanish merchantman. From Coquimbo it sailed for Callao, capturing not far from the last-named port the British merchant vessel Barclay. Placing a prize crew aboard the Barclay, Porter next set his course for the Galapagos Islands, arriving off Chatham, most easterly of the islands, on April 17. In the waters here three prizes were taken. The total value of their cargoes was more than half a million dollars. The Georgiana, one of the three, was armed, fitted out as a 16-gun cruiser, with a crew of 40 men, and placed under command of Lieut. John Downes. Next to be captured by the Essex were two British privateers, the 18-gun Atlantic and the Greenwich. By this time Porter had under his command a squadron of seven ships, with 80 guns and 340 men, not counting more than 80 prisoners.

The Essex made sail for the mainland and on June 19 anchored in the Tumbez river, the Georgiana in the meantime cruising offshore and capturing two small craft, the Catherine and the Rose, and the privateer Hector. After placing a prize crew aboard the Hector, Downes found himself left in the Georgiana with only 10 men to guard 75 prisoners. So he transferred all prisoners to the Rose and ordered them, under parole, to sail for the island of St. Helena. The Georgiana, with the two prizes, joined Porter. Downes was elevated to master commandant and given the Atlantic, which had been renamed the Essex Junior.

On June 30 Porter's fleet put out from the Tumbez river. Several of the prizes were started off for Valparaiso under the convoy of the Essex Junior. So short of officers was Porter, because of the splitting up of the crew of the Essex to man the various prizes, that he found it necessary to place the Barclay under the command of 12-year-old Midshipman Farragut, his adopted son. The orginal British master of the Barclay was supposed to navigate the vessel under orders of the youthful Farragut, but he rebelled and it required some bold bluffing on the part of the young midshipman to bring the older man to terms.

The Essex, accompanied by the prizes Greenwich and Georgiana, again made for the Galapagos Islands, on the way capturing the 10-gun Charlton, the 14-gun Seringapatam, and the 8-gun New Zealand. On July 25 the Georgiana sailed for the United States, while the Essex and the other vessels dropped anchor off Albemarle Island. Sailing out alone on Sept. 15, the Essex captured the British whaler Sir Andrew Hammond. Soon afterward the Essex was joined by the Essex Junior, which brought news that a number of formidable British craft were searching for the American frigate. This influenced Porter in his decision to spend the winter at Nukahiva, in the Marquesas Islands, to overhaul and refit his vessels.

The Essex, Essex Junior, Seringapatam, Sir Andrew Hammond, and Greenwich anchored off Nukahiva on Oct. 23. Porter landed and took possession of the island in the name of the United States. He named it Madison's Island and erected a fort there. For their own protection on the island the Americans found it necessary to assist a tribe of natives in warring upon another tribe. They also were forced to put down a mutiny launched by their British prisoners.

The task of refitting the Essex was completed early in December, and on the 10th of that month it went to sea again, accompanied by the Essex Junior, leaving the squadron of captured vessels in the harbor at Nukahiva. The Essex and its companion craft touched the mainland at Concepcion, and a few days later, on Feb. 3, 1814, they arrived back at Valparaiso.

The Essex anchored in the harbor while the Essex Junior cruised outside to maintain a lookout. On the morning of Feb. 8 the latter vessel signaled that two enemy ships were in sight. Porter recalled members of his crew who were ashore, and shortly afterward the Phoebe and the Cherub sailed into the harbor, the Phoebe making straight for the Essex.

Let us now relate in the words of Admiral David D. Porter, the son of the commander of the Essex, just what happened that day in the harbor of Valparaiso:

"Finding that the Phoebe was approaching nearer the Essex than a strict neutrality justified him in permitting, Captain Porter called out to Captain Hillyar that he was prepared for action but would only act on the defensive; whereupon Hillyar, leaning over the side, answered in a careless, indifferent manner: 'O, sir, I have no intention of getting on board of you'; and being again warned that if he did fall foul of the Essex there would be much blood shed, Hillyar nonchalantly repeated his assurance that he had no such intention. Finding, however, that the Englishman luffed up so that he caused his ship to get aback, whereby the Phoebe's jibboom came across the Essex's forecastle, Captain Porter called away the boarders, directing them if the ships' hulls touched to spring upon the deck of the English frigate.

"At this moment not a gun from the Phoebe could be brought to bear on either the Essex or the Essex Junior, while her bow was exposed to the raking fire of one and her stern to the raking fire of the other; and her consort, the Cherub of 23 guns, was too far to leeward to afford any assistance. The consternation on board the English frigate was very great when it was seen that every officer and man on board the Essex was armed with a cutlass and a brace of pistols, ready to jump on board, while the guns were trained to fire as occasion might require. Captain Hillyar had been informed by the boat of an English ship in port that the American frigate was in great confusion from an entertainment and that most of her men were on shore; so on witnessing this unexpected preparation for his reception the English captain protested with great vehemence that he had no intention of boarding the Essex; that it was altogether an accident, that his ship had been taken aback, that he was exceedingly sorry, &c, &c.

"The temptation to destroy the Phoebe, which was completely at his mercy, was very great, and Captain Porter would have been amply justified in sinking the English frigate, on the plea of self-defense, but the assurances of Captain Hillyar disarmed him and Captain Porter missed the opportunity which he never should have lost. He hailed Lieutenant Downes and told him not to commence hostilities without orders, as it was his intention to let Captain Hillyar extricate himself. The Phoebe accordingly separated from the Essex, drifted by the two ships exposed to their raking fire, and anchored on the eastern side of the harbor, within range of her long 18-pounders but beyond the range of the Essex's carronades. The Cherub came to anchor within pistol shot of the Essex's larboard bow, whereupon the Essex Junior was moored to place the Cherub between her fire and that of the Essex, an arrangement that gave great umbrage to Captain Tucker, the commander of the Cherub."

Captain Porter, as can be seen from the foregoing, let slip an opportunity to chastise the Britisher, who obviously had planned to make an attack and changed his mind only when he discovered that the Americans were more than ready to meet him. Neutrality or no neutrality of the Chilean port, Porter could have saved a lot of grief if he had waded into Hillyar when he had that excellent chance.

By what a narrow margin was a battle avoided that day is told in Farragut's journal:

"When the Phoebe was close alongside and all hands were at quarters, the men with slow matches ready to discharge the guns, the boarders cutlass in hand standing by to board in the smoke, as was our custom, an intoxicated youth saw, or imagined he saw, thru the port, some one in the Phoebe grinning at him. 'My fine fellow, I'll stop your making faces,' he exclaimed, and was just about to fire his gun when Lieutenant McKnight saw the movement and with a blow sprawled him on the deck. Had that gun been fired I am convinced the Phoebe would have been ours."

For six weeks the two British vessels maintained a close watch upon the Essex and Essex Junior.

As the armed truce dragged on in and about the harbor of Valparaiso, Porter learned that several other British frigates were on the way to join the Phoebe. He decided to put to sea. Confident that his vessel could outsail the two enemy craft, he planned to slip out of the harbor, draw the Phoebe and Cherub in pursuit, and thus provide for the Essex Junior an opportunity to escape. But fate had other plans for him.

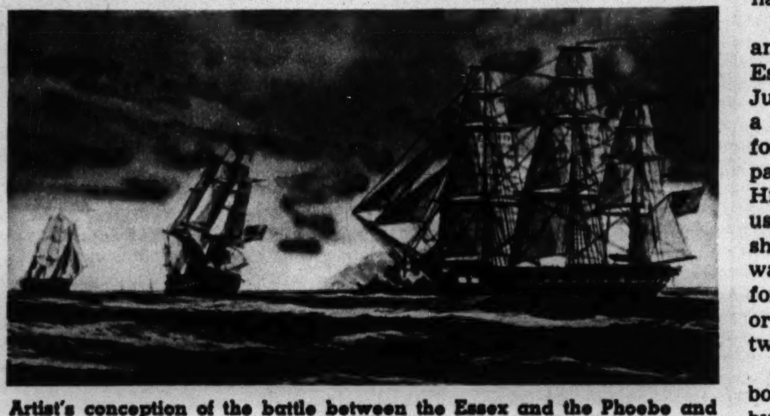
On March 28, as the Phoebe and Cherub moved slowly under sail along the west shore of the Bay of Valparaiso, the American frigate parted its port cable in a heavy gale and dragged its starboard anchor to sea. Here was the opportunity for the Essex to get free, but just as it was rounding the Point of Angels, at the west of the bay, it was struck by a violent squall which tore away its maintopmast.

Porter realized immediately that in his vessel's crippled condition he could not elude the British craft, which, because of the type of guns mounted upon the Phoebe, were considerably more than a match for the Essex. He bore around and attempted to return to his anchorage, but the wind at that moment shifted and he was forced to sail into a small bay. Here he anchored about 200 yards from shore and three-quarters of a mile to leeward of a Chilean shore battery of one gun.

The Phoebe and the Cherub bore down upon the Essex. It was just before 4 o'clock in the afternoon when the engagement began, with the Phoebe firing a broadside of its 18-pound long guns. The Essex was in such a position as to be unable to reply to the British frigate's fire—its guns could not be brought to bear upon the enemy. So Porter endeavored three times to bring his vessel around by means of springs (lines led diagonally from bow or stern to a ship's cable, so that by hauling or slacking the ship can be made to lie in any position) in order to allow its broadside to bear upon the Phoebe. Each time the lines were shot away.

Finally three of the Essex's six long 12-pounders were dragged to the stern to open fire of the enemy. Thruout almost the whole of the action the American frigate was restricted in its firing to its long twelves.

The Phoebe and Cherub both withdrew at 4:30 to make necessary repairs, but soon returned to renew the fight. At 5:20 Porter, seeing that he could not reach the Phoebe with his 32-pound carronades, cut his cable and tried to close with the enemy. By driving fast the Essex was able for a few moments to use its short 32s, but the British vessels soon moved out of reach of the short-range pieces.



Artist's conception of the battle between the Essex and the Phoebe and the Cherub.

Great was the damage aboard the Essex, and many were the members of the crew shot down, dead or wounded. The Essex was battling without assistance against terrible odds. The Essex Junior was unable to go to its aid and would have counted for little even if it could have joined the frigate. Downes, however, left the Essex Junior and was rowed out to the larger craft in order to take part in the fight.

Joel R. Poinsett, the American consul at Valparaiso, attempted in vain to persuade Chilean authorities to halt the battle because it was being fought in territorial waters of a neutral country. It was for Mr. Poinsett, by the way, that our scarlet Christmas flower, the poinsettia, was named.

At last, seeing how hopeless his position was, Porter ran his vessel closer in to shore, with the object of destroying it by fire. As the Phoebe and Cherub poured broadside after broadside into the stricken craft it was able to reply only occasionally with its long guns. Then the Yankee frigate actually did catch fire, and the situation for Porter and his men became even more desperate. At 6:20 he surrendered.

Of the 255 men aboard his vessel 58 had been killed, 31 were missing (drowned), and 66 were wounded. The Phoebe lost 4 killed and 7 wounded, and the Cherub 1 killed and 3 wounded.

The actual armaments of the three vessels give no fair comparison of the odds against the Essex. Altho the Yankee frigate carried 46 guns—6 long twelves and 40 32-pound carronades—it was able in the action to make use of only 23 pieces, its 6 long guns and 17 of its short 32s, with a total weight of metal of 570 pounds. Furthermore, only the 6 long twelves were effective. Their shots were short weight—each approximately 11 pounds—and therefore for almost the whole of the engagement the Essex was limited in its weight of metal fired to 66 pounds.

The Phoebe, on the other hand, carried 53 guns. It had been armed especially to destroy the Essex. It mounted 30 long 18-pounders, 16 32-pound carronades, 6 3-pounders, and a howitzer. The Cherub, called a 23-gun vessel by Admiral David D. Porter in his memoir of his father, actually mounted 18 short 32s, 8 short 24s, and 2 long nines. The two British craft hurled combined broadsides of 839 pounds, of which 273 pounds were from long guns. The crews of the Phoebe and Cherub together numbered 500 men, as compared with 255 aboard the Essex.

The battered Essex was patched up temporarily, sent under its own sails to England for permanent repairs, and was placed in service in the British navy, from which it was sold into the merchant trade in 1837.

The American sailors left at Nukahiva in the Marquesas with the prizes captured by the Essex had a number of thrilling experiences before the survivors of them finally reached their native land.

Most of the surviving officers and members of the crew of the Essex were put aboard the Essex Junior, which was converted into a cartel and permitted to sail for the United States under a passport provided by Captain Hillyar. A cartel in the sense used in this paragraph is a ship commissioned in time of war to sail under safe conduct for the exchange of prisoners or conveyance of proposals between belligerents.

Just outside of New York harbor the Essex Junior was halted by H. M. S. Saturn. The captain of that vessel questioned Captain Hillyar's right to grant a passport to the men from the Essex. He ordered the Essex Junior to lie by during the night, to give him time to think the matter over.

Early next morning Captain Porter escaped from the Essex Junior and was rowed to shore under the cover of a heavy fog. There was no stopping Porter, it seems. He kept on making history. He was court-martialed in 1824 and suspended from the navy for a short while for forcing the Spanish authorities at Porto Rico to apologize for seizing one of his officers. From 1826 to 1829 he was commander in chief of the Mexican navy. In 1830 he was consul general to Algiers. In 1831 he was made American chargé d'affaires at Constantinople. Ten years later he was elevated to minister to Turkey, and it was in that country that he died in 1843.

Dress Your Age!

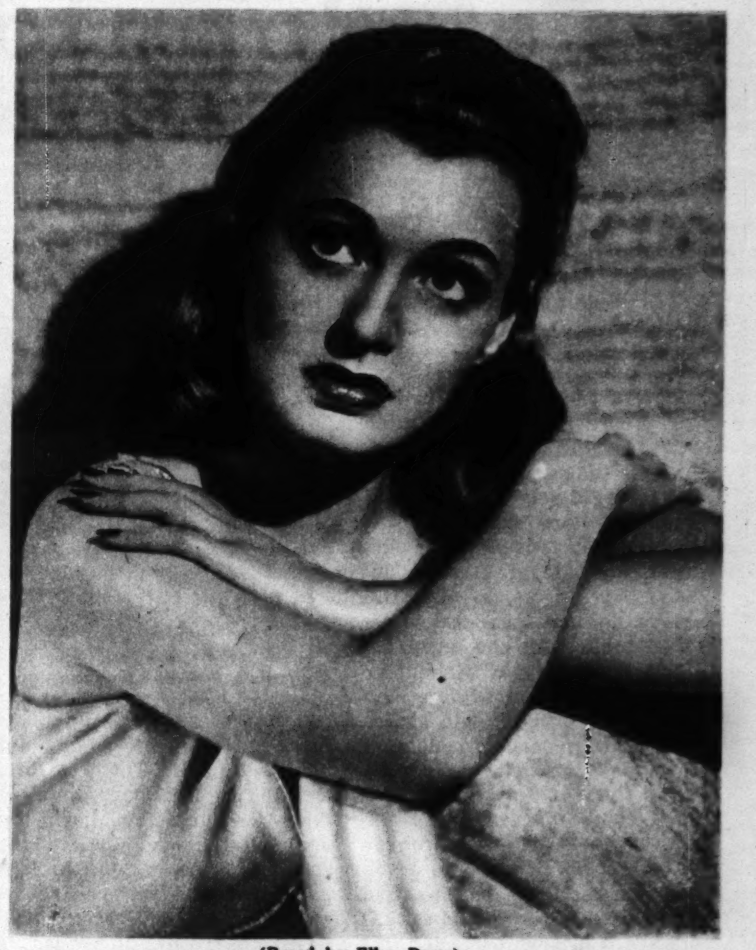
By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

(Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate, Inc.)

THIS is a plea to older women to leave to youth those things that belong to youth only.

This isn't our plea alone, understand. Three well known figures in the cosmetic and fashion world, along with a male fourth who is considered a connoisseur in a way, have urged us to beg two things of the older woman. These concern a certain style coiffure and the skirt length.

Older women may argue that they look like a last year's number in the 14 to 16 inch skirt length from the floor. But time and again on the street you see an older woman in the inch-below-the-knee skirt and with it an unnecessary exposure of a bad leg silhouette. It's unfortunate that calves of legs thicken and veins enlarge and muscles bulge or twist with the added years. But it is a fact that they do in innumerable cases, a fact that should be faced. There's no dress or beauty commandment quite so arbitrary as the one about stressing assets and hiding liabilities. And women generally have become extremely adept at covering up and emphasizing, except on this bad leg contour. We're not campaigning for ankle-length skirts. We are urging that the hem line conceal that ugliest line a woman can possess—immediately below the knee in back. Leave the abbreviated skirt to the young, whose legs, tho they may be too thin or even a little too fat, are still young legs.



(Posed by Ellen Drew)
The flowing hair style is youth's prerogative, connoisseurs agree.

Now, when you see an older woman in one of the kiltie-length skirts and wearing a long flowing bob, you have a picture of something no mature woman should be. Young people aren't going to abandon that long bob. They find it most becoming. And they really love to play the comb thru it, brush it, arrange it cleverly around the face. They have this skill at their finger tips. Perhaps we older ones have lost it or never had it. But we watch with admiration those girls combing, brushing, and turning up or under their large, loose curls. It is their style, we stoutly contend.

Older women today simply do not have to imitate girls of their deb daughters' age. There is so much available to them that the girl is denied. There's dignity, the dignity of charm rather than the formidable kind. There's elegance for them. There's individuality. And becomingness. To be soignée is the ambition of the older woman. This means grooming to the last inch and a certain orderliness of appearance which is never achieved if the person grown a bit mature of figure attempts the styles of her junior by 15, 20, or more years.

Hair is the dominating feature of the ensemble, affecting hat, dress, and silhouette for better or for worse. A blowsy coiffure would immediately restrain further interest in a woman's get-up.

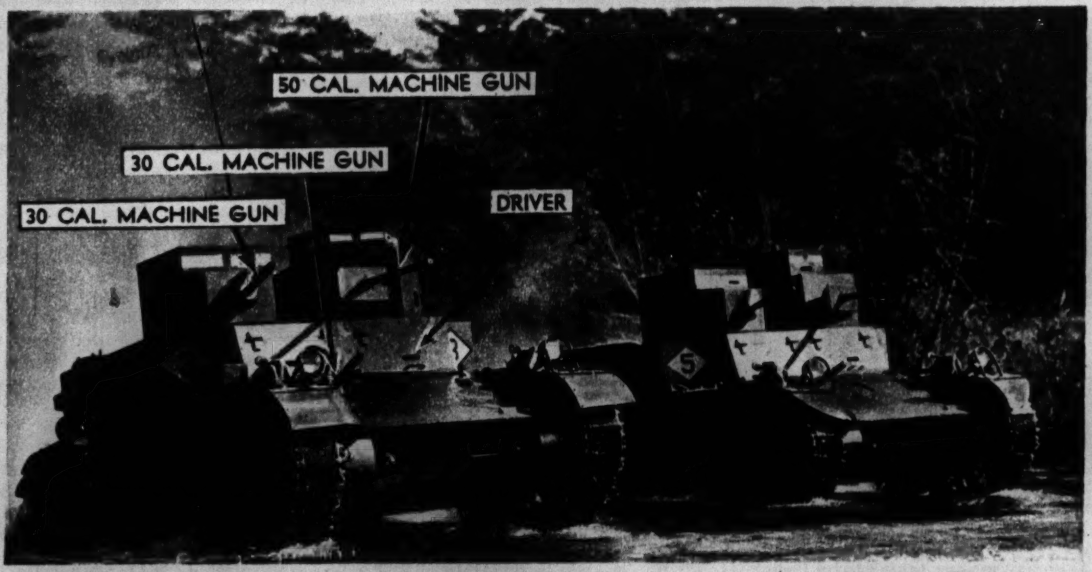
How Christie Pioneered in Tanks

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C.

THE double-cross which the army gave J. Walter Christie, American inventor and tank expert, is still a topic of lively conversation among military experts.

Christie borrowed from his experience in racing Barney Oldfield 35 years ago to offer the army the first practical high-speed tank. But the army obstinately turned a cold shoulder toward Christie, a civilian, who nonetheless proved a pacemaker and pushed the army to adoption of its modern mobile equipment.



One of the newest American light tanks, a 10-ton type carrying four men. Its maximum highway speed is about 40 miles an hour. (Associated Press photo.)

The story of Christie's experiments with the tank after the World war is also the chronicle of the army's progress in developing a practical mechanized weapon. The record shows that while Christie perfected his tank, which he withheld from foreign governments in the hope that the United States would adopt it as standard equipment, the army ordnance department preferred to fumble with its own designs. These proved unsatisfactory and finally forced the army to borrow liberally of Christie's ideas.

Christie overcame the difficulty experienced during the World war of moving tanks quickly to a point of attack by equipping them with both wheels and tracks. He reduced weight and increased speed. The first Christie tank in 1919 had minor defects in manufacture, but it had one feature never achieved before—it operated forward or backward at equal speeds.

The Front Drive Motor company, which Christie headed, rebuilt the 1919 Christie tank into the M1921 model, which performed so well that the tables of organization set up by the caliber board, established after the war to lay down desirable policies in armament, were modified on the basis of eventual rearmament with Christie tanks—which never took place.

The Christie amphibious tank making one of its water crossings.

A Christie tank, now obsolete, in use during 1935 army maneuvers.

In 1921 Christie, then nearly 60 years old, also produced his first amphibious tank, which could run on wheels, on tracks, or in water. In December, 1922, the amphibian gave a remarkable demonstration by crossing the Hudson river at New York City. Further improvements were made. The marine corps observed the amphibian's operation but did not adopt it. The government never even tested it officially.

The ordnance department had designed and built in 1922 a medium weight tank which proved unsatisfactory. It studied continuously various British and French tanks and experimented with adaptations of those models. Christie meanwhile had reorganized his company into the United States Wheel Track Layer corporation and produced a tank in 1928 which in its first tests drew the plaudits of military mechanization enthusiasts in this country, who recommended its immediate adoption.

Representatives of other nations also made arrangements for its purchase, and finally the army ordered seven of the tanks. But the contracts were not let until June, 1931, and the first one was delivered in September of that year. These tanks weighed no more than 15 tons and were capable of a sustained speed of 40 miles an hour on wheels over hard roads or 25 miles an hour on track over level open terrain. They carried a crew of two men armed with a machine gun and 37-mm. gun.

J. Walter Christie, left, with a small high-speed tank developed in 1937. It was said to be capable of speeds up to 50 miles an hour.

The army meanwhile had dawdled with its experiments and ran into a dispute with the services which used tanks of ordnance design. The carried the engine in front, and heat and fumes were blown back on the crew. In trying to remedy this the army went to the other extreme and introduced ventilation of such force that a sand blast was produced inside the weapon whenever traveling over sandy or other loose soil. The tank was described as riding very roughly and "was not well received by the infantry." While army ordnance stuck to its experiments, Christie's tank was praised editorially by Army Ordnance, a service magazine, in August, 1931, as follows:

"The Christie tank is praised highly by officers of the using services. They like its driving arrangement, which is so designed that the engine is in the rear. . . . The Christie design gives individual suspension to each of the eight wheels, providing an exceptionally stable gun platform. These new vehicles will be used in the development of mechanization of the army. . . . They are the work of an inventor who has long been interested in the advancement of motorization and mechanization of our service."

The ordnance department continued rebuilding its light and medium weight tanks until finally collaboration between the infantry and ordnance departments resulted in specifications for medium tanks of the Christie type. Christie had not furnished blueprints, so the army measured the few vehicles which it had obtained from Christie and requested bids on the basis of these specifications. The contracts were let to companies other than Christie's. After delivery of the new tanks earlier army models were declared obsolete and placed in the ordnance museum. The tanks now in service are of ordnance design, altho a few of the Christies are retained by the army. Christie introduced a 50-mile-an-hour tank in 1937.

When Worming for Tape, Round (ascarid) and Hook Worms

You Cannot Worm Your Dog WRONG

—if you follow the sound, "no-guess," commonsense Pulvex Worming Method.

The Pulvex Worming Method (embodied in every package of Pulvex Combination Treatment Worm Capsules) insures your worming your dog properly for those worms . . . even though you've had no worming experience. It is so sure that many breeders of champion dogs say the Pulvex Worming Method is the method the average dog owner should use.

Your dog can have Tape, Round (ascarid), Hook or any combination of those worms at the same time. Your dog should, therefore, always be wormed for all those worms whenever you worm him.

Contrary to common belief, no single-type capsule made can expel all those three worms. Two types of capsules must be used. Each package of Pulvex Capsules contains two types of capsules which, given a few days apart, expel Tape, Round (ascarid) or Hook Worms—not just one or two kinds of worms.

Avoid worming your pet wrong for those worms. Worm only with Pulvex Capsules. Packaged two ways: for puppies; for dogs. Either type 50c. At Drug, Pet, Department stores.

ASK YOUR DEALER TO SHOW YOU THIS PICTURIZED INSTRUCTION SHEET. IT MAKES WORMING EASY!

Myths About Dog Care Continue

MYTHS and superstitions about dogs continue on and on thru the years. About this time of the year that old prescription about giving sulphur to a dog for a spring tonic comes into the open. Some owners will be told that if they will put a big chunk of sulphur in the drinking water of the dog he will have better digestion, grow a beautiful coat, get a world of pep, and look and feel like a million dollars!

This is entirely untrue, of course. Sulphur isn't soluble in water, so the mineral is not taken up by the dog when he drinks water. Actually the sulphur serves as a colorful decoration in the drinking pan and will collect a layer of dust while there. Nevertheless this story about the use of sulphur continues year after year.

Hardly a week goes by that some one doesn't ask us about the danger of giving milk to puppies because, "as everybody (?) knows, milk causes worms in puppies." This is going to be a hard one to eradicate from the public mind, for worm eggs are taken into a dog's body thru its mouth (some owners actually think dogs breathe them in!) Milk is an essential, invaluable food for pups. It contains important minerals, vitamins, butter fat, and other things. And no clean milk will transport worm eggs. So don't let any one keep you from feeding it to your pup.

The Lhasa terrier is rare in this country. In Tibet, its native land, it is called the "bark sentinel lion dog" and is used as a watchdog in the home. This golden colored specimen is Hamilton Gobshi, owned by Leona Stillwagon of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Another story that we hear wherever we go is that all prepared dog foods cause skin trouble. If such were the case even the best prepared foods would have been put out of business many years ago. And if it were anywhere near true our dogs would be spending all their time in small-animal hospitals getting soothing lotions on their irritated skins, for we feed our dogs prepared foods (both the dry and canned) along with other approved food items. Unfortunately, there are some prepared foods on the market that are concocted to meet a price, and it stands to reason that a very cheaply made food can't contain much nourishment. So every dog owner should get the best prepared foods on the market.

Another often-repeated myth is the one about meat making a dog ugly or vicious. Many puppies are being half starved by their owners because they believe that no meat (especially raw) should be given to them. Actually meat in some form is a food required by dogs. Whether it is cooked or raw doesn't make much difference. One experienced veterinarian believes that cooked meat is better for dogs than raw meat, because the former is digested more easily and also because cooking kills most of the bacteria in meat. But the point is that meat in some form is an important item in the dog's diet.

This standard poodle, groomed for the show ring, is Champion Blakeen Cyrano, owned by the Blakeen kennels of Katonah, N. Y.

Another common delusion about dogs is that some of the breeds are confirmed tramps that never will stay at home. People about to buy a dog often end their series of questions about different breeds by asking if this or that breed isn't pretty much a stay-at-home breed. The idea is to get a dog that isn't a natural (?) runaway!

While it is true that there are breeds which are livelier, more aggressive, and more high-strung than others, and these demand lots of exercise to work off their energy, no group of breeds has a corner on vagabonding and a desire to roam the streets. A careless owner does more to make a dog a tramp than any inherent trait in the breed. If the owner doesn't establish a kennel for his pet, doesn't train the dog, and doesn't teach it to stay around home, but instead turns it out every day to run, the dog will be a number one tramp and the breed (with some exceptions) won't make much difference.

KNOW YOUR CAMERA

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph. D.

(Managing Editor, Popular Photography Magazine.)

Psychology Aids in Candid Photography of Children

IF THERE is one subject that calls invariably for "candid" photography, it is pictures of children. You can make obviously posed and formal portraits of children, but they will always look either melancholy or stilted—or both. The "candid" technique is the only method to overcome this unpleasant effect.

By candid technique we mean both the actual "stealing" of unposed pictures and posing in such a manner that the picture appears to be spontaneous, informal, unposed. In the case of children your best bet is to try for actually unposed pictures. Most children are not born actors, and it is rather difficult to explain to them that they should behave as if you were not present.

If you can make your camera sufficiently inconspicuous to go completely unnoticed and at the same time can manage to maneuver your subject into a position where lighting and camera angle are suitable for making good pictures, your battle is practically won. But this method of stealing unnoticed pictures rarely works.

In most cases the child will notice your camera. Satisfy its curiosity by showing it the instrument and by posing a few "blind" shots. The child's interest both in the camera and in your presence will soon wear off, and after that your chance will come to get the type of picture you are looking for. Follow the child unobtrusively; act as if you would be just playing with your camera and focusing it on any and all objects in the immediate surroundings. In the meantime watch for the expression on the child's face you want to capture and snap the shutter when your opportunity comes.

Psychology is the major part of making good pictures of children. The actual photographic technique is not different from taking almost any other kind of picture. Shutter speeds up to 1/50 second will be sufficient in most cases to stop action of your subject. These speeds are available nowadays even on inexpensive cameras. Similarly, even the slower lenses of these cameras will give you a wide range of picture opportunities if you use a fast panchromatic film. They will permit you to shoot not only outdoor scenes in bright sunlight but also interiors by day or with the aid of photoflood lamps.

Consequently, getting good pictures of children is not a matter of elaborate equipment. It depends, as mentioned before, primarily on psychology. Second in importance, however, is the choice of the subject, and it is here that most amateur photographers fail.

The simplest sources of picture subjects are the many "special occasions" which occur in the life of every child. If you only decide to follow these regularly with your camera you will accumulate a remarkable collection of child pictures full of human interest. A good list of suggestions for such special picture occasions is published in the Eastman Kodak company's book, "How to Make Good Pictures":

Protecting Aerial Gunners

By WAYNE THOMIS

SHORTLY after the start of the current European war reports began filtering back from air fronts that British and French air units were suffering severe losses in gunner-observers. Gunners posted in the noses or tails of reconnaissance or bombardment planes were the first targets for enemy fighters. While relatively few of the big multi-engined bombers or observation ships were knocked down, the casualty lists among observers in the empires' air forces were so long that they were beginning to have difficulty in finding personnel for the posts.

In a series of news stories printed in The Daily Tribune last January this writer discussed plans under foot in England and France to armor some of the larger airplanes. Attempts at this ended, however, after engineers found the weight of armor necessary to turn bullets that were striking at right angles was too great to justify its use. A compromise was reached in which heavier metal plates were used for the metal aircraft skin at the gunners' posts. These heavier plates were sufficiently strong to turn bullets that struck at an angle of 30 degrees or less—a glancing blow.

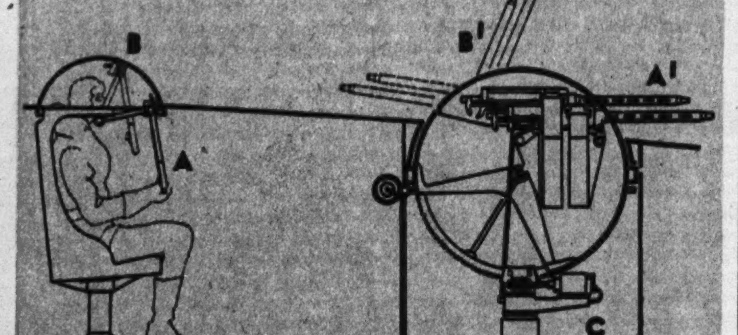
But even this compromise armor has not been the answer to the problem. Engineers were detailed to make an entirely new approach. The designer's headache arose from the habit of plunking large amounts of weight—up to 1,000 pounds—out at the extreme tail and nose of fighting ships. These weights were made up of the gunner, the turret mechanism within which he sat, two to four machine guns, and several thousand rounds of ammunition.

The latest answer is presented here. The engineers all strove for the same goal, to wit: An increased field of fire, absolutely necessary if attacking fighters were to be beaten off; reduction in the weight of defensive emplacements at nose and tail; adequate protection for the gunner; and an improved sighting position for firing the guns.

Several of them seem to have arrived at the same conclusion more or less simultaneously. The basic idea is this: Let the gunner be placed in the most advantageous position on the airplane in relation to sighting, protection, and his own weight. Then place the machine guns in the place where they will have the maximum field of fire, and connect the guns and the man by remote control mechanism. Let the gunner sit near the center of gravity, but have him aim and fire his guns from their position aft of the rudders.

The diagrams show how the remotely controled turrets would function. The gunner would still have his sighting apparatus, and the guns, wherever they are placed, are connected to follow the gunner's sight as he moves it on the target he selects. Engineers say it will be no more difficult to produce such a linkage than it now is to set up the proper sighting arrangements for single-seat fighters in which the pilot sights from his cockpit but fires up to eight machine guns which are placed within his wings.

You can expect to see some of the newest British war planes fitted with variations of the remote-controled machine gun batteries discussed here. These will allow the gunner to be well protected yet have the best possible field of fire. They will also eliminate the shooting off of the tails of many aircraft by the gunners that are riding in them. In the war of 1914-'18 this happened many times because the gunner, in following an enemy ship that was swinging back and forth behind him, forgot to stop firing as his gun muzzles pointed directly at his own tail.



How gunner might control weapons. Lever (A) when pushed to desired position (B) operates mechanism (C), raising gun (A1) to position (B1).

Now...Get Washing Advantages That Even the Finest Soap Flakes Cannot Offer!

CAN a suds really be different? The answer—fortunately—is "Yes"! Dreft—Procter and Gamble's new suds creation—is so different, it's protected against duplication by U. S. Patents! So different, it offers 3 distinct advantages no soap in the world can give:

1. RICH SUDS IN HARDEST WATER...actually 5 times more suds than any soap you ever used! 2. SUDS OF NON-ALKALINE MILDNESS . . . giving your stockings and all fine things complete protection against wash-fading caused by alkali! 3. SUDS THAT NEVER LEAVE "SCUM" . . . even in hardest water . . . and they remove scum left by previous soap washings . . . thus assuring true color freshness and stocking sheerness!

So it's a brighter life of long wear for stockings washed this new way! And remember—don't save up soiled stockings. Wash them every night in patented new Dreft. You'll cut down on runs—make your hosiery budget go much further!

Ask your dealer for the new, increased-size Dreft today. 25% more for your money! Procter & Gamble.

APPROVED BY GOOD HOUSEKEEPING INSTITUTE

New Bigger Package

25% MORE DREFT FOR YOUR MONEY!

Ounce for ounce, in hard water, Dreft washes twice as many stockings as fine-fabric soap! And now that you get 25% more Dreft—the same wonderful Dreft—at no increase in price, it's more economical than ever!

Dreft is different!

SO DIFFERENT, ITS RESULTS CAN'T BE DUPLICATED BY ANY SOAP FLAKES

Choose from 17 Big, Beautiful Models—All Prices Lowest in History!

Yes, it's real news! These big, beautiful Frigidaires are priced lower than ever before in Frigidaire history! They're the year's sensations! Just imagine! You can own a 6 cu. ft. genuine 1940 Frigidaire for little more than $100!

Every way you look at them, inside and out, they're RIGHT—Right in Features, Right in Performance, Right in Looks . . . and Right in Price! America's No. 1 Refrigerator leads again with greater-than-ever values!

Before you buy any refrigerator, compare Frigidaire's quality with that of any other refrigerator at any price . . . bar none! These new models are simply packed with marvelous convenience features. The one-piece steel cabinets are beauty-built to endure years longer. And the world-famous Meter-Miser is the simplest cold-maker ever built.

See Proof-of-Value Demonstration

You will find that for the lowest price in history you can have the extra values, extra economy, extra beauty and the all-'round extra quality that have always been associated with the name Frigidaire. So see the new Frigidaires. It is well worth your while to get the facts.

FRIGIDAIRE DIVISION
General Motors Sales Corporation, 712 Merchandise Mart, Chicago.

Let your Frigidaire Dealer show you why FRIGIDAIRE is the Better Buy!

Meter-Miser . . . simplest cold-making mechanism ever built. Self-oiling, self-cooling. Silent, efficient—uses less current than ever before. Exclusive F-114, safe, low-pressure refrigerant. In all models.

Glass-Topped Food Hydrator guards freshness of fruits, vegetables, perishables, amazingly. You actually see dewy moisture on the glass cover. Preserves color, flavor, for days longer. In 13 models.

New Stainless Chromium Shelves dramatize the beauty of the Frigidaire interiors with bright, mirror-smooth luster. Rustless and sanitary. Stay new and bright for years. Cleaned in a jiffy. In 16 models.

Double-Easy Quickube Trays come loose and cubes pop out instantly. No hacking, no melting under faucet. No "gadgets" to lose or misplace. Greatest ice convenience ever offered. In 16 models.

Extra-Large Meat Tender slides out like a drawer. Saves many food dollars every month by properly protecting all kinds of fresh meat and fowl. Also stores up to 100% extra supply of ice cubes. In 9 models.

One-Piece Steel Cabinet built to last a generation, seals in the insulation and prevents "water logging" that destroys cold-keeping efficiency. Easiest of all cabinets to keep spotlessly clean. In all models.

LOWEST PRICE EVER!

See the complete new series of Frigidaire Cold-Wall models at new low prices!

Crowning achievement of the 1940 Frigidaires are the amazing Cold-Wall models. By use of a new principle, the Cold-Wall protects precious vitamins, guards the color, freshness and flavor of foods for many extra days. Chilling coils in the walls provide still, moist cold, free from the air currents that so quickly rob food of its vital values.

Frigidaire Cold-Wall models—like all 1940 Frigidaires—are now lower in cost than was formerly thought possible. In fact, these supreme refrigerators cost far less than ordinary refrigerators did only a few years ago.

Only Frigidaire has the famous new Cold-Wall principle already proven by the experience of thousands of enthusiastic users. It's so efficient you don't even have to cover food! Ask your Frigidaire dealer for a Cold-Wall demonstration.

IMPORTANT Prices quoted are Chicago delivered prices, and include installation and a 5-Year Protection Plan against service expense on the sealed-in mechanism. All prices subject to change without notice.

. . . EVEN THE PRICE TAGS SAY— Buy the Favorite Buy Frigidaire

A WORD OF CAUTION

Some stores may use the name "FRIGIDAIRE" loosely to identify other makes of refrigerators and thus confuse the public. Don't be fooled! If a refrigerator does not bear the "FRIGIDAIRE" nameplate, it is not a FRIGIDAIRE and will not offer the advantages set forth in this advertisement.

FRIGIDAIRE is the trade-mark of the refrigerator manufactured by the Frigidaire Division of General Motors—world-wide leaders in the refrigerator, range and motor car industries. Be sure the store you go to sells FRIGIDAIRE, made only by General Motors.

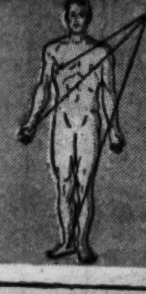
FOLKS who lead busy lives are especially apt to have nervous moments which bring on nervous perspiration. "Nervous B.O." is sure to follow. Millions of people prevent "nervous B.O." by using Lifebuoy Health Soap in their daily bath.

Lifebuoy's mild lather contains a hygienic deodorizing ingredient present in no other popular bath soap—protects you for hours longer! When time is short—take a Lifebuoy "quickie"... hands, feet, under arms.



MAN IS A NETWORK OF NERVES! Excitement, feelings put them into action. They signal sweat glands, especially those on hands, feet, and under arms. Then comes nervous perspiration, and later—"nervous B.O." The offender is the last to know. To be safe from "nervous B.O." use Lifebuoy in your daily bath. A delightful experience! Such mild, refreshing lather! No wonder more people use Lifebuoy for their bath than any other soap. Get Lifebuoy, the different soap with the deodorizing ingredient, today.

"The hard water in our town was my bugaboo—until I discovered the New Rinso. Now I get heaps of lively, long-lasting suds without any of that nasty hard-water scum on top. I'm keen about Rinso for dishes, too. It costs less than 1¢ a day for dishwashing and it's so easy on my hands."

9. Back in the Indian village, Kit Carson sees a new enemy approaching. A hostile band of Indians dashes from the forest. Kit's new Indian friend draws his bow.

10. The enemy Indians on their horses encircle the village and the fur wagons. War whoops rend the air. Carson and his friends open fire.

11. Carson finds a good position in a gnarled juniper tree at the edge of the village. Every bullet from his two guns sends an Indian to the dust.

12. But suddenly out of the woods, rolls a wagon pushed by a man in a black shirt. When it reaches the village, there is a terrific explosion!

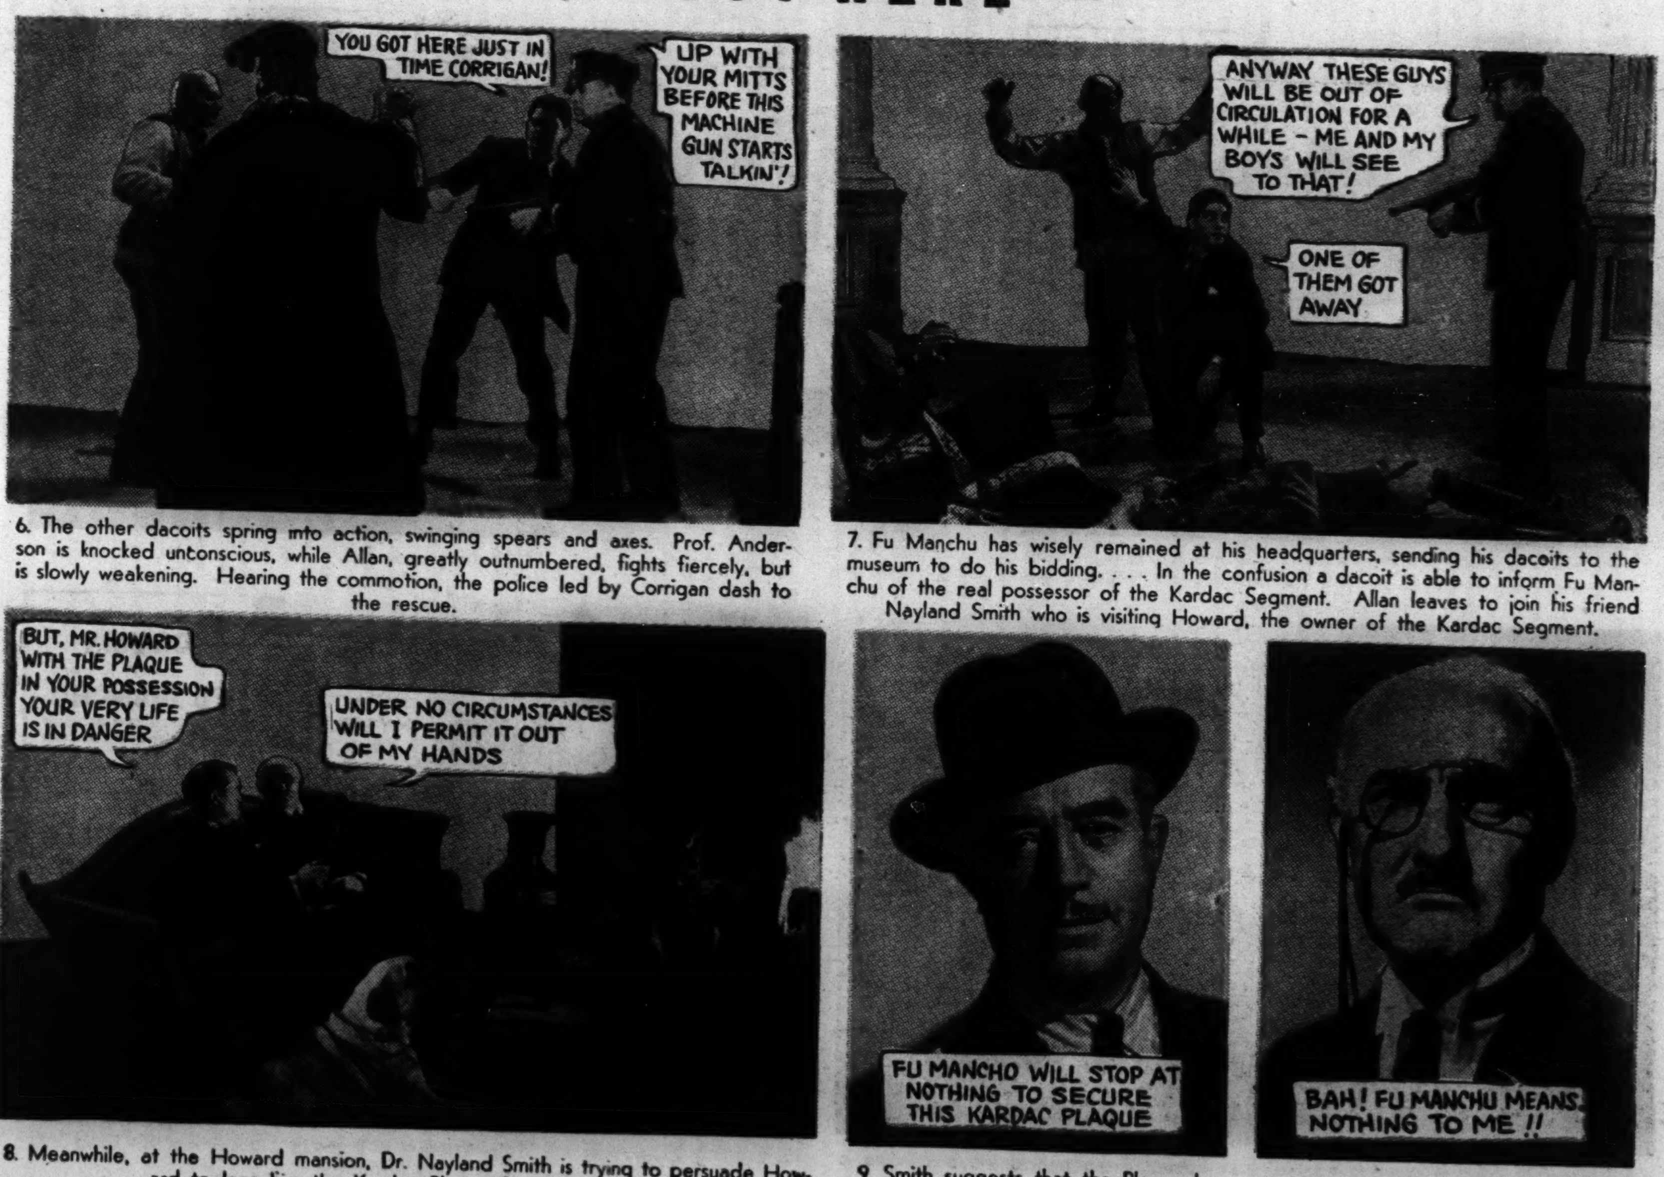
1 Dr. Nayland Smith arrives in time to rescue Allan from the Pendulum Knife. In escaping from Fu Manchu they overpower and take with them a dacoit, who secretly communicates with Fu Manchu by a two way short-wave radio fastened to the car. Smith and Allan learn the radio is open and Fu Manchu is listening at the other end.

2. They purposely mislead Fu Manchu, pretending that the Kardac Segment is at the Historical Museum. Allan makes plans to capture him there, while Smith leaves to visit Mr. Howard, the possessor of the Segment who lives in an isolated mansion in the country.

3. Allan goes to the museum to pick up a decoy package. Police are stationed outside. At a prearranged signal they are to come to Allan's assistance.

4. Having secretly entered the museum, the dacoits disguise themselves as statues and stand rigid waiting for their chance to attack.

5. As Allan and Prof. Anderson approach a statue, it suddenly comes to life. It is a disguised dacoit. In his hand is a gleaming dagger. With a leer he starts to swing it downward on Anderson's back, but Allan knocks Anderson safely out of the way.



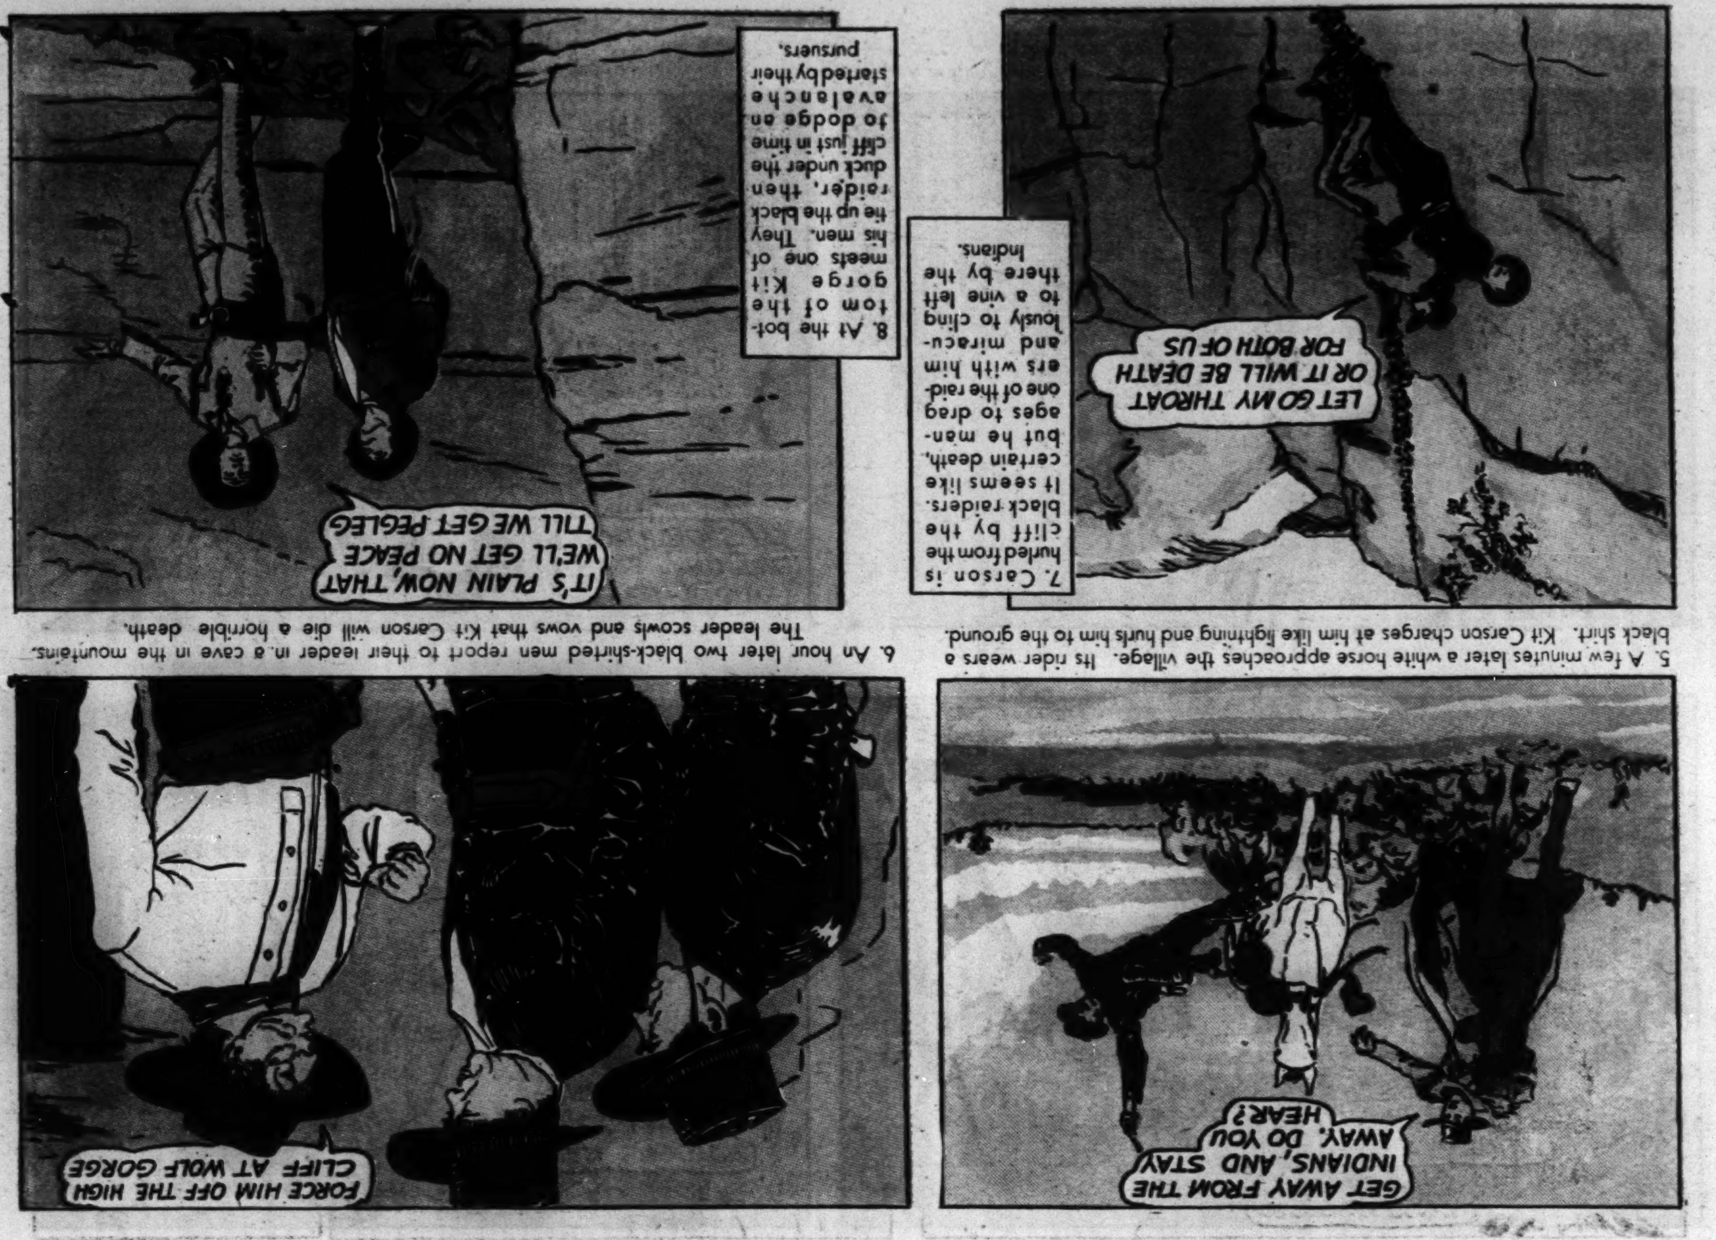
6. The other dacoits spring into action, swinging spears and axes. Prof. Anderson is knocked unconscious, while Allan, greatly outnumbered, fights fiercely, but is slowly weakening. Hearing the commotion, the police led by Corrigan dash to the rescue.

7. Fu Manchu has wisely remained at his headquarters, sending his dacoits to the museum to do his bidding. . . . In the confusion a dacoit is able to inform Fu Manchu of the real possessor of the Kardac Segment. Allan leaves to join his friend Nayland Smith who is visiting Howard, the owner of the Kardac Segment.

8. Meanwhile, at the Howard mansion, Dr. Nayland Smith is trying to persuade Howard to loan him the Kardac Plaque for safekeeping—

9. Smith suggests that the Plaque be placed in a vault.

10. Howard stubbornly refuses to heed Smith's advice.



5. A few minutes later a white horse approaches the village. Its rider wears a black shirt. Kit Carson charges at him like lightning and hurls him to the ground.

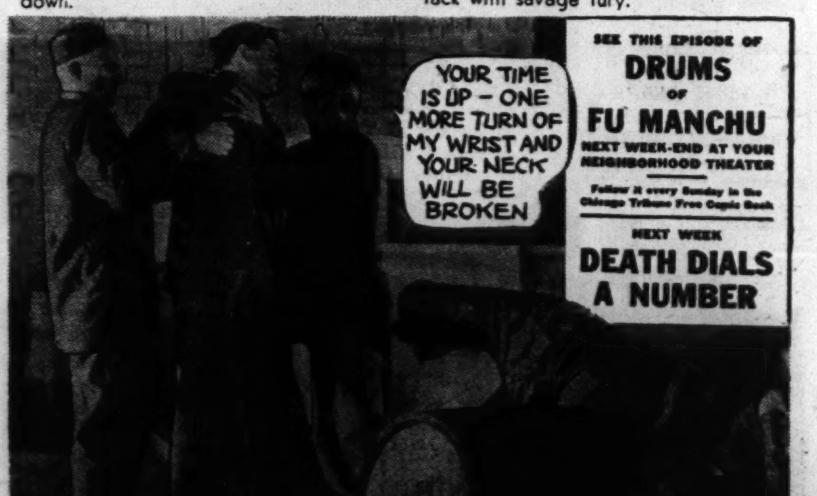
6. An hour later two black-shirted men report to their leader in a cave in the mountains. The leader scowls and vows that Kit Carson will die a horrible death.

11. As Smith examines the Plaque he is closely watched by Cardo, a mute giant who is Howard's servant. The mention of Fu Manchu leaves him badly frightened.

12. Cardo nervously goes about his duties . . . hearing stealthy footsteps behind him, he is about to turn around. But too late. A dacoit strikes him down.

13. Leaping upon Smith and Howard the dacoits attack with savage fury.

14. Meanwhile Allan is approaching Howard's home. From behind the bushes he is closely watched by evil looking dacoits.



15. Leaping upon Allan the dacoits throw a Thuggee Noose over his head and slowly twist it around his neck . . .

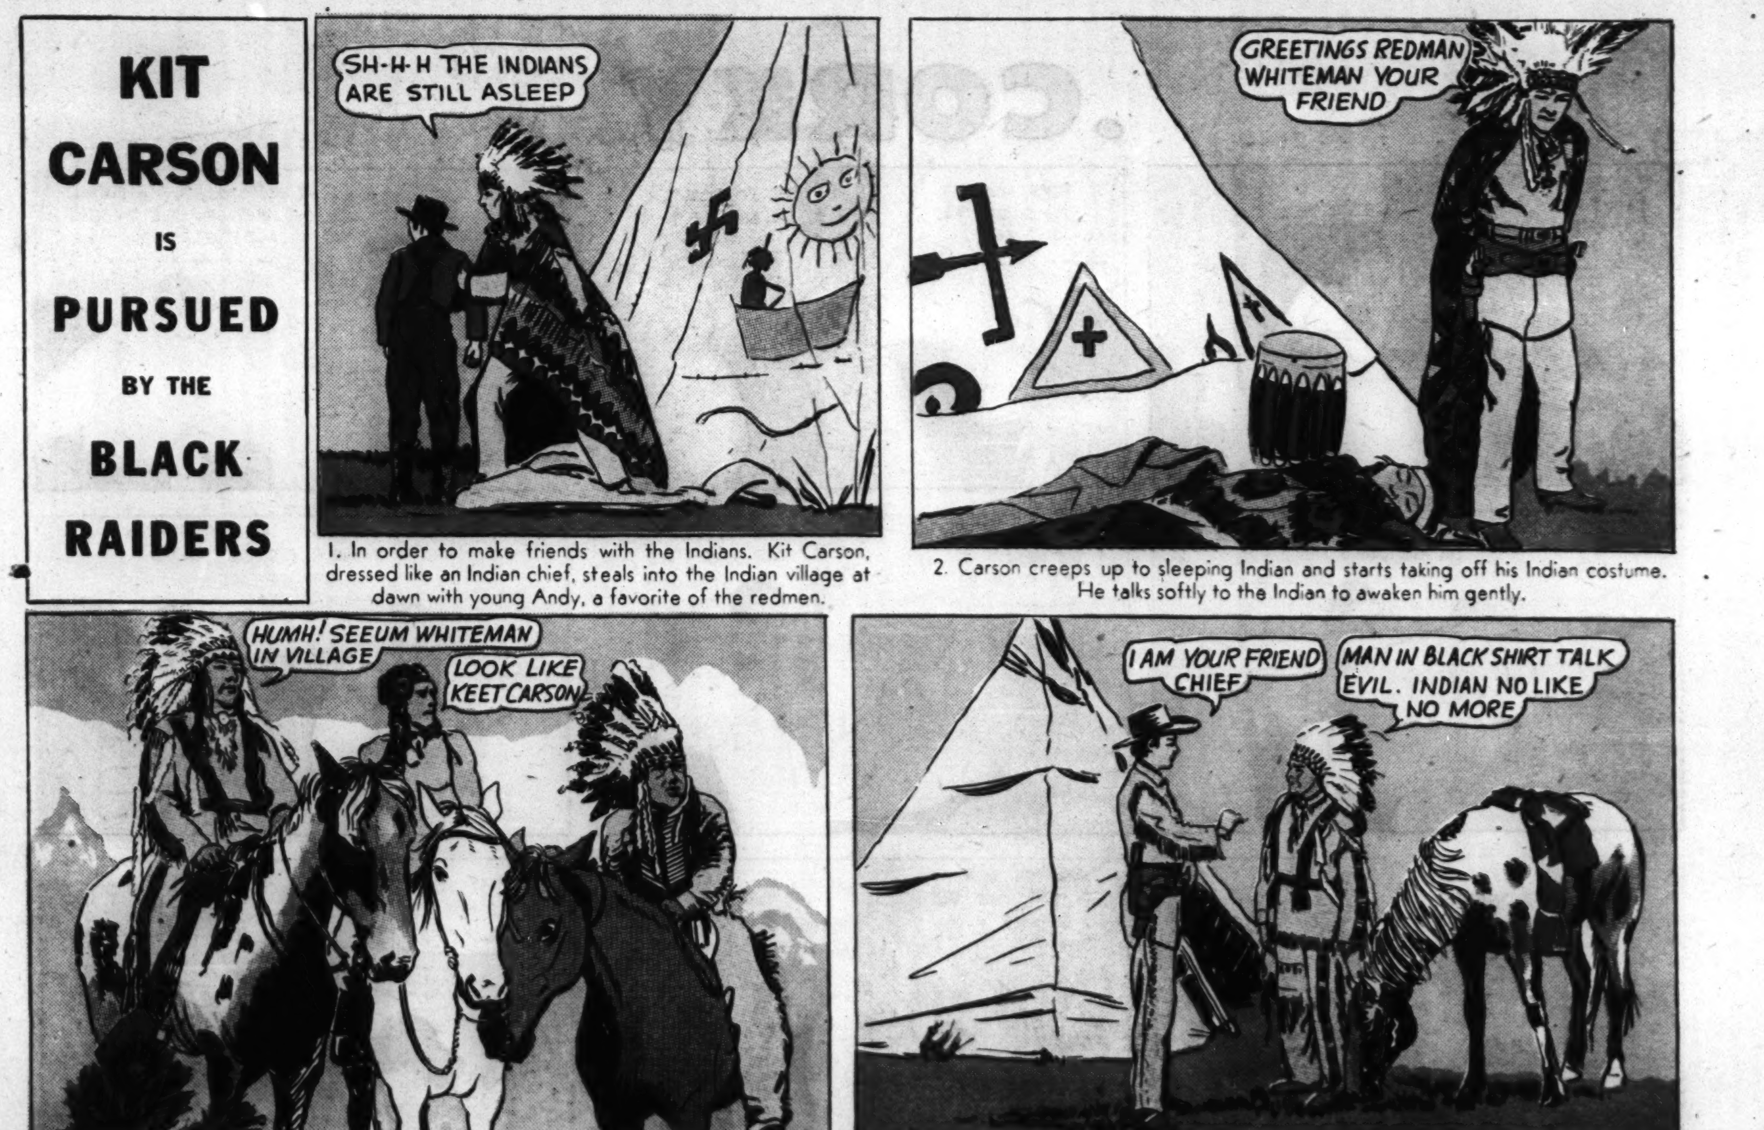
KIT CARSON IS PURSUED BY THE BLACK RAIDERS



1. In order to make friends with the Indians, Kit Carson, dressed like an Indian chief, steals into the Indian village at dawn with young Andy, a favorite of the redmen.

2. Carson creeps up to sleeping Indian and starts taking off his Indian costume. He talks softly to the Indian to awaken him gently.

3. Just at that moment, Carson sees figures approaching the village on horseback. It is a band of Indians, including the chief and the Indian who betrayed Kit last week.

4. Carson greets the chief warmly and they become friends. The chief says he no longer trusts the men in black who once bribed him to kill Carson.

Executives and Managers.

TERRITORIAL MANAGERS.
Direct Factory Representatives.
FOR NEW DRUG SUNDRY LINE.
Ten different items in this line retail from 5c to $1.25 each. Last year 7 million sold in 7 months with national advertising costing $60,000.
The products in this entire line are covered by recently issued RE Patent 21399 with 15 patent claims. The material from which this entire line is manufactured is one of the recent inventions which is doing much to revolutionize modern industry. This material is also patented and is manufactured for us in special quality by one of the largest U. S. Corporations.
Over $100,000 was spent in research and special development work to secure the special quality of this material required for our products. We also use our own special patented machinery in manufacturing.
Large space national advertising is now running in publications with 20,000,000 circulation. Additional orders for advertising just placed for 8 full pages and double pages in magazines costing up to $18,000 per page in four colors.
This full page advertising features one of the most spectacular Hollywood contests ever utilized offering 12 winners free trips to Hollywood and 500 additional prizes.
Our product has been marketed for one year and has already become nationally well and favorably known. We have just developed a special promotional deal for the drug sundry field in connection with our national advertising. This includes an exceptionally effective counter dispenser with special free goods deal. Also a special detail offer to salesmen and very attractive jobber set-up.
We want territorial managers who can contact and sell, and work closely with best jobbers and drug chains in a territory and who can quickly employ and operate successfully ten to twenty-five detail men. Set-up should enable good detail men to earn minimum of $10 a day, in addition to good profit for manager.
We will give contracts for a permanent exclusive territory of one to six states to managers who qualify. No investment. Straight commission. This is not a get rich quick deal, but offers genuine opportunity for building big income over long period of time to right men.
Call Sunday or Monday, 1 to 4 p. m. only, or write or wire giving full experience, past earnings, age.
CHARLES E. ZIMMERMAN,
225 NORTH WABASH, CHICAGO.

and feel the difference
It's difficult to describe this different atmosphere of Coronado apartments, but there's something about them that people like instantly. Perhaps it's their freshness, their new furnishings, their spacious arrangements, their scrupulous cleanliness, the unusual lobby and service—or perhaps it's a combination of these things. In any event it's worth your while to see a Coronado apartment. You be the judge.

General List.

NEAR NORTH SIDE
In summer, it's great to get away for week-ends, but when you come back on Monday it helps to know that you have a studio apartment with a porch or balcony overlooking a fountain in the court yard below, or a roof to climb up to where you can still be out in the fresh air. The living room in one of our apts. is 2 stories high, and another 4 room apt. has a living room 37 ft. long, windows at both ends, and a skylight. It's a marvelous room with its fireplace and dining nook, and just outside a little sunny porch and a bit of a roof. All of these are down here where there are so many interesting things you can enjoy and still have a good night's sleep, because they are all just a short walk up Michigan-av. from the loop. We have also some wonderful places for groups of 3 and 4; some are furnished. A special bargain in a 5 room with a beautiful living room and large combination bed and dressing room. Also a little 3 room house, furnished or unfurnished; special bargain for the summer.

1940'S BUILDING TRIUMPH

In our opinion there is more building activity this year of the better class in the South Lincolnwood section than any other section of the North Shore.

It is, to the best of our knowledge, the only place where values are still low, and where your house is entirely surrounded by new homes—none more than 8 mo. old.

DRIVE OUT TODAY or any day next week and see for yourself. A new 10 acre recreational center for the children is now being built adjoining this area, which is limited in size.

Day by Day on the Farm

by BOB BECKER

Squirrel Defends Home.

April 27, 1940.

THE farm woods are becoming more interesting to the outdoor fan as spring makes advances with ne wbuds, the appearance of the earliest wild flowers, and the arrival of new birds. This week we stopped for several minutes in one corner of a wood lot to watch something we never had seen before. It was a battle between several starlings and one gray squirrel for possession of a cavity in a tall oak tree.

The fight between the hated starlings [the species that many ardent bird fans would like to see ousted from the middle west] and the squirrel was an illustration of how the starlings are warring on wrens, woodpeckers, squirrels, and other feathered and furred residents of our woods. The squirrel obviously had been using this tree cavity as its home. There are many red squirrels in the farm wood lots because the trees offer both food and shelter to them—two things that are lacking in many wooded tracts in the middle west.

He Eludes Attackers.

The starlings were furious at this nimble squirrel. Four birds were united in the attack. They struck at the squirrel with their slim, murderous bills, but he eluded them neatly. When the birds were darting at him they uttered a queer assortment of squeaks and rasping noises. Finally the squirrel made a dash around the tree trunk and plunked into the cavity. That baffled the birds, altho one hovered in front of the entrance and even then tried to get at the animal. We ended the battle with one well directed shot a he birds from a small gun.

The hated starlings also are causing trouble around the martin houses perched on tall poles in the garden of a farm home. Each year the men on the farm put the martin houses in place just before the date on which these beneficial and beautiful birds usually arrive from the south. Their average arrival date is April 15, and the houses were in place at that time this spring. But when the weather man delayed the arrival of warm weather he also delayed the arrival of the martins. Consequently the sparrows and starlings took unfair advantage of the martins and their homes.

Late Arrivals Worry Fans.

Some Chicagoland bird lovers have been rather worried about the main flight of martins. A number of martin scouts have arrived in northern Illinois as advance agents for the migration. But several bird fans reported early in the week that their colonies of birds were late.

A walk thru the farm woods resulted in the discovery of another interesting bird migrant. It was a brown creeper, a tiny little bird which isn't much larger than a wren. This beneficial species does its share to eliminate insect pests by working on the trunks of trees and feeding on he groubs and larvæ in the bark. Occasionally a few brown creepers remain in the Chicago area all winter, but usually they arrive here from the south early in April and stay until the middle or end of September.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by BOB BECKER

Squirrel Defends Home.

April 27, 1940.

THE farm woods are becoming more interesting to the outdoor fan as spring makes advances with ne wbuds, the appearance of the earliest wild flowers, and the arrival of new birds. This week we stopped for several minutes in one corner of a wood lot to watch something we never had seen before. It was a battle between several starlings and one gray squirrel for possession of a cavity in a tall oak tree.

The fight between the hated starlings [the species that many ardent bird fans would like to see ousted from the middle west] and the squirrel was an illustration of how the starlings are warring on wrens, woodpeckers, squirrels, and other feathered and furred residents of our woods. The squirrel obviously had been using this tree cavity as its home. There are many red squirrels in the farm wood lots because the trees offer both food and shelter to them—two things that are lacking in many wooded tracts in the middle west.

He Eludes Attackers.

The starlings were furious at this nimble squirrel. Four birds were united in the attack. They struck at the squirrel with their slim, murderous bills, but he eluded them neatly. When the birds were darting at him they uttered a queer assortment of squeaks and rasping noises. Finally the squirrel made a dash around the tree trunk and plunked into the cavity. That baffled the birds, altho one hovered in front of the entrance and even then tried to get at the animal. We ended the battle with one well directed shot a he birds from a small gun.

The hated starlings also are causing trouble around the martin houses perched on tall poles in the garden of a farm home. Each year the men on the farm put the martin houses in place just before the date on which these beneficial and beautiful birds usually arrive from the south. Their average arrival date is April 15, and the houses were in place at that time this spring. But when the weather man delayed the arrival of warm weather he also delayed the arrival of the martins. Consequently the sparrows and starlings took unfair advantage of the martins and their homes.

Late Arrivals Worry Fans.

Some Chicagoland bird lovers have been rather worried about the main flight of martins. A number of martin scouts have arrived in northern Illinois as advance agents for the migration. But several bird fans reported early in the week that their colonies of birds were late.

A walk thru the farm woods resulted in the discovery of another interesting bird migrant. It was a brown creeper, a tiny little bird which isn't much larger than a wren. This beneficial species does its share to eliminate insect pests by working on the trunks of trees and feeding on he groubs and larvæ in the bark. Occasionally a few brown creepers remain in the Chicago area all winter, but usually they arrive here from the south early in April and stay until the middle or end of September.

MR. C says "I am an old Insurance man who knows the mortgage business; here is my appreciation of the outstanding work you did for my client."

The facts: His client signed a contract for a home—could not collect cash from his debtor, and was about to lose $400 earnest money, because he needed cash to complete his contract. He came to us. We handled and financed the deal. Everybody is happy—We too.

We grant top loans on homes up to 30 years old, 2 to 4 apartments, large apartment, store, and factory buildings. Also place FHA loans up to 90% of value. We advance funds to settle back taxes, liens, to redeem property, and to close estates.

If even our top loan won't do, we will negotiate with the mortgagee or bondholder's committee to cut down overly large debts to present day levels. Low rates. PEOPLE'S MORTGAGE CORPORATION, 1976 MILWAUKEE. BRUNSWICK 6200. Tuesday and Thursday open until 8 p. m.

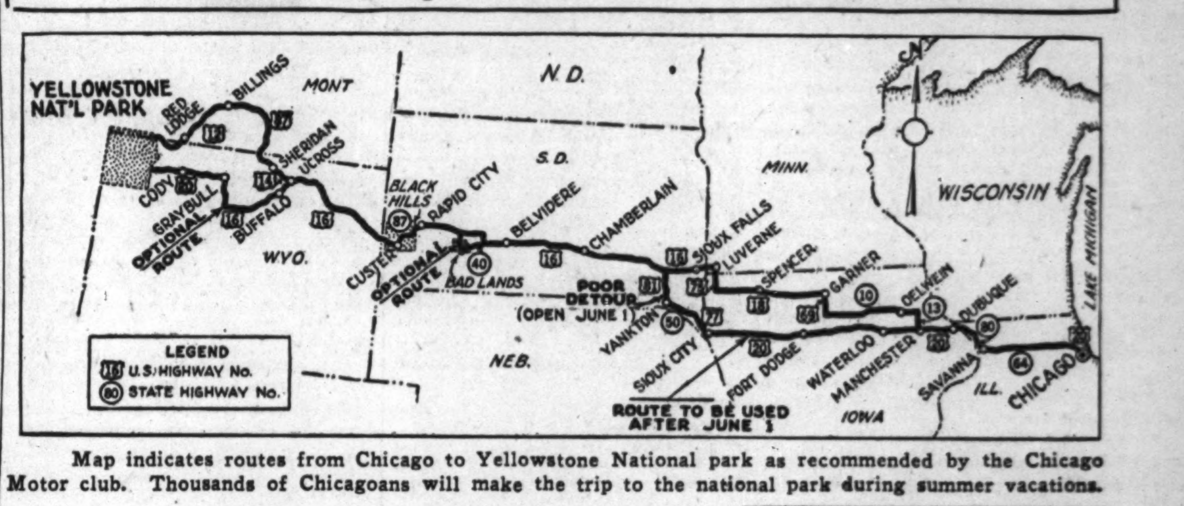
MOTORS—TRAFFIC—HIGHWAYS

Motor Club Maps Routes to Yellowstone Park



Map indicates routes from Chicago to Yellowstone National park as recommended by the Chicago Motor club. Thousands of Chicagoans will make the trip to the national park during summer vacations.

Another Record Looked for in '40 American Tourist Volume

BY HAL FOUST.

The summer motor travel season is opening. Sunny week-ends are bringing city dwellers into the country to see the new green of woods and meadows. Passenger cars from neighboring and from distant states are becoming more numerous on the main highways.

It's the beginning of the harvest season in America's 5 billion dollar recreational travel industry. This big money figure of 5 billion dollars is the 1939 estimate of expenditures on and for pleasure automobile trips in this country. The outlook for 1940 is for another new record in tourist volume.

Most Popular Recreation.

In the size of expenditures and in the number of participants, riding the roads continues to be America's most popular form of recreation. The motor car itself has long ceased to be a novelty. It's the lure of new scenes, of changes in surroundings, that turns the dials of the nation's gasoline pumps. Better machines and better pavements have made distant places more accessible and car owners are going there in greater numbers than ever before.

Yellowstone National park's official opening has been advanced from the traditional June 1 date to May 1. This is the signal initiating the season for the dude ranches of the west. From now until June 1 the Chicago Motor club advises a route using Ill. 64 to Savanna, Ill., thence north to cross the river at Dubuque, Ia., and thereafter turning north from U. S. 20 at Manchester, Ia., to pick up Ia. 10, then U. S. 69, U. S. 18, and U. S. 75 to get on the U. S. 16 numbers at Luverne, Minn., for the long jaunt across South Dakota and into Wyoming.

Blossom Festival an Attraction.

A closer touring objective with an imminent special attraction is the blossom festival of Berrien county, Mich. The twin cities of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph, about 95 miles from the loop, expect a half million visitors during the week beginning next Sunday. The motor club advises taking U. S. 41 to junction with U. S. 12, hence on U. S. 12 to junction with U. S. 20. Follow U. S. 20 to junction with Indiana 212. Proceed on Indiana 212 until it joins U. S. 12, taking the latter route into Benton Harbor.

In this blossom week, unless the weather defies chamber of commerce plans, visitors may tour miles of side roads perfumed with flowering trees covering the gentle hills. In a program of daily events a blossom queen will be selected a week from tomorrow evening and on Saturday, May 11, she and her regal court will participate in a parade of five miles of floral floats.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

IN PRAISE OF TOW MAN.

Evanston, April 12.—I happened upon an accident scene Monday afternoon, April 8, at Maple and Greenwood avenues in Evanston.

It was one of those rare accidents where a taxicab hit a two ton truck in just the right spot to throw the truck off balance and turn it over on its side. A local tow truck came, towed away the cab, returned, the operatives took a good look at the overturned truck and promptly left. [I assume that they did not know how to handle the situation.] About 10 minutes later a tow truck bearing the name "Rodi Towing Service" arrived, manned by one individual, a short, stocky unassuming man. He climbed from his truck, surveyed the scene with what appeared to be one quick glance and promptly set to work. He took out some chains and rope, tied them to the overturned truck and calmly walked back to his truck and operated a motor that began pulling the truck up.

The pavement was wet and the truck wheels, instead of getting traction, slid and the truck started to slide along on its side. Undaunted, the towing man put several wooden blocks under the wheels and tied a rope from the overturned truck over the roof and to the bumper of a car in back of the truck. Thus, with sufficient leverage, the truck was righted and set down as gently as a mother would lay her baby in a crib. The whole process took exactly 17 minutes. There was a murmur from the assembled crowd of about 100 that came directly from their hearts. It was a murmur of profound admiration for the towing man for a job well done.

A WORTH WHILE DEED.

Chicago, April 10.—If you ever have tried to commend a worth while deed in two or three hundred words you can appreciate just what I am up against.

This morning, while waiting for my son to make a business call, in the neighborhood of Van Buren street and California avenue, I saw a blind man trying to cross over from the east to the west side of Van Buren street, but owing to the traffic he was unable to make it and he might still be trying to cross if a young driver of a truck hadn't noticed him, stopped his truck in the middle of the street, walked over to where the old fellow was, and helped him across the street.

In my opinion that young fellow needs no slap on the back for what he did, but I wish those people who are in too much of a hurry to give a blind man a break could have witnessed that truck driver's act.

TRAFFIC COURT PENALTIES.

Darien, Wis., April 24.—In listening to the traffic court broadcast it sometimes seems as if the fines are not consistent with the offense.

For example, in a case heard not long ago a young man made a left turn in the loop. He admitted in court he had been drinking some, but not being in the habit of using alcohol it made him a little slow in thinking, but he was going slow and trying to be careful. For telling the truth and not lying he was given 10 days in the county jail, even tho there was a chance that his absence from work might cost him his job.

The next case was a young man who, going at a high rate of speed, hit another car, went across the street into a filling station and smashed his car against the pumps.

He denied he had anything to drink even tho the police said they smelled alcohol on his breath. He was charged with reckless driving and was given five days in jail. If the court weighs all evidence in the case had not this second offender made himself liable to as severe a penalty as the first?

The question is, would the first offender have received as heavy a penalty if he had denied drinking as almost all do and receive a small fine? From the radio broadcast of these cases it would seem that the offenders who deny drinking get less fines than another who admits he had a "couple of beers." Does this not put a premium on lying on the stand?

C. F. WADSWORTH.

DESIGNS GETTING WORSE?

Chicago, April 17.—The design of automobiles is wrong and are each year getting worse instead of better. In the latest streamlined cars the driver is located far below the engine hood of the car so that it is impossible to see the road immediately in front of the car. The new 1941 cars should be designed to have the driver up high or the engine should be at the rear of the car similar to the new buses. Such a car would prevent many accidents and save lives at the same time.

Champion Goes Two Tone

Here is Studebaker's Champion in two tone colors which have taken the public's fancy this year. The Champion, however, is finished in two tone colors both inside and out. Exteriors are available in five color combinations, featuring the deeper shades on the lower parts of the cars with the entire top above the belt line in lighter shades. Interiors are available in three color combinations.

REPORT TRUCKS PROVIDE WORK FOR 4,000,000

Motor trucks provide jobs for 4,000,000 persons in the nation, the Automobile Manufacturers association reported yesterday in a discussion of the industry. One of its greatest contributions to the country, the report affirms, has been the reduction of distribution costs that limited the flow of commerce.

At the end of 1939 there were 4,320,929 motor trucks registered in the United States—a new all time high. In 1904, the first year for which reliable statistics are available, there were only 700 trucks made and sold.

In 1919 production had climbed to a point where 224,700 trucks were sold. Then economists said that we had about reached the saturation point for trucks. But last year, only 20 years later, 757,000 trucks were produced—the fourth time in history that production passed the three-quarters of a million mark.

A Record of Enterprise.

"Viewed in the perspective of American economic history," the association reports, "the record of transportation by truck has been one of exceptional resourcefulness and enterprise. Where the older forms of transportation, such as the post road, the stage coach, the canal, and the early railroad enjoyed the help of beneficent legislation and money or land subsidy, the truck literally lifted itself to its present position by its own bootstraps.

"The truck industry's achievements are all the more remarkable in that they have been made in face of numerous trade restrictions and strict regulatory measures."

Daily Tax Is $1,800,000.

The association declares that motor trucks operating over the nation's highways are paying special motor vehicle taxes of well over $1,000,000 a day—$1,180,000 to be exact.

"As a stimulant to employment, the motor truck is a tremendous force," the association report continues. "One pay check in every 10 in the nation goes to a person employed in the production, distribution, servicing, or operating end of the industry."

Chief among the new jobs created are those for truck operators. Motor trucks employ nearly 3,650,000 drivers —more than three times the employment on the Class One railroads. Since 1935 alone nearly 650,000 new jobs have been created for truck drivers. This number is in addition to drivers, such as farmers, who own and operate their own cars.

NEWS AND VIEWS

W. E. Holler, sales manager for the Chevrolet division of General Motors, will pause from his nation-wide tour to spend two days in Chicago — tomorrow and Tuesday. Tomorrow he will address a meeting of about 200 dealers from the Chicago district in the Palmer House and Tuesday he will confer with about 80 members of the company's wholesale organization, also in the Palmer House. Holler is easily one of the nation's most traveled executives. Since the first of the year he has visited most of the key cities in the sales drive that has seen production amount to more than 700,000 cars for this model this season. March and April sales have been setting new records.

W. E. Holler.

E. S. Chapman, a former Chicagoan, has been elected vice president in charge of operations for the Plymouth Motor corporation to succeed the late P. C. Sauerbrey, who died recently in Florida. At the same time D. S. Eddins, president of Plymouth, announced that A. H. Paterson, formerly factory manager, has been appointed general works manager to succeed Chapman. Chapman joined the Chrysler corporation in 1928 after 13 years in various capacities with a large machine tool company. He joined the Plymouth division in 1935.

More than 700 Cook county motor car dealers and members of their organizations are expected to attend a dinner Tuesday night at which Donald R. Richberg will address the Chicago Automobile Trade association. The winner will be in the Lake Shore Athletic club.

Establishment of the Graham Illinois company as distributor for new Graham cars was announced yesterday by S. L. Davis, president of the new organization. Headquarters will be at 26th street and Michigan avenue. Early models of the new Graham senior cars already are on display.
